There are, for example, thousands of improvements, alterations and repairs needed in and about Peterborough homes, factories, stores and offices right now – WORK that has for one reason or another, been deferred until a later date–but WORK nevertheless that sooner or later will become absolutely NECESSARY.

There are many idle men in Peterborough right now perfectly capable of doing this WORK, and these men NEED THAT WORK NOW. You can do YOUR share toward reviving and stabilizing business generally by improving and modernizing your property and for purely selfish reasons you should do it now while the prices of both the necessary materials and labor are at their present low levels.

If every citizen, in a position to do so, will do his part it will provide work for the unemployed–it will release idle dollars, which will make for vastly improved business

EMPLOYMENT SUGGESTIONS

Paint your house, store, office or factory, repair your verandah, fences, shingle your house, changing partitions, some plumbing or tinsmithing, interior decorating, hanging paper and painting your home, taking down storm windows, putting up screens, house cleaning, digging gardens, raking lawns, washing winds, repairing, washing or ducoing your car—ANYTHING TO GIVE A MAN A JOB AND CLEAN UP THE CITY.

Applicants for work may register at the Provincial Employment Bureau, Charlotte Street, where citizens requiring men can also be supplied.

SUSPENDED ATHLETE PRIDE OF FRENCH OLYMPIC TEAM

Hope to See Little Ladoumeque Run at Los Angeles Events.

MAY BE REINSTATED.

By MAXWELL STILES
(Special to The Examiner)

LOS ANGELES, May 6. —Jules Ladoumeque, the little orphan boy who grew up to become the greatest one-mile runner in the world, is the heart and the soul of the French Olympic team. Ladoumeque is the fire and the hope, the pride and the standard bearer.

And little 2Ladoumeque is now under suspension on the suspicion that he may be an amateur.

It was the French Amateur Athletic Association that took Ladoumeque, temporarily at least, out of the Olympic games picture. It is the French Amateur Athletic Association that can put him back. Loyal citizens of France, sports lovers in the United States who hope to see little Ladoumeque run, the Olympic headquarters in Los Angeles—everyone, it seems—hopes that the French athletic officials can find some legal means of restoring Ladoumeque to good standing.

For this great 1,500 metres race here this summer that will bring together so many men who have been flirting with, or bettering, the 1,500 metres and mile records of Paavo Nurmi, would be a hollow thing unless Ladoumeque were in it. They would always say of the winner, "he is the champion, but if he had been up against Ladoumeque—?

There is a chance that Ladoumeque will be restored to good standing. Finland gave Nurmi a clean bill of health. France may do the same with Ladoumeque. If the International Amateur Athletic Federation will stop listening to the so-called "evidence" of disgruntled promoters, and accept the decisions of the athletic men of Finland and of France, perhaps these two great runners will be allowed to compete at Los Angeles.

Anyway, with or without Ladoumeque, the French Olympic team will sail July 4, on the Lafayette, according to announcement recently forthcoming from French Olympic headquarters in Paris. Henri Didot, consul for France in Los Angeles, has been informed that the French team will consist of between 0 and 70 athletes.

The French government has donated 3,000,000 francs ($120,000) to transport and maintain the team, as well as to train the athletes before leaving France. This is the biggest government donation of any nation and was made because France is the country that started the modern Olympic games; France feels it a sacred duty, an extreme pleasure, to remain in the front rank of the nations that are forwarding the cause of international friendship through the medium of the Olympia.

Mr. Didot is now considering three or four of the best French chefs in Los Angeles, one of whom is to be selected as chef of the French Olympic team after the arrival in Los Angeles. The consul states that the French Athletes are not particular about their wine, as newspapers have intimated, but they are particular about their food.

Mr. Didot hints that it is the officials rather than the athletes, coming from France, who are inquiring about the wine.

Mr. Didot understands that France's principal hopes for success are in track and field sports, fencing and equestrain sports. France was second in men's fencing in 1928, also second in weight lifting.

France probably will compete, also, in swimming, cycling, modern pentahlon and perhaps yachting.

1—A victory in the 1,500 metres run if Ladoumeque is reinstated, world record of 3.49.2 and for the Ladoumeque holds the unofficial mile the unofficial record of 4.09.2.

2—9,400 metres free style swim victory by George Taris, the outstanding favorite at this distance, who also stands fine chances at 100 and 1,500 metres.

3—A victory in the discus throw, both Noel and Winter having bettered 160 feet last year.

4—An upset victory in the 800 metres run, with Feger, Keller and Sera Martin running close to record time.

U. S. AND CANADIAN NET STARS SHAKE HANDS

While Canada toppled before the machine-like play of the United States in Davis Cup tennis play, Dr. Jack Wright, veteran star of the Canadian team, did himself proud during his singles match against Ellsworth Vines, champion of the States. He forced the lanky Californian, hailed as the greatest American player since Tilden, to five sets before admitting defeat, with scores, 8-6, 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2. Photograph shows the players shaking hands after the strenuous tussle.

By RALPH H. REVILLE

(By Ralph H. Reville)

The Quebec Branch of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union announces the following interesting program of championships and tournaments for the coming season:—

June 6, Field Day (medal), Royal Montreal Golf Club; June 20, Field Day (medal), Marlborough Golf Club; July 4 to 8, Provincial Championship, Islemere Golf Club; July 18, Ladies' tournament, Manoir Richelieu; July 25, Field Day (match), Whitlock Golf Club; Aug. 12, Field Day (medal), Grandmere, Que. Aug. 22 to 25, Junior championship, Beaconsfield Golf Club, Aug. 30 to 31, City and District Championship, Laval-sur-le-Lac; Sept. 12, Field Day (bronze), Senneville Golf Club; Sept. 19 to 24, Open Championship, Kanawaki Golf Club.

For the first time Japan is to be represented in the British Open Championship next June at Sandwich. Tomikichi Miamoto (nothing Scottish about that name!) is being sent this month to England to compete in the Open. He will immediately afterwards sail for America to participate in the U.S. Open at Flushing, N.J. . It is to be sincerely hoped that he can be persuaded with the U.S. stars to come on to Ottawa for the Canadian Open a week or so afterwards. From all accounts "Tom" is really a great little golfer. He would be quite a colorful and stellar attraction at Ottawa, July 7 to 9.

Jimmy Turney, the famous "hiking caddie," has just returned to Hamilton after a caddying tour of Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Carolina, Savannah, Georgia, and St. Augustine, Palm Beach, Florida. "Jimmie" writes me, "My ambition is to become as great a golfer for Canada as some of the stars I have caddied for the past winter in the States." Last year it will be remembered he hiked his way from Hamilton to Victoria, B.C. for the mid-Winter tournament there. A fine, strapping young chap is Turney. He recently wrote a very interesting 1,500-word story on the "Right Club," and he ought to know.

He came out to this country from England some four years ago. He attends only the best tournaments and has caddied for Leo Diegel and other celebrities. "Jimmy" tells me that he will probably try and "hike" it to England this month and take part in the British championships. Miss Helen Hicks, the American lady champion, and former Canadian champion, who sailed for England this week, has promised to employ him if "he makes the grade" —and he probably will.

Mr. Gates said, "and I am more hopeful than ever that England, Canada and other powers in the world of golf will soon accept it as the international ball.

"Records of the tournaments played so far with the new ball show that it has trimmed tournament scores from three to four strokes below last year, when the lighter and larger ball was used. Almost all of the pros tell me it is a wonderful putting ball—far better than than any ball they ever played—while it cuts the wind better."

To Fred Morrison, professional from Culver City, Cal., goes the honor of taking the top place among the money golfers at the end of the Far Western Winter tournament season.

Morrison, who won virtually no money in other years, amassed $5,746.66 in five of the six tournaments which offered aggregate cash prizes of $39,000. First place in the Agua Caliente $15,000 Open gave him $5,000.

Morrison took the throne vacated by George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, who won $7,447 of the $51,200 prize money posted last season. Von Elm gathered in only $1,610 the past season on the coast.

It is very satisfactory to hear from greenkeepers from all parts of the country that courses are in excellent condition this Spring. Last year many courses were in bad shape but this year fairways and greens alike are reported in splendid condition for the season's play. This is especially good news, as the majority of clubs are budgetting as closely as possible on the upkeep of their courses. It is also satisfactory to hear that few if any men employed on the links have been laid off, although in many cases there has been a ten per cent. reduction in wages. Clubs generally recognize that it is false economy to cut down on course maintenance. It means another year that double the expenditure will be entailed. Greens and fairways must be kept up to concert pitch at all costs or a course will quickly go to rack and ruin.

Golfing friends throughout Canada and the States will be interested to hear that Mr. George S. Lyon, the "Grand Old Man and Master of Golf," has just won a vexatious suit at the Toronto Assizes for damages and costs. An agreement which prevented Mr. Lyon from engaging in the insurance business was also cancelled by the court, and he therefore will again be enabled to resume his insurance activities in association with his son Freddie Lyon, also a well known golfer, and A. H. Butler.

Canada holds the honor with the United States in having a golf club exclusively devoted to the ladies—no other countries have—and this season she will also vie with the States in possessing a woman professional golfer.

The charming young player to break into the pro. ranks in this country, is Miss Verena Newton, who pleads guilty to being 19, and who quite sprang into fame last season by winning the British Ladies' Golf Union Cup at the Canadian Ladies' Close Championship at Lambton—her first appearance in a championship. She acquired her golf more or less whilst summering in Muskoka from Hugh Logan of Cobourg, a well known instructor. This winter she has been learning to shaft clubs and do other repair work, and as a result this month takes over the professional duties at a Muskoka resort club. Miss Verena is to be congratulated on her pluck. She states she has to earn her own living, and what better or nicer way than on the links? Good luck to the first woman pro. in Canada.

Mr. A. C. Gregson, editor of Golf Illustrated, New York, himself a very well known golfer indeed, and a recognized authority on the game, writing me about the amateur status, so much to the fore lately in the States and Canada, in no mincing manner says:

"I notice the question of amateur status is to the fore in Canada as in the United States. Possibly we would all get less muddle-headed on the subject if we kept in mind that in golf as in other things, we should get what we can pay for.

If we cannot afford to pay our own way in amateur golf, we must give it up, just as we would anything else beyond our means. No expenses of any kind are ethically payable—one exception but leads to others, and the game comes to be exploited by all sorts of hangers on, who in no wise support it, but simply use amateur golf as a means of personal advancement and a livelihood.

The Bermuda business was an all-round disgrace and if the R.C.G.A. and the U.S.G.A. were hoodwinked there is no reason why they should not now put on their glasses and throw out of amateur golf every man who went on that trip if he received expenses therefore, whether in free passages and free accommodations, or otherwise. The U.S.G.A. certainly intended no sanction to any payments, and I cannot believe that the R.C.G.A. did either."

BOXING BOOMS IN OLD COUNTRY

All-India Cricket Team Will Invade England This Spring.

NEW GRAPPLING ENTRY.

Something has happened to heavyweight fighting.

Not so long ago it was the custom to speak of it in contemptuous terms, and to refer to every other contest as a fiasco.

In the last few weeks, however, England has had battles that were as fine and thrilling as any ever seen.

The first bout between Larry Gains and Don McCorkindale, for example was remarkable for the excitement it created.

The second, as will be generally agreed, was a classic; but the daddy of them all was the recent Peterson-Smith battle at Cardiff.

Young Jack Peterson gave an extraordinary exhibition.

He is, without question, the greatest heavyweight of his age we have had for generations.

And yet he would so easily have been beaten if his opponent, Charlie Smith, had learned ever the elementary principles of attack.

In the twelfth round Smith was so clearly the leader on points that a man who obviously wanted to cover his wagers leaned over to Dan Sullivan and offered to bet him 100 to 110 pounds on Smith.

CRICKETERS MEET

Mr. H. W. Bainbridge, who was re-elected hon. secretary at the annual meeting of the Warwickshire County Cricket club, said that something must be done to keep down run-getting, and that a slightly smaller bat might be the next move.

Mr. Bainbridge also expressed the view that, in spite of association football, cricket would always remain the greatest game in the world.

Mr. R. V. Ryder, secretary of the club, said that there was no truth in the suggestion that Warwickshire turned down Bowes and Verity. Duckworth, he added, was actually signed, but preferred to play for Lancashire.

Sir Charles Hyde, who was re-elected president of the club, described the financial side of the report as "gloomy." Despite last year's deficit of $10,125, however, he looked on the coming season with optimism.

Warwickshire would start the summer better equipped with players and reserves than ever before, and would make a great bid for success.

CAN HE WRESTLE?

After exhibition bouts at Leeds Carnera was challenged by Douglas Clark, British wrestling champion and former Huddersfield rugby league forward, to a match for $2,500 a side.

Mr. Leon See, Carnera's manager, said after the announcements he was willing for Carnera to box or wrestle anybody in the world provided there was sufficient financial inducement for him to do so. Clark's challenge was a matter for some promoter.

OPEN SEASON

Southampton set the ball rolling in the season's speedway meetings. The chief item was a match between Colin Watson (Wembley) and Frank Arthur (Stamford Bridge). Watson took the honors in two straight runs. The first was the better of the two, as there was little between them for three laps Arthur had a slight lead at the start, but Watson drew level and after three laps opened up a gap which Arthur could not close.

INDIAN TOURISTS

The All-India cricketers, who have accepted an invitation to watch the cup final at Wembley, will open their tour of this country with a match against Mr. T. Gilbert Scott's Pelsham XI, at Pelsham Peasmarch, near Rye, on Friday and Saturday, April 29 and 30, and it will be seen that two England captains, A. P. Chapman and D. R. Jardine, are included in the English side.

A. P. F. Chapman (Kent and England) G. E. C. Wood (Kent and England), H. G. Owen-Smith (Oxford University and South Africa) B. W. Hone and R. S. G. Scott (Oxford University) D. R. Jardine (Surrey and England) F. R. Brown (Cambridge University and England) Miles Howell (Surrey) F. G. H. Chalk (Oxford University) P. M. R. Scott and Jack Mercer (Glamorgan).

The game has been organized in aid of the Peasmarch church restoration fund. Play will commence at noon on Friday and 11.30 a.m. on the following day. Admission to the ground each day (including unreserved seats) will be 2s. (1s. after four o'clock, while special reserved seats may be had for 5s. daily or 7s 6d. for the two days including admission. There will be facilities for parking motor cars.

"What would taste good for dinner to-night?"

How many wives have asked that question . . . and how many brides of the future will ask it . . . of indifferent husbands, right after breakfast or lunch? Hopefully at first, almost desperately after a time, and finally as part of a dull, daily soliloquy. For every wife discovers that a man with a newly satisfied palate is a total loss as a source of inspiration for future meals.

Nevertheless, it's an important and trying matter, this business of planning the menu. There are cook-books, of course, but better than that, why not find out what's new in the markets? Pick up your newspaper—that will tell you. There's news about food—in the advertising of local markets and stores, and in that of the nationally known producer of tempting things to eat.

Here's a new way of buying and serving chicken, for example, and one that's no trouble at all. Or a ham, with a new and piquant flavor. It may be that artichokes have just come to market—the first of the season. Or berries, or fruit, or corn on the cob. The advertisements in your paper tell you these things, with the prices, and where you can buy them. Here is inspiration for many a meal, without dragging weary feet from store to store, looking for what would taste good to-night.

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name as a result of advertising do not accept a substitute —substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

Leafs Drop Double Decisions to Bears 4-0, 3-2

NEWARK HOLDS LEAF BATSMEN TO FOUR HITS

Weaver Permits One in First Game and Nekola Three in Nightcap.

SELKIRK HITS HOMER.

Manager Daly Hits Double in His First Time at Bat This Season.

TORONTO, May 6.—Some fancy flinging by big Jim Weaver and southpaw Frank Nekola ended the Maple Leaf's winning streak at Maple Leaf Stadium yesterday afternoon and registered two victories for the leading Newark Bears. The scores were 4 to 0, and 3 to 2.

It was the first doubleheader of the season here, and the thousand or so fans who witnessed it, including the baseball scribes, hope it is the last under such weather conditions. The customers and the ball players shivered through sixteen innings of fairly good baseball and the fact that the Leafs lost both ends of the twin bill didn't add any comfort to the occasion.

Weaver set the Leafs down with one hit in nine innings and had a shut-out all the way. He was opposed by Art Smith previously unbeaten Toronto pitcher. Smith pitched good ball but no pitcher can win if he isn't given any runs. Ralph Michaels got the only hit off Weaver a clean single to right in the fourth innings.

Allows Three Hits

In the second game "Bolts" Nekola held the Leafs hitless and runless for five innings which made a total of ten innings in succession. The Dalymen might as well have been swinging toothpicks as baseball bats. In the sixth inning of the second game Manager Daly sent Art McHenry in to hit for Truett Sewell, the Leaf's starting pitcher, and McHenry got a hit, the first that Nekola yielded. In the seventh inning, with Newark leading, 3 to 0, the Leafs staged a rally that just fell one run short of tying the score. Had Ray Morehart been able to produce a hit in this frame, the Bears probably would have been beaten, for the eLafs had two runs in and runners on third and second when Rolphe scooped Morehart's drive out of the dirt and tossed to Neun for the final out of the game.

Manager Daly Hits a Double

The big blow of this rally, which produced a couple of hits, a base on balls, a base awarded to Stack for interference by Catcher Padden at the plate, and two runs, was a double by Manager Tom Daly, who inserted himself into the line-up for the first time this season as a pinch-hitter for Al Yarnell, former local amateur pitcher, who followed Sewell to the mound. The Leaf pilot smacked a sweet two-bagger to left, the best hit the Leafs got all afternoon.

The Bears really won the first game after two batters had faced Smith in the opening frame. Jesse Hill, first Newark man up, pelted a triple to left centre and scored when Cohen hoisted a long fly to Hughes.

That run, as it proved, was sufficient to win by but Smith didn't permit any more scoring until the eighth, when George Selkirk came to bat with two bases occupied and two out. He watched the first pitch curve beautifully over the plate for a called strike, but he slammed the next one over the right field wall for a home run, removing all doubt as to whether the Bears would win or not.

Weaver had six strike-outs, but he issued four walks. Only one Toronto player got as far as third. Doljack went that distance in the seventh when he walked, advanced to second on Owen's sacrifice, took third as Cohen tossed out "Hubby" Walker, and then died there as Hughes poled a fly to Fred Walker.

Michaels led off in the fourth with the lone Toronto hit and he was sacrificed to second by Fritz, but Doljack and Owen were promptly fanned by Weaver.

The Bears collected nine hits off Smith, three of them in the first inning and three in the eighth, the two innings in which they did all their scoring. Art Mills worked the ninth inning and only three men faced him although the first man up, Rolphe, got a scratch single. But Rolphe was picked off first base.

Former Champion Goes Over The Top

RATED WITH FIRST FOUR HIGH JUMPERS

Henry Lassalette, former U. S. senior high jump champion, works out for the coming Olympic tryouts under colors of the Los Angeles A. C. Lassalette, who is rated as one of the four outstanding high jumpers in America is 21 years old and 6 feet 3 inches in height, and regularly leaps more than his own height in practice.

ARLETT'S HITTING FEATURES ORIOLES' 11-5 WIN OVER HERD

WINGS' FIRST HOME WIN.

(By the Associated Press)

If they aren't already doing so, seven clubs in the International League soon may be wishing the Phillies had decided to keep Russel L. (Buzz) Arlett in the National League this season.

Arlett's fence-busting proclivities have furnished the high spot of the Baltimore Orioles' recent drive to the top, a surge that had carried them into second place, two games and a half behind the Newark Bears to-day.

Fielding weakness shot Arlett out of the big leagues after only one season, but the Orioles can afford to overlook these as long as the big outfielder continues to hit as he has been doing. Throught yesterday's game, Arlett had collected 36 hits at bat for a gaudy .434 average.

The Buffalo Bisons, in particular, have reason to regret the trade that took him to Baltimore. In three games on the Bisons' home grounds, Arlett has been at bat 15 times, made 10 hits and driven in 10 runs. His hit collection—good for an average of .667 had included his ninth, tenth and eleventh home runs, three doubles, a triple and three singles.

Yesterday he drove in five runs with a home run, triple, double and single as the Orioles whipped the Bisons, 11—5 for their third victory in as many days at Buffalo.

The Reading Keys absorbed their 10th straight loss and Montreal hung up its sixth victory in a row at Montreal, 5—2. Yerkes held the Royals to one run in the first seven innings but the Royals got to him for four runs in the eighth to win. Shiver hit a triple and home run for the winners. McAfee and Pomorski held the Keys to five hits.

Wings Upset Pests, 7—4

The Rochester Redwings finally won a home game, upsetting Jersey City, 7—4, behind the eight-hit pitching of Ira Smith. The score would not even have been close had not Clancy caught hold of one of Smith's deliveries for a home run with two on in the fifth. Phil Gallivan, making his first start for Jersey City, was hit hard in the four and a third innings he worked but Irvin was charged with the defeat when the Redwings scored three runs in the seventh.

WESLY FERREL BADLY BEATEN BY ATHLETICS

BROWNS BEAT SOX 11-3.

Unearned Runs Give Dodgers 2 to 1 Win Over Chicago Cubs.

(By Gayle Talbot, A.P. Sports Writer.)

Wesley Ferrell won more games than any righthander in the American League last season, 22 of them, but he still is just a "cousin" to the Philadelphia Athletics.

The Cleveland ace started against the Mackmen six times last year, was knocked out of the box twice and charged with five defeats, almost half his total of reverses against all his clubs. He didn't win one.

Yesterday, flushed from five consecutive victories over western teams, Ferrell was chosen to open the eastern campaign at Shibe Park. Possibly Manager Roger Peckinpaugh wanted to learn if lightning could keep on striking in the same spot, and sure enough it did.

When Ferrell finally threw in the sponge in the seventh inning he had been raked for 12 hits by the league champions and the score was 11-2. The final count, after the A's had finished up on Pete Jablonowski, was 15-3, and the Indians had slipped from second place into third, behind the idle Detroit Tigers.

Ferrell's rout spoiled what had promised to be a pitchers' "natural." Lefty Grove he'd the invaders to six hits, struck out five, and didn't allow a blow until the seventh, when Willie Kamm hit one far and wide with Vosmik on base. Eric McNair knocked in five runs with a homer, a double and two singles, while Jimmy Foxx hit four across with a home run and two singles and scored five times.

BROWNS RALLY TO WIN.

In the only other American League tussle, the St. Louis Browns rallied to score nine runs in the sixth and seventh rounds and defeat Boston, 11-3. Bump Hadley, much travelled right-hander, held the Red Sox to seven hits.

Thanks to two errors by their opponents at crucial spots, the Brooklyn Dodgers opened their tour of the National Leagu's western points with a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Moore's wild throw from the outfield gave the Dodgers their first run off Charley root in the sixth, and Stan Hack's fumble put Lopez on base with the winning run in the seventh. It was Root's first defeat this year.

Ernie Lombardi, big catcher, returned to the Cincinnati lineup to knock in four runs with a home run and a triple and prove a big factor in the Reds' 9-6 defeat of the Boston Braves. The Reds knocked Ed Brandt from the hill in the fifth, when they scored five runs. Boston won hitting honors, 13-9, but couldn't get them in clusters.

Led by Bill Terry and Hughie Critz, the eighth place New York Giants slugged Bill Hallahan and three other Cardinal pitchers for a 10-6 victory in their opener. Critz collected a double and three singles, Terry his seventh home run of the year and a single.

The Phillies were rained out at Pittsburgh.

1932 SOFTBALL RULES

The pitching rules in softball, while they should for the most part be familiar to all hurlers, are often the cause of considerable argument. Rule 26, Section 1 has this to say: Preliminary to pitching, the pitcher shall take his position facing the batsman, with both feet on top of the pitcher's plate, or one foot on top of the pitcher's plate and the other in contact with same, and in the act of delivering the ball to the batsman he must keep one foot in contact with the pitcher's plate. He shall not raise either foot until in the act of delivering the ball to the batsman, nor may he make more than one step in such delivery. Before delivering the ball to the batter the pitcher must face the batsman with both hands holding the ball in front of him. The arm, however, must be swung parallel with the body, underhand.

Section 2 of Rule 27 is: with no one on base, the pitcher deliver the ball while off the pitcher's plate, and the batsman strike at such illegally delivered ball, it counts as a strike or whatever play may follow.

OFTEN VIOLATED.

Section 2 of Rule 29 is often violated by local pitchers: The umpire shall call a ball on the pitcher each time he delays the game by failing to deliver the ball to the batsman for a longer period than 20 seconds, expecting that at the commencement of each inning, or when a pitcher relieves another, the pitcher may occupy one minute in delivering not to exceed five balls to the catcher or an infielder, during which time play shall be suspended.

Concerning balks, a new ruling in softball this year, Rule 30 states that a balk entitling the base-runner or runners to advance shall be called by the umpire as follows: Section 1: Any motion made by the pitcher while in position to deliver the ball to the batter without delivering it.

Section 2: Any delivery of the ball to the bat by the pitcher while he is not facing the batsman. Section 3: Any motion in delivering the ball to the batter by the pitcher while not in position defined by Rule 26, Section 1.

Section 4: Holding the ball by the pitcher so long as, in the opinion of the umpire, to delay the game unnecessarily. Section 5: Making any motion to pitch while standing in his position, without having the ball in his possession; or, if the pitcher takes a legal position on the pitcher's plate without the ball in his possession, or if he takes a position off the pitcher's plate and feints to deliver the ball to the batter. Section 6: Delivering the ball to the batter when the catcher is standing outside the lines of the catcher's position.

Section 7: If the pitcher steps off the pitcher's plate, after being in position, for the purpose either of drying his hands or rubbing his eyes, or for other reasons, and it is a legitimate action not understood or interpreted by the umpire as intended to deceive a base-runner, then the umpire shall call "Time."

CASE OF BALK.

Section 8: In case a balk is called, the ball shall be considered dead when announcement is made, and no play can be made until the runners reach the base or bases to which they are entitled. Section 9: If the pitcher, in the act of delivering the ball to the batsman, drop the ball, either intentionally or accidentally. No penalty shall be imposed if, with no one on bases, the pitcher drop the ball while delivering it to the batsman.

The ball is dead and not in play, according to Rule 31, under the following circumstances: 1, if a balk is committed; 2, in case of an illegally batted ball; 3, in case of a foul hit not legally caught; 4, in the case of interference with the fielder or batsman; 5, in case a fair hit ball strikes a base-runner or umpire before touching a fielder. In all the foregoing cases the ball shall not be considered in play until it be held by the pitcher standing in his position and the umpire shall have called "Play."

(Some rules for batsmen and for base-runners will be published here tomorrow.)

TOILERS TRIUMPH IN CAGE PLAY-OFF

Winnipeg Quintet Captures Senior Basketball Honors at St. John.

SAINT JOHN, May 6.— Winnipeg Toilers were champions of senior basketball in Canada last night. Playing brilliantly against St. John Trojans, the skilful Westerners accumulated in the first half a lead that Saint John could not overcome, despite desperate efforts on the part of the local team in the last period, and the final score was: Winnipeg, 35; Saint John 19. The series was determined by the best two games out of three. Toilers gained 39 points against 37 for Trojans in the initial encounter Tuesday night.

No question existed as to the superiority of Winnipeg. Their control of the ball and general technique never had been excelled or duplicated here. Ronald Shaw, Tropans' coach, said after the game he had never seen as fine a performance as that given by the Toilers.

says a well-known dry cleaner

"We cleaners and pressers know something about clothing values. In that rack of clothes I see three Tip Top suits. The condition of the cloth, the smart lines—everything about those clothes—tells the story of first-class materials and careful workmanship."

"The cheap suit gives us a lot of trouble. They show signs of wear that the pressing iron can't disguise. They shrink in cleaning. They don't hold shape after they're pressed and soon become threadbare. But it's a pleasure to work on Tip Top clothes. They always repay the time and effort we take to please our customers."

Your Tip Top Tailored suit will retain its shape and smartness as long as you wear it. And you can't afford to buy a suit that will cost you less than the Tip Top Tailors' $24 value.

Everything that goes into a first-class suit Tip Top Tailors buy at a lower price than others have to pay. Tremendous buying power permits many savings. As a Tip Top customer you get the benefit.

58th Kentucky Derby Lacks Color of Other Years

TWO MATINEES SATURDAY—1 AND 3.30 P.M.

WITHDRAWAL OF FAVORITES AND WEATHER PREDICTIONS STRIKES KENTUCKY CLASSIC

A SMALLER FIELD.

Earl Sande Will Set Derby Record if He Boots Overtime to Victory.

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—It's still the one horse race in North America that really grips the imagination of the sports-following public, this Kentucky derby, but its 58th running to-morrow around the picturesque oval at Churchill Downs lacks much of its customary glamour and most of its usual thoroughbred class.

For the very reason that the field is more wide open than in years it may be a better and more exciting race, even if no more than a dozen or so go to the barrier, but the uncertainty and unrest of the times has unquestionably struck this classic of old Kentuck.

Within four days this week, the great filly Top Flight, winter book favorite; Burning Blaze, Western Star, and Universe, winner of the Wood Memorial, all were withdrawn. And just as though the "gate" had not already felt the blow coming, the weather man says it looks like rain for derby day.

Tick On, the handsome black son of On Watch and star of the Loma stable, owned by Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann of New York, is the nearest thing to a standout, at odds of 2-1. Perhaps this eastern colt is the best of a sub-normal field but there are plenty of experts who want to see it demonstrated before they will agree. Probably they figure it's about time for an upset, since the favorites have won five of the last six derbies.

Although good excuses are offered, Tick On was defeated in its only previous three-year-old start and won only three of its ten starts as a juvenile. Certainly there is nothing in this record or the achievements of any other candidate sufficient to qualify in the superhorse class to which Gallant Fox, in 1930 and Twenty-Grand, last year, belonged.

Run earlier than usual, and prior to the Preakness for the first time in years, the derby may develop a new three-year-old sensation, but the railbirds go not look for anything approaching Twenty Grand's record performance of 201 4/5.

While surprises are being considered it may be well to keep an eye on Hoops, a chestnut gelding owned by W. D. Knebelkamp. This horse, not previously considered in the pre-derby calculations, came tearing down the stretch at the Downs yesterday to win a claiming race, at a mile, in the startling time of 1:37 3/5. Immediately its owner announced Hoops would be entered in the $50,000 classic, along with Adobe Post, owned by C. H. Knebelkamp and Richard Morris.

Hailed As Winners

The consensus, however, is that the derby winner likely will be found among these four entries: Tick On; Burgoo King paired with Brother Joe as Col. E. R. Bradley's entry; Economic, the speedy property of J. H. Louchelm; Stepenfetchit, coupled with Overtime as the entry of Mrs. John Hay Whitney, the former Mary Elizabeth Altemus of Philadelphia, whose colors appear in the classic for the first time.

Blue Larkspur disappointed Col. Bradley in 1929 but his Kentucky friends believe the master of Idle Hour Farm has the best chance to carry off the big price since Bubbling Over triumphed in his colors in 1926.

Two of the greatest jockeys of all time will ride Mrs. Whitney's entries. Buddy Ensor, making a big comeback, will be astride Stepenfetchit, son of The Porter. Ensor has never won a derby. Earle Sande will have the leg up on Overtime. He has won three derbies and will set a record if he boots home another.

Arlett's Home Run Spoils Bridge Game

BUFFALO, May 6. (CP) — Buzz Arlett, who was playing baseball, made a grand slam and and Mrs. Ida Moore, who was playing bridge, was put out at home. To unscramble: Arlett, playing with the Orioles, hit a home run. The ball went through a window and knocked Mrs. Moore unconscious at at the bridge table.

CASUAL COMMENT

The senior players will workout to-night over at the James Stevenson Park—or Riverside, if you insist—and again tomorrow afternoon at 2.30. Every player hoping to wear a Peterborough uniform this year should be on hand for both these drills as there are likely to be some certificates handed out to those showing up best.

• • • • • • •

And the intermediate lacrosse practice will be held tomorrow afternoon also, at 2.30 down at the Exhibition Grounds. All last year's players and any new ones who would like to try for a place are asked to be on hand. This workout is for positions on the O.A.L. A. team, and not any City League one.

• • • • • • •

Becky Jack has left Havelock for Richmond Hill, where he will be working this summer and, incidentally playing box lacrosse. Becky played for the Norwood-Havelock Combines in lacrosse last summer and in hockey during the winter, and he will be missed this year.

• • • • • • •

The Southend Softball League opens its schedule May 9th this year, which is next Monday. All games will be staged at the Exhibition Grounds and this loop race is likely to be a close one from the calibre of some of the teams entered. A big crowd will probably be on hand Monday to see the lid lifted for softball here, the Southenders sort of stealing the opening-day thunder from the Men's Loop and the Girls' League.

• • • • • • •

Here's another opening for a good softball umpire. The Southend circuit is following the example of the City League and advertising for one, the idea being to give an unemployed man first chance. But applications must be in to Fred Parsons no later than Saturday night of this week. His phone number is 1847.

• • • • • • •

Rolling up the grand total of 3397 in three games last night, the Duffus No. 1 team took the Inter-Alley Bowling League title, the Knights being next with 3260, with Duffus No. 3 trailing the procession with 3181. The teams played at all three alleys, and each outfit won a game but the lead piled up by Duffus No. 1 in the contest at the K. of C. pulled them through to the championship.

• • • • • • •

There was some classy 5-pin bowling seen as the three leaders fought it out, Bill Sweetman's 312 in the third game to bring his total up to 799 having a great deal of bearing on the result. His teammate, Harry Ranger, didn't do bad either with a 735. Reg. Dyer and Bud Weese led the way for the Knights No. 2 with 681 and 670, while Bill McGee and Fred Scates topped the Duffus No. 3 pinspillers with 672 and 661 in that order.

• • • • • • •

The Inter-Alley League, revived here this year, turned out very successful and should be continued each winter. The Bradburn Trophy and individual medals were handed over to Fred Hickey, Walter Firth, Harry Ranger, Bill Sweetman and Vince O'Connell, the champs, last night following the final game down at Duffus'. Good crowds watched at each of the alleys, K. of C. "Y" and Duffus.

• • • • • • •

Some funny incidents happen in the sports world, truth being stranger than fiction, etc. For instance, here's something Ed Allan has in his Mail and Empire column this a.m.: "There is quite a drama attached to last night's opening amateur lacrosse game between Nationals and Marlboros. Before game time the O.A.L.A. refused to give Walsh of Mimico permission to play with the Nats. This left Sea Fleas without a goalkeeper. In desperation, they signed Bert Hickson, a junior graduate but who hasn't played goal in three years."

• • • • • • •

Yes, you guessed it. As Allan continues: "The inevitable happened. Hickson was the star of the game, but the rest of the story concerns Marlboros. The latter gave Hickson his release last week!"

Omemee Club Will Hold Athletic Day

OMEMEE, May 6. (Examiner Correspondence). — The Omemee Athletic Association members met Monday night in the council chambers for the purpose of organizing for the day of sports which will be held on May 24th. A splendid attendance lent enthusiasm to the meeting. Different committees were chosen and a report was tendered by the entertainment committee to the effect that a play entitled "The Absent Minded Bridegroom" had been secured from Peterborough, the cast composed of members of First United Church. After this business was concluded, the question of forming a bowling club was brought up for discussion It was decided on a vote that the membership fee be placed at $2.00 for members of the Omemee Athletic Association and $2.50 for non-members. Eight skips were chosen and the grounds committee were authorized to secure a caretaker and get the green in playing condition as soon as possible. The O.A.A. have made the bowling green possible and it is to be hoped that as many as can will avail themselves of this splendid opportunity of indulging in pleasant recreation at a nominal cost.

OPENING SOCCER GAME SATURDAY

KICK-OFF AT 3 O'CLOCK.

The opening game of the local soccer league takes place to-morrow afternoon, on King Edward Park when the Caledonians will be the guests of the Canadian Packers, Kick off at three o'clock prompt.

No definite report has been given out by the executives of the teams as to the composition of the talent that will be used but they desire that all the players that have been signed will be at the pavilion no later than two thirty, when the selection will be made.

This will be the first occasion that substitutes will be used and the fans are interested in the new idea which has its advocates, while some adhere to the Old Country method—no substitutes.

The players have been waiting patiently to get started but they had to contend with the pitch not being in condition. When the players were down fixing up the goal posts on Thursday evening, there were three posts still in the middle of the ground but it is expected that everything will be in order for the game.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS ON MAY 24

Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club Limited commence their season of activity on May 24 this year, with an open tournament for which no entrance fee is levied and for which two prizes will be awarded.

The Games Committee, under the chairmanship of Ben Chesler, is unusually active right now. A meeting was held last evening but in spite of unseasonable weather, the committee men had a job getting down to business; especially was that true of Cairns and Disney, who are just itching to feel the springy turf underfoot again.

Seriously though, one urgent matter was under discussion, and skips are notified that they must report their rinks by Saturday to the secretary, otherwise owing to the surplus of skips, rinks will have to be doyubled up.

It was also decided to make the leads and seconds tournament exclusive this year for leads and seconds only, and at the same time a skips' and vice-skips' event will be played. The dates are set for September next.

Players and intending players are urged of the necessity of getting their applications in to the secretary without delay. The games start on May 24, with the schedule events commencing on the 29th of this month. The secretary is Roy Disney, 'phone 1439.

RETURNS TO CUBS.

CHICAGO, May 6. — (C.P.) — Woody English, the Cubs' shortstop, has been out of action since the training season because of a fractured finger, is ready to go back to work.

English got into yesterday's game with Brooklyn as a pinch batsman, but Manager Rogers Hornsby has not decided to remove Bill Jurges while the club is going well.

DUFFUS NO. 1 TEAM WINS ALLEY HONORS

To-day the Duffus No. 1 team is resting on the top rung of the Peterborough 5-pin bowling ladder, having captured the Inter-Alley League championship last night in three games. Their total was 3397 against the Knights' 3260, and 3181 for Duffus No. 3. The games were played before large galleries at the K. of C. alleys, "Y" and finally Duffus'.

Each team won one game, but the winners secured a big enough margin in the first game, at the K. of C. to give them the edge. In this game, they rolled 1234, while the Knights got 1070, and the third team counted 1001. The second game, at the "Y" went to the Knights with a total of 1053, Duffus No. 1 getting 1037, and Duffus No. 3 making 983. The latter crew won the third game at Duffus' with 1197 to 1136 each for the other two outfits. The champs' final margin was 137 over the Knights and 216 over the third team.

Following are the totals of the players of the teams in the order in which they finished:

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

JERRY MUSKRAT IS REPAID.

What e'er for others you may do
In time will be repaid to you.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is nice to think that anyway. It may not always be true, but it often is, perhaps more often than not. When Jerry Muskrat saw the danger of the young gander who, fast asleep with his head under his wing, was drifting ashore where Yowler the Bobcat was waiting for him, Jerry's one thought was to warn that young gander. So he slapped the water with his rubbery tail and then plunged under water with a great deal of noise. Honker the Goose and his flock, including the young gander, were awake instantly and swimming to the middle of the pond.

It had been a narrow escape for the young gander and he appreciated it. He told Jerry so and that he never would forget it.

"It was nothing," said Jerry in some confusion. "You would have done as much for me."

There was some gabbling among the Geese after this alarm, but being used to such things, they did not think about it long and soon were asleep again with their heads under their wings. Only the young gander remained awake. He had had such a narrow escape that he couldn't forget it and so couldn't go to sleep again right away. He swam over near Jerry.

"Do you live here?" he asked.

"No," replied Jerry. "I am just visiting here. My home is in the Smiling Pool down on the Green Meadows, but I was driven out by a flood. Have you traveled far?"

"Yes," replied the young gander. "We have come all the way up from the Sunny South and we still have just as far to go before we reach our nesting grounds. There is one comfort, and that is that we haven't had such a hard time so far as we did on our way down last fall. When I think of it I wonder that any of us are alive to come back."

"Meaning what?" asked Jerry, his curiosity aroused.

"Hunters with terrible guns," replied the young gander. "Almost from the day we started from the Far North until we reached the Sunny South those terrible guns banged and roared. Had it not been for him (the young gander nodded toward Honker) I don't believe any of us the rest of us would be alive today. All I ask of life is to grow to be as wise and smart as old Honker is."

"Haven't those terrible guns been just as bad on the way back?" inquired Jerry.

"No," replied Honker, who had awakened and drifted near enough to hear this question. "There is little to dread from the hunters with terrible guns in the spring now, but time was when it was just as bad then as in the fall. This young fellow thinks it was bad last fall on our way to the Sunny South. He should have lived a few years ago when all winter long and all the way back in the spring we had no peace from those terrible guns. When I think of it I wonder that there is a Goose alive today. It is bad enough as it is, but we can at least be thankful that we are allowed to journey north in comparative peace."

At daylight the next morning there was a great gabbling among the Geese and Jerry gathered that they were trying to decide whether to go on or rest for another day. As usual it was Honker who settled the question. It was decided to remain. So the Geese scattered about the pond, some feeding, some swimming about and some squatting on the shore. But always there was at least one, usually old Honker, on guard.

Later that day as Jerry sat on the end of a log on the edge of the water half dozing he was suddenly so startled by a loud hiss almost in his ear that he plunged frantically into the water with a loud splash. When he at last came up to look around he discovered his friend, the young gander, still hissing angrily at Reddy Fox, who was standing with his forefeet on the very log on which Jerry had been dozing. The young gander had seen Reddy creeping up and had wakened Jerry just in time.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:20 a.m., from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Vitiating and not helpful influences will tend to make May 6th a fretful, disappointing day. Petty misunderstandings are scheduled for the home. These will soon be forgotten if the old saw, "least said, soonest mended" is heeded. The real bright spot appearing in your life at this time is the beginning of a new romance.

Children born on this May 6th will be real on the ground sort of boys and girls, and will be well able to cope with the world into which they have been born. There will be a spice of pepper, a sprinkling of humour, a dash of adventure and a goodly portion of common sense in their make up.

Born on May 6th, the world is a stage to you, upon which you are an actor playing your own life drama before an ever changing audience and in ever changing roles. You have no fixed personality, but have qualities to match those you come across. You are able to assume at will a professional manner or a company voice. It is difficult for others or even for yourself to know when the real you is on the stage. You throw yourself into all parts with so much heart and soul that your pseudo selves assume very realistic proportions. At all times, in all places, with all people, and in all moods, you never forget your "savoir vivre."

You are very intelligent, although not in the least intellectual. You are too earthly minded to ever be a high brow. Your mind is full of plans and schemes, both practical and impractical. Your serious energies will be applied to their promotion. It is not likely that you will ever "stay put" for any length of time. You are inclined to count your chickens before they are hatched and are sometimes let down through overoptimism.

It is more important for you to be loved than to love. You must absolutely be everything to a man or woman or else be nothing. In this respect you are much the agoist.

"I was troubled with an itchy, burning feeling on my hands. Then eczema broke out in watery blisters on my finger and later it spread all over my hands. All hours of the night I was awake with the pain and irritation. When my hands touched water I just screamed with pain and for two years my hands were a disgrace. My fingers were swollen and out of shape, and tormented me.

"My mother read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. We purchased more and after using two boxes of Ointment and one cake of Soap I was healed." (Signed) Miss Zelma Cooke, St. Joseph, Nova Scotia.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address Canadian Depot: J. T. Wait Company Limited, Montreal.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

ERA OF WORLD PEACE VIEWED AS INEVITABLE

General O'Ryan Urges Present Generation to Aid in Laying Foundation.

LEAVE IT TO VETERANS

NEW YORK, May 6.—The world is moving so inevitably toward organization for internal peace that the present generation should feel inspired to play as large a part as possible in having the foundations for the coming era of perpetual concord, according to Maj.-Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the Twenty-Seventh Division of the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War.

"It is impossible to visualize the world in the next 200 or 300 years without effective organizations for maintaining international justice. "Some people predict that that period is only 50 or 100 years away. Certainly the most logical step is to advance that day by increasing our progress in the field of sane endeavors to bring about international good will."

Efforts to reduce national armaments should not distract people's attention from the core of the problem, which is to secure an orderly world through the safeguards of organizations for maintaining justice, General O'Ryan declared. Armaments are not basically the cause of war, although they do constitute an urge toward war, he held. Equally dangerous are tariff walls, debts and efforts to emphasize the differences among peoples rather than their similarities, he said.

"I remarked in an address five years ago that if the United States did not enter the World Court we would, by that lack of co-operation with other nations, set ourselves more and more aloof from other peoples and governments and that, out of that, would grow the tendency for the rest of the world to unite—first sentimentally, then economically, then politically—against a common enemy" he continued.

"Some time after that Aristide Briand made his appeal for a United States of Europe. Now we are beginning to get the economic results of our policy of nonparticipation. The war of tariffs has been directly a result of our policy. The more we emphasize the difference between America and other countries, between American people and policies and those of other nations, just to that extent do we suffer the consequences as a natural result of the psychology of human nature. When differences are accentuated they lead to trouble."

Experts should not be called on to decide such pressing questions as armament limitation and debt revision, General O'Ryan declared.

"Probably a committee made up of war veterans would win the confidence of the people to support their decisions more quickly than persons from any other field. Delegates from the United States on such a committee might reasonably agree to make concessions on the debts of the allied nations to this country in view of their enormous loss of men during the war as compared with the losses of the United States.

"The great majority of people of every country are wholesome and sanely responsive to what is worthy. The right appeal to this majority, coming from worthy representatives of like groups in another country, would be heard. It would be a novelty in international relations. It would create consternation in some quarters, but it would hold the hope of effectiveness.

"The present situation borders on the desperate, and calls for unusual action."

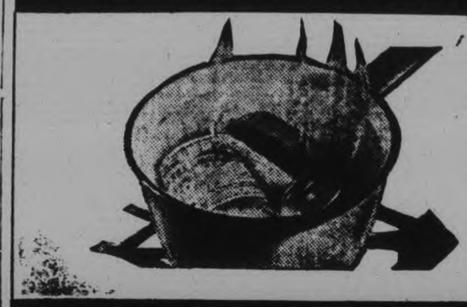
BELIEVE IT OR NOT!



MAKE A CARAMEL PUDDING WITHOUT OPENING THE CAN!

You'll never believe it, till you try it. But it's true! Just cook an unopened can of Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk in boiling water for 3 hours—and out comes a Caramel Pudding that's delicious! A golden-rich caramel color! A creamy-rich caramel taste!

Tempting with cream and nuts for garnish. Or combined with fresh or dried fruits. A perfect frosting for a cake. A delicious filling for tarts. So—why not cook several cans at a time?

MAGIC CARAMEL PUDDING

1—Place can of Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk* in kettle of boiling water and keep at boiling point for three hours.

2—Remove from water. Chill. Open can and serve.

*MAKE NO MISTAKE—Be sure you use the right kind of milk in this recipe—Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk. Although evaporated milk is fine for many uses, it simply won't work in this magic recipe.

CURFEW LAW IS TO BE ENFORCED

Children Must Be Kept Off the Street After 9.00 p.m.

ACT IS QUOTED.

John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, joined forces to-day with the police in the effort to stamp out the practice of small children hanging about the city streets late at night to waylay citizens and coax them to buy papers.

Mr. Edgar said that he had received many complaints and was prepared to take action. He stated that sale of papers by children after 9 o'clock in the evening is an offence against the Children's Protection Act. He quoted the act as follows:

Section 1, Clause 6—"A child found begging or receiving alms in a public place or carrying on a street trade contrary to this Act, or loitering in a public place after 9 o'clock in the evening after being warned as provided by Section 15."

Section 15—"No child shall loiter in a public place after 9 o'clock in the evening or be in any place of public resort or entertainment after that hour unless accompanied by his parents or guardian or an adult appointed by the parent or guardian to accompany such child. A child found violating the provisions of this section may be warned by any constable or probation officer of a Children's Aid Society, and if such warning is not regarded, or after such warning the child is again found disobeying the provisions of this section, such child may be taken by the constable or officer to his home or to the children's shelter."

"We intend to strictly enforce this Act, unless parents keep their children off the streets," concluded Mr. Edgar.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Flora Hawkes stepped forward suddenly. "NOW I can believe you are Tarzan," said Jane, "for I saw you run into the jungle with this woman. I could not believe YOU would do such a thing." With unfeigned surprise the ape-man denied it, turning to Flora for an explanation. "It was Esteban who took me away," she said, "Esteban who was about to deceive you again. This man is truly Lord Greystoke, who has saved us both. The other was an imposter."

Lady Greystoke took a faltering step forward her husband. "I knew it could not have been you," she cried "my heart told me, but my eyes deceived me. Quick John! Before he escapes." "Let him go," replied the ape-man, "much as I want him and all he has stolen from me, I will leave you alone in the jungle." Suddenly he spied Jad-bal-ja. Pointing in the direction of the fleeing Spaniard he shouted: "Fetch him, Jad-bal-ja!" and the tawny beast bounded off upon the spoor of his quarry.

As if the fate of the fugitive were already sealed, Tarzan turned to his mate. "Usula said they had buried your body in the Arab village! To avenge your death I have searched long for Luvini." "You will never find him," said Jane solemnly, "that night when he would have kidnapped me, I saw the knife in his belt. I drew that knife and killed him with it. His was the charred body that the Waziri found."

"I took an Arab burnoose hanging in the hut, wrapped it about me and somehow I escaped from the flames. Days I wandered and then one night I saw the light of that man's fire. I imagined I had found you." "It must have been Esteban who came with the Waziri and took the gold," said Flora. The ape-man ran his fingers through his hair in a characteristic gesture. "He was a clever devil," he remarked. "to fool the Waziri in broad daylight."

TROUBLE BREWS IN WESTERN COAL FIELD

Paul Doumer Victim Of Assassin's Gun At Charity Function

After Lingering Nearly Throughout The Night In Coma And Delirium, Aged President of France Died At 4.37 This Morning.

WHEN END CAME ENTIRE FRENCH CABINET WAS ASSEMBLED IN AN ADJOINING ROOM.

Death Scene Was Pathetic—M. Doumer Lay On Simple Iron Bed In a Huge Bare Room Surrounded By Family And Doctors.

(By Joseph E. Sharkey, Associated Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, May 7 (C.P.). — The body of Paul Doumer, beloved and venerable 75-year-old President of France, lay in state in the Green Room of the Presidential Palace to-day, the victim of an assassin's gun, while France, from end to end, was bowed in sadness and horror.

After lingering nearly throughout the night in a coma and delirium, while a staff of physicians worked feverishly in a vain attempt to save his life, the aged President died at 4.37 a.m., just as the first light of dawn crept over the cold stone walls of Beaujon Hospital, where he was taken after the tragic shooting yesterday.

The funeral will be held on Thursday, it was decided shortly before noon to-day. An election to select a new President will be held at Versailles next Tuesday.

Entire Cabinet Nearby.

When the end came the entire French Cabinet was assembled in a room at the hospital next to that occupied by M. Doumer. At his bedside were his wife his two daughters, Mesdames Eymery and Fournier, and several of his physicians.

It was a pathetic death scene. M. Doumer lay on a simple iron bedstead, in the huge, bare room. Throughout the night the physicians worked over him. They gave him a number of transfusions of blood and used oxygen to spur his failing heart.

A male nurse, leaving the room, said that some time before midnight M. Doumer had expressed astonishment at finding himself in a hospital bed and he was told:

"You have had an automobile accident."

Recognized Family.

A few minutes before 4.37 a.m., Doumer came out of the coma and

Eggs At Low Price At Farmers' Market

Eggs remained at their low price of 25 cents for two dozen on the market this morning. Butter was 23 to 26 cents a pound and cream 25 cents a pint. Baby chicks were 10 cents apiece and fowls that had lost their heads were 23 to 25 cents a pound.

Potatoes were 40 cents a bag, with other vegetables at regular prices.

1932 Assessments Arouse Land Owners

North Monaghan Council may have another assessment problem on its hands, according to reports that quite a number of appeals will be made by residents in the Clara-day section south of teh city, and also in the western suburb south of the Highway.

Increased assessments in both these areas have aroused the opposition of property owners, a member of the Council has informed The Examiner, and at Monday's meeting of the Council the question of hearing the appeals will be discussed, and it is expected that arrangements will be made to hear them.

Seeding in West Well Under Way

WINNIPEG. — Seventy-five per cent of wheat seeding in Manitoba has been completed, as compared with 30 per cent. in Saskatchewan and Alberta, says the weekly report on crop conditions issued to-day by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Northern sections of the two further West Provinces require warm, dry weather to promote growth, according to the report.

LEAGUE SOCCER CLOSES TO-DAY

Grimsby Town and West Ham United Demoted to Second Division.

LEEDS ADVANCES.

LONDON, May 7 (C.P. Cable). — The 1931-1932 soccer season ended in England to-day. The only interest in the final matches concerned teams which must be demoted on account of their poor showing. In the First Division Grimsby Town and West Ham United go down to the Second Division, their places being taken by Wolverhampton Wanderers and Leeds United. Barnsley and Bristol City leave the Second Division for the Third. Fulham won the championship of the Southern Section of the Third Division as expected, and Lincoln City the leadership of the Northern Section. Both will be promoted to the Second Division.

Results of League football matches played in the British Isles to-day were as follows:

Groom Shot Fatally on Rushing to Assistance of His Employer.

ATTACKER SUICIDES.

PRINCETON, N.J., May 7 (C.P.). — Mrs. Dorin Boice, owner of a string of show horses, was shot and seriously wounded by her Japanese butler to-day. Larry Daly, a groom, was fatally injured, and the butler then shot and killed himself.

The shooting occurred at Mrs. Boice's home on Cedar Grove Road, Somerset County. The butler, Isainu Yanashita, entered a room and shot the woman with an automatic pistol. Daly, hearing the shooting, met the butler in the living-room and was shot. Yanashita then turned the gun on himself.

REPARATIONS IN OLD FORM PRACTICALLY DEAD ISSUE

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Young Plan for reparations payments remains theoretically intact, "but privately expressed opinion in nearly every country regards reparations in the form in which we have known them in the past as practically a dead question," declares Sir Josiah Stamp in his book, "The Financial Aftermath of the War."

Sir Josiah adds that the reparations questions "is so interlinked with the policy of debts payments and other political issues, that no one can say what the next stage of this unhappy business may be."

MINISTER OF HIGHWAYS VISITS COUNCIL AT SPECIAL SESSION; NORWOOD BRIDGE IS DISCUSSED

Subway Project For R. R. Crossing at Norwood is Endorsed.

THREE PROPOSITIONS.

Hope is Expressed That County Rate Will Be Reduced One Mill.

Peterborough County Council in special session yesterday afternoon endorsed a proposal brought forward by Government engineers for the construction of a subway under the railway tracks at Norwood, near the scene of the recent bridge collapse at the Big Pond, and which has created a situation demanding immediate action.

One of the conditions attached to the endorsement of the proposal was that the work be undertaken provided a major portion of the cost be borne out of the Grade Crossing Fund. Otherwise the Council was prepared to leave the matter to the discretion of the Department of Highways.

The Honorable Leopold Macauley who briefly outlined the proposition to the Council was accorded a vote of appreciation on motion of Reeves C. S. Tanner and Allan B. Mann, and he assured the Council that he was glad of the opportunity to come to Peterborough.

"I have had more radical resolutions from this county than from any other part of the province," he said. "That is probably because you are better organized or more alive than some other counties."

Mentioning one of the "radical" resolutions he had received asking that the Government take over 100 per cent. maintainence and construction of Provincial Highways, the Minister said that the Peterborough Examiner had pointed out in its editorial columns that such a resolution was doomed to failure at the outset.

The Honorable Mr. Macauley believed that in these times of stress it was essential that politics should be forgotten and that governments whether provincial or municipal should strive to work in harmony for the common welfare of the country.

His remarks were received by outburst of applause. The Minister was accompanied on his visit here by R. M. Smith, Deputy Minister of Highways; A. A. Smith, chief engineer; Robert Muir, chief municipal engineer and W. Saunders, district engineer. The party was welcomed by E. A. Peck, M.P., J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P.P., and T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P.

BOMB SHATTERS WINDSOR HOME; ONE NEAR DEATH

Blast Occurs Shortly After Young Ukrainian Couple Had Retired.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL.

Police Find Pieces of Fuse and Metal Slugs in Bedroom.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 7—(CP)—Mrs. Mary Smuk Romaniw, 22, lies at the point of death in Metropolitan General hospital as result of an explosion believed by police to have been caused by a bomb of some sort.

The woman has severe injuries to her back, the full extent of which cannot be determined until physicians can make a further examination.

According to statements made to East Windsor police by Alexander Romaniw, the husband, the couple had returned home just about midnight from an evening spent in practise with a Ukranian choral club. They had retired by a few moments when the house was shaken by the blast of the explosion.

Thunder Storms

During the evening there had been frequent thunder storms and Romaniw says that at first he thought it was thunder and as the house filled with smoke he thought lightning had struck the place. He hurriedly carried his wife out through a window and to the home of a neighbor a few yards away as she cried she had been shot. There the character of her injuries was ascertained and she was rushed to hospital. Romaniw escaped with a slight injury to his left hand.

There is no cellar under the house and apparently the explosive had been pushed in from the outside of the building. The bomb was very accurately placed so that it was under the centre of the bed. A large hole was torn in the floor and the major portion of the rest of the floor torn from its place. Some ob-

FOUR WANTED FOR OCEAN HOP

New York Pilot Plans First Commercial Flight to London.

USING TRI-MOTOR SHIP.

NEW YORK, May 7. — Arthur Bussy, pilot at Floyd Bennett Airport, announced to-day that he soon will embark with four passengers on the first commercial trans-Atlantic airplane flight.

He has been advertising for the passengers in several New York newspapers during the past two days.

The date for the flight, he said, will be set as soon as the passengers are booked. He has already had 20 inquiries.

He plans to fly a tri-motored Ford monoplane from Floyd Bennett Field to London, stopping for fuel at Harbor Grace, Nfld. All but four of the ten seats in the plane will be removed, he said, to make room for additional fuel tanks. A relief pilot will be carried.

He said the flight was intended purely as a commercial venture and that he expected to make a profit, following it with other trans-Atlantic flights.

GERMANY IS VICTOR.

BERLIN, May 7.—(A.P.)— Germany to-day won the first two singles matches of the first round Davis Cup series with India. Gottfriend Von Cramm defeating Charaijva 6-2, 6-0, 6-1, and Daniel Prenn winning from Madanmohan 6-2, 7-5, 6-1. The doubles will be played to-morrow and the last two singles Monday.

Two Eggs in One

Production of double-yolked eggs is a common feat for the ordinary run of hens, but Mrs. James Hall, of Bailieboro, has a Plymouth Rock hen that does not stop at just accomplishing a double-yolked egg. This hen lays two eggs in one, and no mistake. The Examiner broke one of these examples of superhen industry to-day and examined it. The egg was large, having almost similar proportion to that of a duck. When the outer shell was broken another smaller egg, shell and all complete, was found inside.

Operators Refuse To Open Dealings With Strike Heads

West Canadian Collieries, Limited, Owners Of Alberta Mines At Bellevue And Blairmore, Claim Workers' Union Is Dominated By Red Organization.

CLASHES BETWEEN PICKETS AND POLICE BRING THREATS TO CLOSE DOWN WORKINGS

BLAIRMORE, Alta., May 7—Dark clouds fell over Crow's Nest coal fields again today when operators refused to negotiate with miner's committees and threatened to close down the mines indefinitely. The mines at Blairmore, Coleman and Bellevue have been idle for two months, the miners refusing to work until an employee dismissed for insubordination was reinstated and working conditions altered to suit their demands.

Today West Canadian Collieries, Ltd., owners of mines at Bellevue and Blairmore, declared they would not treat with the Mine Workers' Union of Canada which they said was dominated by the Worker's United League, an alleged red organization. Collierie's officials announced themselves ready to close down their mines indefinitely unless the miners threw off the domination of the Worker's Unity League.

The company, however, was ready to negotiate with a local union on a new agreement for two years at the same rate of pay that prevailed for the last couple of years. The operators made no attempt today to open Bellevue Mine, scene of disturbances between striking miners and police Wednesday and Thursday when four arrests, including two women, were made and several persons slightly injured.

Four Arrested.

The mine was opened on an "open shop" basis but crowds of picketers fought police and men attempting to enter the mine. The four persons arrested were charged with unlawful assembly and remanded until next Friday.

LIQUOR BOARD STAFF NOW TWO

Order-in-council Fixes Salary at $10,000 Yearly Each.

SAVING EFFECTED.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.)—An order-in-council has been passed by the Government definitely limiting the personnel of the members of the Ontario Liquor Control Board to two. Stewart McClenaghan, Ottawa, is designated Chief Commissioner, and Judge McNamara, Deputy Commissioner. The salary for both is fixed at $10,000 per annum.

Reconstruction of the board will mean a saving in the $20,000 per annum paid to Sir Henry Drayton, prior to his recent retirement, and $6,000 a year paid to W. S. Diggman, former chief of the permit division, who has been superannuated.

Tropical Storm Moving Northward

MIAMI, May 7 (C.P.). — A report to the Miami Weather Bureau to-day said a tropical disturbance of unknown intensity apparently moving northward, was central near Santo Domingo this morning.

Richard M. Gray, bureau meteorologist, said first reports of the disturbance came last night. At that time it appeared to be several hundred miles east or south-west of Jamaica.

It caused excessive rains for 12 hours over Santo Domingo and the extreme eastern tip of Cuba. More than six inches of rain was reported in Santo Domingo.

Gray said the storm probably would not affect South Florida at all, and certainly not within forty-eight hours.

REMANDED ON MURDER CHARGE

TORONTO—Frank Lombardi was remanded until May 13 when he appeared in court on a 13-year-old murder charge today. Lombardi was arrested by Jersey City police some weeks ago after a long search. He is charged with murdering Guiseppe Berellido in Toronto on Sept. 23, 1919.

SUSPECTS SON WAS MURDERED

Mrs. Clarke Believes Flier Was Beaten About Head by Revolver.

REPORTERS SUMMONED.

MIAMI, Fla., May 7. (CP)—Belief that Hayden Clarke was murdered in a house he occupied with Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, his fiancee, and Captain W. N. Lancaster, her flying partner, and desire for an autopsy were expressed to-day by his mother, Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke.

At the same time, six newspapermen who have been reporting the case since Captain Lancaster was imprisoned on a charge of murder were subpoenaed by State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne to testify in an investigation of a reputed leak in evidence presented the grand jury.

Hawthorne said the investigation had to do with the publication of excerpts from Captain Lancaster's diaries. The reporters were instructed to appear before the grand jury this morning for questioning.

Relies on Physician

Mrs. Clarke said she based her theory of murder on a statement of the physician who attended her son after he was shot.

"I believe my son was beaten about the head with a revolver before he was shot" she told newspapermen.

She quoted Dr. Carleton Deederer her family physician, as saying he found evidence of a fracture at the base of Hadens' skull and three unnatural bumps on the left side of his head. The discoveries were made, she said, as the doctor treated a bullet wound in his temple.

Captain Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller contended Clarke committed suicide.

City Dog Catcher Starts Out Monday

The vagabond, open-road life of Peterborough's dogs is over. A city dog catcher has been appointed, and he starts work curbing the straying dogs on Monday morning.

He is George Wilson, of Lafayette Avenue, who has been unemployed for many months. The chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, who appointed him said, "Wilson appears to have fine gentlemanly qualities and I believe he will be kind to dogs, and at the same time do his work well."

The same system as in former years has been adopted in regard to salary—Wilson will get a small retaining fee and a dollar for each dog pounded and repossessed by its owner.

MOUNTIES HOLD TWO BROTHERS IN MURDER CASE

MONEY IS FOUND.

Oddly Marked Shoe, One of Scanty Clues, is Found in House.

BATHURST, N.B., May 7 (C.P.) —Rufus and Wallace Pite, brothers, were arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted police to-day and brought to Bathurst in connection with the murder last month of George Smith, aged storekeeper at South Tetagouche. The brothers were taken into custody early to-day after police surrounded their shack near the scene of the murder. A considerable amount of money in the form of small change and small bills was found in their possession. About $40 was taken from Smith's store the night he was shot.

No charge was laid to-day against Rufus and Wallace Pite, aged 24 and 21, respectively. Police said their descriptions answered to those of the two men who murdered Smith on the evening of April 20. The money taken from the store was mostly in change, and according to police a bag of five and ten cent pieces and quarters was found in the possession of the brothers.

No Gun Found

No revolver was found in the dwelling.

Mrs. Smith will seek to indentify the two men, as will Maynard Smith, nephew of the old storekeeper, who saw two men, believed to be the slayers, passing his home a short time before the murder.

One of the scanty clues which police had to follow in the solution of the crime was the print of an oddly-marked shoe sole.

They said a shoe found in the Pite house tallied with the print. Petit Rocher, where the Pites lives, is 12 miles from Tetagouche.

PULPWOOD FIRE TAKES NEW LIFE

LOSS OVER $2,000,000.

QUEBEC, May 7. (CP). — Early reports received here to-day from Port Alfred, Que., where a fire has been raging for eight days in a vast pile of pulpwood, the property of the Consolidated Paper Company, said that the flames seemed to have taken on new life since last night and hopes that the fire would be controlled to-day, have vanished. On Thursday afternoon after the dredge, General Montcalm, brought to the scene from Chicoutimi, had had its powerful automatic pumps spraying the heap for ten hours, a lessening in the progress of the fire was noticeable and a gradual checking of the flames continued the best part of yesterday. Last night, however, the flames burst out afresh and seemed to be making some headway, notwithstanding the deluge of water being poured on them from the dredge's pipes and more than 30 streams of firemen's hose.

The wind, to-day's reports said, was still blowing away from the mill and the town, but there has been a revival of fear among the inhabitants that should it veer to the opposite direction the mill and the village will again be in danger.

It is now estimated that only one third of the original 250,000 cords of wood remains unburned, the amount burned entailing a loss of about $2,000,000.

The use of clean seed is an important factor in minimizing losses from weeds.

TO BE DEPORTED.

Minister of Justice Denies Any "Railroading," Promises Fair Trial.

OTTAWA, May 7. (C.P.) Threatened deportation of three suspected Communists from Winnipeg and two others from Sudbury, Ont., came to the official notice of the House of Commons yesterday. Basic principles of justice were being flouted, it was charged, by moving the Winnipeg men 2,000 miles to Halifax to be tried by a board of inquiry where witnesses would not be accessible.

A fair trial for the men was urged by James Woodsworth, Winnipeg Laborite, E. J. Garland, United Farmers, Bow River; John Brown, Lib., Lisgar and Hon. W. D. Euler, Lib., Waterloo north. Irrespective of the crime, a fair trial was elementary justice and the opposition members could not understand how this could be done 2,000 miles distant from the locale of men's activities.

Writ Of No Avail

James S. Woodsworth charged the Winnipeg and Sudbury men had been "spirited away". A writ of habeas corpus—to deliver the men from custody—had been issued by a Winnipeg court, he said, but the police "spirited" them away and the writ was of no avail. Even murderers were not deprived of this right, added the Labor leader.

Although he had not been acquainted with the facts of the facts of the case, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, believed the Royal Canadian Mounted Police acted within the law. Earlier in the day, Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, said the holding of the board of inquiry in Halifax was dictated by convenience both the department and shipping, in the event of deportation.

"There is no railroading in this case," said the Minister of Justice. Every facility would be afforded the men to secure the presence of witnesses.

Reviews Three Bills.

For the entire afternoon, the House reviewed three government bills designed to clarify legal jurisdiction between the Dominion and the Provinces over the control of insurance companies.

Hon. Alfred Duralneau, Minister of Marine, introduced a bill containing drastic amendments to the Canada Shipping Act.

REGINA.—Reports that Saskatchewan's income tax legislation was illegally passed by the Legislature are discounted here.

The procedure by which the income tax legislation was introduced by Hon. M. A. McPherson, Provincial Treasurer, was questioned in a report published in Moose Jaw.

AUTHOR WILL RECOVER

PARIS. — Claude Farrere, the author who was wounded in trying to protect President Doumer from the assassin who killed him yesterday, passed a bad night at Beaujon Hospital, but will recover. The surgeons had not yet removed the bullet in his shoulder.

Leaping Off Train, Prisoner Vanishes

VANCOUVER.—En route to Vancouver to face a charge under the Securities Fraud Prevention Act, Lionel C. Bywaters escaped last night by leaping from a Canadian Pacific Railway train east of Choate, B.C. Detective R. Knox of Vancouver, who had the man in charge at the time of the escape, is leading an intensive man hunt through the Fraser River canyon. Bywaters was arrested on a ranch 100 miles from Ashcroft.

GROUP OF REDS HELD IN HALIFAX

Await Further Word From Ottawa on Deportation to Europe.

ROUNDED UP BY MOUNTIES.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 7 (C.P.).—A group of alleged Communists, gathered from various parts of Canada by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, to-day awaited further word from Ottawa as to whether or not they were to be deported to their native European countries.

The number held could not be ascertained, but it was known that one from Vancouver, three from Winnipeg, two from Sudbury, and two from Montreal had been rushed to this seaport city.

Arvo Vaara, editor of the Finnish daily Vapaus, and Martin Parker, translator, who were arrested on Wednesday when police raided the newspaper office at Sudbury, Ontario, arrived last night under the guard of plainclothesmen.

The Winnipeg trio, brought in on Thursday, answered to the names Dan Holmes, Orton Wade, and Conrad Gessinger. The Montrealers Steve Worbek and Nick Maychuk, arrived on Tuesday night. The Vancouver man's name could not be learned.

Probe Began on Wednesday.

Investigation of their activities began on Wednesday, when H. H. Munro, of the Immigration Department at Ottawa, had the two Montreal men before him at a hearing at the immigration shed.

While it was impossible to secure official information about the proceedings, it was known Sergeant John Leopold, noted Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, who was instrumental in convicting the eight Communists at Toronto last November, was a witness at the hearing.

Maychuk is said to be secretary-treasurer of the Ukrainian League of Canada, and Worbek is understood to be chief organizer of the Montreal Communist Party.

Lionel A. Ryan, Halifax barrister, and M. H. Franklin, of Montreal, have appeared to defend them.

For His Friend!

PARIS, May 7. (A.P.)—Louis Piston, gray-bearded dean of Paris news photographers, missed the picture of a lifetime yesterday, but he was being heaped with honor for it today.

The veteran cameraman, who was a personal friend of the late President Doumer, was right next to him when the assassin began shooting yesterday. He might have had a picture of the shooting itself, but instead he smashed the assassin with his camera and stunned the man, enabling others to overpower him.

FRENCH VOTERS TO CAST BALLOT IN ONE SORROW

Death of President Doumer Stills All Political Differences.

UNOFFICIAL TRUCE.

Royalists and Communists Alike Join in Detestation of Crime Committed.

(By George Hambleton—C.P. Staff Writer).

PARIS, May 7 (C.P. Cable). — France will vote to-morrow in silence, in common sorrow.

For the death of President Paul Doumer, venerable head of the Republic, from wounds suffered at the hands of a fanatic, has stilled all political differences, even though it is the eve of the critical second ballot of the general elections to the Chamber of Deputies.

At the word of the attack—received at first with incredulity and then with indignant horror — the parties and grouns declared an unofficial truce. Meetings were abandoned. Important speeches were merely handed in notes to the press. To-day's papers contained little reflection of the political campaign that has been waging in every department of France for weeks.

One Sentiment.

Royalist on the right and Communist on the left, all French sentiment between, alike joined in detestation of the crime committed by Paul Gorgulov. The Extreme Left, instanced by the Communist organ L'Humanite, seized on Gorgulov's declaration that he was a Russian Fascist to charge that the French Government was responsible by "protection of white Russians in Paris," where there is a large colony of them.

"For our part," writes Leon Blum, head of the important Socialist party, in his own Populaire, "we should be ashamed to abuse the declarations of a madman to stir up public opinion against the White

KIDNAP GANG FREE VICTIM

Wealthy Father of Abducted Youth Claims $50,000 Ransom Was Not Paid.

MISSING 8 DAYS.

JOLIET, Ill., May 7. — Gustave Miller, 22, kidnapped April 29 and held for a reported $50,000 ransom, returned home this morning and his wealthy parents declared not a cent was paid his abductors.

His mother, Mrs. Fannie Miller, and his brother, Martin, met him at the Deer Park entrance of the Starved Rock State Park, about 65 miles southwest of Joliet, and drove him home after a note from the abductors notified them where he could be found.

Gustav, who was abducted as he was leaving the home of Miss Katherine Mesirow, his fiancee, just two blocks from his own home, said he was kept handcuffed in the basement of a house within three or four hours' drive from Joliet but was very well treated.

His release culminated a relentless search carried on by his father, a wealthy wholesale grocer, independently of the Joliet police, whose profers of assistance he spurned. Mysterious telephone calls came to the Miller home from the haunts of the "42" gang in Chicago and other localities.

BREACH BETWEEN U.S. NAVY MEN AND CIVILIAN HONOLULU WIDENS

Merchants Fear Boycott, Caused By Massie Assault Case and Conviction.

RETRIAL UNCERTAIN.

HONOLULU, May 7 (C.P.). — A breach between the United States Navy and civilian Honolulu widened to-day, with merchants apprehensive of a threatened boycott by the naval personnel.

The rift, first caused by the Massie assault case in September and the mistrial of the natives charged with the attack, spread steadily and had its latest impetus with the conviction a week ago of the four defendants in the Fortescue-Massie murder case. They were Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas Massie, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, naval enlisted men. The four, who subsequently obtained a commutation of sentence, were convicted of the revenge slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, suspected as one attacker of Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the officer.

Suggest Branch Stores.

While the boycott movement was still beneath the surface it was understood certain personnel at Pearl Harbor Naval Station, had written Pacific Coast firms, suggesting they open branch stores at Honolulu. It also was understood official circles at Pearl Harbor let it be known personnel making such requests could be disciplined by the Navy.

The whole city was watching meanwhile developments in the scheduled retrial of four Hawaiians of mixed blood charged with assaulting Mrs. Massie, retrial depends entirely on whether Mrs. Massie remains in the islands to testify.

John C. Kelley, public prosecutor, made public a statement calling on Mrs. Massie to remain as a witness. Mrs. Massie announced she planned to sail for the mainland aboard the S.S. Malolo on Sunday. Clarence Darrow, chief of the defence counsel for Mrs. Fortescue and her co-defendants, said Mrs. Massie had decided to remain.

PAUL DOUMER PASSES AWAY

recognized his family. He made a pathetic effort to bid them farewell, but was unable to speak, and fell back exhausted. A moment later he was dead.

The first to leave the hospital was Mme. Doumer. She was supported by her two daughters and was wringing her hands in anguish. The members of the Cabinet followed the body as it was taken from the hospital to the Palace. Premier Tardieu, upon whom the chief executive burden now falls, was extremely pale. He showed the strain of his own recent illness. Two members of the Cabinet were weeping openly.

A crowd of about two hundred was waiting outside the hospital in the early dawn. In it were representatives of most of the foreign diplomatic delegations in France. M. Pietri announced that the President died from cerebral complication which set in rapidly after midnight.

Postpone Emergency Session

Under the constitution, the Senate and Chamber of Deputies should be summoned to elect a new President within 48 hours, but it was believed that under the present extraordinary circumstances, with the run-off election for members of Parliament to be held tomorrow, the emergency session would be postponed.

Taxicab chauffeurs driving about in the dawn this morning reverently doffed their caps when they learned of the President's death. It is an awful thing, one of them said, to have lived honorably to such an age, and to have to die such a death.

Morning newspapers which went to press too early to carry accounts of the President's death, printed editorials expressing an opinion that was heard frequently in popular discussions later, that the time had come for France to be less liberal in opening her frontiers to cranks who come here to commit murders.

Men and women wept openly in the streets as the word passed around that the venerable President had died during the night. M. Doumer's simple, democratic qualities made him, to the French people, the personification of the highest virtues of family life and ideal citizenship.

No Attempt to Conceal Gun

Various eye-witnesses of the shooting yesterday agreed that the assassin, Dr. Paul Gorgulov, made no attempt to conceal his gun.

They also told of the gaiety of the opening of the book sale of the former soldier authors, which was transformed into a scene of horror by the tragedy.

All the authors were at the counters, said Philippe Giarardet, a writer, assisted by a number of beautiful women wearing the latest spring gowns. The tragedy fell like a bolt of lightning. President Doumer, exactly on time according to his habit, had hardly entered the first salon when the series of shots burst out like the cracking of a whip.

Dr. Gogulov had shot the president right in the middle of the crowd, firing over and under the arms of the people who stood around him.

The athletic Claude Farrere, noted author, tried to save the president and was struck by a bullet himself. The president had fallen to the floor, which was running with blood.

The assassin was captured and dragged outside. There was neither panic nor tumult, only feminine shrieks. Everybody seemed crushed with horror. An attempt upon the life of a man so unanimously respected and revered for the dignity of his life and his devotion to his country seemed impossible.

Carried Out Tenderly

With tender precaution, as a soldier would be carried from a battlefield, the president was carried away. M. Doumer, who gave four sons for France during the war, had sacrificed also his own blood. By a cruel fate he was struck down in the midst of the former soldiers, among whom, at least, he might have thought himself thoroughly secure.

Messages of sympathy from many governments poured in last night.

Does Moscow intend to inaugurate a reign of terror among civilized nations?

The paper added that it seemed certain the assassin was one of numerous agents provacateurs planted as spies everywhere by the Gpu (Soviet Russian Police organization).

President Doumer will be buried Thursday with full national honors, the cabinet decided.

HAVELOCK SOCIETY PLANS GATHERING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 7. — Knox Church Y.W.A., regular meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ketchen, on Monday evening, May 2. The chief business on hand was final arrangements for the Get-together meeting planned for Monday, May 9.

Miss Ret Buchanan read the selection from the Missionary Book, "The Glad Tidings." A duet, "The Old Rugged Cross," by Misses Roxie Rutherford, and Helen Bedford, was much enjoyed. Helena Spencer played the accompaniment. A contest, guessing the names of different kinds of candies, was won by Helen Bedford, who received a prettily framed motto.

Junior Institute.

The regular meeting of Havelock Junior Institute, was held in the Orange Hall, on Wednesday evening, May 4.

Miss Jean Anderson, the retiring president, thanked the members for their splendid support during her term of office, and asked them to give the same co-operation to their new president. Her address was followed by election of officers which resulted as follows:

President: Miss Lena Buchanan; 1st Vice., Dorothy Bullen; 2nd Vice., Irene Craighead; secretary, Alma Hagerman; treasurer, Annie Buchanan; directors, Kathleen Bannon, Marguerite Dafoe, Marie Bedford, Beatrice Crawford.

Agricultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Belmont Junior Agricultural Society, was held in the Orange Hall with the president, Harry A. Anderson, presiding.

Carman McMillan, the capable secretary-treasurer, read the financial report for the past year, showing a snug sum in the bank after all obligations had been met, with the exception of the Albion Club's bill for the decorations in the town hall for the New Year's dance. This bill seemed to be a little out of proportion, and the decorating committee will deal with it later.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Harry A. Anderson; vice-president, Hugh Buchanan; directors, Donald Mathison, Gordon Buchanan, Howard Baxter and William Bannon, secretary-treasurer, Carman McMillan; press reporter, James R. Bedford.

There was some discussion about raising the membership fee, but finally it was decided to leave it at the old amount. After dealing with a little unfinished business the meeting was brought to a close and the boys joined the girls of the junior institute in a social evening.

Tweed Society To Head Flower Talk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, May 7. — The Horticultural Society met in the Council Chambers on Tuesday evening to discuss further civic improvements and to settle other matters of interest to the society.

It was announced that Mr. Clarke, a lecturer on horticultural work, would visit the members of the society on June 9, and deliver an illustrated lecture.

A committee, of Mrs. Maguire, Mrs. Blakely, Mrs. Way and Mrs. Drinkwater, was appointed to choose the topic for the coming lecture.

A committee composed of the president, 1st vice-president, and the treasurer, was appointed by the members to interview the members of the village council concerning a convenient method of obtaining water for the flowers in the parks. This was put to motion by Mrs Maguire, and seconded by Mrs. Countryman.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Meiklejohn and seconded by Mrs. Kingston, that Edgar Beach be appointed to look after the Royal Park for the coming season.—Carried.

The manager of the local Selrite Store has donated ten rose bushes to the Horticultural Society for civic improvements.

Following a discussion on the type of fence for the Royal Park, and the planning of flower borders, and boxes on the municipal properties, the meeting was brought to a close. There were 12 members present.

Lightning Bolt Sets Storage Tanks Afire

LEMONT, Ill., May 7.—Firemen and 250 volunteers won an all-night fight to-day against a spectacular fire which, started by a lightning bolt, engulfed two huge gasoline storage tanks of the Globe Oil and Refining Company here and threatened 30 others.

The bolt struck one tank of 1,700 barrel capacity during a storm last night and set it aflame with an explosion that rocked the neighborhood. The flames soon spread to a second container but were checked with chemicals before getting beyond control.

Chemicals were poured on the remaining tanks until the fire in the first gradually subsided. It continued to smoulder to-day.

LONGER PARLIAMENT

WELLINGTON, N.Z.—By a vote of 40 to 28 the New Zealand House of Representatives to-day passed the bill extending the term of the Dominion Parliament from three to four years, one of the Government's economy measures.

STOMACH TROUBLES

HOW frequently we hear people complain of "indigestion." And how seldom there is actually anything wrong with the digestive organs!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali to neutralize the acids But don't use any crude helps. Use what most doctors would advise; use what your own doctor prescribes in his daily practice for just that condition.

The very best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. You will find nothing else so quick in effect, so harmless, so efficient. One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Results are immediate, with no harmful after effects to follow your relief.

This pleasant way to alkalinize your system is so much better—so much quicker—than attempting to accomplish the same thing by a diet! But you cannot do this with any form of magnesia. Phillips Milk of Magnesia is the formula; it is the one preparation that gives you magnesia in perfect suspension. It is alkaline its action is thorough, and there is nothing more soothing to an ailing stomach or more helpful to sluggish bowels. Druggists throughout the dominion have Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in 50c bottles.

The best way to whiten teeth is with Phillips' Dental Magnesia—the ideal dentifrice. Try it and see for yourself how white your teeth become. At drug stores everywhere.

SEVERAL YORKSHIRE BRIDGES ARE DOWN

Sleights Bridge Between Whitby and Pickering Closed

Leeds, Eng.—Since the centuries-old stone bridge at Sleights was washed away by the floods of 1930 the Esk has been spanned by a temporary structure which has probably been more discussed by public bodies than any other bridge in the north riding of Yorkshire.

The present span was designed as temporary, for two years, and it is closed until May 14 for reconstruction. Pedestrians will be able to cross, but all vehicular traffic will be diverted into and out of Whitby via Ugglebarnby and Ruswarp.

The bridge carries the main road between Pickering and Whitby.

For the second time since the bridge over the Crimple at Follifoot collapsed last September an order has been made by the Yorkshire west riding county council closing the road, which leads from the village of Follifoot to Plompton Bar, on the main Harrogate-Wetherby road, for the purpose of reconstruction of the bridge.

POLAND MOURNS

WARSAW.—Flags were set at half mast here to-day following the arrival of news of the death of President Paul Doumer of France.

Burglars have just visited the Glenland Sports Club, New Southgate, England, for the thirty-fifth time.

"FATIGUE? I just postpone it!"

"No, I don't have 'nerves.' You can't have them, and hold this sort of position. My head used to throb around three o'clock, and certain days, of course, were worse than others.

"Then I learned to rely on Aspirin."

The sure cure for any headache is rest. But sometimes we must postpone it. That's when Aspirin saves the day. Two tablets, and the nagging pain is gone until you are home. And once you are comfortable the pain seldom returns!

Keep Aspirin handy. Don't put it away, or put off taking it. Fighting a headache to finish the day may be heroic, but it is also a little foolish. So is sacrificing a night's sleep because you've an annoying cold, or irritated throat, or grumbling tooth, neuralgia, neuritis. These tablets always relieve. They don't depress the heart, and may be taken freely. That is medical opinion. It is a fact established by the last twenty years of medical practise.

The only caution to be observed is when you are buying Aspirin. Don't take a substitute because it will not act the same. Aspirin is made in Canada.

CLOCKS and goose-livers may seem more or less incongruous, but it is of these that the university city of Strasburg, in western Germany on the River Ill, about a mile from the Rhine, is best known to fame.

More properly speaking, it should be said that it is a clock and goose-livers which have brought the city fame, for it is there that the cathedral of Strasburg lifts its Gothic spires above the pleasant lawns and swelling campus of the university; and it is in this cathedral that one finds the most famous of all timepieces — the Strasburg clock.

It is three hundred years old—more than three hundred, in fact—is this famous timepiece, which embraces a world of calculations in its many dials and faces, and figures innumerable which parade across it from time to time. The dials show the days of the month, the month of the year, the year of the century; and the phases of the planets. In fact, every possible calculation that has to do with time is there. There is an opening near the top across which the twelve apostles parade at regular intervals; and there is the famous cock, which crows as it did when Peter denied his Lord.

The Cathedral, or Munster, represents the activities of four centuries. Part of the crypt dates from 1015. The apse shows the transition from Romanesque to Gothic style; and the nave, finished in 1275, is an example of pure Gothic. The original design of the west facade, with its screen of delicate tracery, was finished by Edwin von Steinbach in 1300. The upper part was completed with a different plan and the spire of the north tower added in 1435.

The tower is a magnificent and imposing bit of architecture. It rises 465 feet and is one of the highest towers of any European church, or for that matter, any European building. It commands a fine view of the city and the river Ill, whose triple arms divide Strasburg into three parts.

The university was founded in 1567. Suppressed during the French revolution as a stronghold of German sentiment, it was reopened in 1872. It occupies a site in the new town, and is housed in a handsome structure.

(The chief industries of the city are tanning, brewing, painting and the manufacture of steel goods. But most famous of all are the celebrated Strasburg geese. These are fatted by scientific methods for their livers, from which patie de foie gras is made. In fact, so associated is this delicacy with the city that it has come to be known as "Strasburg pies.")

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 8TH.

WHAT a hot-headed fellow Esau was! And he was his own worst enemy because of it. No self-control at all. Here he comes home hungry from hunting. Hungry and mighty impatient. And what a keen fellow his brother Jacob was! Far-seeing and a quick thinker. You know, in those days a birthright meant something. The one that had it got half of all his father's property. All the rest of the family had to share in the other half, no matter how many there were. "Give me some of that bean soup," says Esau; "Right away, right away!" "What'll you give for it?" "Oh, anything you like, but hand it over; I'm starving." "Will you—er,—give me your right to be called the eldest son? You know we are twins anyway." "Why, sure thing, of course. Hand over the soup." Esau's kind will always give anything future for anything present, and Jacob's kind will always give anything present for a bigger thing in the future. Both had to learn, in later years, a lesson that cost each one many a heartache, but Esau's cost him the most in the end. Experience is the only thing you can't buy on easy terms.

And all of us have got some Esau in us. Listen to what an old man said once to a friend. "My, I have a hard time! I have two falcons, two hares, two hawks, a lion, a serpent, and a sick man to look after." "Well, you sure are busy. But I didn't know you had anything to do with a menagerie. How come?" "Well," said the old man, "the falcons are my eyes that I have to guard from evil sights. The hares are my feet, which must not run in the ways of sin. The hawks are my hands, which must be trained to serve me in righteous things. The serpent is my tongue, which must not be allowed to say things that sting and hurt. The lion is my heart, with which I must fight, lest evil things come out of it. The sick man is my body, which must nurse and train so that it may be my servant and not my master This is what keeps me busy."

Ah, that's it! Self-control and temperance. No fellow can be a good athlete unless he keeps his body under. No team can use the best player there is, if he is the kind that breaks training. Look after your birthright of a healthy mind and body.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

QUESTIONS.

1. When and where did the incidents of this lesson occur?
2. How old was Isaac at this time?
3. Why did Jacob so desire the blessing of his father?
4. What was the reason for sending Esau for venison?
5. How did Rebekah trick her husband?
6. What did Jacob do?
7. What was Esau's threat?
8. How did Rebekah decide to save her beloved son?
9. Where did Jacob see his vision?
10. What did he do following it?

ANSWERS.

1. The incidents of to-day's lesson occurred in the year 1784 B.C. in Beersheba, in the extreme south of Palestine. Bethel was about twelve miles north of Jerusalem.
2. Jacob was reckoned 137 years of age at this time. But by the calendar of the ancient a year was equivalent to six months, which would make him actually 68 or 69 years of age.
3. Jacob already had bartered for his brother's birthright, but the blessing was required to confirm it. This gave him the position of head of the family, a double portion of his father's possessions, and all the rights inherent upon the head of a house.
4. The game was looked upon as a providential sign. Its preparation as an act of filial duty.
5. Rebekah ordered Isaac to kill two kids, which she prepared as venison. Then she covered her son with the animal hides to represent the hairy body of Esau.
6. Jacob said that the hands were the hands of Esau, but the voice was the voice of Jacob. However, this did not deter him from giving his blessing after Rebekah had reassured him.
7. When Esau returned and discovered how he had been tricked, he threatened to kill his brother. By this act, he would become head of the house. But he would not commit the act until after the death of their father.
8. Rebekah told Isaac that she feared Jacob would marry some heathen woman if he remained there. So he was sent to Haran where her brother, Laban, resided in her old home.
9. Jacob travelled to Bethel where he lay down to sleep for the night. There he beheld the vision of the angels ascending and descending a ladder which reached from the heaven to the earth.
10. When Jacob awoke, he took the stone which he had used for a pillow and made it into an altar. He also swore that Jehovah should be his God.

My Mother

MOTHER'S DAY is dedicated to the memory of the best mother in the world, your mother.

On that day nations bow in remembrance of the sacrifices, kindliness and never-failing love of the world's mothers. Through some distinct act of kindness, gift or tribute is the true significance of Mother's Day best observed.

Originated 26 years ago in the great desire of a young woman to remember her mother, Christian men and women in every country quickly accepted the thought of uniting to commemorate the glory of motherhood. It was Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, who gave first thought to Mother's Day in 1907. Her mother had died in 1906, and on Sunday, May 9, 1907, she invited a friend to come and remember with her the anniversary of her mother's death. She then expressed the thought of a day dedicated to all mothers.

Before the next anniversary came she had interested many individuals and organizations in the observance of the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. The city of Philadelphia observed Mother's Day on May 10, 1908.

City after city, state after state and country after country adopted the observance of Mother's Day within a few years. It began to be observed in England in 1913, and earlier in Canada.

Mother's Day is observed in all churches irrespective of creed, and in some countries it is designed to perpetuate all family ties.

The recurrence of the Sabbath is a perpetual reminder of the need of going apart and resting awhile.

Jacob's Dream at Bethel

Sunday School Lesson

By Harlowe R, Hoyt
Walter Scott

When the time came that Isaac was near death, he ordered Esau, his son, to bring him some venison and promised to give him his blessing in return. Rebekah overheard the request. When Esau had departed, she ordered Jacob to kill two kids, which she prepared to imitate venison. Then she sent her beloved son to the bedside of his father to receive his blessing in place of his brother.

To imitate the hairy skin of Esau, Rebekah took the goat hides and placed them upon Jacob. As he knelt by the bedside, he held himself so that his half-blind father touched only the hairy skin. Isaac doubted, for the voice of Jacob was not that of Esau, but his wife dispelled his fears. The blessing was given.

When Esau discovered how he had been tricked, he vowed to kill his brother after their father had died. To save Jacob from his brother's wrath, Rebekah sent him to live with her brother, Laban, in far off Haran. So Jacob set off on his long journey. As he went on, night overtook him when he reached a place known as Bethel. He lay down to sleep, placing a rock beneath his head as a pillow.

As Jacob slept, he dreamed. He beheld a ladder, extending from the heavens to earth. Ascending and descending it were angels. And the voice of Jehovah was heard, promising him the land for his and his descendants forever. "I will not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken of," the voice concluded. Jacob awoke. "Surely, Jehovah is in this place and I knew it not," he said.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

During the month of April there were 3,518 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board, as compared with 3,836 during March, and 4,061 during April a year ago. The fatal cases numbered 23, as against 25 of last April.

The benefits awarded amounted to $436,164.75, of which $356,511.88 was for compensation and $81,652.87 for medical aid. The benefits awarded during April a year ago amounted to $510,607.55.

In commenting on these figures, R. B. Morley, general manager, Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, calls attention to increased interest in the whole question of accident prevention. He cites as an example of this the fact that there were 1,055 persons registered at the Safety Convention of the Associations in April, and that these came from seventy-three different towns and cities, being representative chiefly of the Province of Ontario, although Montreal, and three American cities, New York, Chicago and Cleveland, were included.

A DANGER POINT.

The Examiner has been asked to call to the attention of motorists and of the authorities to the dangerous conditions that exist on Water street in the vicinity of Central School by reason of the speeding done by many motorists in this area at times when the children are going to or coming from school.

It is a matter of simple observation that a great deal of fast driving is being done, and that motorists speed over the intersections at Brock, Murray and McDonnel streets at a rate that is a constant menace to the hundreds of children who have to cross at these points, and the danger is increased by reason of the fact that most of these drivers are depending upon their motor horns to clear the way for them, putting the onus of protecting themselves upon children of tender years.

There has been a Motor League sign at Murray street for several years calling attention to the fact that a school is in the neighborhood, but it has done little or nothing to improve conditions.

If, however, similar signs were erected at other intersections in the school area and the police made an example of those motorists who refuse to contribute to safety conditions at this point, a considerable amount of danger would be eliminated.

THE SOCIAL HYGIENE COUNCIL.

The work of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council is of such obvious importance as a factor in health conservation that the withdrawal of federal support is a matter that should cause grave concern.

To force a let-up in this gigantic task of saving Canada from the worst effects of venereal diseases will strike most thoughtful people as false economy, and while it is generally recognized that the Dominion Government must curtail its spending, it is felt that the pruning knife could be more safely used on other expenditures than on this movement, which has been able to accomplish such worth-while results.

The Canadian Social Hygiene Council, it may be pointed out, is in a position to assist materially in the promotion not only of its original aims but also in such new activities, for example, as the county health unit program, the mothercraft program, as well as the education of the public in such matters as periodic health examination, and the need for utilizing various preventive procedures, such as toxoid immunization against diphtheria and the pasteurization of milk.

In short, the Council has machinery possessed by no other association, and this machinery will be destroyed if the Dominion grant is not forthcoming.

The Federal Government would be well advised to take this matter under further consideration in the hope that a grant for the present year's operations may be possible.

THE STAR AND THE REDS.

It is difficult to understand the Toronto Star's attitude in regard to Communists or to fathom the apparent eagerness with which that paper seems to seek to arouse public opinion against those who are responsible for the maintenance of law and order.

In an editorial reference to May Day the Star remarks that the only places in which there was disorder were those in which parades were prevented by the police, a statement that was perhaps true enough, but that ignored altogether the fact that in several cities May Day parades were stopped for the ample reason that the Communists who organized the demonstration refused to have the Union Jack carried in the procession, but would march only under the Red Flag.

Apparently this Toronto apologist for the Red element believes that the authorities should yield to all such insolent demands, and allow these foreign-born agitators to flout the flag of this country and fly the ensign of anarchy at their own sweet will.

Membership in the Communist order has been held by Canadian courts to be illegal; those therefore who seek to promote Communist doctrine are breaking the laws of the country, and the authorities would be lax in discharging their responsibilities if they allowed unlawful demonstrations to go on unchecked.

Were these parades simply organized, as the Star intimates, by "law-abiding persons who are unemployed and who seek work but desire no disorder," all well and good, but law-abiding Canadians do not give allegiance to the Red cause, nor do they refuse to march under the Union Jack.

As a matter of fact, the names of those arrested as a result of May Day disorders show the vast majority of the offenders as foreign-born, men of the type who are determined not to honor Canadian institutions and whose burning ambition is to upset our method of government.

Why any Canadian newspaper should line itself up in apparent sympathy with such disturbers is a mystery to most people in this country.

ENGLAND PULLS THROUGH.

Canada's High Commissioner to Great Britain told the Empire Club in Toronto something of the splendid efforts to which he had been an eyewitness and which have now resulted in the British Government being able to announce a surplus in its budget.

This little kingdom, with its 111,000 square miles as compared to Canada's 3,690,000 square miles, has literally been fighting with its back to the wall.

War-ridden and bereft of the monopoly of Asiatic trade, African business and the exclusive trade of the Dominions, Britain has struggled along with a dollar's worth of debt for every two dollars' worth of assets. She has 40 billions of debt for her 80 billions of national wealth. And yet she shows a governmental surplus. She is pulling through.

What is the secret of it?

England has gone and will go through hellfire before she gets squared away. She is willing to go through it and she will come through it. But the old habit of "muddling through" will have to be abandoned. She will have to plan and face facts. And her present progress shows that she has adopted that course, that she is trusting in facts rather than in her own particular heaven in matters of government and education.

England arose to greatness through the power of her individuals and the great encouragement offered to business men, traders. These latter had plenty of courage when markets had to be found.

But to-day markets have to be made. And England must take cognizance of the fact.

England may not have the wealth. She has only two dollars of wealth for each dollar of debt as against Canada's six dollars of wealth for each dollar of debt and United States' fifteen dollars of wealth for each dollar of debt. But she has behind her something that none of the rest of the world has, and that is 400 years of experience and world leadership.

For centuries the best brains of England have gone into government, just as the best brains in North America have gone into business. Somewhere between the two extremes probably les the best middle course.

But England is pulling through. She is facing the music, making her sacrifices and coming out on top. The whole world wishes her well.—Vancouver Sun.

THE FUTURE OF FLYING.

Since the announcement two months ago by the Federal Government of drastic cuts in the estimates for aviation, leaving a total remaining vote, as you know, of but a nominal percentage of controllable expenditures, great anxiety has been experienced by everyone concerned in the progress of aviation.

Canadian Aviation has declined to believe that the federal authorities would wash out aviation to anything like the extent indicated by comparative figures of the estimates. Every well-informed person knows that flying, while comparatively a recent development, has established itself definitely as an important part of the nation's program. In our editorial of the February issue, written but a few hours after the news broke, we said:

"Patience and consideration are due our leaders charged with the task of administering the country's affairs. Whatever the conditions are, however, a statement of aviation policy at as early a date as possible might not be considered an unreasonable expectation."

Canadian Aviation has reason to believe that constructive measures are now receiving serious consideration by the federal authorities. It is generally known that a widespread demand has been made for a non-permanent air force reserve. The hope has been expressed that some action will be taken and already enthusiasm is being shown at Vancouver, Toronto and other club centres. The establishment of a non-permanent air force has been constantly recommended by the Canadian Flying Clubs' Association ever since it has started to function.

A natural expectation will be the establishment of squadrons at suitable points across Canada, whose function doubtless will be to give advanced training. Such an arrangement would prove of inestimable value to the flying clubs that have well earned the right to take care of elementary training.

In these times it is easy to criticize, but in the final analysis possibly we, in aviation, are responsible in no small measure for what has happened in that we may not have taken public opinion sufficiently into our confidence; have not publicized the significance of our flying operation in relation to national interests; that we have not stimulated a sufficient degree of public air-mindedness, which is the essential basis to the whole development.

There can be no excuse for the recurrence of this error.—Canadian Aviation.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

News of Our Own Village

Folks from Ashburnham waited on the village fathers last Mon. p.m. and kicked about the gravel pits over there. You're right lads. Folks that want to dig holes shoud join the golf club.

The School Bd. finally got a quorum Tues. nite, but the business done didn't amount to nothing when they did start things going.

The village constabulary had their pictures in this great family journal this week. It was a good likeness except the feet wasn't as prominent as usual, owing to the art of the tintyper, we suspect.

The village Rotary Club has gone carnival and plans is going ahead fast for a big show on the Market Sq. the middle of next month. Looks like a gala occasion, say we.

A lotta folks has been accused this week of being Mister Clean-up, but most of the guesses was far off of the mark. Tough luck, people, we opine.

Jack Corcoran of Toronto, west of here, is bringing some of his star rasslers to the village, starting next Fri. nite with a gent named Garibaldi. Looks like the rink people knew what they was doing when they hung up that wire netting.

The suckers is running in these parts, your scribe learns, but owing to the pressure of business aint able to report at 1st hand the catch, if any.

Sam Newhall, our energetic police chief, has warned horseless carriage drivers that they better watch their step or they will be a parade in front of O. A. Langley, our busy cadi. Looks like business for the hoosegow.

The tourist season is showing some signs of beginning to start here, a bird from Quebec, east of here, tenting at the show grounds 1 nite lately. The main body aint expected as yet, however.

A THOUGHT.

YOUR OWN LADDER

With how much clearness and precision we can often trace the steps by which a man has mounted to some leading principle, the mental ladder by which he has climbed to some great ideal! The materials lies in everybody's hands; the only difficulty is in the ingenuity necessary for building them into shape, and the strength of head which is required to mount without dizziness from stage to stage. Every man must build his own ladder. We cannot use each other's, and it depends upon a man's clearness and soundness of head whether, having reached the summit he can cast off the steps by which he mounted, or needs them still to rest his eye on them for confidence and support—Phillips Brooks.

Quotation for To-Day

THE DEAD DRAG OF THE MEDIEVAL AT GENEVA

By H. W. L. MaHOOD

This modern age has not broken with the medieval. Many of the characteristics of the medieval era still persist and are a drag on the progress of this modern world. Forms change quickly. Customs, habits, life, change slowly. Many of the forms of the medieval age have changed. But the thing within the forms clings tenaciously to this progressive age and are a dead drag. This drag is evident in the conferences at Geneva.

Consider some of the ways in which the medieval is a drag on the present age. In medieval times the schools were for the few. That feature has passed. Youth was educated for positions among the upper classes. To-day the masses are receiving all the advantages that education acords. In the old system, education was by books. To know what was in the text books, to memorize what had been writ, to know numbers, to spell correctly, to pass a catchy examination, that was the ideal in the schools. Books were considered the most important instrument of education. The teacher dominated the school with authority. He saw that the children obeyed. Obedience, you know was so all important. He did not companion with the children. He did not guide them through companionship rather than through obedience. Research had no place in the schools. The smallest child learns more through finding out for himself than he ever will through books. The beginning experience in finding out for one's self is the beginning of education.

The youth develops intellectually as the research method grows. The fewer books prescribed the better. In the research method there is always a question calling for an answer. But, so much, of the old medieval method persists in our splendidly equipped educational institutions. The dead drag in the schools becomes a dead drag in the life of the youth of the nation. Tradition will play too important a part in all their thinking. Research cultivates the courage to take a new venture. Geneva is in need of just such a courage.

Then, the church has, indirectly, great influence in all international conferences. Who will say that the church has broken with the things that brought on reformations? In medieval times the authority was wholly in the hands of the One, or in the hands of the few. The church was not democratic. It was oligarchic. Has the whole Christian church organization broken from the old? How much say do the masses of the people have about the doctrines, and the policy of some branches of the church of Jesus Christ? Is democracy, the common people's part, important in government, and of no consequence on the church? Democracy in the church is modern, tradition in the church is medieval. The medieval is a dead drag on the church of this modern age. This church dead drag influence is evident at Geneva.

Then, are civilized nations civilized? Slavery persisted in medieval times in the powerful nations. The church countenanced slavery. Church members thought it no sin to own slaves. The soul of the slave was counted of little worth. He was worked like an animal. Fed like an animal. Housed like an animal. What about the peoples who to-day furnish a large part of the raw materials for the machinery of industrialized nations? Let the United States and Great Britain and Belgium and France and other modern nations answer. The natives of Java and the Congo and the South American nations could give startling information.

How can any of the great nations represented at Geneva oppress the primitive peoples with a virtual slavery and be peace minded. Governments sanction this modern form of slavery. The corporations with representatives in Java and the Congo and the South American republic resent the interfence of the churches in their business. Think not that brutal slavery has been eliminated from the world. As long as injustice is practiced by any of the great nations international confidence will be delayed. Before any great change in armaments takes place injustice must cease, and the weakest people of the world must be treated with the same consideration as the strongest. The strong will bear the burdens of the weak, and thus fulfil their mission of righteousness and injustice and mercy.

Fifty Europeans and natives were arrested and taken to San Thome.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

He smote his hands together and a servant appeared: in a lifeless voice the merchant said:

"Bring me my prayer robes."

The man fetched him an elaborate garment, stiff with embroideries of gold and black, a small round cap and a pair of silken slippers. Lee Ying put them on, he washed and perfumed his hands, then he passed into a small room the presence of which no stranger would have suspected.

It was a shrine, a tiny, secret place of worship the door to which was a sliding panel ornamented with storks and dragons. A smiling idol sat upon an ivory throne, a bronze bowl of paper prayers stood before it, smoldering joss sticks gave off thin steamers of smoke. Lee Ying moved slowly and with pain, as if he trod upon sharp stones: stiffly he knelt before the image and into the celestial regions drifted the incense of his devotion. He prayed long and earnestly, but his plea, abridged and translated would have been, "Show me the way of righteousness, and give me the strength to follow it."

Later that day he wired for Sam to come home.

Lee Ying sat bolt upright in his high-backed chair. Before him, as if in audience upon some royal personage, stood Sam. He was white, he neither moved nor spoke.

"Together we shall pay," said Lee Ying. "Women mean nothing, your amusements do not concern me, but your future is another matter. It is a family matter: a matter that concerns the honor of our name. The girl insists that you marry her and the law is on her side. It is seemly that we abide by the laws and the customs of this country, no matter how senseless they appear as compared with our own. If you have done wrong, it is too late to argue: the price is set; there is no bargaining. You will marry her at once. . . . But the New Year approaches, when all our debts must be settled and when those who cannot pay must expiate — the lanterns are not put out until every account is closed. Those who have preceded us, as well as the living, are implacably firm in seeking what is their due and we—I, at least—have been false to them. I shall, therefore, meet my debt in the only honorable way. I could not live to see you linked in marriage to a woman of the sewer, and I doubt if you could long endure the disgrace of such a union. But that is for you to decide. The sword of our family hangs in my room. When you have set right your folly I shall ascend to Pan Yi. If it please you to go hand in hand with me, so be it."

"May I speak?" Sam inquired hoarsely.

The father inclined his head. "Don't feel that I have condemned you without a hearing. Speak truthfully, therefore, and don't fear my anger for I have none."

A silence ensued which Lee Ying broke by asking: "You owe the girl nothing? . . . She has no claim on you?"

"Nothing! None whatever. This is extortion, blackmail. I've paid it, in one way or another, to every American I ever knew. Yes, ever since I was a boy. The children here in this neighborhood always preyed on me. I had to buy their friendship. It has been the same in college. Men, women, they're all alike. They merely use me for their own profit. That girl you sent to Paris — she was willing to sell herself, for a price. She as much as told me so, but I had some pride. This creature is even lower. She isn't fit to touch."

Lee Ying rose and went to his son, his lips were moving, his eyes were wet. He enfolded the boy in his arms, his bony hands caressed him, stroked him, patted him.

"We will say no more about it and you will forgive my faltering faith," he declared. "I rejoice that you have not defiled yourself. My heart is warmed, the sap rises in my limbs, there is a song on my lips. I feel the peace and the happiness of one who, after much trouble, rests beside the red poppy fields and sees the silkworms gorging on the mulberry trees. Sit here at my side and tell me, not about this vile experience, but about your studies and your play, your comings and your goings — the little things which a mother yearns to hear. I am both mother and father to you and you are both my son and my daughter: your honor is precious to me and in your voice I hear the music of harps and of mallets striking on temple bells. See? Tears come to my eyes. Humor me, for I am a foolish, starved old man. I—I would like to hold your hand in mine."

INSTALMENT No. 13.

Chinatown was in something of a turmoil when Himes and his companion arrived at Lee Ying's for a "settlement." The New Year's celebration was drawing to a close. Store fronts were redecorated with banners, festoons of lights were strung across the streets and lanterns spun and danced in the wind. In spite of the cold there was a festival gaiety to the place, for the pavements were carpeted with confetti, gaudy streamers whipped and writhed and many doors were sealed with red paper to keep out unwelcome spirits. New York's Oriental citizens were doing their poor best to imitate the galeties of the homeland.

The attorney, Marcus by name, was waiting in the tiled hallway next to the Palace of Imperial Bounty and together the three visitors were carried aloft.

Lee Ying was waiting and with him, to the surprise of the others, was his son. With his usual suavity, the father bade the newcomers welcome, and explained:

"Sam has just arrived from college to spend the New Year with me. To-night, you know, is our Feast of Lanterns, the most important of all Chinese festivals."

"So it is," Himes agreed. It was the first time he had seen Sam and he eyed the youth curiously.

Sam, be it said, had been told nothing whatever about this meeting or its purpose, and he was as disagreeably surprised to see Mrs. Stevens as she was to see him. He turned a worried gaze to his father and opened his mouth to speak, but the latter ignored him and addressed Himes saying:

"You told me you had been to China, so you probably know that we make it a practice to settle all our accounts on the final night of the old year. It is the universal Chinese custom. Those who can pay must and those who cannot pay must expiate. The lanterns are not put out until the last debt is paid."

"Righto! It's a good custom."

"Not so good for us," Mr. Marcus declared with a smile. "It would ruin the law business. But what do you mean, a man who can't pay his debts must expiate?"

Lee Ying shrugged his shoulders. "Some expiate by suicide—Now then, it appears there is an obligation due you—"

Unable longer to restrain himself Sam interrupted with heat.

"It's nothing but blackmail, I tell you. It's an outrage and—"

"I suppose you didn't have her up in your apartment?" Mrs. Stevens blazed at Sam. "I suppose I didn't find you with her right in my own home? You didn't try to buy her off, either? Oh, no! Wait till she tells a jury what she told me."

"Will you be still?" Himes implored.

"No, I won't be still. They can keep their money; I want to make an honest woman out of Mona. I don't care if he is a Chinaman. I'm willing for her to—"

"We arrive nowhere," Lee Ying observed without feeling. "You believe your daughter, and it is natural that you should. But marriage is out of the question. I have agreed, without consulting my son, to a settlement, and I do not quibble. Here is a document, drawn by my attorneys, setting forth the facts and reciting the terms. Its object is to protect me from all further demands. I ask you to read it carefully." From a portfolio Lee Ying took a typewritten document and handed it to the lawyer, he removed also a sheaf of new one thousand dollar bills which he passed to Himes with the request to count them.

At sight of the latter Sam uttered a sound but his father turned upon him. For an instant they eyed each other. The young man's face whitened. Lee Ying believed him to be a liar! The blow stunned him.

"I don't like this," the attorney announced finally. "Carter and Pelz are good lawyers but this is out of their line. It's too elaborate—"

"Let me run over the thing." Himes took the paper; he and Mrs. Stevens scanned it.

Lee Ying waited imperturbably while the two held their heads together. Himes finally announced:

"I'm no lawyer but I say sign on the dotted line and let's end the agony." He took a fountain pen from his pocket.

"Make sure that you understand what you are signing," the importer cautioned Mrs. Stevens.

"I suppose it makes me out a grafter," she said irritably, "but I'm tired to death. It's an outrage but—" She affixed her signature; Himes and Marcus witnessed it although at the cost of another protest from the attorney.

Mrs. Stevens possessed herself of the money and rose, whereupon Lee Ying stayed her, saying:

"A moment, please. Business is over, you are now my guests and I would be lacking in politeness if I permitted you to leave my ignoble dwelling without some hospitable ceremony. New Year's is a carnival season, you must join me in some trifling refreshments." Ignoring the woman's protest, he clapped his hands and a houseboy appeared; the two exchanged words in Chinese.

Sam, whose back was to the room, started, grew rigid. Attentively he listened.

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 7 (C.P. Cable).—A fine first-wicket partnership of the veteran George Gunn and the youthful Keeton, who ran up 132 runs in 100 minutes for Nottinghamshire against Sussex at Nottingham, featured to-day's opening play in first-class cricket matches.

Seven matches got under way to-day, six of them being county fixtures. George Gunn, who is 52 years of age and has a son on his team, ran up 67 in flawless style, including a six and eight 4's, while Keeton's total was 142. Keeton delighted the enthusiasts with a stylish and strong defence showing a variety of strokes.

J. Lee ran up 85 in the first innings for Somerset against Surrey at the Oval here, and Wellard got a six, a four, a two and a six in four successive strokes off the redoubtable Gregory, scoring 28 runs in 20 minutes.

Montreal Leaders Unchanged To-Day

MONTREAL, May 7.—(C.P.) — Stock prices failed to make any substantial move away from yesterday's final prices during a dull session on the Montreal stock exchange to-day. Trading opened in a quiet tone and continued listless throughout the two hour session.

The majority of the leaders held unchanged and only a few minor fractional changes showed in the remainder of the list.

Brazilian closed unchanged at 9⅜. Montreal Power eidsed unchanged at 27½. Canadian Pacific Railway eased 1-8 to 12 5-8 at the opening and was at the same figure when trading closed for the week.

Canadian Alcohol "A" was steady at $0.75. B.C. Power advanced 1-8 to 17 1-2. Dominion Bridge made a late appearance at 11 1-2, up 1-8. Gypsum was unchanged at 3. Eastern Dairies unchanged at 11 and National Steel Car held steady at 9⅜.

Hollinger Regains Another 25 To $4.75

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.). — Price action, while still confined to a relatively small portion of the list, showed a definitely stronger tendency on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market in to-day's short session. Volume was light.

Noranda, somewhat above last night from the opening, came ahead in the last few minutes to record a 45-cent addition to recent recoveries. International Nickel was steady around $6.15. Eldorado in a few transactions slipped a couple of cents.

Hollinger featured higher-priced golds, regaining another 25 to $4.75. An odd lot of Lake Shore turned over at $236.50, up 50, and Pioneer of B.C. was 5 higher. Teck-Hughes, Wright-Hargreaves, and Dome were practically unchanged.

Sarnia eased a cent in the lower-priced oil section, but Acme Gas and Peninsular Pete were both slightly higher, the latter in fair volume.

Exchange Rates

Pound sterling in Montreal 4.11⅜
Pound sterling in New York 3.67⅛
Canadian dollar in New York, 89⅛

Wages of iron workers in Scotland have been reduced.

Lumber exported from the Philippines last year was valued at $1,380,000.

FRIDAY'S RISE CHANGES TREND

INTEREST IN BUDGET.

(By John L. Cooley, Associated Press Financial Writer.)

NEW YORK, May 7.—While government finances floundered in congress this week, Europeans developed one of their frequent spells of dollar pessimism and security prices on the New York stock exchange recorded new average lows before Friday's rising spirits changed the trend.

After President Hoover's budget message had been followed by a tax bill agreement in the senate finance committee, the share market decided that things looked brighter and there was a substantial recovery yesterday. Whether stocks had made only a technical recovery from an oversold position or whether they were attempting to discount early settlement of vexatious questions at Washington remained rather obscure, but brokers thought the market was entitled to its rally after a two months' decline.

To Europe the Goldsborough Bill plainly spelled inflation and active pressure was exerted against the dollar most of the week, particularly by currencies still on a gold basis. Some bankers pointed out that its provisions were vague and that its actual effect, in the event it became law, seemed uncertain.

Achieved Little.

Credit expansion through the reserve system's security buying program has so far achieved little in the way of definite results, although nothing spectacular was expected at this early date. The reserve system has added nearly $550,000,000 to its governments portfolio since enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill last February; most of this gain was made in the past four weeks which have seen an average weekly increment of $100,000,000. The current total is more than half a billion dollars above the maximum holdings of the central banks during the easy credit days of 1927.

Although Wall Street has an eye on European problems, the major interest is the national budget. Means for attaining a balance are generally regarded as much less important, at this juncture, than the end itself.

Grain Reviews

AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, May 7 (By the Canadian Press).—Quiet trading was the rule on Winnipeg's grain market this week, but wheat prices, although bounded by narrow trading limits, showed subdued firmness to advance nearly two cents for the six-day period. Reports that shipments of Canadian wheat are to be made to Russia featured the news and imparted strength to local values.

Closing Friday at 61⅝, May delivery registered the greatest advance of the three futures, up 1⅜ cents. July was 1⅜-1¾ higher at 63¾, and October an even cent at 65½-⅝.

Interest in the crop situation in the United States and Western Canada subsided this week and traders generally were waiting for new developments.

Fluctuations in the market were narrow. Firmness at Liverpool sustained local values at times but the market closed the period seemingly in a stronger position than last week. Traders appear to be marking time and holders of wheat seem loath to dispose of their purchases.

Reports indicate that Russia is definitely out of the export trade at present, no offerings having been received from the Soviet for some time, stated to be for the Russian army in Siberia, 1,250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were sold to that country this week. Shipments are to be made from Vancouver.

Good export business also was worked for Europe. No estimate on the amount sold could be obtained.

AT CHICAGO.

(By John P. Boughan, Associated Press Market Editor.)

CHICAGO, May 7.—With the probable United States winter wheat yield now known, grain traders are paying sharper attention to the spring crop outlook.

A decrease of 10 per cent. in spring wheat acreage as compared with 1931 is deemed likely by Chicago experts, although the latest official estimate pointed to 58 per cent. increase. Reports current to-day indicate that spring seeding in Canada and the United States is later than for a number of years, but that prevailing improved moisture conditions may be more than a complete offset for the delay.

Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning was ¼-1⅜ cents a bushel higher, with corn varying from 1⅛ decline to ⅝ advance, oats ¼-2¼ up, and provisions 2 to 15 cents down.

Up-to-date reports agree that Canada seems assured of a fairly good spring wheat crop, since moisture is more plentiful than for several years.

Liberal increase of corn acreage this season is now generally expected. One reason is heavy abandonment of winter wheat. General interests are meeting with some difficulty in obtaining full supplies of oats.

Stocks of provisions continue to enlarge.

Lord Irwin Visits Mayor Of Montreal

MONTREAL, May 7.— Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, paid a visit to-day to Mayor Fernand Rinfret. He was accompanied by Sir Montagu Allen and Adjutant Adjuto Savard. The latter was a Canadian delegate to the last Pacific Relations Congress. Mayor Rinfred expressed interest in the fact Lord Irwin is the son of Lord Halifax who took part in the famous Malines conversations with Cardinal Mercier on the subject of relations between the Roman Catholic church and the Church of England.

OIL SECTION ACTIVE CENTRE

Brazilian and Montreal Power Closes Under Friday's Price.

SMALL GAIN IN FORD.

TORONTO, May 7.—(CP)—Toronto Stock Exchange opened this morning with gains made in late trading Friday still retained. Oils, particularly, were strong, demand in this group being more sustained than elsewhere along the board.

The oils registered small gains and were firm at the new level. Ford of Canada at 9. C. P. R. at 12⅜ also showed small gains. Nickel, Bell Telephone, Service Stations, Walkers common and preferred, B. C. Power "A" were unchanged at last night's finals.

Brazilian slipped at the opening but came back towards the end of the session to leave off only the minimum fraction lower. Montreal Power also closed just under last night.

Smelters changed hands at 39, off nearly 1 point.

HASTINGS

The Y. W. A., of Trinity United church, held their weekly meeting at the home of Miss Jessie Fleming of the Norwood Road.

ISSUES STAGE MILD RECOVERY

Brazilian, Nickel, C.P.R., Ford and Oils Advance Into Higher Levels.

NOT IMPRESSIVE.

(Written for The Canadian Press by Thomas C. Thompson.)

TORONTO, May 7.—After plumbing new depths of the decline, Canadian share prices this week developed mild recovery tendencies that sent Brazilian Traction, C.P.R., Nickel, Ford of Canada and the oils into higher levels at Toronto and Montreal. The recovery movement was not impressive but it was at least a respite from weeks of almost uninterrupted selling.

The eyes of Canadian financial observers were focused on Wall Street and Washington to such an extent that a number of definitely constructive developments in the Dominion were seemingly overlooked. There was, for example, the announcement that manufacturing activity in Canada reached a new peak for the last six months during March, and subsequent data indicates that there has been no lessening of activity since the end of that month. Retail sales were also reported to be substantially greater than in recent weeks, while reports of Russian buying of Canadian wheat lent a more cheerful aspect to the western grain outlook. The wheat situation was also brighter by reason of the increased export movement noted since the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes.

But those and other favorable factors in the Canadian economic scheme were secondary in their effect to the depressing influence of the downward movement of New York stocks. Liquidation was evident among Canadian interlisted issues and while the dominant characteristic of trading was one of resistance to the New York trend nothing could withstand the steady pressure that carried Nickel and other leaders to record low levels.

Actual price changes among industrial stocks at Toronto and Montreal were not striking, and from a trading standpoint the week's feature of the market was the consistent firmness of oil issues.

SAVINGS OFFICE CLOSE LAID TO TORY RUMORS

WINNIPEG, May 7.—After a sharp debate the Manitoba Legislature early to-day adopted the majority report of the special committee which investigated the closing of the Provincial Savings office, the vote was 26-14, Liberal members voting with the government.

The report found the closing of the office was due to rumors deliberately circulated which had been traced to certain Conservatives, and to the refusal of the Dominion Government to guarantee a loan the Manitoba government proposed to float to carry on the institution.

In a vigorous defence of the committee's report, Premier John Bracken absolved leaders of the Conservative party from blame in connection with the savings office affair but held individuals in the party were responsible.

Sympathy Of Canada Extended To France

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today instructed Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister to Paris, to convey personally to the government of France the deepest sympathy of the people and government of Canada in the great loss sustained in the assassination of Paul Doumer, veteran president of the French republic.

The prime minister further cabled Mr. Roy to express Canada's fullest appreciation of the high character of the assassinated president and of his long and patriotic service in which President Doumer had won a notable place not only in the annals of France but in world affairs.

KING PHARAOH TYPE OF SATAN

City Wide Revival Being Conducted in Opera House.

NEGRO SINGER.

"Compromising Christians" was the subject of the sermon last evening in the Grand Opera House of Rev. John H. Brostom, of California, who is conducting a city-wide revival campaign under the auspices of the Pentecostal Assembly of Peterborough.

A dynamic and fearless speaker, Mr. Bostrom stated that in the Book of Exodus the story of Moses and Pharaoh shows clearly that Pharaoh is a type of satan, our adversary. "Before he allowed the children of Israel to leave Egypt he offered several suggestions in the way of compromise," declared the speaker.

First, he said, "Don't go very far away", and later on he said, "Don't take the children" and still later "Leave your flocks and your herds". And so today our arch enemy says, if you insist on being a Christian don't be a narrow-minded one, don't be a fanatic. Don't insist on the children going to church, but later the parents come with tears in their eyes and ask to pray for their wandering boys and girls.

"And the same way with our possessions, satan says, don't invest too heavily in Christian work, and many people put a nickle on the collection plate when they should put a five dollar bill. As the children of Israel needed their cattle for making sacrifices so we today need our offerings."

Curtis M. Saulsbury, noted Negro tenor who is assisting in the campaign, sang last night "Oh, Mary Don't You Weep" and other spirituals.

This evening Mr. Bostrom will speak on "The Causes of Sickness," which is the first address in a series on the subject of Divine Healing. "The Burning Bush", will be his topic at a mass meeting at 2.30 Sunday afternoon, and in the evening his subject will be "Life After Death".

Mr. Bostrom has recently conducted evangical campaigns in Toronto, Hamilton and London. During his services in London it was reported in the London Free Press that a woman was healed of rheumatism. The report in the paper states "One elderly lady, 79 years of age, who had been brought in from the country by her daughter and a friend, received the Pentecostal experience on Sunday night. She was crippled with rheumatism so that to walk she had to be assisted by her daughter and her friend. Prayer was offered in the name of the Lord and within about five minutes, as she sat silent and with her eyes closed, suddenly she jumped to her feet without assistance and went up and down the room, clapping her hands and praising God for healing.

"The members of the Pentecostal Assembly felt that it was one of the greatest meetings that they have ever had in the history of their work in this city," the news paragraph concludes.

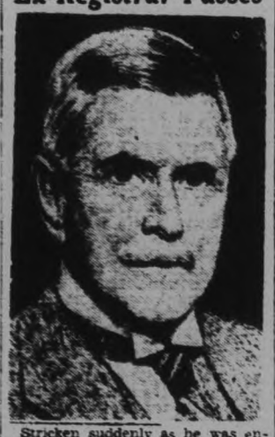
Ex-Registrar Passes



Stricken suddenly as he was engaged in trimming a flower bed beside the Botany building of the University of Toronto, Dr. James Brebner, former registrar of the university died before medical aid could be summoned. Dr. Brebner had been registrar of the university from 1893 until 1930. The death of Dr. Brebner brings to a close a colorful career in the educational history of the country. Born in London, Ont., he went to Sarnia as a very young man and worked until he had earned enough to put him through Bratford Collegiate, from which he matriculated in 1883.

BOY CHORISTERS CAPTURE SHIELD

St. John's Boys' Choir Win for Third Time at Stratford.

BROADCAST PROGRAM.

St. John's Church choir boys have added another wreath to their laurels by winning the Stillman Challenge Shield at Stratford Musical Festival for the third year in succession, and by meriting the right to retain permanent possession of the trophy.

The boy choristers along with their choirmaster, Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., returned to the city last evening, and were the recipients of a shower of congratulations upon their success.

Leaving here on Thursday morning the choir boys were also accompanied by the choir mother, Miss R. Quartermaine, and by Miss Lily Bacon, accompanist. On Thursday morning they broadcast over station CKGW, Toronto, and following their program received telegraphed messages of congratulation from a number of local people, including Archdeacon the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, the Wardens of St. John's Church, Miss A. M. Price, superintendent of the Isolation Hospital, Jack Craig, one of the choristers who was unable to make the journey owing to illness, and L. J. Pettit, of the Collegiate staff.

The test piece at Stratford sung by the choir in competition with the Alpha Juvenile Choristers of Stratford, was "Boys' Song" (Turnbull). One other choir which was entered in the contest withdrew.

The choir broadcast the following Ascension Day program over station CKGW, Toronto:

Ascension Day hymn, "Hail the Day" (Monk).

"Now is the Month of May" (Morley).

Solo, "The Chorister," Gerald Perks.

Anthem, "Praise Ye the Father" (Gounod).

Trio, "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears" (Field), Choristers Victor Coleman, Gerald Perks, and Roy Pitchford.

Semi-chorus, "You'll Get There" (C. H. H. Parry), Choristers Victor Coleman, Gerald Perks, Donald Perks, Bob Kay, Christy Mason, Fred Fowler, Leslie Sage, and Lyle Glover.

Solo, "Mary" (Richardson), Chorister Victor Coleman.

"Boys' Song" (Turnbull), by the full choir.

Wednesday Is Set As Clean-Up Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 7. — Wednesday next is clean-up day in Havelock, and all citizens are asked to co-operate with the Horticultural Society and the Council, and try to have the village one of the cleanest in Ontario. Receptacles containing the collected refuse of the winter months should be put out on Wednesday to be in readiness for the collectors, who will be out early on Thursday morning. Ashes are not included among the articles to be carried away by the civic collectors.

Beautifully decorated in gold and green colored crepe paper, the Sunday school auditorium of George Street United Church presented a very attractive appearance last evening for the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet of the Women's Missionary Society. It was a very special occasion, as it marked the 50th anniversary of the formation of the W.M.S. in George Street Church.

At 6.30 p.m. nearly four hundred mothers and daughters sat down at five long tables arranged the full length of the room with the speakers' table on the platform, with a background of tall ferns on pedestals. The golden No. 50, in a large circle, reminding all of the anniversary occasion. The tables were very attractive with gold and green fluted runners, gold candles in gaily decorated golden vases holding yellow and white Spring flowers.

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard acted as chairman, congratulating the society on the success of the event despite the rainy night. Community singing of old favorites was indulged in, with Mr. Arnold Spencer as leader and Miss Musa Cox at the piano.

An excellent musical program was rendered, consisting of piano solo by Miss Musa Cox and Miss Merryl Smith; vocal solos by Miss Dorothy Sager, "Mother Macree" and "The Lassie That Loves Me So," accompanied by Mrs. D. Howat, were much applauded. Miss Viola Payton, reader, scored a great triumph in her selections, "A Voice from Afar," with Miss Sager singing "Home, Sweet Home," and Miss Musa Cox playing the musical accompaniment. In response to an enthusiastic encore, she gave "One On Mamma." Her second number was "Pelang," by Dr. Drummond, with an encore entitled "A Little Girl's Secret."

The guest speaker was Miss Mabel Clazey, missionary, who has been laboring in Formosa. She gave a very interesting description of the work there, which had been one of the oldest mission fields of the Presbyterian Church. For over 60 years missionaries have been working on this small island with a population of 4,000,000 people. She gave a brief history of the inhabitants, originally of Malayan extraction; the island was settled by the Dutch, who drove the former inhabitants to the mountains. It was afterward claimed by the Chinese and given by them to the Japanese as a war indemnity.

The Japanese in Formosa are now the ruling class, and they have introduced many Western improvements. They now have all electrical appliances, transportation is very convenient, excellent postal and telegraph systems and splendid educational facilities. But as she pointed out, Western civilization does not necessarily spell Christianity, and there is much work yet to be accomplished. Like all other Eastern nations they are very superstitious and have a great fear of evil spirits. Among the educated class pronounced materialism is a great hindrance, but there is great cause for thankfulness, as there are 50 Christian churches. Of these 9 or 10 are self-supporting and a large number of the others partially so. In conclusion, she said she considered it a great privilege to work among these people. Bringing her remarks to a close with these words:—

To read is to know,
To know is to love,
To love is to serve.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. A. I. Brown to the speaker and all those taking part in the program, and to the ladies who had been responsible for the catering and decorating, and not forgetting the efficient staff of men waiters, dressed in their white coats who so capably looked after the serving. This motion was seconded by Mrs. C. W. Coon.

The event was brought to a close with prayer by Dr. A. I. Brown.

Mrs. S. R. Armstrong was general convenor of arrangements, Mrs. J. A. Spencer and an efficient band of helpers was in charge of the banquet, and Mrs. E. E. Harvey looked after the decorations.

ESTIMATE COST OF SEWERS AND WALKS

Minor Work Proposed in North and Fest Ends.

A sewer on Prinoss Street from Maude St. to George St., 225 feet, total $582.20 of which $440.10 is chargable to property; O'Carroll Avenue, sewer, from the end of the present sewer to Aylmer Street, 264 feet, total $735.60, of which $735.40 is charged to property; O'Carroll avenue, sidewalks, $482.25 and $631.88; Aylmer street sidewalk from the present end to O'Carroll avenue $600; McDonnell street from end of present walk to Monaghan road $831.90; and on Monaghan road from McDonnell street to Park Hill road (at Jackson Park) $1,642.50. Total estimated cost of sidewalks, $4,158.53.

MARSHALL SAUNDERS DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT THE COLLEGIATE

Miss Saunders Gives Most Informal and Chatty Address.

MOST FRIENDLY MANNER.

"If an animal or bird is sick and cannot bear life, put it to sleep mercifully.——

"Animals and birds in captivity get tired of their own food—they want to eat what you eat. Even the robins will turn from worms and demand little bits of meat from the table.——

"I am able to do so much with my pets because I stay at home at nights and don't go gadding much in the day. Any mother should do that for her charges.——

"To understand birds and animals, you must live with them and be kind to them——"

In an informal, chatty, friendly way that made her address doubly interesting Miss Marshall Saunders of Toronto, author of the internationally-famous book, "Beautiful Joe," and twenty-five other volumes, spoke last night to an audience of nearly three hundred people, gathered in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, under the auspices of the local branch of the Humane Society.

Miss Saunders evidently liked her audience and they liked her, in turn. It was a pleasant gathering, with lantern slides to illustrate the talk on bird and animal life which was entitled, "How Birds and Animals Resemble Human Being," and which was made up principally of illustrated excerpts from the "humane" life of the speaker. Little anecdotes and stray bits of fun, gleaned from a close association with furred and feathered friends, brought to the minds of the listeners the extreme worth-whileness of kindness to dumb things in that lower order of creation where, according to the one who wrote: "God speaks in man, wakes in the animal, and sleeps in the stone," the very spirit of cretaion lives and moves and has its Being.

Miss Saunders, who was introduced to her audience jointly by T. Sargent, president of the Peterborough Humane Society, and F. J. Morris, prefaced her talk with a reference to the good to be derived from a personal interest in something outside of our own selves; with an adjuration to parents to see to it that their children developed a sense of kindness and protection to dumb creatures, and with an insistence on the value of bird life in keeping down an ever-menacing insect pest which annually does so much to destroy vegetable life.

"Mr. and Mrs. Potato bug—the Colorado beetle, as it is really—have sixty million children within the space of one summer. But the worst enemy of the bird that helps to eradicate insects is man himself."

Miss Saunders, who owned to having a cats' hotel and three toad hotels on her grounds, asked for affectionate consideration and more protection for bird life.

"Ruby," the Cardinal Bird

The series of interesting slides which were run off by J. S. Chandler, were illustrated by the speaker in a reminiscent mood which drew for her listeners the tale of a long and useful life filled with kindness to dumb creatures and pictured for them the unique return which these same inarticulate beings make for such consideration.

"Beautiful Joe," the dog maimed by cruelty and bearing in its eyes the traces of the torturer, posed quietly for the opening scenes, which had to do with the lecturer's early life in the Acadian land.

Many of the pictures were colored, like the illustrations of the beautiful Florida and Brazilian specimens of the gorgeous cardinal bird, and that wandered bird whose name escaped the ear, washed up by strong waves on the heel of a hurricane from warm Florida waters to find a friend in far-off Canada. It was a "beautiful but wicked" bird, said its patron, for it proved kind to the mother robin and then flew aloft to murder another defenceless bird that offended its spoiled whim.

A charming incident that emphasized strongly the ancestral heritage of kindness ond forbearance was the little picture, "homely" in the cosy English use of the term, that showed Miss Saunders' father bearing patiently the onslaught of a pet goat on his broadcloth knee, so that a picture might be taken of the pets and their owners.

This goat was whimsically named Mona Lisa, "because you never could tell what she was thinking about," and her kid was well-named the "debutante," her gulleless, artful expression bearing out the significance of the cognomen, to perfection.

The Royal Pigeon

There was Princess Sukey, the Jacobin pigeon from California; the little Mother Carey's chicken that fell, wounded, on the streets of Halifax, and lived to find a refuge and nice "worm hash" (made of crushed worms and cornmeal) in Miss Saunders' aviary. There were the two owls, Solomon and Betsy; there was the little guinea pig from that family described by the speaker as "tender parents";there was a pigeon mourning for a dead sister; a bird falling in love with its mirrored image and refusing to like a purchased mate; there was an Australian parakeet sleeping on a pigeon's neck; there were little toads crawling up Miss Saunders' shoulders in the picture which showed her with these usually-despised creatures ("if I meet a strange toad on my walks at night and pick it up to find it begin to perspire violently, then I know it isn't mine"); there was the pet dog, Billy Sunday, and the little Boston bull terrier that likes birds and hates toads.

It was an entertaining and interesting review of a few of Miss Saunders' charges, and she created much amusement by her description of the cat hotel at her home in an aristocratic section of Toronto, where the wandering, night-roaming felines have a chance to find a refuge "and then go home at a decent hour in the morning."

To the speaker, whose address was not too lengthy and maintained its interest to the last sentence, Mr. Sargent extended the thanks of the Humane Society, including also Miss C. Littlefield, who supplied the dancers of the evening, and Mrs. Tuck (formerly Miss Regetta Lewis of this city) who came down to dance for the occasion and who received much applause for her clever tap work.

The dancers from the Y.W.C.A. Pageant, who also were greeted with much appreciation, were a quintette of gay red, white and blue clad King's Guardsmen from the Mother Goose Ballet, two of the members of the Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary section, with their gay frocks and huge, flowered hats, and the stiffly-jointed, characteristic dancers in the captivating pantomime, the Marionettes' Romance, in their bright national costumes.

RIGHT TYPE OF SPARK PLUG FOR EVERY ENGINE

Selecting new spark plugs during Champion National Change Week is not a hit-or-miss matter of merely taking the first plugs seen in a dealer's showcase.

Every car owner who follows the prudent practice of replacing his spark plugs during Champion National Change Week—May 9 to 16—can find the right type for his car by examining a chart with which his dealer can supply him.

This year, too, the problem of choosing the right plug has been simplified, for Champion has a new and patented plug suitable for any one of a wide range of car engines. This new plug has a core of special design, to make it suitable from the low point of engine heat range to the high point, and at the same time prevents engine stoppage from the two main causes of spark plug failure, which are fouling by soot or carbon and pre-ignition.

Ever since spark plugs were first used it has been the hope of designers to perfect a type in which the sparking points would be carried directly into the gas stream in the combustion chamber. Engineers have recognized that this ideal plug, if it could be realized, would provide a greater range of service and at the same time would reduce the possibility of both pre-ignition and fouling inherent in spark plugs of conventional design when used under abnormal conditions.

The first spark plug of which we have any record, the one used in Lenoir's gasoline engine built in 1859-61, was of the projected core type and numerous experimental plugs of similar construction followed it. None of them was successful for the reason that no insulating material then known would withstand the extreme conditions existing in the firing chamber of an internal combustion engine.

The new and patented core Champion spark plugs have a broader heat range than has been available in the past from any one plug. In practice they have been found to give a noticeably better performance at all speeds.

It is urgently advised that a complete change of all spark plugs be made at least once a year or after 10,000 miles of driving use. The best of plugs lose efficiency after that time and experience has shown that they cost more in wasted gasoline and oil than would cover the cost of new sets.

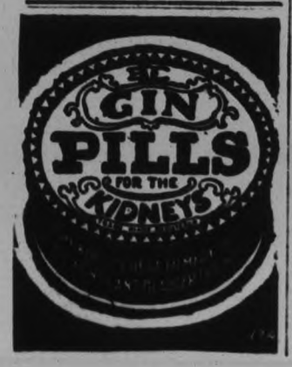
After 10,000 miles of driving, a car's spark plugs lost efficiency to such an extent that their further use entails loss of gasoline and oil. Experience has shown that it actually saves more than the outlay to install a complete new set. The Champion Spark Plug Company has established a regular period when millions of motorists make this change. Champion National Change Week this year is May 9 to 16.

MARIE DRESSLER ILL

Marie Dressler's illness, reported in the industry as serious, is discounted by Metro. While it has been necessary for Miss Dressler to conserve her strength she is reporting daily at the studio.

Schedule has been arranged so that Miss Dressler does not have to spend over six hours in the studio daily. She is finishing 'Prosperity' with Polly Moran.

When the picture winds up week after next Miss Dressler goes east for three or four weeks' vacation. Assignment on return is 'The Old Gal,' Frances Marion original.



A Plea for the Man Out of a Job

(By H. W. L. Mallood

Splendid has been the effort of the city administration and of the people of Peterborough to find jobs for the men out of work. "Give-a-man-a-job" is a humane appeal. The man out of a job will surely appreciate the interest the city has taken in him and in his family.

There is a matter that should be brought to the attention of the people. Many men out of a job have had to change their city addresses. They have had to move into inferior homes, or into inferior apartments. Moderate comforts in dwellings and paying rents of twenty-five to thirty dollars have had to be exchanged for places to live in and with rents varying from ten dollars to fifteen dollars a month. As soon as the demand for the cheap places became evident up went the rents. Pretty hard this has been for the man with a family. There are men in this city who have been in homes for one year, some for two years, some for three years, dependable men, who have been prompt to meet their monthly payments, who when they found themselves temporarily out of a job, and could not connect at the right time with the rent have had to move out. Is this Christian? Is it bearing one another's burdens? Is it humane? These men have gone without necessary clothing and proper food to pay their rents when they have had work, or part time work. The renter in such cases sees only the cash rent. He sees not the human. Why could he not have given such a man free rent for a month or two until a job was found? There are some renters in Peterborough who have been treating men out of a job considerately. Merchants who have been more than generous. Men of means who have opened their purses handsomely. Why shoud some of the renters be veritable Shylocks. And the pity of it all is that some of these grasping renters are church members. This is a plea for the men who are compelled to take what he can get in the way of a place to live in for his family. It is intended as a plain rebuke for the unscrupulous folks who take advantage of the needy in such an hour as this and have not a drop of the milk of human kindness in their hearts.

WOMEN'S GUILD HOLDS BAZAAR

Successful Sale of Fancy and Useful Articles Held at All Saints'.

NICELY DECORATED.

Under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the church, a very successful semi-annual sale of fancy and useful articles was held in All Saints' parish hall. The different booths were decorated brightly with spring-like arrangements of flowers and streamers, giving a very attractive aspect to the hall.

The patrons were received by Mrs. J. Detcher, president of the Guild, and Mrs. J. D. Paterson. Mesdames B. Burns, N. H. Sutton, and G. A. Benor, of Circle One, had charge of the sale of fancy work; Mrs. J. Crowe had charge of a table of gaily-wrapped gifts; Mesdames A. W. Clysdale and Ted Burnham sold candy, while Mrs. N. Stewart, president, and Mrs. Carter took care of the fancy articles sold by the Brownton Guild. Flowers and plants were sold by Mrs. K. Sisson and Mrs. J. Kemp; Mesdames T. Sabin, E. Dillon and E. J. Brown, of Circle Two, sold fancy goods; Mrs. J. Price and Mrs. A. Milne had the sale of home-made cooking, and Mrs. F. White, president, with Mrs. J. R. Runnett, had charge of the sale of work by the Bible Class.

The climax of the entertainment was a Peterborough-Produced Jiggs dinner, which was heartily enjoyed by a large crowd. Mrs. F. Roberts and Mrs. G. Worboy were convenors of arrangements. Donations for the dinner were made by the following merchants: N. Routly, Jopling Brothers, Canadian Packing Company, Fitzpatrick and Geraghty, Purity Bread Company, T. H. Hooper and Sons, Bredin Bread Company, Silverwood Dairy, R. O. Dutton's Tea and Coffee Shop, Campbell's Dairy. Contributions were also made by the president, Mrs. J. Detcher, and Mr. James of the Little Lake Cemetery Company.

Fleetwood Society Holds May Meeting

FLEETWOOD, May 7. (Examiner Correspondence). — The May meeting of the Fleetwood Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. Albert Sutton on Wednesday afternoon at the usual hour, with the president, Mrs. Tisdale in the chair.

Business subsequent to the presentation of the play "The Road Back" was transacted and a substantial sum was added to the treasury.

Mrs. Tisdale kindly invited the Association to hold the June meeting at her home on the first Wednesday of the month.

Following the several business arrangements and discussions refreshments were served by the hostess with assistants.

NORHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gummer of Stirling visited Mr. Norman Gummer on Wednesday.

Rev. D. R. Clare of Norham and Mr. Grant Goodfellow of Codrington represented Norham circuit at the meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery of the United church at Garden Hill on Tuesday.

Wesley Newman suffered the loss of a large colony house, with accomodation for 800 chicks, by fire on Tuesday afternoon. Fortunately 600 chicks had been removed a short time before. Although only a few yards from the main barns, owing to a favorable wind, the fire was confined to the one building.

The chemical fire apparatus from Warkworth responded to the call and did efficient work.

NEURITIS? Neuralgia? Rheumatism?

Mr. S. Vrooman, Odessa, Ont., says "I had the most dreadful neuritis. Was in hospital for weeks. I got a $1 box of T-R-C's and felt relief before the box was half gone. Six more boxes drove every trace of neuritis from my body. I have had no return of my pain." Equally good for Sciatica, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lame Back. No harmful drugs. 50c and $1 everywhere. 186

MOTOR TIRES NOW HAVE CORD BASIS

Do You Know the Number of Cords in a Tire?

Most motorists will recall the days when there was a choice between "fabric" and "cord" tires. For many years automobile tires were built up on a basis of woven fabric. Then "cord" tires were introduced. The cords lie side by side, imbedded in rubber, being merely held together by slender cross-threads which keep them in place until they are surrounded and bound together by the rubber. This was a big forward step in tire construction.

Practically all automobile tires are now made in this way. Layers of rubber-surrounded cords crossing each other at an angle form the "carcass," upon which the walls and tread of rubber are imposed, and give the tire its strength and springiness — much greater because the cotton is not a tightly woven fabric, but a series of parallel cords encased in rubber.

Some tire manufacturers claim superior strength and toughness for the cords used in their tires. The Goodyear Company, for instance, which makes its own cords in its cotton factory at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, has an interesting little machine which demonstrates the elasticity and toughness of these cords, and which it supplies to all its dealers. This machine shows how far the cord will stretch before breaking and without losing its "life" and resiliency.

The Goodyear Company has taken an unusual step to draw attention to the importance of the cords in its tires. It is offering substantial cash prizes for the nearest correct estimates of the number of cords in the average Goodyear tire. Any one may enter this contest by securing an entry form from a Goodyear dealer and viewing the six types of tires upon which the estimate is to be based. It is the average number of cords in these six tires that must be calculated. Much interest is being displayed all over Canada in this contest, which closes on June 5th.

Ratepayers Meet In North Monaghan

The regular monthly meeting of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association was held at May's school on Thursday evening, May 5th. The president, Mr. Milby, presided. The committee formed to confer with the township council, reported having met that body, when favorable consideration was secured regarding the payment of taxes in two installments. Their report was adopted.

The president reported for the committee appointed to look over the new assessment roll, saying the assessments as shown were not fair, and it was decided that every taxpayer, whether a member of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association or not, he considered himself wrongly assessed, should read the back of his assessment sheet and appeal the same before the 14th of May. Also any further information required regarding same could be had by applying to the officers of the above asociation. It costs nothing to appeal.

After considerable discussion the meeting closed. The next meeting to be held in Confederation school on June 2nd at 8 o'clock.

Accepts New Charge

JOAN CRAWFORD HAS 'RAIN' ROLE

Production Has Begun on Catalina Island—Village Built.

MILESTONE DIRECTING.

Under the title to which rather strenuous objection was made in 1928 when the picture was made as a silent, shooting of "Rain" began this week on Catalina Island. Lewis Milestone is directing and Joan Crawford and Walter Huston in this audible version of the W. Somerset Maugham story and the John Colton play.

Fresh in the public mind as a play, it was necessary for the cinema to disguise the story as "Sadie Thompson" when Gloria Swanson did it. To that objecting public "Rain" had a sinister meaning. But audiences and censors change and today the title is regarded as perfectly harmless.

Other difficulties however, have been encountered. Some five years ago Paul Kelly, a rising young actor, engaged in a fist fight with Ray Raymond of the musical stage. Raymond died as a result of the battle and Kelly was sent to San Quentin. Out, rehabilitated, the past forgotten he hoped, Kelly returned to Hollywood. After a struggle to overcome obvious objections to his return to the screen, he was signed by Universal.

Mr. Milestone remembered the actor's work, liked it, and engaged him to play the part of the marine in "Rain." Joseph Schenck, head of United Artists, became somewhat fearful, however, and in spite of the attitude of the Hays office, which was that the man's crime had been expiated, Mr. Schenck ordered him removed from the cost.

The "Rain" company is to shoot at the isthmus on Catalina, where the island village of the story has been built. A camera truck runs from the beach around the village, by which outstanding photographic effects will be secured. This is the first time that a company has gone on location to film both interiors and exteriors of a production. A great financial saving will be effected, it being possible to work players and non-union technicians any number of hours without overtime if they are on location. Shooting will take five weeks, inclusive of rehearsals.

FILM STUDIOS CUT EXPENSES

Heavy Production in Negative For Pictures—Laboratory Costs Drop.

MANY PRINTS USED.

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Curtailment of production and improvement of methods in the studios has hit the laboratories and raw stock companies worse than any other branch of the motion picture industry. Currently, business of both the labs and stock companies is about 60 per cent under the average of two years ago.

Major studios are now using an average of about 175,000 feet of negative to each production. Previously features used around 400,000 feet. Positive film used for the daily rushes corresponds with these figures.

Independent producers who at one time thought nothing of using 75,000 feet of negative and rush prints are down to an average of 35,000 for both.

Few major studios now make more than 70 release prints of their features. Formerly the figure was around 150 prints. Indie producers have cut from 80 to 60 prints.

Elimination of the third and fourth cameras on productions has been a saving in negative and positive costs to the studios but has hurt the labs and raw stock distributors.

Biggest negative and print orders were always from Charles Chaplin, who would average more than 1,000,000 exposed feet on his features. He also holds the record for prints, sending out 1,200 on 'City Lights.'

Laboratory costs have dropped to new lows in the past year. Negative developing is down to one cent per foot, one cent for sound track developing and three cents for prints. Price two years ago was one-and-one-half, two and four cents respectively.

WEISSMULLER'S MAIL

Johnny Weissmuller, in one picture, has jumped into a leader in fan mail at Metro. He is receiving around 1,500 letters weekly. That's sensational nowadays. The women have gone for the Weissmuller manly torso as exposed in "Tarzan."

Known for years as a champ swimmer, Weissmuller has burst upon American femininity as a new discovery, although frequently photographed and a newsreel favorite for several seasons. He is the husband of Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy graduate.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

The title for the new Jackie Cooper-Chic Sale film which began as "Limpy," and was converted last week into "When a Feller Needs a Friend", now has undergone a second operation. Now it is "Limpy Makes Good." This will probably be final, as the picture is just around the corner from the Capitol in New York and likely to set up shop in that theatre very shortly.

Norma Shearer's next enterprise will be "Smilin' Through." The film will go into production at the MGM studios as soon as Miss Shearer completes work in "Strange Interlude." Sidney Franklin, who supervised Miss Shearer in "Private Lives" last Winter, will make "Smilin' Through."

Bing Crosby, who has taken his croon to the Paramount lot for a series of features, will probably get started on his first full-length picture in the next fortnight. In these anxious times, the company intends to make as few commercial mistakes as possible with their pet songbird. Milton Field of the releasing organization has been assigned to bring the theatre point of view to the Crosby set. The plan now is to feature Mr. Crosby in five pictures over a period of three years.

Production has been started at the Paramount shop on Maurice Chevalier's next film, "Love Me Tonight," a musical romance, with lyrics and music by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. Supporting M. Chevalier are Jeanette MacDonald, Charles Ruggles, Charles E. Butterworth, Myrna Loy, C. Aubrey Smith, Elizabeth Patterson and Blanche Frederici. Rouben Mamoulian is in charge of the film.

Larry Barretto, author of "Children of Pleasure", is now collaborating with Courtenay Terrett on the screen adaptation of his book. This script will soon enter production, under the same title, as Ruth Chatterton's second film for First National. In addition to Miss Chatterton, George Brent and Paul Cavanaugh have already been announced for the cast.

Back from a lengthy vacation of bearding African big game with gun and camera, Gary Cooper left Manhattan for Hollywood last week. His first role will be with Tallulah Bankhead in a romantic adventure called "The Devil and the Deep," which has a submarine disaster for a background.

The Fox company on location at Santa Cruz, has completed the exteriors of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." This is the picture Janet Gaynor walked out on when she decided she wanted more worldly parts than the sweet things the studio has been giving her. Marian Nixon was not averse to taking Miss Gaynor's place, for the saccharine road of unsophistication in the films is paved with sugar, as Broadway understands the meaning of the word. While Miss Nixon is making the world sweeter with Aunt Jane and other Kate Douglas Wiggin characters, Miss Gaynor is in rehearsal with "The First Year", her initial sally into the grown-up ranks.

"New York Town," Ward Morehouse's unproduced play, has been completed in film form at the Warner studios. Joan Blondell is the star, with Eric Linden, Inez Courtney, Evalyn Knapp and Guy Kibbee in the supporting cast.

Two directors will guide the destinies of "Forgotten Commandments," Paramount's drama of modern Russia, in which Irving Pichel, Gene Raymond and Sari Maritza will appear. Episodes from Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments" are to be incorporated in "Forgotten Commandments," which is from a story by James B. Fagan and Agnes Brand Leahy.

Ralph Graves is the latest of the screen players to take up writing and directing as a sideline. Under his new contract with MGM he will distribute his talents in three directions. For this company Mr. Graves has already completed roles in "Huddle," with Ramon Novarro, and in Jackie Cooper's new film, as yet untitled.

Considerable secrecy surrounds "The Eighth Wonder," now being made. It is from a story by the late Edgar Wallace and is being shot on a locked stage to which no one but technicians have thus far been admitted. The little information available indicates it will be a mechanical mystery thriller of some sort depending largely on trick photography.

POLICE WOUND NINE IN CROWD

Machine Gun Spouts Lead as Demonstrators in Chicago Refuse to Disperse.

SEVERAL ARRESTED.

CHICAGO, May 7 (C.P.). — A police machine gun rattled as the authorities in Suburban Melrose Park tried to disperse a demonstration yesterday and nine men fell slightly wounded.

The crowd of several hundred had gathered in protest against alleged policy brutality during a recent May Day celebration and resisted all efforts of police and firemen to scatter it.

The machine gun spouted fire, several of the demonstrators were seized and the suburban police with reinforcements from the neighboring suburbs and the Cook County highway police department dispersed the rest.

"What would taste good for dinner to-night?"

How many wives have asked that question . . . and how many brides of the future will ask it . . . of indifferent husbands, right after breakfast or lunch? Hopefully at first, almost desperately after a time, and finally as part of a dull, daily soliloquy. For every wife discovers that a man with a newly satisfied palate is a total loss as a source of inspiration for future meals.

Nevertheless, it's an important and trying matter, this business of planning the menu. There are cook-books, of course, but better than that, why not find out what's new in the markets? Pick up your newspaper—that will tell you. There's news about food—in the advertising of local markets and stores, and in that of the nationally known producer of tempting things to eat.

Here's a new way of buying and serving chicken, for example, and one that's no trouble at all. Or a ham, with a new and piquant flavor. It may be that artichokes have just come to market—the first of the season. Or berries, or fruit, or corn on the cob. The advertisements in your paper tell you these things, with the prices, and where you can buy them. Here is inspiration for many a meal, without dragging weary feet from store to store, looking for what would taste good to-night.

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name as a result of advertising do not accept a substitute —substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

The Tennis Champion

FROM the way Mr. Tally behaved you would have thought that only babies played tennis.

"I bring my boy up to be a man," he stormed waving Jim's letter in his hand, "and the first thing I know he begins to play ping-pong."

"Gosh, Mr. Tally," I put in, "Tennis isn't ping-pong."

"It's the next thing to it," was the reply.

He went to the garage and got the automobile, motioning for me to climb in.

"Where are we going?" I asked, wonderingly.

"We're going to Jim's school and bring him home," was the reply. "Spring vacation started at noon today and there's not a reason in the world why he should stay over until tomorrow, as he seems to think."

I tried to reason with him but wasn't very successful because just then we turned a corner and passed a tennis court on which two small girls were batting a ball back and forth over the net.

"Forty-love!" cried one of them, in a high pitched voice.

"Forty-love!" mimicked Mr. Tally, savagely. "If I ever catch Jim calling out forty-love to anybody, I'll take him out of school."

Finally we reached the campus. Mr. Tally parked the car near the gymnasium and then elbowed his way to the locker-room door where he was stopped by an official.

"I want to see Jim Tally at once," he answered, in reply to a courteous question.

He's having a last-minute talk with the coach," was the answer. "I've got orders to keep everybody out."

"But I'm his father!" sputtered Mr. Tally.

"Can't help it, sir. Why don't you take a seat in the grandstand and wait until after the match?"

The official led us to a part of the bleachers that seemed to be reserved for special visitors. There was only one other person in it, and he was a proud-looking man who said his name was Munford.

"I've come three hundred miles to see this tennis match," he said, rubbing his hands together. "And believe me, I don't think I've come too far."

Mr. Tally puffed up and almost exploded, but before he had a chance to make some sarcastic remark there was a cheer from the bleachers and Jim came out of the gymnasium. He was followed by his opponent, the champion tennis player from the University.

The Volleys Were Like Personal Combats!

"It's in the bag," gloated Mr. Munford. "I've taught that boy all he knows about tennis, and that's a-plenty, even if I do say so myself."

"So you're the coach, is that it?" asked Mr. Tally, as he heard this.

"Coach nothing!" was the reply. "I'm his father."

"So am I!" cried Mr. Tally. "I mean I'm Jim Tally's father. We could stop this foolishness if we wanted to," he went on, as if suggesting it.

"What foolishness?" demanded Mr. Munford.

"This tennis game."

"You must be out of your head," was the reply. "I'm here to see my boy win the championship not to stop him from winning it."

The start of the match prevented further discussion. As soon as the player from the University began to return the shots I saw that he was a good player. He would draw Jim to the net and then lob the ball high over his head into the back court. He would get Jim out of position at the left-hand side of the net and then slice the ball to the right-hand side.

Jim's father watched all this with a frown on his face, waiting for the first chance to growl about forty-love. Whenever Jim made a point or played well, Mr. Tally's face lighted with pride, but it always darkened again when the points were won by the boy from the University. I was almost afraid to tell him, at the end of the first set, that Jim had lost.

"Call him over," was the reply.

I gave our private cat-call and Jim, surprised and pleased to see us, came to the edge of the grandstand.

"Hello, Dad!" he cried. "What brings you here?"

His father gulped.

"I came to take you back home," he said.

Jim's face brightened with pleasure.

Jim seemed to play better during the second set than during the first. When I say better, I mean both harder and faster. When he struck the ball, it went like a bullet to the spot where he wanted it to go. The volleys were like personal combats, with each player standing close to the net and swinging his racquet as if he were striking at the other player instead of at the small white ball which shot from side to side.

Finally, after a volley which lasted for more than a minute, Jim caught the ball at the net and drove it down the court for the winning point of the second set. The tournament score then stood one to one, with a third set still to be played.

"So the match is in the bag, eh?" cried Mr. Tally, suddenly turning to the other man. "What do you say about that, now?"

Mr. Munford continued to rub his hands in confidence.

"I advise waiting until the match is over," he replied. "I admit your boy can play tennis, but has he got the endurance?"

"Endurance!" echoed Mr. Tally. "What has endurance got to do with it?"

To tell the truth, Jim and his opponent were so evenly matched that everything depended on which one would get tired first. The games were each as long as ordinary sets. The score went to six-six, which is a deuce game. In order to win from that score, a player has to take two games in succession. Neither Jim nor the University player seemed able to do this, although each played his best.

First Jim won a game and then the Munford boy. The score became seven-seven, then eight-eight, and so on up to twelve-twelve.

Then the University player showed his first sign of weakness by missing a low bound completely, swinging his racquet through the empty air. With a sudden gift of renewed energy and force, Jim pursued this faltering with a fast burst of hard playing, and as a result he won the next game and then the first three points of the following one.

"Forty-love," cried the referee.

"Forty-love?" repeated Mr. Tally, in dismay at hearing that phrase again. "What does it mean?"

"Point game," I said. "One more point and Jim wins the game!"

"Then it's point set, too? One more point and he wins the set?"

I nodded.

"Forty-love, Jim!" cried Mr. Tally, shouting his cheer across the court. "Make that last point good."

Jim did, and the championship was his.

Running to the net to shake hands with his opponent, Jim caught him in his arms instead, for the boy from the University could scarcely stand up, he was so exhausted.

"Not a word, Mr. Munford," said Jim's father, with a changed expression in his voice. "I'm just as proud of your boy as I am of mine. Tennis is just as hard a game as you want to make it," he went on. "When girls play it, it looks like a game for girls, but when men play it, it is a game only a man can play!"

On the way home, he stopped at an athletic supply store.

"Make your choice of two good racquets," he said. "One for you and one for any of your friends who come over to the house for games."

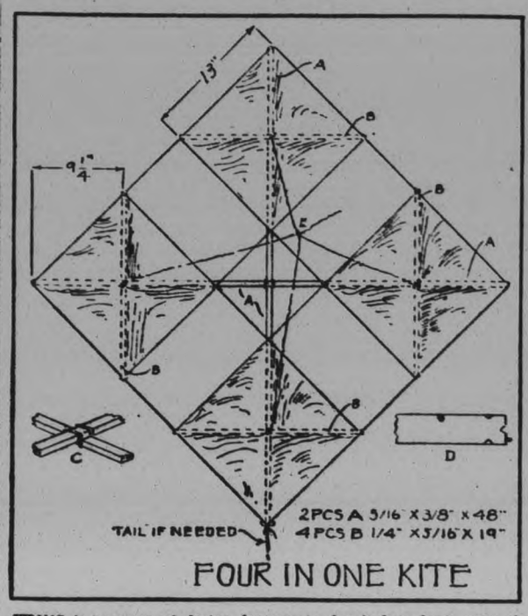
"To the house?" repeated Jim, in surprise.

Mr. Tally nodded.

"Tomorrow I'm going to have some real hard clay dumped in the backyard so that we can make a tennis court out of the lawn between the two elm trees. I'm not so old," he went on with a grin. "Maybe I'll be learning how to play the game myself, seeing as how I have a tennis champion for a son!"

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.



FOUR IN ONE KITE

THIS is an unusual design for a kite and many "Handy Boys" will want to make it just because it is rather odd. This will be easy enough to do. When flying high the sticks in the middle and the strings are invisible and there seems to be four square kites with no apparent connection.

Get out the two sticks A ⅜" x ⅜" x 48" and four sticks B ¼" x ⅜" x 19" from spruce or other strong, light wood. Notch each end of each stick as at D. Join the sticks A at the center with a single small brad to hold them while strong fine twine is wound around the joint as at C. Place sticks B about 9¼" from the ends of sticks A, fastening them by the same method. Tie the strings from the ends of sticks A keeping them of equal length upon all sides. Locate the ends of pieces B with the same care. Do not notch sticks A to receive these middle strings which would weaken the kite, but tie a string firmly around the stick and touch it with glue; treat ends of B at the side strings the same way.

Cover each of the kites with strong, light paper of selected colors if desired; make the paper 17" square, lay it face down upon the floor, turn the edges of the paper over the string and paste it to the under side. Cut paper about 2" x 4" and paste two of them over sticks A and to the back of the paper of each kite. Fasten the bridle to the center of each kite; make the bridles meet about 4" or 5" above the center and perhaps 12" from the face of the kite as at E. When the kite balances laterally tie the bridle with a knot that will not slip.

If the kite dives, a tail will be necessary; make this of strips of cloth tied to the bottom of the kite; perhaps knot E may need to be raised or lowered.

THE LOCATION

One day Teacher was explaining geography. She asked where Nicaragua was. Little Bobbie was collecting postage-stamps, so he thought he knew. Up went his hand, and to the question, "Where is Nicaragua?" he promptly replied: "It's on page 78, and it produces more sets of stamps than any other country of its size in the world."

Maple Syrup

UM-M!" Bobby smacked his lips as he poured more maple syrup on his pancakes. "But this syrup is good, mother!"

Bobby's mother smiled at him from across the breakfast table.

"Do you know that maple syrup once lived in a tree?" she asked him.

"Oh, mother do tell me about it!" Bobby pleaded, for it sounded very interesting—something like a fairy tale.

"Well, that maple syrup was once the life-blood of a maple tree, running very, very slowly through the tree from roots to the topmost branches."

"And leaves?" Bobby asked.

"No, Bobby, when the sap—that is what the blood of the tree is called—was taken from the tree, it was early springtime, and the little leaves had not budded, but lay sound asleep inside the tree.

"All winter long the sap of the maple tree sleeps, too, but very early in the spring, when Mother Earth is beginning to plan her summer dresses and hats—the grass and flowers and trees—the first thing she does is to start the sap in the trees so that it may waken the leaves and flowers and the fruit, and tell them to be ready to go out into the sunshine.

The maple sap is not thick and golden like the syrup you are eating. It has lots of water in it, and the water has to be evaporated before it tastes real sweet."

"How do they get the water out?" Bobby asked.

"As I said, early in the spring, when the days are beginning to get warm, and the nights are still cold, the sap begins to stir. The men come and cut a hole in the side of the maple tree and put a little wooden spout into it. Then they hang a covered bucket on the spout and go away. The sap drips and drips very slowly into the bucket. After awhile the men come back and take the bucket of sap and put the sap into a big kettle with other buckets of sap, and a fire is built under it. Long ago, they used to build the fire out-of-doors, and all the children would help gather the wood, and dance around the fire and taste the syrup as it boiled. But now-a-days there are buildings in which everything is done. Some men have big groves of maple trees and make maple syrup and maple sugar for a business. In the old days, every farmer who had maple trees on his farm made the syrup for his own use, as it was hard to get white sugar."

"After the sap is boiled, it is strained to get out the impurities. After the sap is strained, they put milk or the whites of eggs into it to make it nice and clear, as you see it. Then it is put into buckets or bottles and sent away to the cities, to be sold to the people who like it on their pancakes."

They Cut A Hole In The Side Of The Tree And Put Little Wooden Spouts In

"Yes, mother, but where does maple sugar come from? Maple trees, too?"

"Yes, Bobby. The maple syrup is boiled and boiled very slowly, and more water evaporates out of it, then it is stirred, as you stir fudge, round and round to make it grainy. Then it is poured into pans or molds to cool."

"Does it kill the maple tree when its blood is taken out, mother?"

"Oh, no, Bobby, they don't take enough sap out to kill it—just what it can spare every spring."

"I'm glad," Bobby said soberly, "I'd hate to think that a pretty maple tree would have to die, just so I could eat maple syrup on my pancakes. Please give me some more, mother dear."

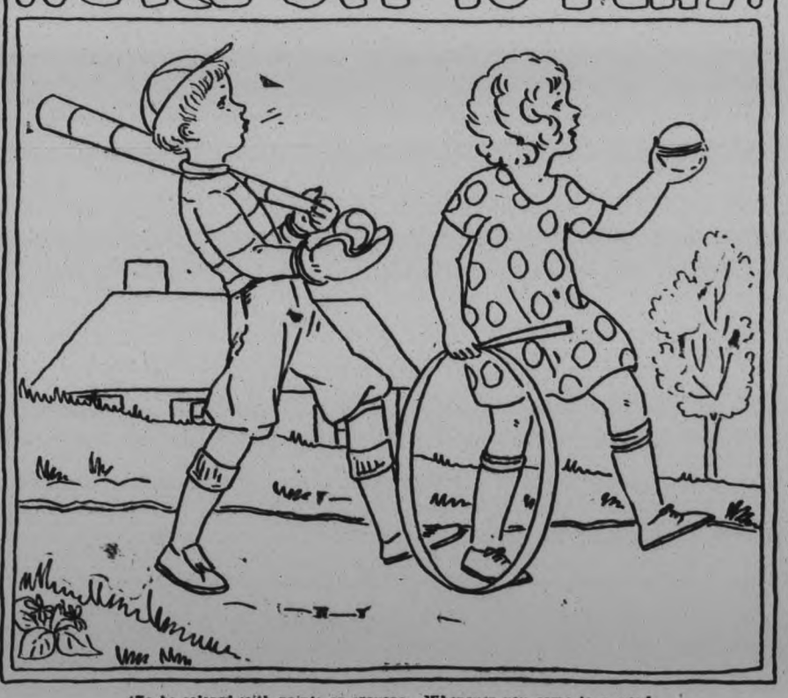
WE'RE OFF TO PLAY!



(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color)

BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are off to play!

"We're off to play with our balls!" says Susie May. She has a GREEN and RED ball in one hand and a YELLOW hoop and RED stick in the other.

"I am going to practice!" cries Teddy. "See, my new YELLOW bat! It has RED and BLACK stripes painted on it. My mitt is old and so is my ball!" The mitt has a YELLOW palm and BROWN back and his ball is dark GRAY (use BLACK lightly).

You have an awfully nice RED and YELLOW cap on, Teddy. Are they your school colors?" asks Susie May.

"Yes, they are. How do you like my RED and BLACK sweater? Mother knitted it for me!" says Teddy.

"Oh, it's fine!" cries Susie May. "Did she knit your RED and BLACK socks, too?"

The sky is light BLUE and the house has a BROWN roof and a RED chimney. The side of the house is YELLOW and its shutters are GREEN. The grass is lighter GREEN and the road is BROWN. There is a patch of GREEN in the foreground with a PURPLE violet growing in it. There is a tree in bloom also. The blossoms are PINK (use RED lightly). It has a GRAY trunk.

Both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips. Teddy whistles a happy tune as they march along.

Kept In

WITHOUT the sun is shining bright,
The air is soft and bland,
The blooming fields and woods invite
To loiter through the land.

Beside the stream the children play,
The birds in chorus sing,
The new-leaved trees their branches sway
Like fingers beckoning.

But he, he bends above his book,
With heavy head and heart;
He hears the shouting by the brook
And longs to bear a part.

He may not join the merry throng
And boyish triumphs win;
For him the day is dark and long,
For he has been kept in.

BIG MEN AND LITTLE BOYS

A great big man can earn a lot
Most anything at all;
But goodness gracious I cannot,
Because I am so small!
But I can earn my mother's kiss,
And nothing's half as sweet as this!

A great big man can make a house
Upon the highest hill;
But I can be a little mouse,
When mother says, "Be still!"
And I can make my mother smile,
Now don't you think it's well worth while?

Oh, great big men are very strong,
And good and always wise,
But little boys can sing a song
With twinkles in their eyes,
And men can't shrink to boys again
But boys can always grow to men!

APPLE PUDDING

Butter a shallow baking dish and fill to the depth of one inch with sliced apples.

Leave the skins on the apples and you will greatly improve both the color and taste of your pudding.

Sprinkle over the apples one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cupful of sugar, ½ cupful of very fine bread crumbs and ½ cupful of raisins.

Add another inch of sliced apples, covering them with ½ cup sugar; ½ cup raisins, ¼ teaspoon of cinnamon and a half cup of bread crumbs as before.

Pour over the whole 3 tablespoons of melted butter.

Bake for 35 minutes in a moderate oven and serve hot with hard sauce.

N. B.—One-quarter of this amount of pudding may be baked in a small individual dish and used cold for a school luncheon.

INDIAN PROTESTS CONVICTION OF HUNTING ON CROWN LANDS

Contends Magistrate Erred and That Indians Have Treaty Rights.

HAD NO LICENSE.

CALGARY, May 7.—(Special to The Examiner).—Whether the Indians of the Provinces which were carved out of the North-West Territories in 1905 will continue to enjoy the unrestricted hunting privileges they had under the federal government, now that natural resources have passed into provincial hands, is a question of law. It is to be decided by the Appeal Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta.

It was threshed out recently in the Calgary police court when Magistrate G. E. Sanders fined William Wesley, a Stoney Indian, $10 and costs, or $50.40, or six weeks in jail for shooting a deer on unoccupied Crown lands last December with horns less than four inches in length.

Two other charges were dismissed in which it was alleged that Wesley hunted with dogs and without a license. Wesley is now appealing against his conviction and the Crown as represented by the Attorney-General of Alberta against dismissal of the two charges.

The conviction is questioned on the ground that the magistrate erred in holding that the provincial Game Act "insofar as it applies to treaty Indians hunting, trapping or fishing on unoccupied Crown land to which they have the right of access" is intra vires. Other contentions of the accused are:

"That having regard to the provisions of the British North America Act, the Blackfoot Treaty No. 7, the inducements held out to the Indians to sign such a treaty, the provisions of the Indian Act....and the agreement dated November 14, 1929, whereby the government transferred the natural resources of the Province of Alberta, the magistrate erred in holding that the accused, who is a treaty Indian, was prohibited from hunting, trapping or fishing game of every description for food on unoccupied Crown land or any other land to which Indians may have right of access.

"That the magistrate erred in holding that under section 12 of the said agreement, dated December 14, 1929, the accused had not an unrestricted right of hunting, trapping or fishing game or fish for food in all seasons of the year in all unoccupied Crown lands.

"That the magistrate erred in holding that the provisions of the Game Act of Alberta applied to Indians while hunting, trapping or fishing for food on all unoccupied Crown land.

"That the magistrate erred in holding that the Province....could pass laws prohibiting Indians from hunting, trapping or fishing on unoccupied Crown land or any other lands to which the Indians may have the right of access, but on the contrary should have held that the provisions of the Game Act of Alberta, insofar as they purport to apply, are ultra vires."

In the stated case relative to dismissal of the charge alleging that Wesley hunted big game with dogs, the following allegations are found:

"That the magistrate erred in holding that the accused could not be convicted under....the Game Act, when there was undisputed evidence that the accused was owner of dogs which were allowed to run at large in a locality where big game is usually found."

The Crown alleges that the magistrate erred in holding that an Indian does not require a license to hunt big game for food; that the natural resources agreement permits an Indian to hunt game for food on unoccupied Crown lands and without a license and that he erred in failing to hold the Game Act applied to Indians and requires them to obtain a license to hunt big game.

Tweed Council

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, May 7. — The village council held the regular monthly meeting recently in the council chambers.

Dr. Doyle interviewed the council regarding compensation to Shannon La Fontaine who had developed blood poisoning from a blister while working on the waterworks. The clerk was instructed to write to the Compensation Board, who have as yet refused to pay any compensation.

The clerk was also instructed to write the Fire Underwriters Association asking for an inspection of the waterworks construction. W. H. Hicks asked for the privilege of procuring water to be drawn by himself and the matter was left to Superintendent Richardson. Wallace Moon, who recently handed in his resignation as constable caused considerable discussion and the matter was left in the hands of Councillor Kingston.

A by-law was passed authorizing the reeve and treasurer to borrow the sum of $1,000.00 from the Bank of Montreal at 6 per cent interest to be used for paying Water Works accounts, instead of issuing debentures. This was passed through its several readings and finally was signed, sealed and numbered 374.

National Change Week
May 9-16

When checking spark plugs, the old time mechanic used to set the gaps the thickness of "a thin dime," which, of course, varied greatly. We use modern precision methods in all our work. We test your spark plugs in the Champion Tester where you can see for yourself why and when you need new spark plugs.

This week, Champion National Change Week, we urge you to take advantage of this free spark plug testing service. Remember, a new set of Champions every 10,000 miles restores new car power, speed, acceleration and economy.

MINISTER OF HIGHWAYS VISITS COUNCIL AT SPECIAL SESSION

was viewed by the entire Council in the afternoon.

Three Propositions

Chief Engineer Smith put three propositions before the Council, for the re-construction of the bridge on the former principle; for the construction of an overhead bridge, or for the construction of a subway.

As an engineer he stated emphatically that he was in favor of the construction of a subway which would eliminate a very dangerous level crossing. He estimated that the entire cost of such a project would be from $65,000 to $70,000 and providing a greater portion of the cost could be met by the Grade Crossing Fund, the County's share in the program would cost approximately $8,000 to $12,000.

Warden W. H. Montgomery was in the chair for the special session of the Council and was tendered a resolution of condolence in the death of his brother.

Speaking to the proposition as outlined by the Government representatives, Reeve E. N. McDonald drew the attention of the Minister to the situation that exists among the farmers of the county.

"Mortgages on farm property are bad and interest is high" he stated, in urging the need for keeping the taxes as low as possible. "I am not blaming the Government for this condition" he said. "It is here and we must face it. My advice is to go mighty carefully."

In Favor of Scheme

Reeve C. S. Tanner believed the proposition as presented by Mr. Macauley and his engineers should be encouraged. If there was a fund that would make available an expenditure of $70,000 at a cost to the County of $8,000, he was in favour of the scheme.

In any case he reminded the Council the expenditure of $3,000 would have to be undertaken, and they had heard the engineer state that to build the bridge on the former principle would be a short-sighted piece of business. "There is an opportunity to start something for the benefit of our ratepayers" he contended.

80 Per Cent Local Labor

In answer to a question Mr. Smith stated that a new rule of the Deparment would assure that 80 per cent. of the labor for the undertaking would be secured locally. "You would have 80 per cent of the labor and about 10 per cent. of the cost if the subway was built and a subsidy secured from the grade crossing fund" he stated.

Mr. Peck—Yes. The Federal Government through the Railway Commission would give assistance to get rid of a dangerous railway crossing.

Reeve Rork Ferguson, chairman of the County Roads Commission stated that after hearing the discussion by which the County could get the sum of $70,000 expended for an outlay to the County of $8,000, thought it would be good business and would help to provide employment at a time when it was badly needed.

Reeve John McIntosh of North Monaghan also expressed the opinion that a subway was the most feasable way and at the least cost over the difficulty.

In answer to a query by Reeve Allan B. Mann as to how much machinery would be used on such an undertaking, the Minister stated that on all contracts now the government required that the removal of earth for making approaches and the dumping of earth for fills would be done by hand.

Engineer Smith said that so far as grading on railway tracks was concerned such work would be done by dumping earth from ballast cars. Steel cranes would also be used for the handling of heavy steel girders. He believed that notwithstanding, the contract would employ about one hundred men.

Cement From Lakefield

T. P. Lancaster, addressing the Council, believed it to be a question worthy of most serious consideration, particularly as they had had hopes of securing a substantial sum from the level crossing fund.

"There is not a shadow of doubt" he stated, "that all the cement used on such an undertaking would be secured from Lakefield Cement Works, and" he added, "I might point out that every pound of cement used on the highways of this county came from Lakefield plant also. It is a fact that is not commonly known."

"The level crossing is a bugbear in the eyes of the public and railroad and several fatal accidents have occurred there" he stated in emphasizing the need for a subway or some other arrangement other than the one that formerly existed.

Mr. Lancaster stressed the fact that Mr. Smith had said he was absolutely convinced the subway was the only project worth considering, and that he had given the definite assurance that it would not cost the county more than $8,000.

Highway 7

Touching briefly on Highway 7 question, Mr. Lancaster said that the work was undertaken by the Government as an unemployment relief measure, and only on that section of the highway which runs through barren unorganized territory had the Government borne the full cost. Where the highway ran through organized counties, such counties were called upon to pay the cost of construction on exactly the same basis as Peterborough County.

He maintained that the Government was endeavouring to practice the strictest economy, consistent with the welfare of the Province, but he warned, "every step in economy means unemployment for someone. If the County can see its way clear to afford work I hope they will go ahead with it."

Following a resolution of appreciation to Hon. Mr. Macauley and his colleagues on motion of Reeve Tanner and Reeve Mann, the Minister said, "as head of the Department I am delighted to be here. A time like the present calls for co-operation. Governments, City Councils, and County Councils should work in harness and not pick flaws on political grounds." He was of the opinion that few people realized the great change which was coming over the world in an economic sense, and thought "if we can get together more often there would be less uniformed criticism."

Radical Resolutions

He had received more radical resolutions from Peterborough County than from any other county in the province. One of the resolutions had asked that the Government assume the entire cost of maintenance and construction of highways. "Your newspaper here" he said, "pointed out that such a resolution was doomed to failure. The Department could not do that."

Proceeding the Minister pointed out that last year the Department paid out five million dollars more than they got back from roads alone.

"If you cast up accounts you will see that we paid more than the Counties for roads" he remarked.

County Clerk and Treasurer Edward M. Elliott forecasting the County's budget for the present year, stated that Reeve F. D. Leahy, chairman of the Finance Committee had estimated that the sum of $192,123.00 would be raised from taxes this year, for roads, schools, general purposes, etc., and which would set the tax rate at 19.233 mills or 2/5 of a mill increase over last year.

It is probable that debentures will be issued to pay for all or part of the money that goes to the Province for Provincial Highways, in which case the tax rate could be reduced on mill and set at 18.233.

A special Finance Committee was appointed to consider the issue of road debentures, etc., in readiness for the June sessions of the Council. The Committee consists of the Warden and Reeves Leahy, Tanner, Ferguson, McDonald.

Obituary

MRS. ELEANOR WIDDIS.

MILLBROOK, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The death of Mrs. Eleanor Widdis, aged eighty-nine years and eleven months, which took place on Tuesday, May 3, removed probably the oldest resident of the township, deceased having been born and brought up on the family homestead just west of the village. She was a member of a pioneer family whose parents came from Ireland by sailing vessel, clearing the land and developing a home in Cavan township where members of the household still reside.

Mrs. Widdis, whose maiden name was Eleanor Morton spent her entire life in the home on the same farm as the family residence where she went as a bride, and was predeceased by her husband, Abraham Widdis, by nearly two years.

Mrs. Widdis possessed the warm-hearted hospitality of her Irish ancestors in a marked degree, a sympathetic and helpful disposition being also an outstanding characteristic. In religion she was an Anglican, and the funeral, which took place from the residence of her son, James Widdis, Cavan, on Thursday at 2.30 p.m., was in charge of her minister, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., rector of the parish.

The immediate surviving relatives are one son, James, with whom his mother had lived for some years, and one daughter, Mrs. John Ferren, of Millbrook. Two other children, a son and daughter, predeceased their parents.

The community and surrounding countryside were largely represented at the funeral service, and many beautiful floral tributes, including a spray from Holy Trinity Church (the Marsh), were laid upon the casket. The pall-bearers were: A. J. Henderson, Wilbert Fallis, Wilbert Walsh, Lavergen Fallis, Frank Letts, and Wesley Wood. Interment was beside her husband in St. John's cemetery, Ida.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hickson, and Mrs. Irwin, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Browne of Omemee; Mrs. Parks and Mr. Frank Letts, Toronto; Mrs. Devell and Mr. W. Porter of Janetville; Mr. Wesley and Miss Morton, Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. H. Thorne, of Otonabee; Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Davis of Bethany.

MRS. ELIZABETH BIRNEY.

CENTRETON, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence).— One of the oldest resident of the village passed away on Tuesday in the person of Elizabeth Joyce, in her 84th year. Her husband, James Birney, predeceased her many years ago.

The deceased was born in Alnwick Township. She and her late husband lived in various homes in the village for a number of years. At the time of her death she resided with her son Frank. In her early days Mrs. Birney was a staunch member of the Methodist (now United) Church. She was also a willing and loyal member of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid, and a welcome visitor to homes in the village.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon from the home of her son Frank. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, Grafton, officiated, with Rev. M. F. Hawley assisting. Rev. Mr. McLauchlin chose as his text Matthew 5, chapter 4: Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted.

Left to mourn her loss are three daughters, Mrs. W. Fraser, Centreton, Mrs. C. B. Turk, Vernonville, and Mrs. Charles McKenzie, Lakeport, and two sons, Frank of Centreton and Albert of Oak Heights. One sister, Miss Maggie Joyce, of Port Hope, and one brother James, in the West, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and nieces and nephews, also survive. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Centreton Cemetery, the pall-bearers being: Messrs. James McKenzie, Johnson McKenzie, F. Wolfrain, C. McGregor, and J. Gillespie.

FRANK ELLIS

WOOLER, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday the funeral of the late Frank Ellis was conducted by Rev. Major Belford at the house south of the village. Mr. Ellis had been in the General Hospital, Kingston, taking treatments for the heart and was about to leave when he suddenly collapsed and died.

Besides a sorrowing wife, there are two sons, Clayton at home, and Clinton, teacher, in England; two daughters, Mrs. Robert Walker and Miss Neta, teacher, in Toronto; five sisters and three brothers. The deceased was born in this village on March 25, 1866, and always lived here, being a blacksmith, in the prime of life. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis predeceased him many years ago. He was a faithful member of the Anglican church. Love and sympathy were shown in the beautiful floral tributes. After the services the interment took place in Frankford cemetery.

MRS. NELSON POTTER

FRANKFORD, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of Emma Louise Rose, wife of Nelson Potter, who died after a brief illness in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, was held yesterday.

The funeral left the residence on Belleville street at 2 o'clock for the United Church, where service was held by the Rev. A. S. Doggett; burial taking place in the Frankford cemetery. The bearers were J. B. Ford, George Arnott, W. Ford, Ross Hubble, Fred Palmer, and George Frost.

Mrs. Potter, who was in her 66th year, leaves to mourn her loss her husband; one daughter, Mrs. M. Stickle; a brother, Harry Rose, and a sister, Mrs. John Potter of Gunter, P.O.

Mrs. Potter lived her entire life in Frankford, and her passing has cost a gloom over the community. A devoted member of the United Church and also of the Ladies' Orange Lodge, who will feel her loss greatly.

Officers Elected Campbellford Club

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7.— The tennis season in Campbellford officially opened last evening when the local tennis club held its organization meeting featuring the election of officers for the 1932 season and transaction of business. Officers for the year are: President Roy Loucks; vice president, Rev. R. C. Tait; secretary treasurer, Roy Smith (re-elected); auditors, Miss Lilian Smith and Miss Jessie Weston; Maintenance Committee convenor, Walter Henson; Entertainment Committee convenor, Mrs. Clifford Weston.

The treasurer's report was given by Mr. Smith which showed splendid progress made in 1931 over the previous year. This included: Membership fees $250; total receipts $353; total expenditures $351; balance on hand $8. Included in the expenditures $113 had been paid off the debt and the club house insured until 1934.

A letter was read from R. W. Scott, 1931 president tendering his resignation from club activities. This was received with regret and speaking on the subject Dr. H. B. Longmore stated that the club was indebted to Mr. Scott for the services he had rendered during his term of office. This went on record by the club.

Considerable discussion was held regarding the advisability of decreasing the membership fee, which in the past had been $10. It was held by many present that this fee was too much and that if lowered it would tend to increase the membership. It was therefore decided that full time membership fees should be $5; part time membership (for two months) $3; and for visitors for one or two weeks $1 a week.

Grouping in the district league also came up for consideration and it was felt that this year Campbellford should not be grouped with Kingston or Oshawa, and should insist on this when attending the district convention. The president and secretary were authorized official delegates to this meeting.

May 24 was set as the official opening day for the club when a mixed double tournament will be held on the local courts.

Monthly Meeting Of St. John's Class

The monthly business meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church was held on Thursday evening in the parish hall. Mrs. Pakenham, the president occupied the chair.

It was decided to hold the class closing social on May 30, as the last social event, until the class re-opening in September.

The May tea, which had been previously planned for May 3, is to be held on May 10, when the draw will take place for the handsome quilt donated by Mrs. Hayter.

After all business had been dispensed with, refreshments were served by Miss Ward and her committee.

OSHAWA BAKER SUED FOR $1,000

Dawson's Bakeries Allege Infringement of Trade Name.

SECOND ACTION.

A writ has just been filed in the Supreme Court of Ontario by Emmett Sheehy on behalf of Dawson's Bakeries this city, against George Wright, baker of Oshawa.

Plaintiffs claim the sum of $1,000.00 for damages sustained by reason of the defendant selling merchandise under the name or description of "Hunny Dips" or a name or description so similar as to be a direct infringment on the trade mark registered in Canada for the exclusive use of plaintiffs.

It will be recalled that Dawson's Bakeries recently took action against their registered trade mark, and secured conviction of a Port Hope man under a section of the Criminal Code.

Russians in Paris, whose military organizations enjoy so strange a tolerance. For it is once more a question of one of those madmen without a straitjacket whose menace prowls around the heads of States and surprises even police precautions."

What effect the assassination will have on the results of the second ballot tomorrow, no one will know till the returns come in. Out of the 615 seats in the Chamber, 361 are still to be filled. Yet in his death, Paul Doumer may have done more to still party differences in a time of world crisis than he was able to do even in life.

Endeared to All

Doumer's simple and unassuming ways endeared him to Frenchmen and Frenchwomen in every degree. In the last Cabinet crisis, when Premier Tardieu succeeded Pierre Laval, he sought to secure for France a stable government which would unit the moderate forces.

"A succession has been opened," comments Le Journal, "in the middle of grave external conjunctures and in full tide of internal battle. Already the chiefs have declared a truce. If as one great dramatist said, there is some good in even the worst things, if misfortune brings together in common affliction the men who are tearing each other to pieces—may not Paul Doumer once more have served France in reconciling her children?"

The Cabinet met to-day under Premier Tardieu to discuss the whole situation, as well as to arrange funeral details in conjunction with Doumer's widow.

G. A. KINGSTON IS APPOINTED

Succeeds Late J. N. Stone as Secretary of Seymour Agricultural Society.

SUPERINTENDENTS NAMED

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Succeeding the late J. Nelson Stone as secretary treasurer of the Seymour Agricultural Society, G. A. Kingston was elected to that office last evening at a meeting of the board of directors at which the president, W. J. Abernethy presided. The salary was set at $100 per annum.

Business relative to the year's activities was transacted, featured among which was the selection of superintendents for for the various classes at this year's annual fair. These are: Heavy horses, Garnet Curle; light horses, W. J. Duncan; beef cattle, Frank Lee; Holstein and Jersey, Wm. Wynn; Ayrshires and grades, John Locke; sheep, W. H. Locke; hogs (to be judged before noon), Frank Lee; poultry, W. S. Milne, Robert Innes; grains and seeds, G. VanVolkenburg, J. A. Murray.

Lady directors will be named at a later date.

The question of judges for the fair was freely discussed and it was decided that the secretary should be instructed to write the department regarding these. He was also instructed to write Lockie Wilson of the Fair's Association regarding the percentage of grants to Fall fairs.

Membership tickets to the fair this year will include admission of the member and his vehicle to the grounds and the privilege to exhibit. This motion was put by G. Anderson and J. A. Murray after some discussion on the extra charge for members' cars. The question of prices for general admission gone over and it was decided that this matter should be left to the Finance Committee to consider, a recommendation to be placed before the next board meeting.

Some revision will also take place this year in the prize list, which will be gone over by the superintendents of the departments with the president and secretary.

It was also decided that the price of stabling cattle at the fair grounds would be 25 cents a head this year, this to be inserted into the prize list.

The board went on record as passing a vote of sympathy to the relatives of the late J. N. Stone, this to be forwarded to H. Aylesworth. The treasurer's books will be audited before being handed over to Mr. Kingston.

NEW RAIL TIRE PROVES SUCCESS

Firestone Makes Another Major Contribution to Automobile Industry.

CAR SETS NEW RECORD.

Firestone, pioneer of the balloon tire which played such an important part in automotive development during the past nine years has made another major contribution to transportation in the form of a new pneumatic rail tire which established a record on its first trial. This amazing new tire was developed after months of research by the Firestone Development Laboratories in an effort to perfect tired wheels for safe, comfortable, noiseless travel over rails, which traffic experts believe will have important bearing on rail transportation.

Equipped with wheels flanged like those of a railroad car and with the new rail tire a heavy seven-passenger sedan travelling on rails set a new rail record from Miami to Jacksonville, travelling 406 miles in 378 minutes at a rate of 64.39 miles per hour with all tsops included. Deducting 31 minutes for stops, the actual running time average was 70.2 miles per hour.

Clifford D. Smith, manager of the Firestone Development Laboratories, piloted the car on its record-breaking run and was warmly congratulated by Mr. Firestone for the wonderful achievement.

At the end of the 405-7-mile run, a close check of the tires showed no perceptible wear, and less heating than would have been evident in driving the same car over the highway. The tires behaved perfectly throughout the trip, running without heating at a maximum speed of 87.3 miles an hour. Progress through the remote wilds of the Everglades was made so quietly and at such speed that the car would be in the middle of a flock of buzzards, herons, ducks or cranes before the birds were aware of it. Early spectators, unaware that the record run was to be made, gaped open-mouthed at the spectacle of a seven-passenger automobile tearing along the rails at better than seventy miles an hour.

Despite the high speed the occupants made their notes and entered figures in the log books with perfect ease while gliding along at 75 and 80 miles an hour—with ease impossible in an automobile making 30 miles an hour on the highway or a train travelling at 60. It was almost as fast as airplane travel, but infinitely more quiet and comfortable. Passengers were able to talk in ordinary conversational tones.

New Tire Made By Firestone Big Success

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL, May 7.—The first exports of butter this season from the Port of Montreal to the United Kingdom left this week, some 250 boxes having gone forward.

At present the market is above the export price level for the reason that receipts have not been sufficient to leave a surplus for export, and the quality has not been good enough to make any large shipments. The market is expected to ease off in price to an export level as receipts increase. Receipts have been a trifle higher this week, but hardly enough to provide a surplus. Receipts yesterday were 1,477 boxes. The market yesterday was generally from 17c to 17½c for No. 1 fresh or regraded, off fractionally on the day. The export level is around 15½c.

Cheese Quotations

The cheese market was also a little easier, with 9½c the general quotation of current receipts. Summer make was unchanged at 12c to 12½c per pound. Receipts were 1,244 boxes. Cheese production was reported as increasing more than butter production, it being regarded as more profitable to make cheese than butter at present market levels.

The egg market eased slightly, graded eggs from Ontario or the Prairies, in carlots or less, being 17½c to 18c for extras, 15c for firsts and 13½c for seconds. Receipts were 4,184 cases.

The Potato Market

On the potato market the feature is the absence of No. 1 new potatoes. All the Florida importations have been cleaned up. Some No. 2 grade were on the market, and the price for these advanced from $1.50 to $2 per barrel, selling ex track at $9 per barrel of 150 pounds.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 7—Butter moved at higher prices this week on the local market, the net gain at the close of trading on Friday being ½ cent over last week's close. Early in the week a firmer feeling was evident on the Montreal market and trading on the Toronto market at better levels was stimulated. However, at the end of the week the Montreal market was a little easier, and, though prices locally were steady, there was no assurance that they would hold next week. Receipts from Ontario points were not too heavy during the past few days and the demand was fair. Western shippers were quoting prices above current levels, at 18 cents for creamery solids, delivered Toronto, and buyers were not anxious to take large lots. Ontario butter was quoted yesterday at 17½c for No. 1 solids, and 16½c for No. 2.

Cream Lower

At the week-end new prices on cream were quoted by Toronto buyers. The new range was 1c to 2c lower than previously, on all grades, and indicated endeavor on the part of buyers to get more in line with butter prices. They quoted 16c to 17c for special, 15c to 16c for No. 1, and 12c to 13c for No. 2, f.o.b., country points.

Cheese Down

Prices on new cheese suffered two declines this week on a dull demand. Yesterday local brokers were quoting new makes much below last week's close at 9¾c to 10c for large, 10c to 10¼c for twins, and 10¼c to 10½c for triplets. Prices to retailers were unchanged at 11½c for new large, 11¾c for new twins, 12c for new triplets, and 14c for new stiltons.

Poultry Steady

Poultry prices, with the exception of old ducks, were steady. Buyers removed chicken prices from their lists and confined themselves to spring broilers, fatted hens and duckling.

Eggs Gain

During the greater part of this week receipts of eggs from Ontario country points were about right for the demand and prices climbed accordingly. The close on Friday found prices on graded lots about 1c per dozen better than last Friday, and country shippers also received 1c more. But at the close, buying was not so keen and during the day, Friday, receipts were more plentiful.

Yesterday country shippers were offered 14c for extras, 12c for firsts, and 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were asked to pay 1c more per dozen at 19c to 20c for extras in cartons, 17c to 18c for extras loose, 15c to 16c for firsts loose, and 14c for seconds loose. Brokers were holding prices steady at 16c for extras, 14c for firsts, and 12 to 12½c for seconds, graded and in used cases, with storage packed supplies 1c better at 17c for extras and 15c for firsts.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 7.— Suggestions of possible Franco-Russian Governmental difficulties because of the shooting of President Doumer led to higher grain prices yesterday, helped by upturns of securities.

Contributions to the rise of cereals were late reports that Russia was in the market for 100,000 tons of wheat, together with word that the Soviets had contracted for 40,000 tons of Canadian wheat and 7,000 tons of Australian. There were also reports that Russia was asking for offers on rye in North American markets.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top, 1 to 1⅝ above Thursday's finish; corn ⅜ to 1 advance; oats showing ½ to ¾ gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 7. — Improvement in the export situation and a higher range in wheat prices at Liverpool hoisted wheat prices to a higher level in the grain pit yesterday. Values closed 1c to ⅞c higher for the day.

May wheat closed 1c higher at 61⅝c, July and October each improved ⅞c to close at 63¼c and 65½c, respectively.

Flurry of Buying.

The improved tone in the securities market brought a flurry of buying orders near the close and this also was construed as a bullish factor.

Broomhall credited the firmness at Liverpool to short covering on report of sales of Australian flour to Russia.

Cash interest in all coarse grains was indifferent. Some rye was worked for export, but other trading was routine.

Trade in coarse grains continued a slow pace consisting principally of odd-lot top-grades at spreads unchanged to a fraction better.

Cadet Inspection At Havelock On May 12

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 7. — Havelock School Cadet inspection will be held on the campus Thursday afternoon, May 12, when Captain Isbester of Military District No. 3 headquarters will be in the village for the purpose of inspection.

The school has a smaller corps than usual this year, but it is hoped that parents of the cadets who are able to be present will attend, and lend their support to the Cadet Instructor, Principal G. F. Coates, of the Continuation school. Bill Rose is Cadet Captain and Gordon Vance lieutenant of the corps.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

To The Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—To realize that our city is beautiful, both naturally and through the art and industry of our citizens, one should compare some of the urban centres claimant of the honor. The tourist tells the tale by voice and action.

Down through the years the Horticultural Society has inspired and directed and has been sustained and encouraged by the zeal and enthusiasm of the best of our citizens.

That the "City Beautiful" is no empty honor is attested by the increasing number of tourists coming here. Furthermore, in these crucial years more effort than ever should be given in development of the natural and the beautiful. We know it will show results in the health and spirit of our people.

This week our workers are giving of their time in a final drive for members for the society. The options offered are worth your dollar, and you are helping in a good work. The larger the membership the more the little Government grant amounts to, all spent on this work of beautification. A special effort for beautification is being made throughout the length of the Horticultural Drive. A magnificent cup for this competition is now on display at the Hall Store. View this, join the society, read the rules and enter this competition, before May 15, also other prizes. The Horticultural Drive is mapped on our literature and marked along the route by unique signs.

DISCRIMINATION ALLEGED

To the Editor of The Exminer:

Dear Sir.—With the employment afforded by the construction of No. 7 Highway through this district, a matter of considerable importance, I would like to say a few words regarding the discrimination exercised in the employment of men from the different counties and townships affected by this road.

I live in Belmont Township, along the route of No. 7 Highway and quite near the boundary between the counties of Peterborough and Hastings.

The section of this highway immediately east of the boundary and lying in the township of Marmora, was partially constructed last summer and fall by a contracting company who, although employing a considerable number of men in the course of their work, some of whom came from distant points, positively declined to hire men from Belmont township. This is a fact, proven by bitter experience, as men applying for work were turned away, even when jobs were available, with no explanation even attempted; other than that they were not resident in Marmora township.

Rumors, apparently well founded aver that the western section of this job—that is the section lying in Belmont township—will be undertaken in the near future, the work to be in charge of the patrol foreman who, as it happens, lives in Marmora and whose patrol lies approximately in each township.

In the event that this is correct, local residents in need of work are wondering if the discrimination exercised to our disadvantage last year will be allowed to continue and to extend into our own township. We sincerely hope not, and seeing that this is a Provincial road we cannot understand how such a system can be called fair.

Someone has evidently interested himself in the welfare of Marmora township's workers sufficiently to afford them ample protection, to the exclusion and loss to Belmont men. We are wondering if, and let me say hoping, those in similar positions relative to our own workers will show sufficient interest in our welfare, especially considering the treatment we received in Marmora township, to assure us receiving our reasonable rights.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

I am, yours for fair treatment,

HOPEFUL.

EARNINGS

The gross revenues of the Canadian National Railways for the period ending April 30th, 1932, were $3,612,949, as compared with $4,869,579 for the corresponding period in 1931, a decrease of $1,256,630.

SUCKER CHASE ATTRACTS 1500

MANY SECURE 10 BAGS.

WESTWOOD, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— The annual "sucker hunt" was held on Wednesday at Welbeck farm. Quite the largest crowd that ever attended was present and was estimated to be in the vicinity of 1,500 persons. Some came from curiosity, having never been there before, others for pleasure, the knowledge of which they gained through previous experiences, but the majority came to secure their fish supply. And did they? Some took as many as 10 bags.

The suckers were extra large, some weighing as much as 3 and 3½ pounds, and the supply being large, none needed to go home disappointed.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Melville Scott, with the president, Miss J. Davidson, presiding.

After the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Charles Breckenridge gave a reading on "Judas, the man who might have been."

Several readings on the subject, "The Ministry of Prayer" were given by the following: Mrs. M. Scott on "Prayer as Petition"; Mrs. Don Cameron on "Prayer as Intercession"; Miss Mary Cameron on "Hindrances of Prayer" and Mrs. Ed Sargent on "The Rewards of Prayer."

Following a hymn, the president led in prayer, which closed the meeting.

THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

Lakefield

Eight tables were played at the bridge party held on Thursday afternoon in St. John's Parish Hall under the auspices of the Chancel GGuild. Prizes were won by Mrs. N. W. Kyle, Mrs. Burrows and Mrs. Chaplin. The party was under the direction of Mrs. Connell, the first vice-president of the Guild and Mrs. Creighton, the honorary president.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Regent Street Church, Lakefield, met at the home of Mrs. Theo Crawford for their May meeting. There was a good attendance of members and the president, Mrs. Purdy, was in the chair. The study book was in charge of Mrs. Leslie Harrison and papers on Korea were read by Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Gruetzher. Musical numbers, which were much enjoyed were contributed by Mrs. Burrows and Master Milburn. A social hour was spent at the close of the meeting.

A coaching class will be held in the Lakefield Town Hall on Tuesday morning, May 10, at 10 a.m. All women and girls who are interested are urged to attend. This class is in preparation for the county judging competition held annually under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Coughlin of Toronto was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. Garvey at "Maplegrove Farm" for the week end.

Mrs. Kelsey was in Peterborough on Friday.

Mr. W. H. Stewart is motoring with a party of friends through Western Ontario, visiting Chatham, Windsor and other points.

Mrs. S. S. Spence was in Peterborough this week visiting friends.

Mr. Albert Darling is in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where he underwent a serious operation on Wednesday.

Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie is in Toronto for a few days.

Mr. Fred Garvey of Toronto spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Garvey, "Maplegrove Farm", Smith.

Frozen herring from British Columbia are finding a ready market among the white population of Hong Kong.

MARMORA.

The regular meeting of the Men's Club of St. Paul's church on Wednesday evening took the form of a Ladies' Night.

The program opened with the hymn: "Crown Him with Many Crowns." Two pleasing violin solos were given by T. L. Jones, and the male quartette were much appreciated for their rendering of "Fishing," and "Down on the Farm."

Short speeches were given by Rural Dean M. J. C. Levason of Bonarlaw, Rev. A. B. Caldwell and W. R. Reynolds. W. J. Cottrell gave a humorous reading, "In the Good Old Days."

Dancing was later enjoyed with Messrs. J. F. Baker, T. L. Jones, B. McInroy and J. French, supplying music.

The club has accepted the invitation from the rector and congregation of St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, to attend divine service there next Sunday evening at 7.30. In consequence the evening service at St. Paul's is being withdrawn.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

LIFFORD LINE

"Some things that make life worth while" was the subject of a paper referring particularly to the farm woman, which was read and much appreciated at an Institute meeting.

The following is the paper in part:—

"Some people think that the life of a farmer's wife must be all monotonous drudgery, that she is set down in a narrow groove and the effect on her mind and heart must be depressing and detrimental. In some unhappy cases this may be so, especially where the poor woman is really overworked from morning until night and cannot steal a minute here and a minute there for "thrills."

Happily, we believe, such cases are in the minority, and most of us have sufficient leisure to be able to extract as much joy as possible out of our active, busy, healthy lives.

To the woman on the farm who has been blessed at birth with the gift of imagination, life is a succession of thrills, happier, healthier, and more stimulating than any to be gotten at the movies or in dance halls. Spring seems the time for thrills rather than the fall.

To manage a precious hour for hoeing or weeding is one of the joys of the farm wife. Then in the quiet of the evening could we wish to be anywhere but where God has planted us? Those with seeing eyes find things which make life worth while everywhere.

We should take time or make time to enjoy this great out-of-doors which has been lavished upon us so generously. There is a thrill reminiscent of childhood, in moving along in company with the happy brook, and watching the waters flashing in the sunlight, to hear its continual rippling over the stones and then the deeper murmuring before it leaves the meadow and passes the road.

Should we not be happy women, farm wives?"

To quote "The Farm Wife":—

"She never climbed a mountain,
She never heard the sea,
But always watched a winding road
That wandered aimlessly
Among unshaded meadows—
A farm, a pasture rife
With black-eyed susans, level fields
Comprised her little life.
She never longed to travel
She felt no urge to search
Her longest journey the five miles
On Sundays to the church;
Yet to her quiet dwelling
In singing, sighing, flow,
Came love and parting birth and death
And all that women know."

This article does not mention things religious or sentimental, which go so deeply to form the things which make our lives really worth while. We have mentioned only some of the delightful things of nature.

WARSAW

At times people who do not understand, think and state in public that as the Women's Institute forbids discussion on religious topics, it is not a proper organization. It is really a very religious organization. It is founded on the laws and commands of the Creator, and on the teachings of Jesus. Very few of the staff lecturers but mention this in some way.

It does a work which the churches cannot do. Perhaps if such a time ever comes as one great church on earth, it will be a department of that church universal. Until such time it must carry on its own work. As a rule the best Institute workers are also good church workers, each in her own church.

So far as actual, moral right and wrong, obeying the laws of God are concerned, the Institute stands strong and firm. So far as denominationalism is concerned, doctrine, interpretations, it keeps clear of them and forbids discussion, for each shall seek the common weal, the good of all mankind.

Suppose a newcomer, arrives, sometimes it so happens no one may call upon the lady of the house for some time, or women from different denominations may call, each one hoping the family may come to her particular church, on knowing to what denomination they have belonged others may not call. The Institute woman may call, and when the subject of church comes up, she finds out the connection or preference and quietly endeavors to get one of that denomination to call, or in some way arrange a connection. An Institute woman must be broad enough to realize that others have a right to their views and respect them.

There are many, many cases where an Institute woman as such, can help where one from any denomination as such, could not. Institute women never wish to interfere with any church work, but they do actually aid the church community work, for they work earnestly, and many, assuredly, prayerfully for the coming of Christ's Kingdom. The community work, food, clothing, housing, beautifying, patriotism, school work, as well as the ethical and moral standards, all point to the Christ life, for in her work, the Institute woman does not consider herself first. She must and does look and think from the other woman's viewpoint. She does remember the shield may be silver on one side, and gold on the other, that the view is different according to the angle from which it is seen.

Therefore she can work hand in hand with any one for the general intercourse for the betterment of our homes and our community, and through there our country, and what is right has the highest place, but it must be a right for all. There is a wonderful common ground on which all can meet and do great work. The war opened the eyes of many. It is the same Creator, the same Saviour (to practically all in this country) the same moral law, the same sun, the same earth, the same spirit of life for all of us. We need our own homes, and there have a right to and must express our own individuality, our own churches for a somewhat broader individuality. At the same time there is the great broad, common ground where each one of us is a citizen of the world.

MILLBROOK

A group of Institute women met to discuss a community problem with which the organization was interesting itself, drifted on into talk of "frills" each had found helpful in their business of homemaking, and passed on the information gradually as the conversation progressed, a number finally taking out note-books and jotting down some of the facts presented.

One told of a "luncheon frill," since she and her husband had returned from a trip abroad within the past few month, her hint being "When we dined or lunched in Italy there was always a dish of grated cheese on the table. Since there could be no duty charged on the idea (we had to count pennies to make our trip), I brought it home with me. So now when we have soup I place an attractive bowl, heaped with freshly-grated cheese on the table, and each member of the family, or our guests, may help themselves at their individual discretion. Sometimes I serve it so with creamed macaroni, or with macaroni and tomato sauce and sometimes I just cook enough macaroni for my family, place a helping on a slice of buttered toast laid on each plate, cover with enough cream sauce, a poached egg topping all, and let each take a helping of the grated cheese. This is a favorite with my household.

It also makes a delightful finish to a plain lettuce salad with dressing, of course, and helps greatly if a guest drops in unexpectedly, giving just that needed touch to an ordinary dish. I find it important to do, as we saw it done abroad, and that is use a pretty bowl and have the cheese soft and flaky."

Rhubarb with custard was a recipe which one of the party told of having experimented with and discovered last season, and as this fruit is so soon to be in season, the ingredients were received with joy. One pound of rhubarb, one-half pound bread crumbs, two eggs and one pint of milk, nutmeg, sugar and butter to taste. Cut rhubarb into small pieces, and stew until tender; strain and mix with the crumbs, sweeten with one cup sugar, (more if you desire, but my family l' things on the tart side), season with the grated 'meg. Add the eggs beaten separately, mix all together with the milk, pour into a buttered dish, and bake in a moderate oven until top is slightly browned.

As an aftermath of the above one of the 'gossiping' ladies said she never had trouble with the bottom crust of her custard pies being soggy, providing she heated the milk to the boiling point before adding the eggs, "Stir rapidly while pouring into the beaten eggs, and put into the crust while hot."

Lemonade had been made the previous evening in one of the homes unexpected young folks dropping in for a social hour, and lemons had been a bit 'shy' when the big jug was brought out and the drink made ready. A hint for such an emergency was passed on, the giver declaring she knew it worked—dissolve the sugar in a little hot water, and allow to cool before adding to the lemonade. It will sweeten the mixture more quickly, lessen the number of lemons required, and lessen the sugar too, and it will not sink to the bottom of the pitcher, as it does when put in the liquid undissolved and cold.

Another mentioned, while the matter of lemons was 'in the atmosphere', that she and her household liked a lemon pie made with one potato grated to replace the cornstarch of the ordinary recipe. "It is really delicious, as the potato has the flavor of cocoanut, and the custard is thickened just enough."

Celebrities May Wed In Berlin

GARBO MAY WED WEALTHY SWEDISH WRITER

Greta Garbo (LEFT), famed film star, and Wilhelm Sorensen (RIGHT) Swedish author and heir to a wealthy financier, are reported engaged, the wedding to take place in Berlin shortly. Sorenson went to the German capital recently, accompanied by Prince Sigvard, second son of the crown prince of Sweden. He states he is not responsible for stories of his engagement, but welcomes the publicity they give for the book he has written on Hollywood.

Best oil cheapest in home, says factory sup't.

"The last thing we'd try to economize on," says the superintendent of a large eastern factory, "is lubricating oil. By using cheap oil we could 'save' hundreds of dollars each year—but it would cost us thousands of dollars for repairs, replacements and lessened efficiency of equipment."

The same is true in the home. If all housewives knew what factory men know about lubrication, few of them would use anything but 3-in-One Oil for their expensive sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric fans, lawn mowers, washers, and other household devices. 3-in-One a blend of mineral, vegetable and animal oils, is the best oil for household use, for it cleans and protects as well as lubricates.

Ask for the old reliable 3-in-One Oil at good drug, grocery, hardware, department and general stores For your protection look for the trade mark "3-In-One" printed in Red on every package.

The Master-Snap Photo Contest which extends from May 1 to October 22 with a weekly distribution of prizes has already created considerable interest among local amateur photographers. It is conducted through the Sylvr-tone drug stores, and each week three snapshots will be selected for the competition. The immediate prizes will ben an enlargement of each of the three best pictures for every week during the contest period. These prize snaps will also be submitted to the Master Photo Finishers of the United States and Canada for entry in the international competition which is being conducted by this Association for the total cash prizes amounting to $3,000.

Any good snapshot may win a major prize, and it is this possibility that adds so much interest in the competition. For twenty-five weeks the Master Photo Finishers of America will award eight weekly cash prizes, the first of which is $100; and the first grand prize is $500 with twenty others ranging down to five dolars. Arrangements will be made to publish local winners if they are suitable for newspaper reproduction.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. — An inquest into the death of Ernest Logan, transient, aged 42, who was killed when he fell from a flat car beneath the wheels of a freight train yesterday resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

Papers found in his clothing showed he was a war veteran and had served in France with the 32nd Battalion C.E.F. He told a companion he was traveling east to his home in the Maritimes.

MAYFAIR HAS RUN ON CHINTZ DRESSES

Belt of Gaily-Colored Chiffon Graces Newest Linen Frocks.

(By Betty Twist)

LONDON, May 4 (Special to The Examiner)—The sale of furnishing fabrics are going up, and the explanation is not all spring cleaning. Kitchen curtains have given a new inspiration to dress designers and some of the most exclusive salons are featuring dresses both for day and evening wear in patterned chintzes and linens, and in sprigged cottons. It is a mode, one feels, that is destined to die young, for the lady who can afford an expensive dress establishment will not be content for long with a novelty within the reach of the most limited income. An instance of the use of the new materials is seen in a model by a leading house. It is a natty walking suit in the plain blue and white drill which has been for a long time relegated to the overall department. The skirt is a wrap-over one and the jacket, cut to a point at the back, is braided down the front and completed with epellette sleeves. A theatre dress which created something of a sensation is in white pique, a fabric which can be obtained at a price of something like 50 cents a yard.

Mayfair has scarcely finished talking about the new development, and yet at a display of inexpensive frocks this week suggestions were made for incorporating the latest fabrics in the wardrobe of the ordinary housewife. An illustration was given of a dinner gown in brown glazed curtain chintz. The bib front, which has been carried out so effectively in more elaborate gowns of satin or heavy silk, was a feature of this dress. It was in white chintz with a shiny surface that could be sponged when soiled. But the most intriguing model and definitely the most economical had for its component parts a length of green baize such as is used for gardeners' aprons and a floor-cloth in yellow and green stripes.

The essential rightness of white linen for tennis frocks puts it outside fashion. But every year sees the introduction of some gadget which brings them up to date. This spring it is a belt of gaily colored chiffon which can be taken off and worn as a scarf.

Fish-net, both in cotton and wool, is another comeback. It is being utilized extensively in the yokes and sleeves of afternoon frock for the summer. A beaded variety with the same diaphanous quality is excellent for evening.

Enjoyable Program At Norham Meeting

NORHAM, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The young people's organized class of the Norham Sunday school was held in the church hall on Wednesday evening with an attendance of twenty-four.

Will Hatcher led the devotional period. The subject was, "What does it mean to be a Christian at home?" After a number of Scripture references dealing with the subject Walter Abnett and Gordon Mitchell gave two interesting papers. This was followed by an open discussion led by Mr. Hatcher.

Lucille Palmateer had charge of the program. Readings were given by Viola McAllister and Mabel Gillespie.

During the business period three new group leaders, viz., Messrs. Abnett, Hayden, Newman and Clarence Millar were appointed.

It was decided to hold meetings during the summer months. Lunch was served.

Dying from pneumonia within two days Mr. and Mrs. William Dingwall, of Paisley, Scotland, have been buried in the same grave.

Sixty tons of flowers are being shipped daily from Spalding, England, and soon 200 tons will be sent each day to all parts of the country.

Weddings

GRILLS-CARNEY.

TWEED, May 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The marriage took place at St. Paul's rectory, Roslin, of Bernice Mildred, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Carney, Roslin, to Charles J. Grills, of Hungerford, the Rev. E. N. Grant officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, was attired in a peach georgette gown, with lace yoke over silk. The bridesmaid was Miss Leona Grills, of Thomasburg. Mr. Clare Carney, brother of the bride, was groomsman. After the ceremony, the happy couple left for a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Cleveland, returning via Peterborough.

MAYERS-DOUGLAS.

The United Church at Sulphide was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Essie Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas, of Sulphide, was united in holy matrimony with Mr. Frank Edward Mayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mayers, also of Sulphide. The Rev. A. D. Waite of Tamworth officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Roy Salisbury, looked charming in her gown of blue lace and net, designed along princess lines, and matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern. Miss Verna Douglas, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was charming in her gown of beige lace and net. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern. Mr. L. A. Douglas attended the groom. Mrs. Cordy played the wedding march.

The church was tastefully decorated with white wedding bells and white streamers. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in the evening when thirty-five immediate relatives and friends partook of a sumptuous dinner.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a green and gold pendant; to the bridesmaid, white gold ear-rings; to the organist, a purse, and to the groomsman an electric cigarette lighter and ash receiver.

The happy couple left for eastern points on a short honeymoon.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

Handy Recipes

By Edith Barber

(Copyright, 1932)

Grilled Sardines

1 can sardines.
½ teaspoon paprika.
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar.
3 tablespoons sardine oil.
Strips of buttered toast.
Slices of lemon.
Minced parsley.
2 hard-cooked eggs.

Remove the sardines from the can carefully. Skin and marinate in a seasoning of salt, paprika and Worcestershire sauce and vinegar for half an hour. Heat the oil in a frying pan and cook the sardines one minute on each side. Lay on toast and garnish with slices of lemon.

Sardine and Horseradish Canape

Bread.
1 part butter.
1 part sardine paste.
Horseradish.
Stuffed olives.

Mix the butter with the sardine paste and horseradish. Spread on loaf before cutting into slices one-fourth inch thick. Cut into finger lengths, trimming the crusts; slice the olives across and place in row down center, overlapping each other.

Eggs O'Donohu

6 eggs.
3 English muffins.
12 small sardines.
Hollandaise sauce.

Split the muffins and toast. Arrange on each half two sardines. On these drop eggs poached in muffin rings to keep them round. Have ready the usual recipe of Hollandaise.

Sardine Custard

3 cups milk.
Salt.
Pepper.
Paprika.
1 can sardines.

Beat the eggs slightly, add the milk and seasoning, mixed together. Arrange sardines in a shallow baking dish and pour the liquid over them. Place in a pan of water and bake for one hour in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until set. Serve as luncheon dish or entree.

Pastry for Chicken Pie

2 cups flour
2-3 cup fat.
Ice water.
½ teaspoon salt.

Sift flour and salt, cut in fat. Add gradually enough ice water to hold mixture together for rolling. Chill and roll.

Angel Food Cake

1 cup sifted pastry flour.
1 cup egg whites, 8 to 10 eggs.
¼ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon cream of tartar.
1¼ cups sifted fine granulated sugar.
¾ teaspoon vanilla.
¼ teaspoon almond extract.

Sift flour once, measure, and sift four more times. Beat egg whites and salt on a large platter with a flat wire whip. When foamy, add cream of tartar. Continue beating eggs until they are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Fold in sugar, two tablespoons at a time. Fold in the flour the same way; then add flavoring.

Pour batter into ungreased angel food pan and bake at least one hour in a very slow oven. Begin at 275 degrees Fahrenheit, and after thirty minutes increase heat slightly (325 degrees Fahrenheit). Remove from oven and invert pan for one hour, or until cold.

The closing dance and bridge party of the Artillery Badminton Club was a bright event of last night in the Officers' Quarters at the Armories. About one hundred guests were in attendance for a very enjoyable evening of cards and dancing, to fine music played by Mose Yokom and his four-piece orchestra. A midnight buffet supper was served from a table done very attractively with a lace cloth, a central mirror reflector holding a silver basket filled with spring flowers, and silver specimen vases of sweet peas. Coffee was poured by Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mrs. J. A. Dewart ,Mrs. R. J. Bolton and Mrs. J. E. R. Munro. Decorations of the rooms for dancing were in the Badminton Club colors of green and white, where Badminton raquettes were placed on the walls, tied with green and white, the windows were draped with Badminton nets and the light shades were simulated Badminton 'birds.' Several tables of bridge were played, prizes being won by Mrs. Gordon W. Hall and Mr. F. C. Webber. The prizes for the spot dance went to Miss Helen Archambault and Mr. Emmett Sheehy. The general convenor of arrangements was Mrs. C. G. Graham, with assisting convenors: Miss Margaret Borbridge for decorations, Mrs. Max Rishor and Mr. C. G. Graham for refreshments, Mrs. F. Hooper and Mrs. Noel Rishor for cards and Major H. K. Clifton for tickets. The guests, who were received by Colonel and Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. G. In Thursday's Examiner, a press item from Ottawa appeared under a cut entitled "To Be Hung in Paris." It referred to the work of Henri Fabien, an Ottawa artist employed as a translator in the Department of Indian Affairs, and mentioned that Mr. Fabien has achieved the unusual distinction of being the only Canadian to ever have pictures hung two years in succession at the Paris Salon, goal of many celebrated artists. Peterborough, however, can lay claim to a like distinction, unique in Canada. Displeased By Discovery Of Adoption Plans

VIEWS BEHIND SCENES IN HOLLYWOOD.

"Separation" an event which in the lives of other married couples of the screen means news and possibly scandal, came again on May 4 to Claudette Colbert, film star, and Norman Foster. Miss Colbert moved from Foster's home into a home of her own in Hollywood, and life goes on placidly for both of them. They have been taking separate homes, off and on, since they were married five years ago. They declare the arrangement means happiness for both of them. Photo shows Norman Foster and his wife, Claudette Colbert. Displeased by discovery of her plan, Miriam Hopkins (2) motion picture actress, adopted a baby boy in Chicago, and fairly ran out of court. The blonde acress told the court she was divorced from her playwright husband, Austin Parker. She received permission from Judge Jareecki, to adopt a child from the Evanston, Ill., Cradle Society.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Dining room decoration is interesting in its union of glass, silver, porcelains, pewter, picture and textiles with furniture, in all of which things there are certain restrictions.

• • • • • • •

Everything, in one way or another, should be assorted with this particular room and its definite use.

• • • • • • •

The dining room which is a separate room by courtesy of thought alone, and which must be equally sitting room or living room, looses its individuality.

• • • • • • •

It is unlike the room which is kept for its prescribed object. It is this latter dining room only which can be treated to the decoration which is its own by rights. All the others cannot fail to be tinged in treatment with the secondary type of decoration.

• • • • • • •

In the true dining room, the furniture should all be elements of utility. The dining table and various types of serving tables, sideboards and buffets, lowboys and highboys provided they are used as buffets or linen chests, tea wagons, china closets and chairs so purposely suited to their especial use that they go by the name of dining room chairs—all these are some of the furniture peculiar to the furnishings of this especial place.

• • • • • • •

Extra pieces of furniture should be eliminated but before doing this they should be carefully considered in their relation to the uses of the room.

• • • • • • •

Fashions fluctuate concerning what shall be featured at any one time in such accessories as china and other ceramics, silver or glass, etc. Just now, glass is at a high mark of favor.

• • • • • • •

China like silver is little used for decorative purposes. It will come into its own again. Even in china and ceramics the dining room types alone should be featured.

• • • • • • •

Pewter is distinctly dining room ware. It was seldom out of style, as antiques were in demand and little else was available. To-day, however, exquisite pieces are being manufactured and this metal is in a heyday of popularity.

• • • • • • •

Of course, this means that at sometime in the future it will have the fate of silver to-day and be out of favor as decorative elements. It may be a number of years or it may be a few, before such a turn of the tide occurs.

• • • • • • •

Just now, feature whatever pewterware you have, especially if it is antique.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SHOES TOO SHORT.

One of the first things noticed when examining recruits for the army was the large number found with 'bad feet.' Almost every kind of trouble was found; the little toe lying on top of the adjoining toe; the large toe turned outward making the large joint stand out almost an inch sometimes; the little toe turned inward; hammer toes —where the bones forming the toes have grown together, no movement at the joint; severe pain in ball of foot near outer margin.

As you know, such soldiers are of no use to a unit that must be marching a good part of the day, and so the majority of these men were rejected for service.

What was the cause of all this foot trouble?

In nearly every case it was due to wearing shoes that were too small. Many shoes were of the wrong shape of course, but wearing shoes that were too small or too short can cause all of the above conditions.

Now just as the soldiers' feet must be comfortable, must be free from any aches or pains, so must all of us have our feet free from trouble, with the arches able to support us and give that natural spring which makes walking a pleasure instead of a pain. And as you well know most of us earn our daily bread as much by our feet as by our head, although we may do no hard physical work.

How can you know that you have a shoe the right shape for your foot?

First, stand up in the shoe and see if there is room for your foot to spread when you have your full weight on it. This part of the foot was meant to have the same freedom as the hand.

Second, see that the inner border of the shoe is in a straight line right up to the end of the big toe.

Third, see that the shoe fits snugly but not too tightly about the ankle. There is practically no movement in the bones or joints of the ankle as they are meant to support the weight of the body.

Fourth, make sure that the lining of the upper part of the shoe, the inner covering of the sole, and the tongue, are smooth and free from wrinkles.

Some stores now use a fluoroscopic arrangement whereby it is possible to see exactly how the foot fits into the shoe. The first thing that was learned from this method was that about 90 per cent. of the people wear shoes that are too small or too short.

Surely—why not discover the "Clean-up" man,
Just think of the wonderful chance.

There are ads that will fill every want that is known,
Why don't you answer a few?
You'll get cheap motor boats—good strawberry plants,
And a fine parlor suite—good as new.

In Millbrook—to church the Oddfellows go,
At Zion, they stage a great play,
Trent River is getting a new tennis court,
Millbrook—hundreds at A.Y.P.A.

Who is filling the chair in the Rotary Club
In Campbellford? — Eli Brunelle,
A successful year is sure to be had,
No one else could preside quite so well.

At East Emily we notice a meal of pot-luck,
At Madoc a game of softball,
A decrease has been made in price for use,
Of Campbellford old town hall.

At Havelock a change has been made in Knox Church,
Rev. Beeton we note is inducted,
We're sure that the members must have a desire
On religion to be instructed.

The Madrigal Choir is giving relief,
To the people so sadly in need,
Proceeds of the concert will be a great help,
Unselfishness — sure — is their creed.

At Lakefield we notice the honor is given
To one — Gordon Porter, B.A.
A prize in Hebrew — a scholarship rare,
We are all proud of Gordon — I'll say.

Trouble brews at Ashurnham, over a pit,
It's too bad the appearance to mar,
But demand for employment, causes unrest,
This may cause in the Council — a jar.

A girl is born to the Pomeroy home,
Many beautiful gifts she'll receive,
For selecting the first of the month to be born,
It is almost too good to believe.

He sure has a wonderful brain,
He can teach when to pass, how to bid and finesse
In a way that will oft win the game.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

CONSERVATIVES AND RADICALS

The world owes much to the conservative, the person who believes in maintaining old things because they have proved their worth and also because of a fear of the new and untried. However, even the staunchest tory must admit that great changes have come in the world through the activities of the radicals, those who refuse to accept anything on authority, but whose minds reach out into the unknown seeking something to add to the sum of human knowledge.

Many of the principles of play in Contract are a bequest from the game of Whist. The heritage left us by the grandfather of Contract is a goodly one, but it does not mean that we should do nothing to increase it. Thus, one of the traditions handed down from the days of Whist is the deeply rooted objection to short suit leads and so strong was this objection in the days of Whist that the lead of a Singleton was described as a "sneak" lead. Even today when you enter a card club you will hear a person proudly announce to a new partner, "I never lead a Doubleton or a Singleton," somewhat in the nature of a person calling attention to the fact that they gave alms of all they possessed and fulfilled every duty to church and state. I am afraid I cannot qualify in this class. I do like to try new things, and I do lead Singletons and Doubletons. Yes—and the worst might as well be known at once—I even lead them when the final declaration is notrump. Such leads against a notrump declaration have a dual purpose. The first is to gracefully surrender an undesirable right; that is, the right to play first. The second purpose of the lead is to notify partner he is put upon his own resources in determining the defense and to warn him against the attempt to establish the suit opened by partner. Hands containing tenace situations—that is, honor combinations not in sequence—usually present a difficult problem in the choice of the lead. Quite frequently the solution is the selection of another suit, as can be seen by a study of the hand below.

Both sides vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3◇	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. An Overcall by West would be extremely dangerous in view of the fact that he is vulnerable and must undertake the contract to take 8 tricks.

West had no desirable lead. The spade had been bid by the Declarer and the heart suit was of a nature that made its lead undesirable. This limited his choice to the club or diamond suit, and the selection of the clubs was dictated by the fact that it had not been bid, as well as the further fact that its shortness in his hand might be complemented by length and some slight strength in his partner's hand. The lead proved the undoing of the contract. Either a spade or a heart Opening would have made the Declarer's task a simple one. The spade insures him 3 spade tricks, 1 heart, 3 diamonds and 2 clubs.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: When do you take out with three notrump?

Answer: Holding 3 honor-tricks, lacking adequate support and having no biddable suit, take out with three notrump.

Mother's Day

WHO fed me from her gentle breast,
And hushed me in her arms to rest,
And on my cheek sweet kisses prest?
My Mother.

When sleep forsook my open eye,
Who was it sung sweet lullaby
And rocked me that I should not cry?
My Mother.

Who sat and watched my infant head
When sleeping in my cradle bed,
And tears of sweet affection shed?
My Mother.

When pain and sickness made me cry
Who gazed upon my heavy eye,
And wept for fear that I should die?
My Mother.

Who ran to help me when I fell,
And would some pretty story tell,
Or kiss the part to make it well?
My Mother.

Who taught my infant lips to pray,
To love God's holy word and day,
And walk in wisdom's pleasant way?
My Mother.

And can I ever cease to be
Affectionate and kind to thee,
Who wast so very kind to me?
My Mother.

Oh, no! the thought I cannot bear;
And if God please my life to spare
I hope I shall reward thy care,
My Mother.

When thou art feeble, old and grey,
My healthy arm shall be thy stay,
And I will soothe thy pains away,
My Mother.

And when I see thee hang thy head
'Twill be my turn to watch thy bed,
And tears of sweet affection shed,
My Mother.

Heine Meine's failure to sign a Pittsburgh contract and his subsequent suspension from organized ball is proving costly to the Pirates as they flounder deeper into the National League cellar. Defeated in eight of their last nine games, chiefly because of poor pitching. Manager George Gibson has only one curver who has shown any signs of dependability. Steve Swetonic, who was mostly just another thrower last season, has turned in two straight three-hit performances. Yesterday they lost to the Phillies 4-2.

The Chicago Cubs climbed back to the league lead when they squared their series with Brooklyn 3-1, while the Boston Braves were dropping a second straight to Cincinnati, 14-1. Guy Bush kept seven Dodger hits scattered while his mates grouped their eight off Van Mungo. Shaute and Quinn. Woody English returned to the Cubs' lineup to hit a triple and score the winning run in the eighth.

Red Lucas pitched a four-hit game for the Reds and didn't permit a Boston runner past first base until the ninth. Heath and Gilbert led a 16-hit assault on three of McKechnie's flingers.

Tight relief pitching by Clarence Mitchell, who held the Cardinals scoreless after relieving young Harold Schumacher in the sixth, featured the Giants' second straight over the world champions, 4-3.

Gain Second Place

Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees vaulted from fourth place to second in the American League when George Pipgras set the Detroit Tigers down 1-0, in their opening clash. Pigras allowed only five hits and struck out seven. Gehrig's double and Ben Chapman's single in the second inning defeated Earl Whitehill.

Al Simmons and Roger Cramer provided the punch as the Athletics tripped Cleveland again, 5-2. Cramer knocked in three runs with a triple and a single and Simmons' brace of doubles accounted for the other two. Mahaffey held the Indians to five blows.

Chicago's White Sox broke a seven-game losing streak and opened their eastern tour auspiciously by trimming the league leading Washington Senators, 5-3. It was the first loss in five starts for Monte Weaver, big Washington rookie.

Fred Schultes' homerun in the seventh with Jim Levey on base gave the St. Louis Browns their second victory over the Boston Red Sox, 6-5.

Wrestling Last Night

PHILADELPHIA.—Jim McMillen, 216, Chicago, defeated George Zaharias, 228, Pueblo, Colo., 1 hour 27 minutes (Zaharias hurt and unable to continue); Dick Shikat, 220, Philadelphia, threw Mihaly Orgovanyi, 195, Hungary, 16.20; Howard Cantowine, 235, Des Moines, won by decision from Herman Hickman, 240, Johnson City, Tenn.

LOWELL, Mass.—Henri Deglane, 225, Montreal, won in straight falls from Al Mercier, 220, Montreal, 21.08 and 2.58; Jack Gansen, 215, Los Angeles, threw Pat McKay, 225, Memphis, Tenn., 27.51.

Tweed Lawn Bowlers Organize For Year

TWEED, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual meeting of the Men's Bowling Club was held on Friday evening in the Council Chambers. The retiring president, D. H. Morrison, occupied the chair, and before proceeding with the regular business of the evening expressed his thanks to the members for their co-operation during the past season. He also complimented A. W. McGuire, B.A., for the efficient manner in which he had carried out his duties as chairman of the Games Committee. His work in this respect was a big factor in making a success of the season's bowling.

The report of the treasurer showed a slight deficit.

The following officers were elected: President, Dr. Paul; vice-president, F. Hindle. Games Committee, T. W. McGuire, I. D. Corcoran, and T. E. Moffat; Grounds Committee, James Ryan, Dr. Bowlby, J. Leworthy. The executive is to consist of the president, vice-president, and the chairmen of the committees.

A drive is to be made to increase the membership, and the followers of this old and honorable game are looking forward with a great deal of enthusiasm to the opening of the local greens.

Yesterday's Stars

George Pipgras, Yankees— Held Tigers to five singles, struck out seven and won 1-0

Fred Schulte, Browns—His home run with one on in seventh provided winning margin against Red Sox

Jim Elliott, Phillies—Held Pirates safe with seven hits, collected two hits himself, driving in one run and scoring one.

Clarence Mitchell, Giants—Held Cardinals in check in relief role, allowing only three hits in last four innings.

Red Lucas, Reds—Held Braves to four hits and drove in three runs with as many singles.

Guy Bush, Cubs—Held Dodgers to seven hits.

Baseball Here Forced To Quit

THE "SPICE" TAKEN OUT OF THE "PEPPER."

"Pepper" Martin, outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals and hero of the late World's Series, is forced to quit the 1932 baseball campaign in Cincinnati and return to St. Louis to nurse a torn ligament in his arm which he suffered in a recent game with the Cincinnati "Reds." The injury is expected to keep him on the sidelines for the better part of a month. He is shown here in his St. Louis hotel room.

1932 SOFTBALL RULES

The softball rules for batsmen and base-runners are just about the same as in other years, when baseball rules were followed. For instance, most batters know they may be penalized, by being called out, for an illegally batted ball. This is a ball batted when either or both batsman's feet are outside the lines of the batter's box.

A batter is out if he fails to take his position at the bat in the turn in which name appears in the batting order. But if the error be discovered in time, the proper batsman may replace the man at bat before the latter becomes a base-runner, in which case the balls and strikes must be counted on the proper batsman. Only the proper batsman shall be declared out and no runs shall be scored or bases run because of any act of the improper batsman. This rule shall not be enforced unless the error is discovered before the ball be delivered to the next batsman.

A batsman must not interfere in any manner whatsoever with the catcher either on the third strike, which may enable the batsman to reach first safely, or when the catcher is trying to catch a base-runner. The penalty for such interference is the batsman being out. He is also out if, while attempting a third strike, the ball touch any part of the batsman's clothing, in which case base-runners occupying bases shall not advance.

The infield fly question has always confused a large percentage of ball players, though it is simple enough, once memorized. Rule 43, Section 8 of the O.A.S.A. rule book states: If, before two are out, while first and second or first, second and third bases are occupied, the batsman hit a fair fly ball, other than a line drive, that can be handled by an infielder, the umpire shall declare it an infield fly, and the batter is automatically out; but the runners may be off their bases or advance at the risk of the ball being caught, the same as on any other fly ball. Provided, that, with first and second bases occupied, or first, second and third bases occupied with less than two out, any attempt to bunt which results in a fair fly ball shall not be regarded as an infield fly.

One point sometimes overlooked by base-runners is that they must retouch the base or bases in reverse order when obliged to return while the ball is in play. For instance, a runner on first might get around to third on a long fly ball which is finally caught in the outfield and the runner must return to first, following the same path in reverse order, and not cutting across from third to first. This only happens occasionally under stress of excitement.

Section 4 of Rule 44 states: The failure of a preceding runner to touch a base (and is out) shall not affect the status of a succeeding runner, except it be the third out. The batsman becomes a base-runner if the catcher interferes with him or prevents him from striking at a pitched ball. Also if he hits a fair hit ball that strikes the person or clothing of the umpire or a base-runner on fair ground.

In Rule 46, Section 6 is: If the fielder stops or catches a batted or a thrown ball with his cap, glove or any part of his uniform while detached from its proper place, the runner shall be entitled to three bases if it is a batted ball, or two for a thrown ball.

If a thrown or a pitched ball strikes an umpire, the ball is considered in play and base-runners are entitled to all the bases they can make. And if a thrown ball strikes the coaches on foul ground, it is considered in play still, provided however the umpire does not think the coacher intentionally interefered with it.

Regarding the paths, Section 6 of Rule 48 is plain: If, in running the last half of the distance from home plate to first, the runner in the opinion of the umpire wilfully interferes with the fielder taking the throw at first base, he shall be called out, except that he may run off the base-line to avoid a fielder attempting to field a batted ball. And Section 7: The runner is out if, in running to any base, he run more than three feet from a direct line between the bases in regular or reverse order to avoid being touched by the fielder. But in case of a fielder occupying a base-runner's path in attempting to field a ball, then the base-runnner shall run out of direct line and behind said fielder and shall not be declared out for so doing.

Of course, a runner is out for interfering with a fielder trying to leld a ball or if the runner is hit by a batted ball.

Montreal Maroons Defeat Leafs 11-10

FORUM, Montreal, May 7.—Toronto Maple Leafs lost their initial International Lacrosse League match of the season here when Montreal Maroons nosed them out by 11 goals to 10 last night.

A last-minute rally by the Maple Leafs saved them from being swamped, and only just stopped short of victory. It was the potent sticks of Earl Roche and Irving Lounsbury that showed Maroons to be a scoring machine of high power. Roche figured in every one of the Maroon first-period goals, which gave the team a 5-1 lead. In the second and third periods, Lounsbury set a dizzy pace, to send the local squad into a 11-5 lead.

With ten minutes to go and facing an almost overwhelming deficit in the scoring, Maple Leafs showed courage and stamina by rallying in stirring fashion. The stock Thoms started the team off on its scoring plunge with a long shot that sped through Seed's legs. Then Spring added two more within a minute to make the score 10-8.

Maroons began to tighten defensively and for the next four minutes there was no score. With just over two minutes to go, Norman Zimmer, left attack star, took Thom's pass on the run and scored, making it 11-9.

The Leafs could not be held down and Davis darted through for the final tally. Only 75 seconds remained, and during that time Maroons secured the ball and passed it carefully from one to another until the game was over.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

FINAL COUNT 3-2.

MONTREAL, May 7.—Montreal Royals swept the series with Reading here yesterday afternoon before 2,000 fans by capturing the final, 3-2. It was Royals' seventh straight win. Henry singled home the winning run in the ninth after two were out. Reading got to Fisher and Claset for fifteen hits, but could not connect in the pinches and thirteen were left on bases. Claset got credit for the win, his second of the series over the Keys.

Each team is required to supply an umpire for the game on the following night or the following scheduled game. Managers failing to do so will lose one point for each failure from their team's standing. For example, teams playing on a Tuesday will each supply an umpire for Wednesday's games, or playing on a Friday night will supply umpires for Monday's game.

LITTLE RELIEF WORK.

VICTORIA.— No relief work of any magnitude will be undertaken this year by the British Columbia government, it was stated yesterday by Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, upon his return from an inspection of the Cariboo highway. Established relief camps will be maintained and provision made for direct relief where conditions warrant.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, this week my champeenship selections, the A's and Cards, has been showing some signs of coming to life, and up to to-day, Thurs., the Cards has win themselves 3 in a row and the Athaletics has grabbed off 2 straight, which certainly is some winning streak after what happened to them 2 starry collections last week. Some may say this revival is only 1 of them flashes in the pan, but I'm still claiming they is both too good ball clubs to be down in the stick, and that by mid-season they'll again be looking back over their shoulder at the thundering herd trying to overhaul them. Meanwhile Mister Walter Johnson's Senators in particular has been playing a brand of baseball that is about as smooth as silk, and when you remember that most of the wins credited to the game from Washington has been scored over their 2 chief rivals, the Yanks and the A's, their record is kinda got the folks guessing.

1 of the big items since my last, Mac, has been the speed showed by the Hamilton Collegiate relay team over at the famous meet at Philadelphia. Hamilton has been turning out flying squads for years, but the team old Cap. Cornelius took over the border this time certainly could go places in the darnest hurry. In 1 race they trimmed 40 Yankee schools to set a new mark, and next day they went out again and breezed home in world record time to win by a city block. Looks like some of those kids oughta make good Olympic material.

Big Train Conacher made his rassling debut in Toronto the other nite, and the Queen City's favorite son took 2 straight falls from a experienced grunt and groan artist. Of course, they ain't nothing surprising in that. They way they run this rassling racket they ain't letting no good drawing card get knocked off very often, and as long as Mister Conacher can induce the customers to lay it in at the box office, well, it's just going to be too bad for the boys scheduled to meet him in the Queen City. At that he's a tough hombre, the same Big Train, and when he gets his technique polished up a bit, they won't hafta to fix things for him; he'll be quite able to take care of things himself, and how!

Everything is shaping up well in local sporting circles, Mac, and it looks like a good season in hard ball, the mush ball loop and this new box lacrosse. And on top of it all comes the announcement that we're going to get a glimpse of the big shots in the rassling game, starting off with Signor Garibaldi next Fri. The Signor ranks with the 1st flight in the rough-and-tumble racket and oughta be good for a big nite when he struts his stuff in the Brock st. arena.

We'll be seeing ya', eh Mac?

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

GARAGEMEN WIN 18 TO 9 VICTORY

Mechanics Gain Decision Over Lucky Strikes in Lakefield Game.

LAKEFIELD, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence). — A return game between the Lucky Strikes and the Central Garage, played as an exhibition fixture on Thursday night, reversed the decision of the game played a week ago as the score was 18-9 for the Central Garage. This means that when the two teams meet on Tuesday evening for their opening game they will start on an even basis. Prospects are good for the Men's League, and sport seems to be healthy and not feeling the depression which, with a capital D, has dominated many branches of community life. The line-up of the teams is as follows:

Score by innings:

Central Garage	90004139—18
Lucky Strikes	00045000— 9

The A.Y.P.A. softball team organised on Tuesday evening at a meeting called for the purpose, and the following were elected: Manager, Frank Payne; hon. presidnet, Miss B. Graham; captain, Miss Grace Watson; vice-captain, Miss Lilian Mason; secretary-treasurer, Miss Bernice Abrams.

ECKERT BEATS SKEETERS 5-2

Left Hander Holds Jersey City to Seven Hits for His 2nd Victory.

BISONS ALSO WIN.

(By the Associated Press)

Albert George Eckert, whose career in organized baseball started as recently as 1929, rapidly is developing into the sensation of the Rochester Redwings' pitching staff.

Obtained during the off season from the Cincinnati Reds, Eckert was not given a starting assignment until last Sunday, when he allowed the Baltimore Orioles only five hits and beat them, 7—3.

Yesterday, Manager Billy Southworth sent the big left hander against the Jersey City Skeeters and he beat them, 5—2, and granted only seven hits, six of them coming in the first three innings. After that unsteady start, Eckert settled down and was reached for only one hit in the last six frames. George Clancy's home run gave the Skeeters one of their two runs. George Puccinelli and Paul Florence clouted homers for the champions.

Buffalo Bisons finally managed to check Buzz Arlett and, as a result, trimmed the Baltimore Orioles, 9—8, and broke a four-game losing streak. Arlett, who had batted .667 in the first three games of the series, went hitless.

LEAFS-READING IN DOUBLE BILL

Barnes and Cantrell to Pitch if Games Played at Toronto To-day.

TORONTO, May 7. — Wintry temperatures prevailing at the Stadium yesterday led to a postponement of the final game of the series between the Leafs and Bears, and the game will be played on Newark's next visit here in July, when it is expected that warmer weather will be encountered.

The Bears departed for Buffalo on a late afternoon train with two victories out of the three games played, and the Leafs were forced to accept the short end of their first home set. The Reading Keys will be along to-day for a four-game series, two games being played this afternoon, weather permitting. There will be single games in Monday and Tuesday. The Leafs won three straight from the Keys to finish off their recent road trip, and, as the tailenders are in the throes of a losing streak at present, which has extended to seven in a row, there is every possibility that the Dalymen can improve their present standing at the expense of "Pnats" Rowland's aggregation.

Consolidated School Cops 24-7 Victory

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, May 7.—The first softball game of the season between the Consolidated school and the Separate school on the grounds of the former, resulted in a 24 to7 win for the Consolidated school, whose team in the seventh inning scored 13 runs.

Although the T. S. S. boys were smaller in stature than their rivals, they are all the makings of a smart lot of ball players.

T.S.S.—S. Hott, H. Meraw, Joe Courneyea, Jim Courneyea, James Lajoie, Gene Whalen, D. Shangue, L. Lajoie, J. McIlroy, E. Rivers.

T.C.S.—B. Coulter, Charles Jones, Cecil Jones, S. Orr, H. Elsbury, K. Jeffrey, R. Sayers, J. Tummon.

The return game will be played on the Separate school grounds in the near future.

CAN'T FIND SECRET ROOMS IN MANSION

Legend of Heaton Hall, Newcastle, Proves False

Newcastle, Eng.—The ancient mansion of Heaton Hall here was the scene of a comedy recently when workmen employed to break through walls to reveal the two secret rooms believed to have been sealed for generations, discovered nothing but solid masonry.

The mansion is being demolished and the nine acres of park land will be built on.

When the firm bought the hall it was made a condition that any movables on the premises should be retained by Mr. Charles Potter, now in Brazil, whose family last occupied the hall.

In view of this condition, it was thought advisable that the two "sealed rooms" should be opened.

The two towers believed to contain the rooms were built by the Ridley family in 1713.

Directors of the demolishing firm, legal representatives, newspapermen and an antiquary were present at the "opening."

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

"Shoeless Joe" Pays His Respects To Moundsmen Of Modern Baseball

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 7.—Joe Jackson balanced a 24-year-old bat in his hands as he stared through a window of his pressing shop here and wondered how many hits he could have made with the old bludgeon if the majors had used the lively ball when he was the shoeless wonder of the White Sox.

The years have been kind to "Shoeless Joe" who has mellowed after the bitter experience of banishment from organized baseball for his part in the 1919 world series scandals. He has settled near the Savannah River, where life unfolds itself gently and without excitement.

"Some stick, eh?" he said as he looked at the old war club. "It's 24 years old. The wood was given me by a friend near Greenville, S.C., and the bat was made to order."

In 1911, Joe collected 248 hits for an average of .408 in 146 games with the stick. It is warped and is so heavy it seems loaded.

"I wonder how many hits I could have got if I had been hitting the lively ball?" he said "I don't see how they could have got us out."

Joe has a great deal of respect for modern pitching. "This follow Grove must be a wonder and so must the others, but I still believe the old time hitters could have knocked their pitchers out of the lot," he mumbled.

He doesn't discuss the scandals but prefers to talk about the brighter sides of his life. He is about 45 now, with crow's feet about his eyes.

Old Joe remembers a "spraddle leg hitter who looked good" and who Joe taught to change his tactics to pivot hitting.

"He's the only fellow I ever tried to convert to the style who jumped on the idea in a minute," he said. "He was a young fellow named Babe Ruth who wanted to learn."

LOW PUNCHING IS THREATENED

Boston Sailor Noted as First Class Foul Blow Hitter.

TALKS BIG MONEY.

NEW YORK, May 7.—If Sharkey runs true to form and Schmeling keeps a promise he made on landing here a month or so ago, the customers, if any, stand a fair chance seeing something new in the way of brawls when the two men meet in the sunken garden in June.

Habit With Jack

Sharkey, as you may recall, has a habit of hitting low. Whether he does it intentionally, nobody but Sharkey knows, and ever will know. But there is no getting around the fact that he is a first class foul puncher, being just as adept with his righ hand as his left, his uppercut or his hook.

This questionable skill of landing below the equator with unerring accuracy cost him the championship in his first fight with Schmeling; a fight which was held when a low blow was a low blow and led to disqualification, and not, as the new ruling has it, just another "x" in the referee's score pad.

It seems logical to assume that the bad man from Boston will let fly with more than one below the belt smash in the coming fight. When the first one lands, we shall see if Schmeling's word means anything. For the German has promised to swap low blow for low blow, foul punch for foul punch.

Knows Better Now

"I didn't know very much when I fought him before," Maxie said on arriving, "but this time I am smarter. Never you fear, I'll take care of myself if he gets to hitting me unfairly. I shall give him just the same treatment he gives me. If he makes no fouls, I make none. But if he does—well, Maxie take care of himself."

Even thick-headed little Oscar back there on the last row can figure out the possibilities of this situation. Sharkey goes out in one of the early rounds—maybe the first—and hooks one into the rough. Schmeling replies in kind. Sharkey comes right back with another one. So does Max. And so on throughout the fight.

If such a thing should happen, the bout would end up with both men losers, for under the no-foul clause the man who lands a low blow loses the round. Of course, the boys could be tossed from the ring, but that would leave 25,000 losers—or as many customers as there happened to be on hand.

Talks Big Money

Speaking of how many folks will watch the fight, Sharkey is of the opinion that it will do well to draw $300,000. Jimmy Johnston, who swears he keeps tab on the success or failure of all attractions, from flea circuses to flower shows, rates Sharkey as daffy, and insists the gate will reach $700,000 or better.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, feels the same way about it. He feels so strongly, in fact, that he has gone out and wagered a respectable sum that the gross intake won't stop this side of $600,000. Our own private guess at the gate is about $350,000 or $400,000. Certainly no more than that.

O.B.A.A. BULLETIN

All secretaries of affiliated leagues are urgently requested to forward their names, addresses and phone numbers to W. J. Snyder, 162 Sandford Street N., Hamilton, so that they may be included in O.B.A.A. year book.

The O.B.A.A. held a lenghty executive meeting last night at the Carls-Rite Hotel, the outstanding item being the application of the London and of the London-St. Thomas Inter-City League, asking for a renewal of their privilege of picking an all star team to go into Ontario playdowns. After much discussion they were refused, but tentatively allowed to affiliate as a two-team senior or five-man intermediate league.

The following players were granted transfers:

E. Edwards and William Jordan of Windsor were granted transfers to Guelph providing that they forward proof of employment and residence in the latter place. K. A. Biddle of Ingersoll was granted a transfer to play in Stratford, but will not be allowed to play until June 10. A. S. Amato, Niagara Falls, N.Y., was refused permission to play in St. Catharines.

Guelph Players Reinstated

The Guelph juvenile players with the exception of Ambrose and the club, were reinstated.

ONTARIO LIQUOR PRICES TO BE BOOSTED MONDAY

TORONTO, May 7 (CP).—Prices for liquor purchased from the Ontario Liquor Control Board will take a sharp jump Monday, when increases ordered by both the provincial and federal governments go into effect.

On imported spirits, there will be a tax of 25 cents per 26-ounce bottle, with 15 cents on the half bottle. Canadian spirits are hoisted 15 for the large and 10 cents for the small bottles; on imported wines will be raised 10 and five cents, respectively, and Canadian wines five cents per bottle or 15 cents per gallon.

Portugal has initiated four irrigation projects since February 1.

America's Historic Turf Classic

Less than three weeks remain for the 45 eligible thoroughbreds to get themselves into shape for the 73rd renewal of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park, Toronto, America's most historic racing classic. On that afternoon the best 20, or thereabouts of these valued equines, will leave at the rise of the barrier, while the precincts of Canada's premier race course will reverberate to the chant of "they're off" rendered by 25,000 or more rabid racing fans. The Guineas, as this test of equine endurance has come to be known, while the oldest racing fixture on this continent, has also contributed more than any other factor to the success of horse breeding in the Dominion of Canada. Fifty guineas the gift of His Majesty V. with $7,500 added by the Ontario Jockey Club, stakes and a silver cup, the award to the winner. The second horse receives $1,200 and the third $800. The race, a mile and furlong affair, was originally fashioned to encourage good horse breeding in Ontario, and is primarily a Canadian race. It is for three year olds and upwards., which are the property of a British subject resident in Ontario. Entrants must be foaled and raised in Ontario and must not have won a race, other than that exclusively for two-year-olds. From 1860 to the death of Queen Victoria in 1902 this race was known as the Queen's Plate. Following her majesty's death it became the King's Plate. Don Juan, owned by James White was the first horse to win this famed Canadian clasic while last year's winner turned up in Frothblower ,owned by R. W. R. Cowie and riden by Jockie Frankie Mann. The 1932 runing of the Plate is expected to result in one of the keenest turf dules in its history. At least six crack distance runners are being highly touted by experts. They are Shady Well, Easter Hatter, Queensway, Bronze, Sky Gazer, and Spey Crest.

CASUAL COMMENT

The marathon bowling competition down at the Duffus Alleys comes to a close to-night, and most of the Big Shots who have not yet tried their hand at ten straight games will be seen in action. There's been some nifty pin-spilling seen there this week, the average being well over 200, but boy oh boy, how those guys work!

• • • • • • •

Lacrosse rule books should be available here in a week or so, and we'll run in a bunch of the more complicated rulings nightly as soon as we receive our copy. The O.A.S.A. rule books are out now, the first time a complete set of softball rules has been printed, which points to the growing popularity of this already-popular game.

• • • • • • •

The Southend Softball League opens Monday evening at six down at the Exhibition Grounds with Peterborough Lock Works playing the Orioles, last year's champs. The other six teams making up the loop are Quaker Oats, Nationals, Canucks, Shamrocks, Royals and Peterborough Canoe. Games are played there every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

• • • • • • •

And the Church Softball League also opens this Monday, with George Street Juniors meeting St. Paul's, and St. John's Seniors tackling Trinity, in a doubleheader. All games are held at Queen Mary School Grounds, with every evening of the week being used for contests except Saturdays. The junior and senior schedules are run off in two halves. • • • • • • •

The Girls' Softball League meets Monday eve at eight bells down at Duffus, and the fair ones should turn out in force to clear up the organization work for the season. They'll settle entries, the matter of entrance fees, the umpire-in-chief, opening date, type of schedule, teams to open it, and a flock of other details. There are nine outfits entered at present, and it looks like another big year.

• • • • • • •

Box lacrosse seems to be making a clean sweep of the province this year and if it lives up to its prophesies, may yet attain the popularity in summer that hockey enjoys during the winter. For instance, there's a three-team town league being formed down in Millbrook under the management of Bill O'Brian, Stan Carveth and Harold Nattress. Every city, town and burg around seems to be giving it a whirl this spring.

• • • • • • • •

Its future depends entirely on its appeal to fans, as any number of oldtime players and newcomers—including hockey players by the hundreds—are anxious to play the new style lacrosse. If it clicks well with sports followers, then the game is made, and baseball and softball are likely to suffer accordingly. Not that we think this game can ruin those others, but it just might put a noticeable crimp in their gate receipts. After all, the gate is pretty important.

• • • • • • • •

One thing we like about lacrosse is that it, like hockey, is distinctly a Canadian game. It requires skill in large chunks, both speed and endurance, and a fighting heart. There are thrills and spills to keep the fans yelling and jumping around in excitement at the sustained action. Well, the game will be on trial for public opinion this year, and it may go across big, or it may be just a flash in the pan. • • • • • • • •

Once again a rainy Saturday has washed out all practises, and put back sport organizing seriously. The intermediate lacrosse workout at the Exhibition Grounds fell through, and so did the senior baseball drill over at the Stevenson Park. It's just two and a half weeks until the C.O.B.L. schedule opens, but then the Petes are further along than the other three teams.

• • • • • • • •

The grass on the infield at James Stevenson park will be cut early next week so the infielders can do their stuff. That will be one of Art Primeau's big worries, the infield. He has several good players for those positions, if he can juggle them around right. His outfield and battery departments are coming along okay.

40,000 TO SEE TURF CLASSIC

Color, Interest and Enthusiasm Combined in Kentucky Day Crowds.

WEATHER DUBIOUS.

(By Alan Gould, A.P. Sports Editor.)

LOUISVILLE, May 7. — Even though the tones were somewhat more subdued, the flights of wagering on a less extravagant scale, the crowds neither so tumultuous or numerous, this was Kentucky Derby Day, combining much color, interest and enthusiasm.

Even the favorite, Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann's black cold, Tick On, claimed nothing like the support attracted by Gallant Fox or Twenty Grand in the last two classics of the Bluegrass, but not even the times counterbalanced the traditional flavor attached to this exciting struggle for three-year-old turf honors.

Weather Dubious

Weather conditions were dubious, crowd estimates varied from 25,000 to 40,000, and betting lagged before a prospective final rush to the mutuel windows at Churchill Downs, but the Derby promised to be a real horserace, perhaps the most thrilling in years.

There was a sufficient assortment of high-class talent to make the outcome conspicuously speculative and an entry big enough to assure the victor more than $50,000, besides the roses and the acclaim that go with it.

Tick On gathered backing overnight, as the result of impressive workout form, and the two-to-one odds on the favorite appeared likely to shorten.

Nevertheless the incoming crowds continued their search for the latest possible tips or information from the feed-box. They were assured at least a half dozen others had a good enough chance to win to make the various odds unusually attractive. Favorites have romped home in front of five of the last six Derby fields, and the form-players were looking for a break in the streak.

HOUSE BURNED AT CANNINGTON

America Visitor in Lindsay Predicts Small Tourist List This Year.

WOMAN HAS BAD FALL.

LINDSAY, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—Fire on Friday destroyed a large double house in the village of Cannington, rendering three families homeless, and entailing a heavy loss with only small insurance. The house was owned by Thomas Wilson, and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Rixon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnston and Mr. W. Mullen. The fire started in a partition, and it is thought an overheated stove was the cause.

Mrs. J. Downer fell at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Ellam, yesterday, and broke her thigh. She was removed to Ross Memorial Hospital.

The first American tourist of the year—Milo Hoffman, of Pitcairn, Pa.—arrived in town yesterday en route to Bobcaygeon. He is authority for the statement that very few tourists from his state will be seen in this section this summer.

Harry Checkley, a former Lindsay man, has been arrested by the Toronto police on the charge of the theft of an auto, the property of Dr. Healey, of that city. The accused is the party who visited Lindsay last March in a car, in which there was a bullet hole, and which was abandoned on a side street. Before reaching Lindsay he collided with a buggy at Oakwood and injured the occupant. He drove the injured man to Little Britain hospital, giving a false name and address.

MACKINAC RUINS ARE UNCOVERED

Ancient Fort Once French Stronghold in Indian Warfare.

ABANDONED IN 1780.

DETROIT, May 7.—Foundations of an old French fort—headquarters for Marquette, Allouez, Menard, Joliet and other famous pioneer missionaries—have been uncovered by excavations in the state park at Mackinaw city.

Believed to have been built in 1714, the fortifications were occupied by British when the French surrendered Canada, then abandoned by Britain in 1780 when they withdrew to Mackinac Island, fearing a United States land attack. Generations ago, the last traces of the fort disappeared from view and historians have been at odds as to its exact location.

The foundation was brought to light by excavations begun recently for the purpose of reproducing the old fortifications.

The fort was located near the Straits of Mackinac and was built while the French were at war with the Fox Indians, who lived along the Wolf River on the Wisconsin side of Lake Michigan. It was of greatest strategic importance, situated near the meeting point of Lakes Michigan, Huron and Superior, and was the centre of activities of the Jesuit missionaries.

NOTHING SNOBBISH ABOUT ENGLAND'S CUP SELECTIONS

Many Professions Represented in Personnel of Team for Golf Play.

SAILOR AND DENTIST

LONDON, May 7 (Special to The Examiner)—Who was it who said the British are snobbish?

Two dental surgeons, a schoolmaster, a clerk, a trawl owner and a government official are among the eight British golfers already chosen by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of Andrews, the British governing body, to meet American players in the annual Walker Cup match, to be played in the United States this summer.

Indications are the British team will be the most democratic body of golfers ever officially sent from these shores for an important tourney abroad. Two other players have yet to be picked and these will probably be announced at the conclusion of the British amateur championship in May.

The eight men already chosen for the Walker Cup matches which are expected in British circles to be played at Brookline, Mass., are:

W. Lister Hartley, Rex Hartley, L. G. Crawley, Eric McRuvie, J. T. Bookless, John Burke, J. A. Stout, and T. A. Torrance, and for once in a way the critics are unanimous that the Royal and Ancient selectors have picked the best possible amateur team to go to America.

Torrance, who will lead the team, is a forty-one-year-old dental surgeon and the veteran of the team. He has thrice played against America in the Walker Cup match, and on the last two occasions was the only British player who won in the singles. He beat the present U.S. amateur champion Francis Ouimet, 7 and 6, in England a couple of years ago.

Crawley, a schoolmaster, aged 29, is the fighter of the side, being famous for his tenacity against odds; McRuvie is the 22-year-old "baby" of the team. An articled clerk in a surveyor's office, he is already a player of distinction and many forecast a great golfing future for him.

Bookless, aged 35, is an Inverness trawl-owner and a player seldom seen in first-class tourneys, but holds a couple of victories over Cyril Tolley.

Stout is a 36-year-old dental surgeon practicing on the English east coast. He is the team's longest hitter. Burke is employed in a Free State government department, and is native champion of Ireland. He is 28.

W. Lister Hartley and his brother, Rex respectively aged 28 and 26 years, are the best amateur pair in England. Lister is credited with being the best shot-maker among amateurs, while his brother right now is playing at the top of his form. Both had taken part in previous Walker cup matches.

RECEPTION IN VICTORIA PARK

HERE ON MAY 25.

A tentative program for the visit of the Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough, on May 25 has been drafted by the Reception Committee of the council assisted by the other members. Peterborough's address of welcome has already been written by City Clerk Armstrong, and will be prepared for presentation to His Excellency by E. W. Glover of the Trent Canal staff. The official reception will take place in Victoria Park, but if the weather is unfavorable that morning the public proceedings will be transferred to the Armouries.

It is proposed to have the school children grouped on the sloping ground of the park, and probably they will sing several choruses. At present it is understood that no special invitations will be sent to citizens inviting them to meet the Governor-General. Members thought that this feature would take up too much time. His Excellency will be in Peterborough only three hours, from 9.30 until 12.30, and he has expressed a wish to see some of the city's industrial plants. Other details of the official program will be announced as soon as they are definitely arranged.

Argentina is at present the leading automobile country in South American.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

JERRY MUSKRAT STARTS FOR HOME.

The call of home, though you may try
You'll find you never can deny.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was peace and quiet in the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest. At daylight of the morning following the fight with Reddy Fox the flock of Honker the Goose took to their great wings and with Honker in the lead headed straight for the Far North.

"Must you go so soon?" said Paddy as they were preparing to go.

"Absolutely," replied Honker. "We have stayed an extra day as it is and all the flock have been getting more and more uneasy. It is the call from the Far North, from the home land, and it cannot be resisted. You who never leave home do not know what that call is. There is no place like home, Paddy."

"We do not have to leave it to know that," replied Paddy. "Well, goodby and good luck. Do stop on your way back in the fall."

"We will," promised Honker, and looking to his flock to see that all were ready, he spread his great wings, made a half swimming, half running start on the water and beat his way into the air, gradually moving faster and faster, his flock following in perfect order. Paddy and Mrs. Paddy and Jerry Muskrat watched them out of sight.

"I'm glad to have them visit us and I am glad to have them go," said Paddy. "I like peace and quiet, and they are such noisy folk that they become rather tiresome. Then, too, they draw over here everybody with a liking for Goose meat, and that makes it hard for the rest of us. Not since they have arrived have I dared go ashore to get fresh bark. Now everybody knows they have gone, for they told everybody they were on their way just as they told everybody of their arrival, and I hope we will have a little peace."

"I know how they feel," spoke up Jerry Muskrat. "I—I think I'll be starting for home myself."

"Why not stay and make your home here?" asked Paddy.

"Mrs. Jerry isn't here," replied Jerry, "and I don't think she could be tempted to come way up here. It is very nice here and I should love to have you and Mrs. Paddy for neighbors, but it isn't so well suited to me as it is to you. I couldn't live on bark as you do. I need certain roots and grasses that do not grow here, and I know that I should feel dreadfully shut in with all these trees around. What suits one doesn't suit another and I guess that is just as well or we all would want the same things."

"True, Jerry, true," replied Paddy. "This is home to Mrs. Paddy and myself. It suits us perfectly. But it didn't suit Honker or he would have remained. It wasn't home to him, and if I could go up where his home is I probably wouldn't be any better suited than he was here. So I understand how you feel. Take my advice and don't start too soon. Give those hungry neighbors of ours who have been hanging around here hoping to get a Goose time to scatter."

This was good sense, so Jerry waited until the next day. Then he said goodby to Paddy and Mrs. Paddy, swam to the dam, made his way around the end of it and started down the Laughing Brook. The water was not quite so swift as when he had come up. Sometimes he could swim a little way. Sometimes he had to climb to the top of a steep bank and make his way along that. Sometimes there were long stretches with no places in which to find safety should an enemy appear. How he would hurry then! All the time he felt the urge to get home to the Smiling Pool. The call of home was in his heart and was not to be resisted. It seemed to him that he couldn't get home quickly enough. He was in such a hurry that he forgot to be as watchful as he should have been and the result was he almost ran right smack into Buster Bear.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:10 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7:35 p.m.

Very disturbing planetary conditions are augured for May 7th, and the complexion of many pre-conceived plans or set ideas will change color through startling disclosures of the day. Attention will be called to financial matters, and quick thought and action will be called to save the loss of property or investments.

The child born on this May 7th will have every reason to thank its lucky stars, as the planetary aspects on this date are most favorable. Neither character or brain will be lacking, and life has many rich opportunities in store for it. It will earn the love of all its associates.

Your character, if born on May 7th, is not made up of temperamental frills. You are always your natural, unaffected self, as you do not know how to put on any bright trappings of make-believe in order to attract. This, however, is not necessary for your naive ways are different and refreshing. Your artless way of calling a spade a spade both shocks and pleases, and you are always unconsciously selling your personality without any forced effort on your part.

You are not a drone by nature, and whether it be necessary to earn your salt or not, you will not be an idler. Many times you will put away your toys of amusement in order to concentrate on some longed-for goal. You are interested in scientific subjects, and in a sense of the word will be a student all your life—never too old to learn. You do not hoard your knowledge, but make use of it in your everyday contacts, conversation and travels. It rather pleases you, in fact, to spill information wherever there is a likelihood of its soaking in.

You are impassioned on the heart more than the physical side, and should seek intellectual companionship above all else in your marriage partner.

Sunday, May 8th.

If May 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. and from 9:15 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:15 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The Planets are ideally placed on May 8th for a pleasurable Sunday. It will be a short recess between past and future worries, and the mind will be free to focus on the affairs of the moment. Spiritual teachings will be unusually inspirational.

The child born on this May 8th will be rather lacking in ambition and driving force. It will be an apt student, and will react favorably to encouragement and suggestion. There is every indication that it eventually will land on its feet, and will be more than worthy of the name it bears.

Born on May 9th, you do not have a palsied grasp of life, nor a jaundiced outlook. You are an unusually solid, clear eyed, knowable being. Life is considerable of a gamble with you, and you have never wished to lower a permanent anchorage. You are not childish or amateurish, however, in your adventures, and study your ground thoroughly before you ever attempt to make a landing.

Problems are the meat and drink of your life, the right of food to keep one of your temperaments both youthful and active. Life would be tame to you if you did not have something or somebody to tackle. You worship good health too much to ever become emasculated through gross intemperance in any form. You have many minor vices, but they will be more foolish than harmful. You are very fond of handling people, and although your touch is firm, there is too much skill and diplomacy back of it for it to ever become rough or displeasing. You create confidence in your fellow associates, merit their respect and often win their love.

Your temper occasionally gets in creases, but it is easily smoothed out. A real emotional storm always leaves you limp and ill, and you try to avoid them. You belong too much to the public to lead a secluded home life.

THE BIRTHRIGHT OF ESAU

Sunday School Lesson (Genesis 25:27-34)

By Harlowe R. Hoyt; Walter Scott

After waiting long years without children, the prayers of Isaac were answered and his wife bore him two sons, Esau and Jacob. One of the twins was named Esau, because of his hair, and the other Jacob, because he held the other's heel when born. The boys grew to be young men. Esau was a skillful hunter, but Jacob proved the opposite, preferring to remain within the tents.

Because of their attributes, Esau was beloved of Isaac, while Jacob, since he was a quiet man of the tents, was the favorite of his mother, Rebekah. Jacob proved useful in the work of preparing food and in caring for the household goods. One day, while Esau was absent hunting, Jacob prepared a savory meal of pottage made by the boiling of red lentils.

Into the tent came Esau, tired of the chase. As he threw himself down, he smelled the odor of the steaming dish. His appetite urged him to eat. "Feed me, I pray thee, with some of that red pottage," Esau told his brother. "For I am faint and tired with the hunt." But Jacob refused to serve his twin with the savory dish. "Sell me first thy birthright," he said.

"Behold, I am about to die, and what profit shall the birthright do me?" Esau questioned. But Jacob insisted. "Swear to me first that you will give to me your birthright!" So Esau swore a solemn oath that his birthright was to be inherited by Jacob, his twin brother. When he had done this, Jacob gave him bread and the pottage of lentils, and he sated his hunger.

AUTO DEALERS URGE NEW SPARK PLUGS

Local automotive equipment dealers, from May 9 to 16, will join with the Champion Spark Plug Company in pointing out to motor car owners the economy of installing complete new sets of spark plugs in their cars if the present plugs have been used 10,000 miles, or have been in use more than a year.

The occasion is Champion's eighth annual National Change Week. The number of participants in the Week's observance has grown steadily ever since its inauguration until it ran into millions several years ago and it is predicted that the 1932 volume of sets changed will materially exceed all former totals.

According to local dealers the difference between old and new spark plugs is the difference between a weak spark and one of full strength—between only a partial combustion of the gas mixture, loss of power, engine sluggishness, greater oil consumption, slower speed and loss in fuel, against a hot, intense spark of full strength, which causes complete combustion and development of maximum power from the fuel used.

The new plugs really cost nothing, it is explained by Champion officials. "The monetary saving in gasoline and oil more than offsets the expenditure for a new set of spark plugs," says R. A. Stranahan, President of the Champion Spark Plug Company. "In addition, repairs to the engine are obviated, through better performance, added efficiency and reduced oil dilution."

Automotive engineers now generally agree that it is as essential to proper engine operation to install a complete new set of spark plugs every driving season as it is to change oil regularly. Champion National Change Week, the period when millions of car owners make this annual installation, is set this year for May 9 to 16.

If you have not changed spark plugs in the last 10,000 miles of driving, your car will give much better performance if you install a complete new set now, according to O. C. Rohde, Chief Engineer of the Champion Spark Plug Company. Champion National Change Week this year is from May 9 to 16.

Mrs. C. A. White Is Appointed Delegate

At the regular meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. with the regent, Mrs. C. A. White, in the chair, Miss Edith Murphy reported on the standing of the pupils attending school in whom the chapter is interested, and asking that the society consider taking on other pupils, as one of the girls will finish in June.

Mrs. White was appointed as delegate to the convention of the I.O.D.E. National Chapter, to be held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Mrs. A. E. Edmonds reported on the recent bridge party, which was very successful, and thanked the ladies, on behalf of herself and Mrs. W. Burrell, for their support.

A donation was made to the Well Babies' Clinic and a small sum was voted to the Sailors' Mission, on request of Miss Davidson, who spoke with regard to the work carried on.

Mrs. B. W. Harvey gave a very bright and descriptive report of the Provincial Chapter convention in Hamilton.

The ladies decided to hold a tea and sale of cooking in June at the residence of Mrs. R. R. Hall, the funds to be donated to the Peterborough Health Association.

"SHERWOOD'S QUEEN."

In continuation of their anniversary services this week, the choir of St. Andrew's United Church will present the light operetta, "Sherwood's Queen," picturing an historic event in the life of Robin Hood, on Thursday and Friday evenings of next week, in their Sunday School hall.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

An hour later, Jad-bal-ja emerged silently from the jungle. In his jaws was a torn leopard skin. This he brought and laid at the feet of his master. The ape-man picked it up, examined it and scowled. "I believe he killed the wretch after all," he remarked. "We will search for him in the morning. I would like to have the diamonds again. Then he told Jane the strange story connected with his acquisition of the great wealth represented by the little bag of stones from the palace of the gorilla-men.

Next day Tarzan searched in vain. Esteban's trail disappeared in the river and finally Tarzan concluded the imposter had been devoured by crocodiles. "That is the end of the man who would be Tarzan," he exclaimed. Flora Hawkes shuddered and burst into tears. "Because of my wickedness, many men have died," she wailed. "You have paid a heavy price for your folly," said Jane Clayton. "We will see that you reach England again, for I believe you have learned your lesson."

The t... and Jad-bal-ja had been two days on the march toward home, when Tarzan paused, raised his head and sniffed the jungle air. "I sent the Waziri home," he said with a smile, "but evidently they did not obey me. They are still searching for us." Soon they encountered them, and great was the rejoicing of the faithful blacks when they found their master and mistress alive and unscathed. Greetings over, and Tarzan said: "Tell me what you did with the gold you took from the camp of the Europeans?"

"We hid it, O Bwana, where you told us," replied Usula. "I was not with you, Usula," said Tarzan, "it was another who deceived you, a man who so cleverly impersonated me that it is no wonder you were all imposed upon." Great was the joy of the simple blacks to find it was not their Bwana who had fled from Buto, the rhinoceros, and otherwise disgraced himself. Constructing litters for the women, the happy company marched in buoyant spirits toward the spot where the Waziri had cached the gold for Esteban.

Obituary

WILLIAM SMITH

William Smith died at Toronto last night at the age of 60 years. A native of England, Mr. Smith had been in Canada for a number of years and at one time resided in Millbrook district.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Joseph Morton of Oshawa, and three brothers Jack and Charles of Toronto and Harry of Saskatchewan.

The funeral is to be held from Duffus' Funeral Parlors here at 2 p. m. on Monday with interment at Lee's cemetery, 12th Line of Cavan. The remains will arrive on the noon C.N.R. train Monday.

GEORGE DEANNARD.

Taken ill while attending Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral on Tuesday morning, George Deannard, one of the oldest residents of the city, passed quietly away to-day at his home, 479 Donegal Street, at the age of 92 years.

Born in Prince Edward County, Mr. Deannard came to Peterborough County while still a young man, living for some years at Bridgenorth. Later, 46 years ago, he moved to this city, being employed at the Lock Works until he retired twenty years ago. He was well-known and highly respected throughout the city. His wife predeceased him more than twenty years.

Surviving are three children: Miss Elizabeth Deannard, teacher Ontario Institute for the Blind, Belleville, and Miss Mary Deannard at home, and Constable Jack Deannard of the city police force.

The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Monday from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral for Requiem Mass. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

State Pays Highest Honor—All Officials Will Wear Mourning for Month.

FUNERAL THURSDAY.

PARIS, May 7 (AP).—President Paul Doumer, slain by an assassin, will be buried on Thursday in the Panthcon beside Voltaire, Victor Hugo and Jean Jacques Rosseau.

The nation will give him its highest honors. There will be services in the cathedral of Notre Dame to which the cortege will proceed from the Elysee palace.

Flags already are at halfmast. Public buildings are draped in mourning, and all civil and military officials have been ordered to wear mourning for a month. To-day and on Thursday the state theatres will be closed.

In the room of the palace where the President lay in state to-day, a stream of dignitaries brought messages of the world's sympathy.

Premier Andre Tardieu issued a message to the people asking that with calm and dignity we render to the chief of state the only homage he would have wished.

Y.M. CAMPAIGN REACHES $3,322

470 Subscribers Contributed Canvassers Report.

NUMBER OF PROSPECTS.

Workers in the Y.M.C.A. financial campaign last evening reported $1,257 in additional subscriptions, bringing the total up to $3,322. This includes $530 personally subscribed by the members of the staff. While the report was considered creditable as coming from 470 subscribers, $4,700 is still required to reach the objective of $7,500 needed by the association for its year's work.

All the workers reported a number of prospects still uncanvassed. For this reason it was agreed unanimously to carry on the drive. The next report meeting was fixed for Tuesday evening at 6.15 at the "Y."

R. J. Goring's team reported $285 in subscriptions, 79 per cent of its objective. Charlie Cummer's division tops the divisional list with $342, while S. O. Shield's C.G.E. team realized the high total of 171 subscriptions for $271.

BERT TAYLOR WINS CLEAN-UP DOLLARS

Prizes For Identification Claimed on Eve of Final Day.

Bert Taylor, Jr., Chamberlen street, identified Mr. Clean-Up late Friday afternoon, and receives today then ten dollars that was offered as a prize in this little episode of the "Give a Man a Job" campaign this week.

As Mayor Denne emphatically stated at the special meeting of the council Thursday night it is altogether likely that municipal work will have to be provided before the present season is far advanced. It is with that prospect constantly on the horizon of late that every individual project, no matter how small, is a real help to the community.

The "Give a Man a Job" slogan expresses a serious necessity, and everybody knows it. Therefore, it is not The Examiner's responsibility, nor the merchants', nor the council, nor any one group of citizens. It rests on all, but especially on those who have the means to accept it and try to relieve the present conditions. The second week in May will be no different from the first, and if the people let this initiative curl up they will not be maintaining the robust spirit of Peterborough.

However, getting back to Bert Taylor, it is learned that the hunch as to the identity of Mr. Clean-Up first stirred in the imagination of Bert McLeod from reading the Mr. Clean-Up articles, and he advised young Taylor to get himself a receipted bill for a purchase of more than a dollar in goods and go through with the procedure, which he did. T. H. Theobald of The Examiner was "Mr. Clean-Up".

IN MEMORIAM.

CROSS.—In loving memory of John F. Cross, who died May 7th, 1931.

"He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed."

IN MEMORIAM

CROSS—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Jack Cross, who passed away May 7, 1931.

If all the world was mine to give I'd give it, yes, and more—
To see his loving smile again
And greet him at the door.
How oft there comes before me
His dear face, kind and true.
For death can never take away
Sweet memories, dear Jack, of you

ANNOUNCEMENT

Having acquired from F. T. Webster, O.L.S. the field notes, plans and records of the late Ontario Land Surveyor J. W. Fitzgerald, with whom I received my early professional training, and those of the late Ontario Land Surveyor A. J. Cameron, I wish to announce the opening of an office in Room 14, Bank of Commerce Building, Peterborough, Ontario, where I am prepared to continue the land surveying and engineering practice, which has been carried on for so many generations throughout this district by these land surveyors and their predecessors.

Through my recent connection with aerial surveying and mapping in the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, and as a great portion of the Peterborough District has been photographed from the air, I am in a position to make use of this latest and most valuable aid to the surveyor, in a more efficient consideration of the various surveying, engineering or municipal problems that may arise.

NEWS IN BRIEF

SHORT ITEMS RECEIVED OVER C. P. WIRE.

WOMAN FOUND DROWNED.

MILLERSBURG, O., May 9.—The body of an unidentified nude woman was found in a small stream 2 miles south-east of here early to-day. Her head had been crushed.

Evidence was found nearby, indicating that the woman, a brunette, about 30 years old, had been killed after a struggle.

HOLDUP IS FOILED

TORONTO, May 8 (C.P.)—Police to-day are searching for a bandit who last Saturday entered the office of a local shipping company and asked for £50 in English money. While the agent was at the till the man flashed a gun and ordered Eric Calladine, the senior partner of the business, to the cellar. Before he had a chance to rifle the register H. J. Baldry, junior partner, entered the office. Ignoring the gun Baldry called for help and the would-be robber fled without loot.

GERMANY SWEEPS SERIES.

BERLIN, May 9.—(A.P.)— Germany completed a clean sweep of its first round Davis Cup series with India to-day, winning the final two singles matches for a five-nothing victory.

Gottfried Von Cramm defeated Mohan 6-3, 8-6, 6-3 ,and D. Prenn disposed of Charanjiva 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Germany will meet Austria in the second round.

GERMAN REICHSTAG MEETS.

BERLIN, May 9.—(C.P.)— The Reichstag met to-day after a recess of ten weeks, but this time it will remain in session only four days, primarily to debate the budget.

There was a heavy police guard in the vicinity of the Reichstag building but there was no indication that disorders had been planned.

HALIFAX REDS RUMORED NEXT ON ARREST LIST

Number With Radical Leanings Been Under Surveillance for Months.

NINE FIGHT DEPORTATION.

HALIFAX, May 9 (C.P.).—With nine alleged Communists held for deportation hearings in the immigration shed here, Halifax to-day was in the mood to be startled by unofficial reports that Royal Canadian Mounted Police were preparing to arrest several citizens known to have radical leanings.

According to the Halifax Daily Star, a number of Halifax men have been under surveillance for months. Police, however, refused to comment.

Leopold To Testify.

Sergeant John Leopold, R.C.M.P., undercover worker, who was instrumental in convicting eight Communists at Toronto last November, is here to testify against these men, who are to be tried before a board of inquiry, headed by H. N. Munro, assistant commissioner of the Department of Immigration.

The Tribunal opened on May 4, but it is understood action has been delayed pending arrival of further instructions to the board from Ottawa.

The initial step in efforts to set aside deportation orders against the alleged Communists was taken by Lionel A. Ryan, Halifax barrister, who yesterday forwarded to the Minister of Immigration at Ottawa, a brief on behalf of Worebeck, whom he represents.

Defence Prepared.

Mr. Ryan's brief sets forth that charges against Worebeck, who was secretary-treasurer of Todowyrnazu, a "workers' benevolent association" of Montreal, were not substantiated in the evidence of Sergeant Leopold. There was no evidence to show that Worebeck advocated the overthrow of the Government by violence, or even that he was a member of the Communist Party. Mr. Ryan held. He never had attended meetings of the party, nor had he taken part in demonstrations.

HEADS CANADIAN INSTITUTE

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—John Patterson, director of the Toronto Meteorological Bureau, was elected president of the Royal Canadian Institute at the annual meeting held here over the week-end. Other officers elected were J. E. Thompson, first vice-president, and Professor J. W. Bain, second vice-president. All three are Torontonians.

SUNDAY'S DOUKHOBOR ROUND-UP ADDS 209 TO NELSON JAIL LIST

Nudists Found Parading in Orchard, Scene of Recent Battle With Police.

OFFER NO RESISTANCE.

NELSON, B.C., May 9 (C.P.). — Nelson Jail is crammed to the doors to-day following the biggest round-of nude Doukhobors staged by the police in years. The jail population was increased by 209 yesterday, and this number, added to the 118 already under sentence following the parade a week ago, yesterday taxed the capacity of the jail to the limit.

Those arrested yesterday were found parading in the same orchard at Thrums where the clash between nudists and police occurred a week ago. Of the prisoners, 90 were men, 52 were women, and 667 were children under 14 years of age. All will be charged with appearing in the nude in a public place.

Make No Protest.

The Doukhobors submitted to arrest without protest. Police simply surrounder them in the orchard and sent for trucks to take them to Nelson. As the trucks arrived, the nudists scrambled aboard voluntarily and truck load after truck load set off for the jail.

When the police encountered the nudists they were performing a religious ceremony, and had a table laid under the trees with bread and water on it. The nude men lined up on one side of the table and the women on the other. They chanted and talked while the officers

RADIO BROADCASTING REPORT RECOMMENDS ESTABLISHING NATIONALLY OWNED SYSTEM

Would Have Operation Directed by Paid Federal Commission of Three.

FEW DETAILS WORKED OUT

Chain of High Power Stations Across Dominion to Come if Scheme Adopted.

OTTAWA, May 9 (C.P.)—Canada will have a nationally-owned radio broadcasting system if the report tabled in the House of Commons this afternoon is implemented by Parliament. The report, presented by Hon. Dr. Raymond Morand (Cons., Essex East), and bearing the endorsement of the entire committee of nine members, recommends the establishment of a paid Federal Commission of three members, to direct the operations of the proposed new system, and the gradual acquisition or erection of such stations as will be necessary for complete coverage of all Canada.

The report, which was brief and left the working out of details to the commission, pays tribute to the present radio broadcasting stations in the following words: "They entered as pioneers in a field of service in the art of radio, and, under trying handicaps and sacrifices, worthily kept pace with a science fraught with ever-changing improvements and developments and rendered this service under handicaps, which is most praiseworthy."

Scope Too Limited

The committee expressed the belief, however, "that the present system, excellent as it is in certain respects, does not meet the requirements in quality and scope of broadcasting, to ensure its maximum benefits."

Highlights of the report are as follows:

Establishment of a chain of high power national stations located at suitable intervals across Canada, their exact position to be determined after a careful technical survey.

Appointments of a Federal commission of three, with assistant commissioners for each province, "to carry on the business of broadcasting."

Advertising to be limited to not more than five per cent. of each program period.

Location, where required and under private ownership if desired, of as many stations of 100 watts or under as may be deemed necessary for complete coverage.

Revenues.

All revenues from license fees and advertising to be expended in the interests of radio, and license fees to be fixed by the Governor-in-Council.

Thief Changes Mind Suddenly

DETROIT, May 9.—An automobile thief was driving blithely away in a stolen car today when there came a voice from the rear seat. "Police car stolen at Woodward and La Belle avenues," the voice said. "Watch for Highland Park police car going north on Woodward avenue. It was stolen from Officer Felmet when he left it to quell a disturbance."

Realizing for the first time he had blundered into a police car and was listening to a Broadcast appeal for his own arrest, the thief abandoned the car and fled—on foot.

Bolt Hits Plane; Pilot Saves 13

CROYDON, Eng., May 9 (C.P.).—The Imperial airway liner, Horatius, bound through the rain for Paris with 13 passengers, was struck by lightning to-day over the town of Tonbridge, but the pilot turned around and landed here safely.

The bolt blew out the cockpit windows, disabled the wireless aerial and damaged two of the four propellers. The uninjured passengers were transferred to another plane and took off again immediately.

Renewal Granted For German Debt

BASEL, Switzerland, May 9 (AP) directors of the Bank of International settlements to-day authorized a three months' renewal of the bank's one-fourth share in the $90,000,000 credit extended to Germany in conjunction with the Banks of England and France and the United States federal reserve. The credit would have expired on June 4.

A statement as of April 30 showed an increase in deposits from 608,000,000 Swiss francs to 620,000,000 in that month. At the end of 1931 the total deposits were 463,000,000 marks.

KOREAN SOCIETY PLANS TO SLAY JAPANESE HEADS

Fanatic Leader Admits Instigating Recent Shanghai Bomb Outrage.

PREDICTS MORE.

Nipponese Troops Begin Evacuation of Front Line Position.

SHANGHAI, May 9. — (AP) — Bomb attacks on Japanese leaders in Japan and Manchuria, similar to that which occurred in Hongkew Park here on April 29, were predicted today by a statement which emanated from the local Korean colony.

It purported to give the true explanation of the Hongkew bombing 10 days ago which resulted in the death of one high Japanese official and the injury of several others.

It was signed by Kim Koo, a local Korean, said to be head of the Korean Patriots Society. Kim said he was the instigator of the Hongkew bombing and that he wanted the world to know the truth so the Japanese would stop rounding up Korean residents of Shanghai for questioning.

He said he sent Yun Kil, a young Korean revolutionary to Hongkew Park that day with bombs and that the young man "achieved his purpose." Yun is now in the hands of the Japanese, he said, and "may be dead or alive."

Leaves Shanghai

Kim said he himself had left Shanghai before the statement was issued in his name, but he added:

"My life is dedicated to freeing my country. The Japanese are doing everything in their power to apprehend me, but my work continues. Our association seeks to kill Japanese civil and military leaders. There will be other affairs similar to that at Hongkew soon, both in Japan and Manyhuria."

The evacuation of the front lines by the Japanese, according to the terms of the armistice agreement signed last week, has begun and the troops withdrew from Liuho, Kating and Nanziang today. The town of Litien will be evacuated tomorrow.

Chinese police took over the territory as it was evacuated by the Japanese.

There was a strong belief that the forces which were being withdrawn were to be sent to Manchuria, but the Japanese maintained strict silence about their plans.

SENATOR GIRROIR DIES IN OTTAWA

SENATOR SINCE 1912.

OTTAWA, May 9 (C.P.).—Representative in Canada's Upper House of the French Acadians of Nova Scotia for the past 20 years, Hon. Edward Lavin Girroir, K.C., died on Sunday evening at his home here after a lingering illness. He was 60 years of age.

Senator Girroir was an outstanding member of the bars of Nova Scotia and Ontario for many years, and won his appointment to the Senate in 1912 by a distinguished career in law and business. Always a staunch Conservative, he unsuccessfully sought election to the House of Commons in 1900, 1905 and 1908. He was elected to represent Antigonish County in the Nova Scotia Legislature in 1911, and concluded his service there when he was summoned to the Senate the following year by the Borden administration.

The funeral will be held Wednesday from Blessed Sacrament Church, burial being made in Notre Dame Cemetery here.

Senator Girroir's death leaves three vacancies in the Senate, the other two having been caused by the death of Senator J. H. Legris, of Louiseville, Que., and the resignation of W. L. McDougald. The Government now has a majority, including the Speaker, of five, which will be raised to eight when the vacancies are filled. There are now 49 Conservative members and 44 Liberals.

Former President Of Beauharnois Takes Witness Box

R. O. Sweezey Reiterates His Statement Made To The Parliamentary Committee That $125,000 Paid John Aird Was For Conservative Party.

PAYMENT OF MONEY WAS NEVER MENTIONED TO FERGUSON OR MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET.

Sweezey Admits Efforts Were Made To Keep Payment A Secret As He Believed It Was Usual Custom—No Receipt Given.

TORONTO, May 9.—(CP)—Reiteration of his statement made to the parliamentary committee investigating the Beauharnois Power Corporation, that $125,000 was paid to John Aird Jr., of Toronto as a contribution to the campaign funds of the Conservative party in Ontario featured testimony of R. O. Sweezey, head of the Beauharnois Corporation, before the Royal Commission here today. The commission is investigating certain phases of the affairs of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission including the Aird payment of $125,000.

A. G. Slaght, K. C., independent counsel, was ruled out of order by Mr. Justice J. F. Orde when he intimated the Beauharnois Corporation had bought nearly $200,000 worth of government bonds in June, 1930, as further campaign fund contributions. "I cannot see what that has to do with the $125,000 payment to Mr. Aird," said His Lordship. "This Commission is investigating three things, and we cannot hold a general fishing expedition into the affairs of the Beauharnois Corporation."

Mr. Slaght objected to His Lordship's ruling, declaring he wished to show that more than the $125,000 was "intended for the Conservative party." However, His Lordship refused to allow further questioning along this line, and ruled Mr Slaght out of order.

Mr. Sweezey was on the witness stand all morning.

Aird's Suggestion.

According to Mr. Sweezey, Aird had suggested "we contribute something—which I took to mean a contribution to campaign funds."

Payment of the money had never been mentioned to G. Howard Ferguson, then Premier of Ontario, nor to any member of the Government. Mr. Sweezey admitted efforts had been made to keep the payment a secret, because: "I felt now this thing was all over we could make the contribution to Mr. Aird or his party." No receipt had been given for the bonds.

Witness could not recall whether Mr. Aird had visited his private room in a Toronto hotel the day the Order-in-Council was passed and the contract signed in order that he might be pointed out to Griffiths as the "man who was to receive the money." The meeting might have taken place, he said, but in any event the money was paid

ALL ARSENALS BEING GUARDED

Australia Acts Quickly as Rumors of Red Raid Plots Leak Out.

GUNS DISMANTLED.

CANBERRA, Aus., May 9 (Canadian Press Cable).—As a precautionary measure the government of Prime Minister Joseph Lyons today arranged for heavy guards over military arsenals in the Commonwealth, following reports that radical organizations were planning to raid depositories of guns and ammunition.

It was reported that Communists planned to seize military stores, rifles, machine guns and other weapons. A quantity of rifles and ammunition has already been stolen from military depots in Sydney, New South Wales, allegedly by Communists. It was expected that if such attempts were made the anti-Communist organization called the "new guard" which is also strongly opposed to the Labor Government in New South Wales and the extreme labor movement there, would attempt parallel measures.

While guards were installed today army details dismantled guns in storage as an additional precaution.

SENATOR ROBERTSON IMPROVES AFTER COLLAPSE AT GENEVA

Albert Thomas, Famous French Statesman, Passes in Paris, Sunday.

NOTED LABOR WORKER.

GENEVA, May 9 (C.P. Cable).—Senator Gideon Robertson, former Canadian Minister of Labor, was reported to-day to be improving following his collapse on Thursday evening. He hopes to be able to return to Canada with Mrs. Robertson on May 21.

The Canadian Senator, who was elected president at the opening of the World Labor Conference under the auspices of the League of Nations, and who headed the Canadian delegation to the conference, was stricken after attending a dinner with Albert Thomas, famous French Labor statesman and director of the International Labor Bureau. M. Thomas collapsed and died in Paris on Sunday, apparently from natural causes.

At first described as a nervous collapse and apoplexy, Senator Robertson's ailment is diagnosed as high blood pressure, a return of an old trouble. His health suffered as a result of his work at the Labor conference, and not long ago he was compelled to hand over the presidential duties to the vice-president.

Senator Robertson is rapidly improving and was allowed out of bed for an hour to-day. He has been in a clinic since Thursday night. Previously he had intended returning to Canada with his wife last Saturday.

Child Strangled By Skipping Rope

BOSTON, May 9. — Mary C. Troy, 7, was strangled to death last night when skipping with a rope at her home here.

The child had tied one end of the rope to a fence. Police believe she was attempting a difficult step when the cord became wrapped about her neck and she fell. Firemen and police worked over the body with a pulmotor for an hour without success after the tragedy had been discovered.

400 MANCHURIAN REBELS DIE IN CLASH WITH JAPS

TOKYO, May 9.—(A.P.)— Four hundred Manchurian rebels were reported killed in two battles with Japanese forces in Northern Manchuria to-day, despatches to the Rengo News Agency from Harbin said.

Seven of the rebels were said to be Russians, probably "White" Russians.

The Japanese lost 18 dead.

General Nakamura's Japanese brigade occupied Fengcheng after a two day battle against a force of 5,000 rebels who retreated westward in disorder, leaving 300 dead on the field.

JAMES JUBY IS NEW PRESIDENT OF ROTARIANS

His Election and That of Dr. A. Moir as Vice-President Are Announced To-day.

IMPROVING THE CITY.

The election of James Juby as president, and Dr. A. Moir as vice-president of the Peterborough Rotary Club was announced by President R. F. Downey at to-day's luncheon of the club. The new officers will take office at the end of June.

The speaker to-day was Rotarian R. G. Kingan, and the veteran businessman unfolded his own "five-year plan" for the betterment of Peterborough. Pointing out that there was no place in which it was better to live than this city with its beautiful surroundings, its fine climate with no cyclones or tornadoes, its fish and game resources, its fine chain of lakes and rivers, Rotarian Kingan suggested many ways in which he believed conditions could be improved locally.

In the first place he advocated a commission form of municipal government. "I am not casting any reflection on the present mayor and council," said Mr. Kingan. "I believe them to be the best we have had, but the principle of choosing our civic government is wrong. The duties of carrying on municipal business should be entrusted to a commission of business men."

The speaker passed on to stress the necessity of developing tourist trade, which already left than thousands of dollars here each summer and could be developed. He advocated keeping the stores open each day except Sunday, closing at 6 o'clock on Saturday night, and doing away with daylight saving time. Better parking facilities for the benefit of farmers and tourists were also a necessity.

Peterborough should press for such improvements, suggested Mr. Kingan, as a permanent bridge across Chemong Lake, an overhead bridge at the locks, eliminating

LAKEFIELD MAN CRUSHED BY CAR

REMOVED TO HOSPITAL.

LAKEFIELD, May 9. — Pinned against the wall of his garage after he had cranked his automobile in gear about 8.15 a.m. to-day, Fred S. Brown, proprietor of the Brown Canoe Company, suffered injuries which were apparently quite serious and required his removal shortly afterward to the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

The car with its engine running crushed Mr. Brown against the rear wall, holding him as in a vice. His cries for help reached the home of Mrs. Nathan Payne next door, and as her daughter, Mrs. Dora McMillen went out to see who was calling. By that time Mr. Brown had freed himself, and was just starting to cross the lawn, staggering and bleeding from bruises and cuts.

Helped Into House.

Mrs. MacMillen and Mrs. Payne helped him into the house, and called Dr. Alex Fraser, whose first examination discovered injuries which immediately suggested Mr. Brown's removal to the hospital. At that time this morning it was not known how seriously he was hurt, but Dr. Fraser's action indicated a condition that has caused anxiety among Mr. Brown's many friends in Lakefield.

It is not known how long he was held against the wall of the garage, but it was quite evidently a harrowing and very painful experience. Mr. Brown is believed to have been in hurry when he started to crank his automobile, and forgot to make certain that the gears were in neutral. He is a comparatively young man in his early forties, and is widely known in the city of Peterborough and throughout the county.

On inquiry at one-thirty this afternoon The Examiner was unable to ascertain the exact nature of Mr. Brown's injuries, although it was stated they were regarded as serious. Dr. G. S. Cameron is the attending surgeon.

HERRIOT, FORMER PREMIER, IS LIKELY TO STEP INTO POWER UPON TARDIEU'S RESIGNATION

LEFTISTS, 100 MAJORITY.

Policy of New Government Rouses Widespread Speculation.

PARIS, May 9 (C.P. Cable)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, bulky leader of the Radical-Socialist, is the man of the hour.

The French general elections, concluded yesterday with voting in the second ballot, placed the Radical-Socialists—the Liberals of the French Chamber of Deputies — in the driver's seat in the new Chamber which meets on June 1.

Question of Moment.

The general elections showed a swing to the Left comparable to that of 1924, which resulted in a ministry headed by Herriot and supported by the Left Cartel, a combination of Radical-Socialists and the more extreme Socialists of Leon Blum. Whether the Left Cartel will again operate is still problematical. If it is again established, the ministry it still supports might be expected to follow a foreign policy of greater conciliation than that of the Republican Governments of the last few years.

The alternative, a government of moderate concentration, would be supported by the groups of the centre and by the Radical-Socialists, who are on the left centre of the Chamber, and might even include elements of the present min-

Canberra Moves To Block Reds

CANBEERRA, Aus., May 9.—(C.P.).—The Government moved swiftly to-day to place a heavy guard over military arsenals when information was received that radical organizations were planning to raid depositories of guns and munitions.

The report was that Communists, acting in concert with a Fascist organization which calls itself the new guard, planned to seize military stores, rifles, machine guns and other weapons. While the guard stood watch to-day army details dismantled the guns in storage as an additional precaution.

PERUVIAN NAVY SEIZED BY REDS

Submarine Fires Four Shots and Rebels Surrender After Weak Demonstration.

ARMY CALLED OUT.

LIMA, Peru, May 9 (A.P.) — The Peruvian Navy was quiet to-day after a short-lived Communist revolution yesterday, which was quelled by four shots from a submarine's guns.

The whole revolution took place in the port of Callao, near here. The Communists seized the only two cruisers in the navy and for a while the situation seemed so serious that a state of siege was declared, under which the army and the rest of the navy were called into action against the rebels.

Almost the entire population of Callao gathered on the docks to watch the battle in the harbor. There was much manoeuvring. Four submarines and a destroyer hemmed the cruisers in and airplanes flew overhead, dropping first messages and then a few bombs.

Sub. Ends Revolt

One of the cruisers ran up the Red flag and fired twice at the nearest submarine. The submarine replied with four shots, two in the air and two on aim. One of the latter struck a gasoline tank.

That ended the revolt. The revels ran up the White flag. They were arrested and thrown in jail, amid great hurrahs for the government of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro from the crowds on the docks.

A naval war council was called to start proceedings against the mutineers. Punishment is usually death.

PREMIER MACDONALD IS MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

King Sends Flowers, and Premier Bennett Message of Sympathy.

LONDON, May 9. (C.P.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, whose right eye was operated on last Thursday, continues to make good progress. He will be unable to leave his bed at a west end nursing home, however, for another two weeks at least.

His Majesty sent flowers to the Prime Minister yesterday, while a message of sympathy was received from Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada.

DOUMER'S POST SOUGHT BY TWO

Painleve, Former Premier, Will Be Opposed by Senate President Le Brun.

ELECTION TUESDAY.

PARIS, May 9 (A.P.)—Two candidates to succeed President Paul Doumer, who was assassinated Friday were officially or unofficially in the running to-day.

The election is to be held at Versailles tomorrow. Paul Painleve, former Premier, was being pressed by his friends to be a candidate. Albert Le Brun, President of the Senate, presented his candidacy formally yesterday.

The new President will be chosen by a joint session of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate. M. Painleve was in communication with Edouard Herriot, leader of the Radical Socialists who emerged victorious from yesterday's election, and his friends said Herriot had promised his support.

Thousands of Parisians filed by the Elysee Palace to pay tribute to the dead President. After lying in state until Thursday morning, the body will be taken to Notre Dame Cathedral for fumeral services and then to the Pantheon for burial among the nation's heroes.

Clues to Information.

Detectives of the Surete Generale said they believed important information on Paul Gorgulov, the assassin, might be secured by questioning two men with whom they said he was associated closely here. One of these was M. Javkoleff, editor of the anti-Soviet paper, "Nabat,"-"The Tocsin."

Gorgulov, they said, had printed a booklet outlining his anti-Soviet program, leading to a "Green party" dictatorship in Russia, to be headed by him. He outlined the organization of the proposed new government, described the uniforms for its army and ended with an appeal for war, foreign or civil, as the only way to save the Russian refugees.

The Soviet Government sent its sympathy through its ambassador, Valerian Dovgolevsky. The note, forwarded to Premier Tardieu, said the Soviet Union had been "deeply affected by the abominable outrage." The crime provoked "unanimous indignation" in Russia, it said.

HYDRO INQUIRY RESUMES TODAY

Sweezey, H. B. Griffith, Loring, Christie Expected to be on Week's Witness List.

UNDER JUSTICE ORDE.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.).—The Hydro investigation resumed today. After a two weeks' adjournment because Mr. Justice J. F. Orde, Royal Commissioner, had been unable to appear owing to pressure of other business, the inquiry opened this morning.

Three phases of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission's dealings are being investigated. They are: The payment of $125,000 to John Aird, Jr., by the Beauharnois Power Corporation, the payment of $50,000 to Mr. Aird by the Hydro Commission for his part in helping negotiate the Madawaska power purchase, and the paymen by the Hydro of $22,000,000 for the Dominion Power and Transmission Company of Hamilton.

W. N. Tilley, K.C., is acting as counsel for the Royal Commission, while A. G. Slaght, K.C., is acting for the independent investigators. The court room at Osgoode Hall was crowded to-day when Mr. Justice Orde ascended the bench.

Tfils week's witnesses are expected to include R. O. Sweezey, former head of the Beauharnois Corporation, Hugh B. Griffith, secretary-treasurer, and Loring Christie, a director.

U. S. LEGATION SECRETARY DROPPED FROM SERVICE

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Christion Gross, Chicago, second secretary of the United States legation at Ottawa, who has been absent from his post without leave for many months, has been dropped from the diplomatic service.

The announcement, made Saturday by the State Department, gave no explanation except that Gross "separated from the service May 8, 1932."

He was granted leave in November, 19931, to go to Chicago, his home, to be present at a court case in which he was judged the father of the youngest child of his former wife and that the child could participate in a $1,000,000 trust fund of which he was executor.

MASSIES LEAVE HONOLULU PORT DODGING POLICE

PARTY ESCAPES TO CABIN.

Darrow Expected to Start Mass Meetings Urging Full Pardon.

HONOLULU, May 9. (AP)—Mrs. Thalia Massie and others who became enmeshed in Honolulu's episode of tragedy and crime, have left Hawaii with tumult, tears and anger marking their departure.

With Honolulu police seeking to serve her with a subpoena, Mrs. Massie, her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, were put aboard the liner Malolo Sunday by a naval submarine tender and with the aid of a high naval officer who held police at bay.

The police had sought to serve Mrs. Massie with a formal summons to appear at the scheduled retrial of four men accused of attacking her last September. She was unwilling to proceed with the case in view of the outcome of its sequel, that in which Mrs. Fortesque, Massie and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, navy enlisted men, were convicted of the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai.

Mrs. Fortescue and the three navy men were convcited of manslaughter but went free when their sentences were commuted by Gov. Lawrence M. Judd.

Inevitable Ceremony

This departure of the principals and their attorneys, Clarence Darrow and George S. Leisure, was perhaps the strangest ever witnesse on Honolulu's waterfront, with its inevitable "aloha" ceremony for every passenger ship.

The piers were crowded, reports to the police hunt for Mrs. Massie since yesterday having heightened the already intense public interest. The Royal Hawaiian band was playing on the pier and leis of flowers were piled high on the shoulders of departing individuals.

Almost unnoticed, the submarine tender from Pearl Harbor naval station 12 miles away edged up beside the big liner. Mrs. Fortescue appeared on its deck. Then came bluejackets with Lieut. Massie's dog "Chris," and an assortment of baggage. Lieut. and Mrs. Massie then emerged, accompanied by Capt. Ward K. Wortman, commander of the submarine base, to which Massie had been attached.

The party stepped into a cargo port of the Malolo. Subpoena in hand, Dewey Mookini, a Honolulu policeman stood there waiting for Mrs. Massie.

The Captain Aids

Capt. Wortman lowered his heavy shoulders and collided with Mookini while Mrs. Massie darted up a corridor to her stateroom.

"I shall report you to your superior officer," Wortman stormed.

"You assaulted me!" shouted the policeman.

Wortman, panting, thrust Mookini against a wall while Mrs. Massie got into her stateroom and Mrs. Fortescue followed. Mookini wiggled away, pushed the door open and tried to read it to Mrs. Massie. The door slammed shut in his face.

His shoulders piled high with leis, Darrow went to the stateroom and conferred with Mrs. Fortescue and the Massies. On emerging he said the subpoena had not been served.

Their sailing left none of the lynching case principals in Honolulu, Jones and Lord, the enlisted men, having sailed yesterday on San Francisco bound destroyers.

Mrs. Massies departure was generally interpreted as putting and end to the attack case retrial.

After the ship sailed it became known that Darrow was considering a series of mass meetings, the first to be in San Francisco, with the idea of bringing pressure upon Gov. Judd to give Mrs. Fortescue and the convicted navy men a full pardon.

SLIDES IN LYONS HIT TENEMENTS, 38 ARE MISSING

Twelve Injured Are Removed Before Rescuers Are Ordered to Safety.

HERRIOT BARELY ESCAPES

Heavy Rains in District Blamed for Tragedy—Subsoil Undermined.

LYONS, France, May 9 (A.P.) — Thirty-eight persons were believed to be buried to-day under landslides which swallowed up two apartment houses in the outskirts of Lyons. Most of them were thought to be dead.

Twelve injured were removed from the debris before rescuers were ordered away by Edouard Herriot, the mayor and former premier, who himself escaped death from another slide only by leaping to safety.

Rescuers Brave Death

The rescue parties returned to the ruins, however, after cries were heard coming from the wreckage. In spite of the danger of further slides, they worked feverishly. At midnight they discovered a woman, pinned by a beam. She said she was not hurt. She was given stimulants, however, and later removed and taken to a hospital.

Explosions and fires preceded the slides. The first occurred at 9 a.m., while many of the residents of the apartment buildings were still asleep. It cracked the gas mains. The fire department responded to an alarm and removed the first twelve persons before the second and larger slide tumbled down, crushing both buildings.

Herriot Intervenes

Fire Chief le Rossignol was dragged to safety just in time to escape the second slide. His leg was broken. M. Herriot, whose party emerged victor in the national elections yesterday, leaped to the top of the ruins when firemen failed to obey his request to leave. Engineers had predicted a new collapse of the walls. "Do you want to be killed?" he shouted. He himself jumped just in time to escape the crash. Later he left for Paris when the election returns showed his party was winning.

About one hundred persons were killed in a similar landslide on Fourviere Hill here in November, 1930. The slide to-day was blamed on heavy rains and melting snows which undermined the subsoil in the hilly districts.

PLENTY INVESTMENT MONEY

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—Business propositions in Canada and other Dominions are being investigated with a view to interesting British capital in the development of the Empire's natural resources, by Major Gordon C. Home, of the Empire Development Association of London, visiting here.

"There is plenty of British capital to be invested in the Dominions if the propositions offered are sound," Mr. Home said in an interview. Major Home leaves Toronto to-night for Ottawa.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR BABY HAVE TAKEN A NEW TURN

Much Activities Noticed Aboard Sea-going Yacht Marcon.

NORFOLK, Va., May 9. (CP)—Some new turn in negotiations for the recovery of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was indicated to-day by the creation of activities aboard the sea-going yacht, Marcon and a supposed week-end plane trip by the negotiators.

The plane flight was presumably made by John Hughes Curtis, the principal negotiater, and Lieut. George L. Richard, naval officer, since Friday night when the Marcon returned from her latest cruise out to sea. Col. Charles A. Lindburgh was also believed to have left the naval base by plane.

OFFICIALS GUARDED

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, May 9 (A.P.)—The League of Nations' enquiry commission was on its way from here to Harbin to-day, with an extra guard aboard the train to protect the investigators from bandit attacks.

500 LIVES LOST IN INDO CHINA

Hurricane Wrecks Railroads and Wipes Out Towns and Farm Homes.

FLOOD FOLLOWS.

HANOI, French Indo-China, May 9 (A.P.)—Five hundred lives were lost in a hurricane which sewpt in from the China Sea across the southern end of the State of Annam last Wednesday, reports reaching here to-day said.

Several Europeans were included in the death list, the reports said.

The storm struck most furiously at the town of Phanthiet, 75 miles east of Saigon, capital of French Cochin-China, and Bangoy, 30 miles farther along the coastal railway. Communication were wrecked throughout the stricken area and accurate information was difficult to obtain.

It was learned, however, that the storm had ripped up railways, bridges, roads and farms along the 30-mile stretch; the town of Cana and Dran were wiped out by the wind and the European population of Cana was without shelter.

Troops were ordered out to repair the railway and re-establish communications.

The hurricane was followed by flood, the reports said.

DANCING WITH 240 LBS.

Huge Man Lively as a Cricket

WILL HE KEEP HIS WEIGHT?

Ladies, how would you like to dance with a man weighing 240 lbs.? Men, could you dance at all if you carried that load? Well, here's a man who does. And he dances with a sprightliness that everyone marvels at. But the point that most interests us is: Can he keep such activity and keep his weight too? We will warrant he cannot. We will forecast that in a few months' time he will be very many pounds lighter. All fat people will say the same. What they will want to know is where our fat friend found such amazing energy. His letter tells us:—"I am compelled to mail you these few lines to tell you how wonderful Kruschen Salts is—I must term it a real magic medicine. I was suffering from indigestion for years. I could not even take a drink of spirits, and had to forsake the best of meals. Now I can eat and drink anything without that disagreeable heartburn. Then it makes me feel so lively. I am weighing 240 lbs., and you should see how light I move in a dance hall. It is a wonderful thing to everyone who sees a man of my size performing all the new steps in such a fashion, and never get tired. And next morning I can turn to my work quite fit, thanks to the help of Kruschen."—F. G. M.

This is what Kruschen Salts does—it cleans out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape, and fills you with vigor and energy. As a result, instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate, you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition. Then, before very long the fat you don't want, and don't need, starts to go.

FLOATING POWER

"NOBODY ELSE HAS IT!"

"That's why I urge you to take a Floating Power Ride," says Walter P. Chrysler.

MAKE no mistake about it. We've got something in Floating Power. Something new. Something sensational. Something that you must know about.

That's why I'm so anxious to have you take a Floating Power Ride this week.

Pick any one of these four cars you prefer—Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge or Chrysler. They all have Floating Power.

You won't find Floating Power in any other car, no matter what others may say or claim.

There's a world of difference in the smoothness, the driving ease, the riding qualities of a Floating Power car and the ordinary automobile.

Why, the miles just float away! They're the smoothest, the swiftest, the sweetest miles you've ever traveled.

Floating Power makes any car that hasn't got it out-of-date. Just take a Floating Power Ride this week and see.

Don't confuse Floating Power with Free Wheeling or any other transmission feature. Our four Floating Power cars have Free Wheeling, too, along with Easy-Shift, Silent-Second Transmission and Automatic Clutch.

Floating Power is the BIG thing in automobile development today. And it's exclusive to Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler cars.

In no other car will you find the engine mounted as in these four cars. Mounted at only two points so that the engine absorbs its own vibration. Mounted in such a way that not the slightest power tremor can reach the frame or body.

I urge you to learn what Floating Power is. To find out what it does. I can't tell you in words. But I can invite you to take a Floating Power Ride. And I do.

You'll Never Forget Your Floating Power Ride! Take It This Week!

To be up-to-date in motoring matters, you must know about Floating Power. Everybody is talking about it. You will, too, after enjoying a Floating Power Ride.

For a surprise and a thrill, call on any Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge or Chrysler dealer and tell him you want a Floating Power Ride. Or, if you prefer, ride with a friend who owns a Floating Power car. Let the car speak for itself.

"MR. CHRYSLER is right when he says that any car without Floating Power is out-of-date. You'll say so yourself after you've taken a Floating Power Ride. With all our dealers, I invite you to do so this week."

At the home of Mrs. A. D. McLeish, Lock Street, a delightful talent tea was held on Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the South-End Sewing Circle of St. Paul's Church. Small Shirley Jeffries made a dainty and efficient door attendant, while the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Harvey, received the many guests who attended during the afternoon. Mrs. J. Carter and Mrs. F. D. Armstrong poured tea, which was served by Mrs. F. Finnie, Mrs. A. Mackness and Mrs. T. Kay. The treasurer was Mrs. R. Higgins. The kitchen and home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. J. E. Haggart and Mrs. T. Wilson. Mrs. W. Young ushered the guests into the tea-room. The rooms were tastefully decorated with Spring flowers. The tea-table looked lovely with an Irish Cluny cloth, centered with a silver vase holding daffodils and antirrhinum, while bud vases holding similar flowers were placed at the corners of the table, and pink candles were in silver holders. During the afternoon the company were entertained to a musical program. Mr. Alick Robertson played a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Mildred Hetherington at the piano. Miss Ann Young delighted the company with a reading, and Miss K. Robertson played a piano solo.

Mrs. C. O'Conor-Fenton was in Port Hope on Saturday, attending the annual reception of the Cadet Corps of Trinity College School by Brigadier-General G. R. Cartwright of Toronto, as well as the gymnastic display which took place on the same afternoon. There were many out-of-town visitors from Montreal, Toronto, and smaller points, who were entertained at luncheon and tea in the dining-hall, by the Headmaster, the Rev. F. Graham Orchard, D.D., and Mrs. Orchard.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In a news note the other day there was an item stating that money had been appropriated to educate the housewife in regard to the use of the more inexpensive cuts of meat.

• • • • • • •

That may strike you as odd. Usually producers are supposed to prefer to sell their more expensive products. Here we find no mention of stimulating the buying of the higher-priced meats.

• • • • • • •

This is for the very good reason that there are much in demand. One of the reasons for this is that they are easy to cook and many of them are quick to cook.

• • • • • • •

The less expensive cuts come from the portion of the animal in which the muscles are used a great deal and consequently the muscle fibre has hardened.

• • • • • • •

These cuts have the advantage of a high flavor to which the constant flow of the blood to the used muscles has contributed. This is a great advantage, as these meats which must be cooked in a certain amount of water a long time can afford to lose some of it.

• • • • • • •

It is not actually lost, as what the meat loses the liquid gains and as this is always served with the meat the full amount of flavor is retained.

• • • • • • •

There are many perfectly delicious dishes which can be prepared from these less expensive and less tender cuts. They are not hard to cook, they merely take time unless you have a pressure cooker which reduces the time to almost nothing in excess of that needed for the tender cuts.

• • • • • • •

Here are a couple of ways in which to prepare inexpensive cuts of meat.

• • • • • • •

For Mock Duck, take 2 pounds thin round steak; 4 cups bread stuffing and water or milk. Spread the meat with the stuffing. Roll and tie or skewer together. Dredge with flour, salt and pepper and sear in fat until golden brown.

• • • • • • •

Place in a baking dish and add water or milk to half cover. Cook until tender in a slow oven about half an hour. Thicken the liquid according to the method for gravy.

• • • • • • •

For Veal Birds, choose thin pieces of veal steaks cut 4 by 2 inches. Spread with bread stuffing and roll. Fasten with toothpicks and follow directions for mock duck.

• • • • • • •

For bread stuffing use 4 cups soft bread crumbs; salt and pepper, 1 chopped onion, sage or other herb; ¼ cup melted fat and water.

FRATRICIDE

Murder, of course, in all civilized communities, is regarded as a major crime. It is deprecated by press and pulpit and society. When brother kills brother, the offense seems greatly aggravated.

This, however, is not an essay, such as De Quincey wrote, on "Murder as a Fine Art." It is a serious discussion of a situation which sometimes arises at the Bridge table, in which the wily Declarer uses one of his opponents as the means by which the other wittingly or not "murders" his partner's hand and makes defense impossible through the application of what is sometimes described as the reverse squeeze.

This hand was sent to me by Mr. Paul B. Galer of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. That little city is a very hotbed of Contract and Mr. Galer, as well as others there, need not fear the results when faced with the stiffest possible competition.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

After passes by South and West, North opened the bidding with a club, and when South responded with one notrump North immediately raised the contract to three notrump. Against this contract West, probably mistakenly, opened a spade, and when the Dummy went down, South took stock of his trick-taking certainties and possibilities. He could see one spade trick, two heart tricks, four diamonds and one club. This is one short of the contract. It was true the ninth trick might be developed by a successful finesse in clubs, but that plan of play would certainly fail if the finesse did not win and if West held originally five spades. South was a contract strategist of no mean order. Winning the spade with the Knave, he then cashed four tricks in diamonds, hoping to gain a little information from the discards.

West followed three times and discarded a small heart. East discarded a spade and a club. Now South refused to risk his game by trying the club finesse. He decided to use West as the lever by which to pry East loose from any defense he might be able to put up.

South led a spade and West quite gleefully won the trick. He not only won that trick but took in succession two others seemingly blissfully unaware of his partner's anguish.

After the eighth trick was played, the situation was as follows:

West led the spade 2, North played the club 9, but East was squeezed. To discard a club would make both clubs in the Dummy good; to discard the heart was exactly as bad. East could no longer defend the hand. It is, of course, apparent that had West refused to continue spades after winning the sixth trick with the Ace, then South could not have made his contract as he would have been forced to rely upon a finesse which would fail or the establishment of a low-card trick in the heart suit. This also would not have worked. However, it is rather hard, even in view of the fatal results which followed West's taking of his established tricks, to blame him too severely. He had no entry and he knew also that his partner held no more spades, otherwise South would not have been willing to throw him in the lead. Hoping that his partner could develop the setting trick, he decided to win the others himself. There was one thing that should have made him suspicious and that was South's willingness to surrender the lead to him. Perhaps we have here the clue that should have guided him and thus prevented the crime of fratricide.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: What does Opening bid of one in a suit say to partner?

Answer: Partner, I have a minimum of 2-½ honor-tricks, at least a four-card suit and can take about 4 tricks.

ACTRESS WEDS ENGLISH LORD

Adele Astaire Enters Noble Family as Lady Cavendish.

QUIET CEREMONY.

BAKEWELL, Derbyshire, Eng., May 9 (A.P.)—Adele Astaire, stage favorite on both sides of the Atlantic, became a member of one of England's most notable families today, when she was married to Lord Charles Cavendish.

The wedding took place by special license, in the private chapel of Chatsworth House, the ancestral home of the bridegroom's parents, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. Only members of the family attended.

Their engagement was announced last October. Last March Lord Cavendish submitted to an operation for appendicitis.

It was the firts marriage ceremony ever to be held in the historic little sanctuary on one of the upper floors of the great house.

Choristers in white surplices sang softly, "O Perfect Love," and the Duke's chaplain pronounced the words which united the couple.

The Duke and the Duchess, the Marchioness of Hartington, and the bridegroom's sisters, with their husbands, were present.

Inverlea

Old Inverlea, so dear to me,
I never shall forget
The happy hours I spent o'er there
I never will regret.

Carry me back to Inverlea
Back where I long to be,
'Mid birds and flowers
I spent happy hours,
At dear old Inverlea.

In days gone by, many years ago,
When I was very young,
I sat upon the river banks
Gazing at the rippling waters,
Bubbling in the sun.

My tale it is a sad one,
That I have to tell,
For youth it will not last, you see,
And life is but a dream.

—Mrs. W. A. Saxby.

Handy Recipes

By Edith Barber

RICE CROQUETTES WITH PEAS

½ cup rice
¼ cup boiling water
1 cup scalded milk
1 teaspoon salt
Yolks 2 eggs
1 tablespoon butter.

Wash rice. Steam with water and salt until rice has absorbed water. Add milk, stir lightly with a fork, cover and steam until rice is soft. Remove from fire, add egg yolks and butter; spread on a plate to cool. Shape in balls, roll in crumbs, then shape in form of nests. Dip in egg, again in crumbs, fry in deep fat and drain. Fill with buttered peas and serve with a cream sauce.

THE SUBWAY PLAN.

Having regard to all the circumstances, the action of the County Council in endorsing a proposal for the construction of a subway under the railway tracks at Norwood will meet with general approval.

To merely replace the washed-out bridge would be a mistake, while the cost of an overhead bridge would make such an undertaking impossible.

The subway plan is by all odds the soundest proposition that the Council could consider, for it will eliminate a very dangerous grade crossing and at the same time provide a considerable amount of employment, the estimate being that 100 men will find jobs.

As to the financing of the enterprise, the burden so far as the county is concerned will be a comparatively light one, inasmuch as there is no doubt that the work will be assisted from the grade crossing fund, with the result that out of a total expenditure of some $65,000 or $70,000 the county's share will be in the neighborhood of only $8,000.

With at least 80 per cent. of the labor to be secured locally, the construction of the subway will be of material assistance as a means of dealing with unemployment, and on that ground alone will be worthy of support.

THE BOARD REORGANIZED.

The reorganization of the Liquor Control Board, made possible by the retirement of Sir Henry Drayton, the chairman, and W. B. Dingman, director of permits, brings about a saving that will be appreciated in this period of enforced retrenchment.

Henceforth the board will be a two-man affair, with Stewart McClenaghan, ex-M.P., as chief commissioner, and Judge McNamara as deputy commissioner, and the salary list will be lightened to the extent of the $20,000 formerly paid Sir Henry Drayton and the $6,000 received by Mr. Dingman—a total saving of $26,000 a year, which, in view of present conditions, will be accepted as entirely desirable.

Mr. McClenaghan has been associated with the work of the board since it was organized, and in view of his experience and his record, there is no reason to fear that there will be any slackness in the Government control system which, thanks to wise direction, is generally recognized as being on a sounder footing in this Province than in any other part of the Dominion.

Under the two-man commission the public will look for the policies of Mr. Hanna and Sir Henry Drayton to be carried on in the same spirit as in the past, and that any effort to bring about a relaxation in the regulations or the manner in which they are administered will meet with a chilly reception from the commissoners.

MR. MACAULAY'S CAMPAIGN.

The action of Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Provincial Minister of Highways, in declaring war on motorists who persist in driving with only one headlight or whose headlights are blindingly bright would be more appreciated were it not for the fact that similar warnings in the past have not been followed up and as a result no improvement in the conditions was effected.

However, Mr. Macaulay, who points out that faulty or glaring headlights have been responsible for many motor accidents, talks as if he meant business, and if his statement results in a Province-wide campaign against offending motorists he will have the support of everybody who realizes just how necessary it is to have such menaces to traffic safety eliminated.

In the matter of glaring headlights, as well as of other dangerous practices, many motorists have been inclined to take a chance, noticing that the authorities have not shown any tendency to enforce the traffic regulations vigorously.

For example, in one city block the other night three automobiles with only one headlight burning were noticed, and "one-eyed" cars are to be seen on every highway, while cases of glaring lights are even more prevalent.

Mr. Macaulay is entirely justified in declaring that those conditions must disappear, and it is to be hoped that his instructions will be explicit enough to make sure that the campaign will bring about an improvement.

DON'T CUT ADVERTISING NOW.

"Advertising is the life blood of an institution if properly handled," believes Richard P. Chapman, successful United States independent retailer, who has doubled his business during the past ten years in spite of chain-store competition.

Advertising should be the last expenditure cut and the first to be increased, is the advice that he gives in an article in the Rotarian magazine to merchants trying to meet present-day conditions.

"This does not mean that all advertising is good," he declares. "Neither does it mean that any form of advertising will continue to produce in the future simply because it has produced in the past.

"In the careful consideration of all factors which affect the future of good business, the merchant can well afford to devote considerable time to the study of advertising. In many cases it has been used as a shovel to heave out unwanted goods instead of as a spoon to feed the customer desired merchandise.

"All types of advertising must be studied constantly in an effort to ascertain that which serves to best advantage in acquainting the store and its merchandise with the prospective customer in its trade territory.

"The amount to be spent," he continues, "should be determined as part of a fixed expense budget. Authorities vary as to the proper amount, but it generally runs from two to five per cent of sales. Once this amount is determined, it should not be arbitrarily spread over the entire year, but kept liquid to take advantage of either increase or decrease in volume as the year progresses.

"Money available for advertising should be carefully fitted to the mediums best suited both to the business and to the amount allotted. A program should then be laid out far enough in advance to permit the purchasing of merchandise and the correlating of it with advertising, the display windows, and the interior displays. If followed carefully, this plan gives advertising a real message and it will produce. Profits are made by advertising, but not all advertising is profitable."

A FINE EXAMPLE.

A fine example of the spirit that ought to prevail in the Canadian Parliament in an emergency like that through which Canada is passing at the present time was given by the Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce in the former King Government. When the trade treaty with New Zealand was before the House, Mr. Malcolm frankly declared that the agreement in connection with the automobile industry was excellent, and that a number of the provisions were very advantageous. He complimented Mr. Stevens on the successful conclusion of the negotiations. Frank commendation of this character, combined with suggestions for strengthening the treaty, is exactly what might be expected of a former Minister of Mr. Malcolm's integrity and ability.

Why should not the New Zealand treaty be praised, even by the opponents of the Government, if it opens avenues of trade for Canadian export? There has been a very general feeling throughout Canada that the present session of the Federal House at Ottawa has spent too much of its time in manoeuvring for partizan advantage in the debates. There have been charges, and recriminatory charges, hurled across the House by both parties. The spectacle has not been one calculated to inspire confidence in the people's representatives. In the meantime, Canadians, without respect to political affiliations, have been anxious to see the legislators at Ottawa give constructive leadership, and point the way for Canada's recovery of national prosperity. The attitude of the Hon. Mr. Malcolm is to be particularly commended.—Brantford Expcsitor.

THEY MUST MAKE A DECISION.

There was trouble enough at Sudbury on May Day. There is a fairly large foreign population in that city, and plans were made for a parade. The parade and the fighting seem to have started about the same time. Reports state that the reason for the clash was that the communists in parade refused to carry a Union Jack as called for by a civic by-law. We doubt very much whether such a by-law is desirable. Communists do not subscribe to the principles of the Union Jack at all; they are actually determined that they will do away with it. To try and force a crowd to carry the national flag under such circumstances is paying small tribute to the Union Jack. The flag of the nation is in itself only a thing made by hands. Its real strength is in the degree to which the people believe in it. To make it float over a parade of those who hate it is a false gesture from any angle.

It is interesting to note the names of those who were arrested following the May Day fight in Sudbury. This is the list: Mike Kostaniuk, M. Kostivetti, John Daco, Mike Lipponan, Sam Yurschuk, Alex Hezak, Harry Sewchuk, Stanley Krewizer, Alex Aniuk, Alex Antonvich, Miss Timi Hetaknen, Joe Lukezeck, Waino Leisenan, Joe Ozak, Mrs. A. Kinchuk.

It is not necessary to comment on the racial origin of such names. It is more advisable to look back and see if an error has not been made in bringing too many of such folk into the country. There has been in the past a demand for manual labor in a good many centres, and we have drawn on European countries to secure it. Probably the reason was that our people did not want to do the class of work given to these men, and another reason was that they would often work for little money. A number of our mining and industrial centres are in a similar position.

Not many of these people have been coming in within recent years; they have been here long enough to demonstrate whether they are going to make good Canadian citizens or not, and many of them show no desire to fit in with our system of government. We should make certain that we bring in no more such people. Those who are here should be given to understand that we will deal as fairly as possible with them, but that we will not countenance their nonsense or their plots or their efforts to wreck our government. If they are not prepared to accept such terms or abide by such conditions then it would be well to consult the schedule of steamers leaving for the lands from which they came.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 9.—Bulky exports of cheese to the United Kingdom continued to be the feature of the produce and dairy markets here last week. Shipments to date this season, which is three weeks old, amount to 10,661 boxes against 6,692 at the same date a year ago. Last week's shipments were 4,053 boxes against 2,487 in the corresponding week of last year.

Receipts of cheese here last week were 4,892 boxes. The price at the week-end was generally around 9½ cents per pound for current make, with asking prices for this week's arrivals up to 9¾c.

Butter Exports

First butter exports to Great Britain for the season went forward last week, 246 boxes having been sold some time ago during a break in the market for shipment now. Receipts continued slightly less than the domestic requirements, leaving little or none available yet for export trade, as stocks on hand are very light. Arrivals were 9,673 boxes. The market ended the week generally at 17¼c per pound for cariots or less of No. 1 quality. Dealers expected an easing to the export level around 15½c per pound as receipts increased.

The egg market closed generally at 17½c to 18c per dozen for extras, 15c for firsts and 13½c for seconds for graded Ontarios on Prairies on spot or for shipment. Storing or eggs continued to a fair extent, receipts being more than current needs. Arrivals last week totalled 22,603 cases. There have been no exports yet this season.

Absence of Potatoes

On the potato market last week the feature was the absence of No. 1 new potatoes. All the Florida No. 1 importations have been cleaned up. There are some No. 2's around which were selling at the week-end at $9 per barrel of 150 pounds. A small quantity of Bermuda new potatoes was rapidly absorbed at $2.75 per 50-lb. box for No. 1 and $2.25 per No. 2. More new potatoes are expected this week from the United States. Old potatoes are plentiful and cheap. Prices ex-track to retailers were quoted as follows: New Brunswick Green Mountains, 80 lbs., No. 1, 40c to 42c; Quebec Mountains, 80 lbs., No. 1, 40c to 45c; P.E.I. Green Mountains, 90 lbs., No. 1, 55c; local Whites, 80 lbs., No. 1, 30c to 40c. Cariot prices were 10c cheaper.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 9.— Keeping in step with the stock market, grain traders reversed their position late Saturday, and saw prices advance more than undone.

Final dips by securties wrecked bullish sentiment associated with likelihood of international difficulties because of the killing of President Doumer of France. Paris despatches, comparing his assassination with the assassination which started the Great War, failed to arouse new buying of wheat, despite authoritative assertions that the slayer of Doumer belonged to the organized Bolshevik forces.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝c to ⅞c under Saturday's finish; corn, ⅝ to ¾c down; oats, ¼c to ⅜c off, and provisions, 2c to 7c up.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 9. — Reports of moisture over United States winter wheat fields and failure of Liverpool to keep in step with the higher North American wheat prices gave a routine atmosphere to the short week-end session here yesterday. Prices closed unchanged to ¼c lower.

May and July each were unchanged at 61⅝c to 63¼c respectively. October dropped ⅛c to ¼c at 65¼c.

No expotr trade could be traced.

Russ's Buys Wheat.

Broomhall annouced the purchase of an additional cargo of Australian wheat by Russia. No confirmation could be made of New York reports that rye for export to Russia had been contracted for. Stocks of rye in all positions in Canada's amount to approximately 8,500,000 bushels.

Cash wheat, in spasmodic trade, closed unchanged to fractionally higher. There was a good inquiry in the cash coarse grains sections for Canadian rye, presumably for Russia, but at the close no sales could be confirmed. Cash interest in other grains was light with the prices moving within a narrow range.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

With the conclusion of the business matter, Lee Ying wiped it from his mind; his manner changed, he became a punctilious and a gracious host. While his servants were carrying out his orders he maintained a flow of pleasant conversation about the many Chinese New Year customs, the which his visitors doubtless would have enjoyed more if they had been less impatient to leave.

Trays were brought in after a while, some loaded with fragile china and others with a lavish assortment of strange delicacies. Tea was poured, the fragrance and the flavor of which was unlike anything the Americans had ever smelled or tasted, and Lee Ying made a good deal of ceremony over serving it. He delayed the drinking of it long enough to recite the old folk-tale dealing with the origin of the beverage. It was quite a story and he appeared to enjoy telling it. He became more genial as the moments passed.

While he was talking a telephone bell tinkled faintly in another room, and a voice answered it. The voice was strange to Sam and he strained his ears but to no effect.

Mrs. Stevens nibbled at a crumbly cake and fanned herself. The room was insufferably hot and she wanted to be gone. How silly to humor this talkative old parrot. Fifty thousand dollars! In brand-new banknotes!

The servant reappeared and exchanged a few words with his employer whereupon Lee Ying smiled and his voice altered in such a way as to focus a sudden alert attention upon him.

"I told you earlier that today is the last day of our year! The last day upon which we allow our debts to run. We Chinese pay in full today and we insist with implacable firmness upon receiving that which is due, Madame," he turned his eyes upon Esther Stevens and they glittered queerly, "I asked you not to bring you daughter to this meeting and I had a purpose in so doing. I have detained you here—"

The object of his remark uttered a cry and rose, as if propelled by springs. Himes said something in a startled voice and he, too, rose.

"Wait! I have good new for you." The old man extended a restraining hand, but the woman exclaimed to her companions:

"Come on! I want to get out of here."

"News to gladden the heart of any mother," Lee Ying smiled. "You have been imposed upon, deceived."

"What the hell—?" Himes broke out harshly, but checked himself. Marcus paled, he cast a startled, furtive glance about the room.

"Oh, the deceit isn't mine! It is your daughter's. She has confessed, made a clean breast of everything."

"Of what?" This came from Himes.

"Mona?" the mother queried. "Bah! What d'you mean 'confessed'." In sudden susicion she blazed forth: "Say! Have you pinched her?—Where is she? What have you done to her?"

In the door through which Lee Ying's house boy had come and gone a stranger, two strangers, appeared and one of them answered:

"She's over at the station house." Heedless of the dismay caused by his interruption, the speaker added as he came forward, "The inspector just rang up to tell us she was there and everything is kay oh. And don't try to slough that roll, sister. It won't do any good for we've got the numbers and everything—Yeah! The girl certainly put it over on you."

Marcus, very white and flurried now, began an indignant protest, but the other member of the pair grinned at him and said: "Oh, give us one laugh at a time, can't you? Of course there's some mistake. There always is. And you don't know us, either. Well, we're just a couple of young policemen, trying to get ahead. We've got badges and everything. No kidding. See—Yes, and you'll make it tough for us. Sure! We expect that."

"I don't understand the meaning of this outrage," stormed the lawyer.

"It simply means the girl came clean; she spilled everything and it's just like we thought. And, by the way," the speaker turned to Mrs. Stevens, "she says she isn't your daughter. How come?"

The woman moved her lips but no sound issued.

"All right. Don't let me pry into family secrets. Now then, Mr. Lee, we'll take charge of that roll."

"To be sure." The importer nodded. There was a moment of silence, then one of the officers announced:

"Well, I guess that cleans it all up, eh, Joe?"

"Looks like it." the other nodded. He was still grinning.

"Then call the Royce and let's be on, as they say at the Ritz."

INSTALMENT No. 14.

Lee Ying cherished no very deep grudge against Mona Stevens, who was an immature person of weak character at best, but he did feel bitter towards the unprincipled pair who had directed her. The actions of Mrs. Stevens were particularly reprehensible in his sight and he vowed to send her and her two male companions to prison if it were possible to do so.

This determination of his, which in the days that followed he proceeded implacably to carry out, led to unfortunate and wholly unexpected results. Had he been an ordinary American business man, no doubt, he would have stormed and threatened and blown off much indignant steam, then failed to press his charges; the case would have been dropped and the defendants would have escaped without further penalty than exposure. This was precisely what Himes and Marcus anticipated. When they found that they had counted wrongly they began a desperate fight. Their only weapon was publicity and this they used without scruple. They set a backfire by giving a sensational story to the newspapers and a few of them vigorously fanned the blaze.

It is Oriental flavor, too, lent it a zest. Chinese college boy and cute co-ed. Fifty thousand hush money. Shanghai sheik shouts blackmail. Latest sex sensation from Eastern University. Student body stunned by scandal.

Lee Ying was a rich and a honorable man, but with the crafty use of the customary non-committal phrases, his wrath could be made ineffective. And after all he was only a Chinaman.

Himes saw to it that the story of Alice Hart came out, too. Her name was not used but she was described as a beautiful art student whom Sam had "befriended" at Eastern and who was now pursuing her studies in Paris at his expense.

Whatever interest all this stirred up in New York it certainly created a sensation on the campus of Sam's college.

One evening, Lee Ying heard a stir in the hallway of his house and then a familiar voice. Sam was speaking, he was directing Moy to dispose of his luggage. With beating heart the father rose and when Sam entered he held out his arms. They embraced each other and for a moment neither spoke; then Sam announced.

"Your unworthy son has returned home. His quest of knowledge is at an end."

"Flowers of gladness spring up in my heart at your coming," Lee Ying told him, but the boy bowed his head and said wretchedly:

"Alas, that I bring disappointment to your heaven-sent old age. I have failed. I am disgraced—"

"No, no! Joy enters the door with you, my son. It is not you who are to blame; I am the never-to-be-forgiven cause of this disaster."

"My trunks, my books, my everything are coming."

"Were you—expelled?"

Sam nodded, he lifted a face twisted with grief and shame; his father pressed him closer. "The mischief of robbers harms only the body. Tell me what happened."

"It was for—the good of the institution, they explained. They had the grace to be apologetic but—many of the university's wealthy friends and patrons were offended. The alumni resented the stain I had put upon—"

Lee Ying interrupted with a sound. "It is incredible! You were innocent of all wrong—"

"That mattered nothing as compared with the welfare of the college, its reputation and the good will of its supporters. Colleges must live. Innocently or otherwise I brought mine into disrepute; I am the victim of an economic necessity—A Chinese and a white girl. Two white girls, one a student! The very mention of such an abominable association is a scandal. Parents are threatening to withdraw their daughters as a protest against a condition which makes it possible."

"It has always existed."

"True. But these parents never dreamed that their own immaculate offsprings came into actual contact with us dissolute Orientals or were exposed to our contaminating touch. Immaculate!" Sam uttered an American oath that would have shocked Lee Ying at any other time. "They admitted that I had done no wrong, no very grevious wrong, at least. They even put the blame for the Alice Hart affair where it belonged. But a principle was involved. The races must not mix, they must not come in contact outside the lecture rooms. It is repugnant to American ideas of social decency."

After a moment Lee Ying inquired: "What do you have in mind?"

"I don't know. Travel, perhaps, I can't endure any more of what I've been through."

"Very well. I had intended it to come later, but it is an education in itself. There is the story of Tang—Tang lived more than a thousand years ago; a very clever young man who had taken many prizes. But he resented the orders of a bold and stubborn ruler and refused to liver longer in a country governed by such a foolish and unreasonable tyrant."

"You are no tyrant."

"He went on a long voyage to distant parts of the world where he saw many extraordinary sights. When he returned home he was considered the wisest man in the country and received high honors. The world shall be your college; you shall travel like a Mandarin and see it all."

TORONTO LEADERS SLIGHTLY STRONGER

C.P.R., Brazilian, Smelters Register Gains From 1-8 to 1-2 Point.

TORONTO, May 9. —(C.P.) — Leaders were fractionally stronger on Toronto stock exchange this morning. Gains of from 1-8 to ½ point were made by C.P.R., Bell Telephone, B.C. Power "A," Brazilian, Smelters. The turnover in these shares was not such as to suggest more than nominal buying.

Oils, which had upheld the market last week, were dorman this morning, leaders unchanged to small fractions lower. Beverage issues were quiet and unchanged and there was very little trading among the foods.

Por dof Canada slipped ½ point to 8½. Steels, Farm Implement Stocks, International Nickel were all unchanged.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 9. — (CP) — Stocks closed midly heavy today. A trickle of selling in rails kept that group lower most of the day, with losses of about a point net for Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific and Lackawanna. National Dairy, American Telephone and Woolworth sagged moderately. Eastman Kodak dropped 3 to a record low. U. S. Steel, American Can and Consolidated Gas were steady. Transactions approximated 700,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.). — Toronto Stock Exchange market did not change greatly to-day. A few stocks drifted lower, but without experiencing real liquidation and such losses were offset by gains in other sections of the list. Closing prices for those stocks which favored the advance were generally at the best for the day.

Bell Telephone advanced a point to 90, the best price this issue has commanded in some time. C.P.R. moved up above 13 to show a gain of more than ½ point, and Smelters, B.C. Power A, Brazilian, the last named at 10 and better in the final hour, were all fractions above Saturday's finals.

Oils were slower than last week and slightly easier. Montreal Power, Steel of Canada, and Ford finished less than ½ point down. Ford, however, was better towards the close than earlier in the afternoon. Canadian Dredge made a new record low at 9.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 9 (CP)—Issues in which early gains were recorded retained their buoyancy and prices on the Montreal stock exchange closed with a better tone to-day. Trading after an active active opening slackened off and sales volume was light for the majority of the day. Some issues were unable to withstand pressure and eased downward but few turned to losses.

The majority of issues closed at the best levels of the day. Canadian Pacific Railway closed at 12⅞ up ⅛.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol was 5 cents higher at 80 cents. St. Lawrence Corp. lost 5 cents at 50 cents.

National Steel Car, Massey-Harris, General Steel Wares, Canadian Car and aCnadian Bronze were all unchanged.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—Definite trend was lacking on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day, closing changes showing an even division of losses and gains throughout the list.

Dome featured higher-priced golds in the forenoon and finished the day with a net gain of 25. Hollinger also recorded a small advance but Lake Shore and Teck-Hughes closed slightly lower.

Premier was in improved demand and up 4 on end, but Buffalo Canadian lost further grounds; Kirkland Lake Gold was down a couple and Vipond a cent. Range among Pennies was confined to a small fraction.

Noranda and nIternational Nickel turned easier after a firm opening, both closing 15 to 20 cents below Saturday. Sherritt Gordon softened in the forenoon but recovered towards the close. Eldorado was a couple higher throughout the day. Oil was unchanged.

G.M.C. SALES INCREASE.

NEW YORK, May 9 (C.P.). — Sales of General Motors cars in April increased sharply over the March figures.

Total sales to dealers were 78,359 cars and trucks, compared with 59,696 in March and 154 in April, 1931. April sales to United States consumers aggregated 81,573 units, against 48,717 in March and 135,663 a year ago.

ORWELL IS FAVORITE

LONDON, May 9 (C.P. Cable).—W. M. G. Singer's colt Orwell, champion two-year-old of last season and winner of the classic Two Thousand Guineas last month, remained firm favorite for the Derby in to-day's call-over of betting odds, at 2 to 1. The Derby will be run June 1.

STANDARD LIST IS IRREGULAR AT NOON HOUR

Higher-priced Stocks Hold Centre of Interest, Balance of Issues Unchanged.

DOME ADVANCES 35.

TORONTO, May 9.— (C.P.) — Standard stock and mining exchange market exhibited a firmer tendency on the opening to-day but developed some irregularity around noon. Attention was still centred on higher-priced stocks, with balance of list practically unchanged when taken at noon.

Noranda, reflecting publication of first quarter earnings figures showing net of 48.7 cents a share for the period, was active in the first hour but was down 20 at $14.60 when taken. Sherritt Gordon slipped a cent to a new low of 28, but International Nickel steady at $6.15.

Dome shares featured the higher-priced golds. Price advancing another 35 to $10.85. Hollinger was up 10 at $4.85 and McIntyre gained a similar amount to $15.50. Teck-Hughes was firm at $3.34 but Wright-Hargreaves slipped a little to $2.28. Among cheaper golds Premier gained 3 to 35, but Buffalo-Canadian was down another couple to 19 and Kirkland Lake Gold lost a cent to 31.

Eldorado was up 2 to $1.10. Oils were at a standstill.

PRICES GAIN AT MONTREAL

Several Issues Slightly Above Previous Prices in Active Trading.

MasseyHarris Unchanged.

MONTREAL, May 9 (C.P.).—With Wall Street working higher, prices on the Montreal Stock Exchange followed suit, and during this morning's session advances were recorded throughout the list. Trading was active and although some issues lost part of their early gains they held unchanged or slightly above their previous closing prices.

Brazilian Traction, after opening at 10, rose to 10½, where is registered an advance of ⅜. Montreal Power, the active leader, touched 27¾, and then recided to 27½, where it was unchanged from Saturday's close. Canadian Pacific also moved higher, but dropped back and was quoted at 12⅞, up ⅛. International Nickel gained ⅛ at 6⅛ on few sales.

Dominion Bridge touched 12 and then dipped to 11⅞, where it recorded a gain of ⅜. Amalgamated Electric Preferred established a new high for the year at 11, an advance of ½; British Columbia Power "A" was ½ higher at 18, and Canadian Industrial Alcohol was up 5 cents at 80 cents. Canada Steamship Preferred lost 1⅛ to equal its low for the year of 5.

Massey-Harris at 2⅜, National Steel car at 9¾, General Steel Wares at7 and Canadian Bronze at 10 were all unchanged.

Police Commission Holds Conference

Previous to the regular meeting of the Police Commission this afternoon the commissioners met in conference to discuss some important matter touching the discipline of the force. The conference was held in camera, The Examiner being requested by His Honor Judge Huycke, chairman of the commission, to leave the committee room.

Later, the reporter was invited back into the meeting, and the regular business of the commission was transacted. However, the business was very light and it was easily concluded that the important business of the day had been settled during the reporter's absence.

When the commissioners first took their seats, His Honor requested Chief Constable Newhall and the reporter to leave the room. Ten minutes later the Chief was summoned into the meeting.

"The minutes of the last meeting were read by City Clerk Armstrong, secretary of the commission, and were adopted. Saturday, May 14, was granted a tag day for the Salvation Army in connection with the Self-Denial Week.

Chief Newhall told the commission that four or five Peterborough youths had left the city and were beating their way about the country with the army of Knights of the Road. "They were told by the bums what a fine time they could have and now they have left to become bums themselves," he stated. Parents, he said, should not permit their sons to leave home and become worthless vagrants.

The meeting then closed. Members of the commission are: His Honor Judge Huycke, Mayor Denne, and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

over to Aird in Montreal a few days after the Hydro contract had been signed.

Sweezey First Witness.

R. O. Sweezey, the first witness, was questioned by W. N. Tilley, K. C., Commission counsel. He had been President of Beauharnois Power Corporation, and had paid $125,000 to John Aird, Jr. This was in December, 1929. He did not know the numbers of the bonds given Mr. Aird, but H. B. Griffiths, secretary-treasurer had that information.

He thought he had first spoken to Mr. Aird regarding the money in October, 1929, but was not cetrain as to the date.

He had met Mr. Aird in a Montreal Hotel. He had known Aird for many years and was "on friendly terms" with him.

"What happened?" asked counsel.

"I can't recall the exact conversation but he suggested he might be able to assist us. He was rather vague and so was I. He suggested we contribute something—which I took to mean a contribution to campaign funds."

Later, witness said, he had discussed the matter again with Mr. Aird. This was prior to the Hydro having signed a contract with Beauharnios. It had taken some time for the contract to be completed and Mr. Aird "seemed aware of the fact there were difficulties to be ironed out."

"What sort of difficulties?"

"There were changes—important and minor ones. Each time I felt we were through but had to come back." Business and technical difficulties cropped up continually, witness said. The delays were not improper ones, he said, and there was "no suggestion of any ulterior motive" in the delays. He had heard Mr. Aird was familiar with the Hydro processes, and knew he had negotiated the Madawaska contract.

"Did you think Mr. Aird had inside information?"

"If I said something—it would be vague and perhaps not a fact. I can't say how I felt entirely," he replied. "He seemed to know more about it than the man in the street. I was a bit voluable about the project myself," Mr. Sweezey said.

Referring to the $125,000. He could not say what words Mr. Aird used but "had no doubt it was distinctly advisable to make the contribution."

Suggestion Ruled Out

Mr. Sweezey had said it was "essential" to make the contribution, but changed it to "distinctly advisable," when Mr. Tilley suggested it. This brought on a clash between the counsel. A. G. Slaght, K.C., objected that Mr. Tilley was suggesting a "softening" answer, and finally Mr. Justice Orde ruled the suggestion out.

Mr. Sweezey said he felt a message "was being conveyed" regarding the contribution and asked what authority Mr. Aird had for the request.

"His answer was vague and evasive. The impression I got was he was acting for somebody, and that he was trying to convey to me that I was expected to contribute—I took it to mean contribute to the party then in power." At that time Hon. G. Howard Ferguson was Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Aird had mentioned no names whatever.

"Did he indicate an amount?"

"Yes; about $1.00 per horsepower. I expressed horror at such a huge sum—$250,000—but I said it was too high a figure and would discuss it later."

"When he left you he wasn't turned down?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Well, I don't think he felt he had made much progress," witness replied.

He had communicated the deman to "others" some weeks later, when he mentioned the matter to Mr. Griffiths, Mr. Sweezey said.

Two or three weeks had elapsed when he again conversed with Mr. Aird, he continued. He did not know whether Aird had made a special trip to see him the first time, but the second meeting was pre-arranged.

He tried to impress me, the second time, with the advisability of making the contribution, but did not threaten me in any form."

Aird More Persuasive

"He was more persuasive, but for the life of me I can't remember the words. I was reticent and backing away from him. I wanted the contract signed, and while reluctant to pay, did not want to frighten him off."

He only recalled seeing Mr. Aird twice, but the latter had telephoned him. The telephone calls were before the contract was signed, but could not recall what the conversations were about other than "Mr. Aird wanted to see me."

On no occasion, so far as witness could recall, had Aird mentioned J. H. Black, prominent paper man. Nor had he ever discussed Aird with Black, or the matter of the payment.

Down to the time the contract was signed he had made no promises to Aird. At the second meeting, he had told Aird "his figure was entirely too high." He slid down and suggested 50 cents a horsepower, or $125,000," Mr. Sweezey said.

He had then informed his associates of Mr. Aird's demands, and gave them the impression "he was a man of good standing, good family and I assumed he was the man properly delegated and authorized to come and collect."

He had not asked anyone "outside my little circle of associates" whether Mr. Aird was the proper person to receive the money, he said. Griffiths was one of the associates.

He did not know who was "behind Mr. Aird other than a political party. My associates speculated who it might be but thought finally perhaps it was best not to know."

Mr. Aird had "been insistent on getting the money or arriving at some understanding," Mr. Sweezey went on. Negotiations were going on at the time on matters of detail. Hydro was arguing the Beauharnois should bring power into Ontario, while the Beauharnois wished to go only as far as the Ontario-Quebec boundary. To accomplish this aim, Beauharnois had paid Hydro $400,000, part for technical services rendered by Hydro engineers, and part for the cost of transmission lines erected by Hydro. This was one of the last things to be settled.

Hydro wanted Beauharnois to carry the line eight, nine or ten miles beyond the border but "we were not clear on the expense and were reluctant to enter Ontario as a matter of policy," Mr. Sweezey said. The line would have cost, in his personal opinion between $400,000 and $600,000.

This question was not settled when Mr. Aird came on to the scene," but he had not, so far as he could recall, discussed this with Mr. Aird. The latter had offered "technical assistance on the construction of the transmission lines."

Mr. Aird's conversation had not been to the effect. "Give me $125,000 for the political party—I'll help you with the transmission line," at all, Mr. Sweezey said when Mr. Tilley put the question to him.

"Did you say to Aird: "'What will we get out of it if we give you the $125,000.'"

Customary Procedure

"No, not all. I felt perhaps it was customary to do this sort of thing," Mr. Sweezey replied.

He had met the premier of Ontario and Quebec before the second interview with Aird, he thought. This meeting had been to discuss exportation of power. Strachan Johnson, Fred Gaby, chief Hydro engineer, and some secretaries were present. He had not been in the room very much, as Aime Geoffrion, K.C., was present and handling legal details.

Mr. Tilley read a long letter from Premier Taschereau to Premier Ferguson regarding the question of exports of power, which Mr. Sweezey said covered the matters discussed at the conference. By the terms of Beauharnois' agreement with Quebec, the Ontario Hydro could not export power. He did not recall whether the "point of delivery" question had also been discussed, but thought it had not, witness said.

After the contract was signed he saw Mr. Aird again, so far as he recalled, for the "second meeting." This corrected earlier evidence of Mr. Sweezey, witness; pointing out the meeting had taken place in 1929 and that he could not remember the dates with certainty.

Never Mentioned to Ferguson

"The payment of the money was never mentioned to Mr. Ferguson at all. Nor was it referred to the Hydro or anyone representing Hydro. Not one hint was given anyone," Mr. Sweezey said. "Not a hint was given to the Hydro Commission nor anyone connected with it."

Mr. Aird had phoned immediately the contract was signed, and then came to Montreal and got the money.

"I felt now this thing was all over we could make the contribution to Mr. Aird or his party," Mr. Sweezey said. Then he instructed Griffits to get the money and give Aird $125,000. There had been no understanding as to the exact sum, he said. "I think I led him to believe I would give favorable consideration to his request after the contract had been signed, but I didn't think he would appear so soon," he went on.

Pressed by Mr. Tilley, witness said he had not "stalled off" Mr. Aird because he (Sweezey) felt the contract was in jeopary.

The $125,000 had not, so far as he could remember, been discussed with Mr. Christie. The latter is now secretary-treasurer of Beauharnois. Christie had not been told of the $125,000 demand, "because I was not telling anyone about it," he said.

He had not asked Aird for help, or to see anyone in the Hydro or Government. "I was particularly anxious that he keep away from the Hydro, for things were going along all right. There was no arrangement between us. He impressed me and I gave him the money." He had told Aird to keep away from the Hydro.

"Did you tell him to keep away from the Government?"

"Why not?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Well, it just didn't occur to me," witness replied.

The understanding so far as he was concerned was that "the paymen was not for Aird's services as an engineer but was a political contribution," Mr. Sweezey said.

At this point, Mr. Tilley turned the witness over to A. G. Slaght, K.C.

Aird had never directly said the money was going to the Ontario Conservative party, but "the inference was always there," said Mr. Sweezey, replying to question from Mr. Slaght.

"Are you prepared to swear you paid $125,000 of your shareholders' money without receiving any assurance of political influence," Mr. Slaght asked.

"There was no necessity for political influence—the contract was signed then," he replied.

"And you kept it—or tried to keep it, a secret?"

"Yes, because I understood all campaign funds are kept secret," Sweezey said.

DOUKHOBORS UNDER ARREST

Nearly all the offenders carried bundles of clothing. As they were unloaded from the trucks in the jail yard they were ordered to dress and did so withot objection.

A week ago when police arrested 118 nude paraders they had to use force. The Doukhobors put up a stiff fight and the officers subdued them with lengths of rubber hose and itching powder which they sprinkled on the bare skins. The 118 were tried before a magistrate and sentenced to three years in penitentiary under a recent amendment to the criminal code.

Face Similar Sentence

Those arrested yesterday face similar terms.

Concerted action against disturbances in the Doukhobor communities was announced by the British Columbia and Saskatchewan governments and the co-operation of the Dominion Government has been enlisted. Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General of British Columbia, visited Nelson last week and addressed the Doukhobors warning them the law would be strictly enforced.

dangerous railway crossings, the improvement of the River road to Lakefield, and a fish hatchery in Lake Ketchewanooka. Similarly this community should actively support the project for a bridge across the St. Lawrence River near Kingston which would greatly increase the volume of tourist traffic into this district.

Among other things advocated by Mr. Kingan was the abolition of church bells on Sunday morning.

Improvement of conditions at the local market, better bathing facilities, closer relationships between farmers and city business men and better co-operation among the latter, were other suggestions made by Mr. Kingan, as in the interest of a bigger and better Peterborough.

Finally, he urged a more dignified and courteous recognition of the National Anthem, both in the club and outside of it. People should stand at attention and pay proper respect to "God Save the King," Mr. Kingan declared.

Rotarian Jack Gillespie announced that at least ten members would attend the District Conference at Hamilton next week.

For the carnival committee, Rotarian John H. Seels reported a ready sale of tickets and asked team csiptains to secure each Saturday full reports from their men, so that the returns could be announced at the Monday luncheon. He also announced a meeting of all the booth managers at Carnival headquarters on Wednesday night, May 18.

YOUTH'S DEATH MYSTERY CASE

NEAR TICHBOURNE.

KINGSTON, May 9 (C.P.). — Derwood Crawford, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crawford, of Tichbourne, was found dead in a boat house at Eagle Lake, about a mile north-west of Tichbourne, on Sunday.

The boy was seen in the village of Tichbourne, late on Saturday night, but what happened after this is at present a mystery. Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney, on learning the circumstances surrounding the boy's death, instructed Dr. James Miller, Kingston, to go to Parham to hold a post-mortem.

Mrs. McVeigh, who lives in the vicinity, found the body when she passed through the boat house to get a pail of water. Crawford was employed at highway work in the Sharbot Lake district up till last Tuesday.

EXCURSION STEAMERS ARE DAMAGED BY FIRE

NEW YORK, May 9.— The excursion steamers, Albertina and Sea Bird, veterans of many years service in the run between Manhattan and Highlands, N.J., run, were badly damaged by fire to-day at the Charles E. Gates' Lumber Company pier on the East river.

An offshire wind fanned the flames and soon both steamers tied up abreast, were burning briskly. Fireboats and fire fighters on and worked nearly an hour before the flames were checked. The superstructures of both steamers were badly damaged and the fire worked below decks in several places.

Each ship is about 150 feet long and can carry between 500 and 600 passengers.

BILL FOR $950 SENT TO HYDRO

Fire Department Account for Services at Pulp Wood Fire.

GRATES BURNT OUT.

The city's bill to the Hydro-Electric Commission for services rendered by the Fire Department a week ago Saturday in fighting the fire in a pile of pulp wood at Campbellford was $950.

According to a schedule of rates for the use of the steam pumper in out of town emergency calls of this kind, the charge was $100 an hour. The steamer was employed at Campbellford more than nine hours, making a total item of $900, together with five dollars each for the seven firemen and fifteen dollars to Chief Gimblett, who comprised the staff from the local Department to respond to the appeal for help. The grates of the pumper were burnt out on that occasion and will have to be replaced.

Mr. Elie Brunelle, manager of the Hydro-Electric Commission's pulp mill below Campbellford, has written the council expressing his appreciation of the services of the Peterborough fire department, and from other reports it was further learned that Chief Gimblett and his men rendered efficient and valuable help in checking the progress of the fire and finally extinguishing it.

Boley Is Released By Athletic Club

PHILADELPHIA, May 9. (CP)—The Philadelphia Athletics to-day unconditionally released Jack Boley, shortstop and Catcher Bert (Bucky) Hammond.

Boley, who came to the Athletics from Baltimore in the Spring of 1927, was replaced by Dib Williams in mid-season last year and was released to the Cleveland club during the winter. Cleviand turned him back to the A's during the Spring training season at Fort Myers, Fla.

In the exhibition games Boley appeared to be a rejuvenated infielder, but three weeks ago he aggravated an old injury when he wrenched his shoulder and this brought about his release.

WANT 155 HANGED.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, May 9 (C. P.). — The Public Prosecutor demanded the death sentence to-day for 155 persons accused of participation in the Kurdish revolt at Mount Ararat in 1930. The Criminal Court at Adana will pronounce sentence on Saturday. In Turkey the death sentence is carried out by hanging.

PAINFUL PILES

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protuding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

OLD TOWN HALL IS READY FOR SERVICE

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — After a vacancy of many years the old Town Hall at Campbellford is again rendering the town yeoman service, due to the enterprise of the Water and Light Commission Board who leased it from the town and have completely renovated it, making several additions. It is now being used as a centre for the utilities of the Board, and combines the manager's office, meter testing room, garage, and storehouse.

Much of the work on this renovation was done by Commissioner J. Blue, free gratis, who gave a considerable portion of his time to the enterprise. The grounds surrounding the building have all been levelled and seeded down in grass, which will eventually make it a beauty spot of town.

The interior of the building has been decorated and made in good order for occupancy. The manager's office is a good-sized room in the south-west corner of the hall, and has been painted and stained and has a fine floor covering. The meter testing room to the north of this office is conveniently fitted with benches and apparatus meeting the Government requirements, and has ample space for the hanging of meters. Ample room is also obtained for the supplies of the system, and two cranes operate for the lifting of transformers. A toilet and wash basin has also been installed.

This conversion fills a long felt want in the town. The old hall has served many purposes in its time, having been a Town Hall, a market, a school, and a gaol. For some years past it has not been used except for a meeting palce for the First Troop of Campbellford Boy Scouts.

Obituary

MRS. HENRY HUGHES,

LAKEFIELD, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. Henry Hughes died yesterday at the age of 79 years after a lengthy illness. Her husband predeceased her a year ago.

The funeral will be held from the residence of her son-in-law, Hugh Little, lot 23, concession 3, Dummer Township, on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the Warsaw cemetery.

MISS CHRISTINA SPENCE

The death occurred Sunday afternoon of Miss Christina Spence, aged 78, 417½ Water street, after an illness of about two weeks' duration. She suffered a stroke of paralysis a fortnight ago and never fully recovered. The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Spence of Dummer, where she was born and lived the early part of her life, later coming to Peterborough where she lived since. Her death is the third one in the family during the past year, two brothers, John and Samuel, of Lakefield, predeceasing her. Surviving her are one brother, Brydon of Fort Frances, two nieces, Mrs. R. B. English and Miss Jane Udy of Peterborough and two nephews, the Messrs. Spence of Lakefield. She was the sister of the late Rev. Hamilton Spence, former Methodist minister in Peterborough. The deceased lady was well known in Peterborough and Lakefield and leaves a host of sorrowing friends. The funeral will be held from the residence on Water street, Tuesday, May 10, at two o'clock, interment being in Little Lake cemetery.

WALTER WALLACE RUTHERFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The death occurred last night, following a rather lengthy illness, of Walter Wallace Rutherford. Mr. Rutherford was a prominent citizen, a member of the Golden Rule Lodge A.F. and A.M., and of the Presbyterian Church. For the past ten years, Mr. Rutherford has operated a dairy business in Campbellford, and was in the early days a cheesemaker throughout the county.

He was born in Centreton, Ont., on April 7, 1873, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rutherford. Surviving him are his sorrowing wife and one son Wallace at home.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, Booth Street, on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30, under Masonic auspices, interment taking place in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, the Rev. J. C. Robinson officiating.

Officers Elected Rylstone Institute

RYLSTONE, May 9.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Hhe May meeting of the Rylstone Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Irwin on Wednesday with a good attendance.

The report of the year's work was then given by the secretary, Mrs. Fred Barnum. Correspondence read included an invitation from Springbrook Institute branch where the department speaker, Mrs. J. M. Percival will be present on June 15.

The following new officers were then elected:

President—Mrs. John Simpson.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Harry Barnum.
Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn.
2nd Vice—Mrs. Robert Mumby.
3rd Vice—Mrs. Alfred Barnum.
Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. Fred Barnum.
Directors—Mrs. James F. Finch,
District Director — Mrs. S. G. Meiklejohn.
Representatives to District Annual — Miss Winnifred Spencer, Miss Vera Finch.
Pianist—Miss Evelyn Barnum.
Auditors—Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mrs. Ernest Irwin.
Members of Sick Committee—Mrs. John Stewart, Mrs. Will Stewart, Mrs. Wilfrid Spencer.

Meeting to make out new programs to be held at Mrs. John Simpson's.

Committee singing followed. "There's a Long, Long Trail Awinding." "My Wild Irish Rose." Reading, 'Handicraft, Pleasure and Profit'—Mrs. John Simpson. Collection was given.

Meeting closed by singing 'God Save Our King.'

An exchange of house plants was made.

HERRIOT LIKELY TO BE PREMIER

istery, but would leave out the Socialists. There is still no indication of which way Herriot will endeavor to swing his party, by far the most powerful single group in the Chamber, and the pivot of which the new ministry must essentially turn.

Laying Plans.

The victorious groups of the left are already clearing the group. The Socialists meet in party congress next Sunday to define their attitude toward acceptance of office. Herriot's Radical-Socialists, who have 158 members in the new Chamber, meet in congress on May 18.

Premier Tardieu, when he submits the Government's resignation to the new president, will in all likelihood be asked to continue in office until the situation is cleared up.

The Republic, the physical formation of which has produced a communications system that is the admiraton of the world, ran the elections in bang-up fashion. About 12 hours after the polls had closed in the second ballot the results in more than 90% of the 615 constituencies were known.

To-day it was officially announced that 609 members had been elected to the new Chamber, this figure including 252 deputies elected by a clear majority on the first ballot a week ago. On the second ballot a plurality was sufficient. The six outstanding results are all colonial seats: Guadeloupe Island, two seats; Reunion Island, two seats, where voting is on May 15, and French Guiana and French India, where voting on the first ballot was held yesterday.

350 Leftist Seats.

The virtually complete results give the parties of the Left, ranging from the Radical-Socialists through the Socialists to the Republican Socialists, the Communists, and the Dissident Communists, not affiliated with Moscow, a total of roughly 350 seats. Not including the Communists, the Left groups have a majority of practically 100 seats in the new Chamber.

The voting, conducted throughout France with quietness, upset the predictions that the assassination of Paul Doumer would stem the tide towards the left which set in on the first ballot. The left swing grew more pronounced with each new batch of results. The only untoward disturbance in France occurred in Bordeaux, where a few were injured as Socialists clashed with Conservatives. In Oran, Algeria, an official was killed when rioters fired on an election hall.

Young's Point Class Finishes Activities

(Examiner Correspondence)

YOUNG'S POINT, May 9. — On Wednesday evening May 4th the girls of the Garment Making club gathered at the schoolhouse to bring to a close their activities of the winter months and also to display their work to their parents and friends. The class consisted of eight girls, five who are in their second year and three who are in their first.

Among the second years were the Misses Ethel Brooks, Loretta Young, Jean McNaughton, Muriel Brooks and Ethel Freeburn, while the first years were Anita Greenley, Marion Young and Vivalene Bullock. Each one was presented with their certificates by their most efficient and capable teacher, Miss Jennie Kearney. The girls then presented Miss Kearney with a small gift as a token of appreciation and thanks, while Muriel Brooks read an address. The class then rendered two sewing class "yells" and the little program concluded with "God Save the King."

Miss Kearney offered a vote of thanks to Miss Viola Redpath for the help she gave her in teaching the girls.

RABBI EISENDRATH IS COMING TO CITY

Address Public Meeting in Collegiate Auditorium on Monday, May 23.

The public will be interested in the announcement of the visit of Rabbi Eisendrath Monday, May 23, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club.

The arrangements include a joint dinner with the Rotary Club at six o'clock in the Empress Hotel followed by an address.

As many thousands of city and country citizens wish to see and hear Rabbi Eidendrath, arrangements have been made for a public meeting in the Collegiate Auditorium at eight o'clock Monday evening, May 23, which will provide an opportunity for many to see and hear this gifted speaker.

A nominal charge of 25c will be made and tickets can be obtained from members of the Club or at Bond's Drug Store, or Al Sharpe's Clothing Store.

The Auditorium will not likely hold all those who will have a desire to hear Rabbi Eisendrtah and as there will be a heavy demand for tickets, the public is advised to act quickly.

It helps you to be thrifty ... gives added health protection because it keeps food fresh and wholesome.

AN electric refrigerator is certainly a wise investment. The cost is moderate; purchase arrangements are easy.

If you wish, payment can be spread over many months. Thus you can afford to buy an electric refrigerator now, without waiting to save for it.

You will find at once that it pays you daily dividends in economy, comfort and health. It allows you to save left-overs to make up into tasty dishes. It cuts food spoilage to a minimum. It permits you to buy fresh foods, in quantities, at lower prices.

You and your family will love the frozen salads and desserts that you can have whenever you want. And ice cubes, of course, are always at hand.

Go to any electric refrigerator dealer in town. Ask him for a demonstration which he will gladly give you. See how much food can be accommodated in the electric refrigerator the size you want.

There is absolutely no obligation, and we know that once you learn the facts about an electric refrigerator you will want one for your own.

RADIO BROADCASTING REPORT RECOMMENDS ESTABLISHING

The report, in part, was as follows:

"Your committee was seized, from the inception, of the national importance and international character of radio broadcasting, and the evidence submitted has served to further consolidate our opinion of the far-reaching scope and benefits of proper, well-regulated broadcasting services throughout Canada, as a medium of education, thought-provoking development and fostering of Canadian ideals and culture, entertainment, news service and publicity of this country and its products, and as an auxiliary to religious and educational teachings; also as one of the most efficient mediums for developing a greater national and Empire consciousness within the Dominion and the British Commonwealth of nations.

"Reference No. 1:

"To consider the report of the Royal Commission on radio broadcasting, dated the 11th day of September, 1929, commonly known as the Aird Report."

"Reference No. 2:

"To advise and recommend a complete technical scheme for radio broadcasting for Canada, so designed to ensure from Canadian sources as complete and satisfactory a service as the present development of radio science will permit; the erection of several broadcasting stations, operating on clear channels, located at suitable intervals, the location to be determined by a careful technical survey of Canada.

Five Powerful Stations.

"Your committee recommends that consideration be given to the use of five 50,000 watt stations, one in each of the following provinces of Canada: British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, and in the Maritime Provinces; three 500 watt stations, one for each province, or one 50,000 watt station, as may be determined by the commission. In Saskatchewan and Alberta, we suggest two 5,000 watt stations in each province, synchronized on a common channel. Further, a 10,000 watt station in Northern Ontario, and one in Western Ontario, a 1,000 watt station at Port Arthur-Fort William, a 500 watt station in Toronto, and a 1,000 watt station at or near Ottawa, Montreal, and Quebec.

"Your committee further recommends a number of stations of 100 watt power and under, operating on shared channels, located where required:

(A) To serve areas not satisfactory covered by the national stations.

(B) For secondary stations in areas where there is a demand for several channels to be operated at the same time.

(C) For educational purposes.

(D) For legitimate experimental work.

(E) For local broadcasting of community interest.

Cost of Relief Sustaining

"Your committee further recommends that the cost of radio in Canada be self-sustaining and that only the money available from transmitters' and receivers' license fees, and advertising income, be expended and that the question of the amount of receivers' license fees be left entirely in the hands of the governor in council.

"Reference No. 3:

"To investigate and report upon the most satisfactory agency for carrying out such a scheme."

"Your committee recommends that a commisssion be appointed, consisting of three adequately-paid commissioners; a chairman to hold office for a period of ten years; a vice-chairman for a period of nine years, and the third commissioner, for a period of eight years.

"That there be appointed an assistant commissioner in each province, who shall also act as chairman of such provincial or regional advisory programme committees as may be formed; the assistant commissioners to be selected in consultation with the governments of their respective provinces.

Commission's Powers.

"Your committee further recommends that the Commission be vested with the necessary powers to carry on the business of broadcasting in the Dominion of Canada, such powers to extend to the following matters:

(a) To regulate and control all broadcasting in Canada, including programs and advertising.

(b) To own, build and operate transmitting or receiving stations in Canada.

(c) To acquire by lease, purchase, expropriation or otherwise, any or all existing broadcasting stations.

(d) To enter into operating agreements with privately-owned stations.

e) To originate programs, and secure outside programs by purchase or exchange, and to make the arrangements necessary for their transmission.

(f) To determine the number, location and power of all broadcasting stations required in Canada.

(g) To control the issuing or cancellations of licenses to broadcasting stations.

(h) To cancel the allotments of channels to any stations, or to make substitution of channels.

(I) To prohibit the establishment of privately-operated chains of stations in Canada.

(J) To subject to the approval of the Parliament of Canada. To take over all broadcasting in Canada.

(K) To be vested with all other powers necessary or incidental for the establishment of the objects of the commission.

"Your committee recommends:

(A) That one of the first duties of the commission be the establishment of trans-Canada chain broadcasting through the securing of the necessary land-lines as soon as possible.

(B) That a nationally-owned system of radio broadcasting be instituted, and that all stations required for its proper organization be eventually acquired.

(C) That all stations, 100 watt and under not required for the national system, remain under private ownership, but be regulated as to programmes and advertising, but the rules of the commission.

The scheme outlined to the committee by the Canadian Radio League was strongly reflected in the report. This called for a gradual assumption by a government commission, of all broadcasting operations, in easy stages, the cost to be paid out of income for licenses and advertising.

Ontario produced nearly 45,000,000 pounds of high quality tobacco last year, the bright flue-cured of the new tobacco belt, centred in Norfolk county being the best tobacco yet produced in the province.

Stomach Disorders Threaten Her Life

Read This Interesting Letter

I will only be too pleased for you to let anyone see this letter just to let them know what a wonderful medicine "B'WELL" is and how it really saved my life. My husband and children are now taking it and I can't be too high in my praise for it.

I have suffered all my life with my stomach and have had two operations for tumors. Last winter I was very ill for months. I could not eat properly and I kept vomiting all the time. I was treated for ulcers of the stomach, but received no relief.

On April the 16th I started taking Mulvaney's "B'WELL" and the first dose cleared some kind of a substance from my stomach. I kept on taking it and I passed more of this substance, and I had stopped vomiting and could eat.

I am now in better health than since I was a child. No pain. I can eat, sleep and have gained 40 pounds. Anyone who has any stomach bother should give Mulvaney's "B'WELL" a fair trial. Our home will never be without it. We are all very thankful to it. My husband is very high in his praise for "B'WELL."

Sincerley yours,
MRS. W. O. BANNER.
1113 Gerrard St. East, Toronto, Can.

The "B'WELL" treatment, which is so highly praised by Mrs. Banner, is a pure herb preparation that does not contain alcohol or narcotics and cannot harm anyone. Try it to-day. Your druggist can supply you. Remember the name, Mulvaney's "B'WELL."

COOPER SOCIETY IS ENTERTAINED

Enjoyable Social Evening Held by Young People of Hassard's United Church.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

QUEENSBORO, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—Nearly ninety people most of them young folk and a goodly number from Cooper joined in the social evening held in Hassard's United Church on Thursday for the regular league service, it being the occasion of a visit from the members of Cooper society.

The scripture lesson was read by Miss Myrtle West. Miss Marion Mutton spoke a few words of welcome to the visitors.

Miss Blaney had charge of the program which consisted of two selections from an orchestra composed of Mrs. Fred Irwin, Mrs. Arthur Wyatt and Arthur Holmes, who played the harp and mouth-organ, ukelele and violin, Mrs. Wyatt playing the first two instruments. Reading, "Betsy and I are out, by Roscoe Doughty; solo, Mrs. Keene, "When you are blue"; reading, "John Lee", Miss Vera Caniff; paper, "What it means to be a Christian," Miss Mossum; quartet, William Phillips, Arthur Holmes, Mrs. Joseph Haydon and Miss Vera Caniff, with Mrs. Arthur Wyatt presiding at the organ; a reading, "An election, wet or dry," by Mrs. Moon; reading, "A loaf of barley bread," Miss Eva Goard.

Miss Alma Moorcroft conducted an intelligence contest. Cards bearing numbers were passed and partners chosen and a story read by the convenor. This required an answer which was worked out letter by letter in response to the directions given and when properly interpreted read, "Refreshments are ready." A delicious lunch was served by the Hassard's Young People. Rev. J. R. Trumpour very ably moved a vote of thanks to the members of Hassard's league and this was seconded by Miss Blaney.

Big Plowing Match To Be Held At Ottawa

The International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration is this year to be held at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, according to a decision made by the Board of Directors of the Ontario Plowmen's Association. D. S. Gray, superintendent of the Experimental Farm has been chosen as chairman of the General Committee.

J. J. Duffus of this city told The Examiner Saturday that everything worked so well when the match was held at Peterborough last October that the chairmen of the various committees are seeking advice from a number of the local committeemen who put the project over with such success. G. A. Gillespie, who was chairman of the teams committee has been asked what plan he followed in lining up some 125 teams that were needed locally last year.

Mr. Duffus is going to Ottawa to help the committee complete details for the big event. He has already made several trips to the Capitol in connection with the match and incidentally he was chairman of the committee which decided where the match was to be held this year.

BIRTHDAY PARTY BEULAH SOCIETY

Women's Missionary Society Celebrates 40th Anniversary of Organization.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES

MADOC, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—Tuesday, May 3rd, was a gala day for Ivanhoe when the Beulah Women's Missionary Society of Ivanhoe invited all the neighboring societies to a birthday party to celebrate their 40th anniversary of their organization. Soon after two o'clock arrivals were greeted and visiting members were coming from north, south, east and west. Promptly at half-past two, when most of the visitors had been greeted by president and friends, the meeting was opened by "O God our help in ages past," scripture reading by Mrs. Lovelace, and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Lovelace. Mr. Mitz, the secretary for many years, then gave a brief but comprehensive history of the W.M.S. of Beulah Church. Upon the platform were grouped with the president, Mrs. John Clements, Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Dafoe of Madoc and Mrs. Mitz. Decorating the pulpit and platform were beautiful flowering plants, one of which instantly caught the eye, a showy hydrangea, full of bloom and in a decorative china jardinere, whose purpose we were to learn later.

Mrs. Mitz told of the organization of the W.M.S. and some thing of what it has meant to keep the society growing and flourishing in the little country church. The first president was and through the years, Mrs. (Rev.) W. D. Harrison, Mrs. (Rev.) Weatherill, Mrs. Timmerman, Mrs. (Rev.) Wilkinson, Mrs. (Rev.) Robeson, Mrs. John Wood, Mrs. John Fleming, Mrs. (Rev.) A. B. Frederick, Mrs. Jos. Wood, Miss Tillie Wood, Mrs. Baldwin Reid, Mrs. Arthur Wood, and the present president, Mrs. John Clements. Of these five have said, "Good-night" here and "Good-morning" up yonder,—Miss Harvey, Mrs. Timmerman, Mrs. John Wood, Mrs. John Fleming and Miss Tillie Wood. Some of the charter members of that first organization were, Mrs. (Rev.) Luke, Miss Harvey, Miss Chapman, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Sine, Miss Carscallen, Mrs. Robert Harvey and Mrs. Timmerman. Bringing the history down to present time, Mrs. Mitz told of the endeavor to keep going, though small in numbers, and a little of the present work.

Presentation Made

When Mrs. Mitz closed, Mrs. Wood rose and gracefully presented her with the beautiful hydrangea which was now placed on the table before her, as a token of the appreciation of her fellow-members for her faithful and loyal work for the good of the society. Mrs. Mitz endeavored to reply through tears and there was scarcely a dry eye in the room.

A general program was introduced, and Mrs. Sweet, president of St. Thomas' Anglican Church gave a paper of real inspiration and help on "Courage." Taking the work of all the Women's Missionary societies to consist of praying, learning, working and giving, she showed how these must be intertwined by the real thread of courage, as well as the work done on distant mission fields, and closed with an earnest call to do all "For His Sake."

Fuller Presbyterian Church gave a pathetic and appealing recitation, "Tommy's Prayer." A beautiful solo was supplied by West Huntingdon United Church, "God's Hand is Everywhere." From Fuller United Church came the thrilling little story of "Nellie's Gift, or Two Mitts, (Mites)."

Mrs. Frank Dafoe of Madoc, representing the Madoc District, regretted that through illness of two members, the quartet of Trinity W.M.S. were unable to give their number, but would give briefly some bright side-lights of Belleville Presbyterial. A most interesting address was listened to, dealing as it did with nominations, resolutions, press notices, Kingdom of God movement, and the president's address.

After all joining in singing "Jesus Saves," St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church gave a reading "A cent a-piece," telling how the giving of one cent to each of 63 objectives by a poor working woman resulted in an offering of one thousand and sixty-three dollars and sixty-three cents.

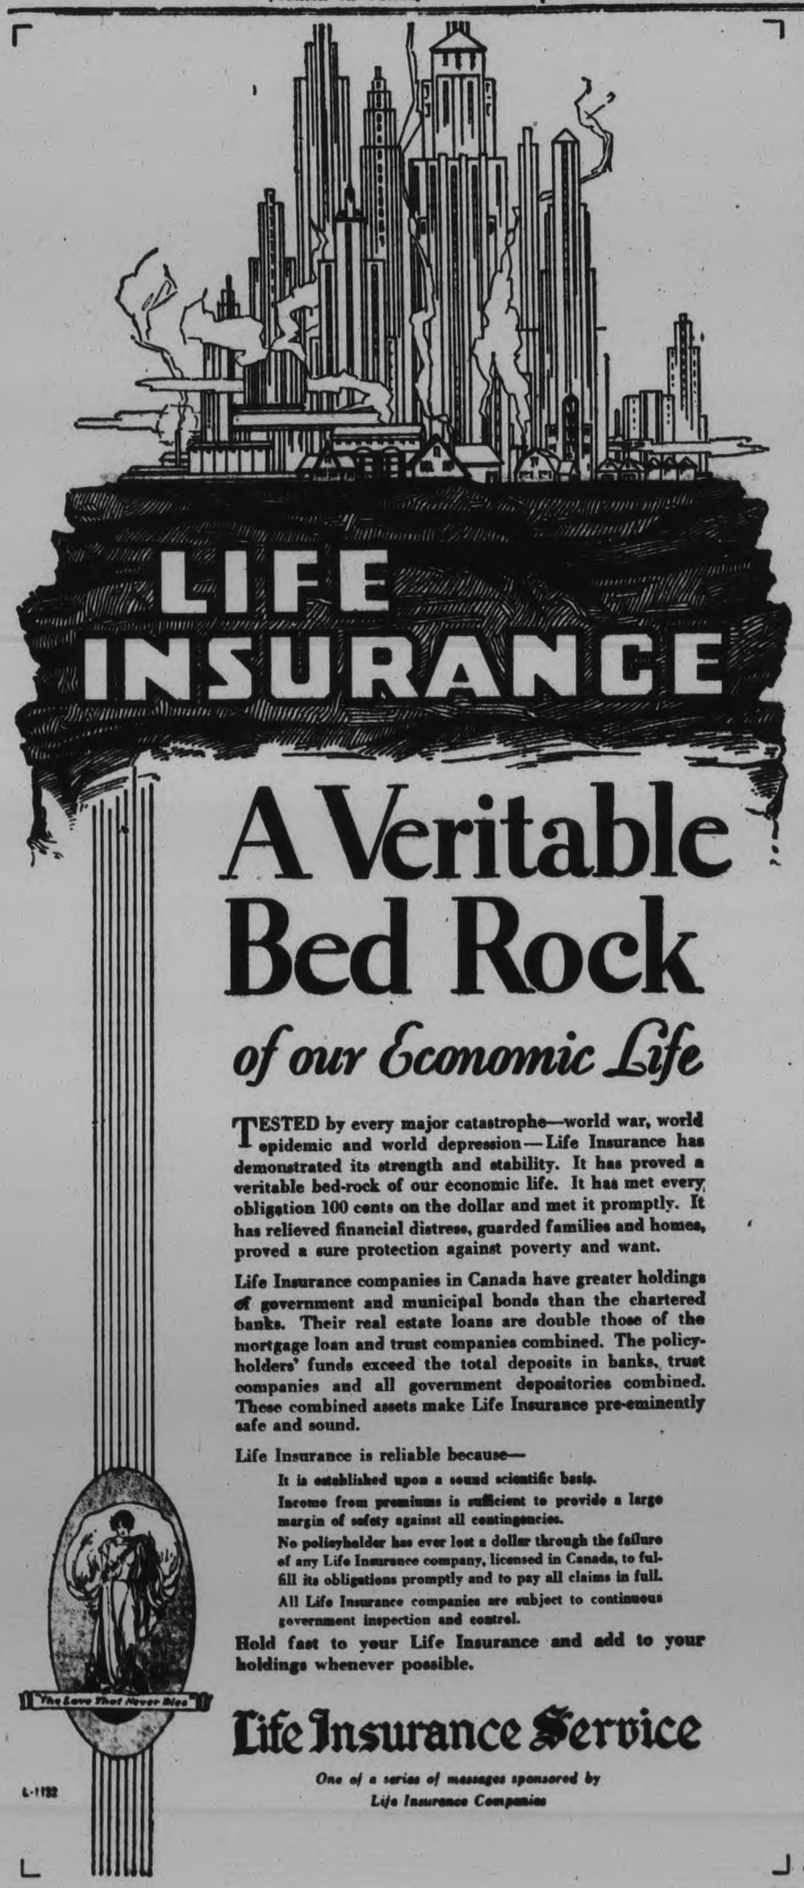
Bethesda Church contributed a duet, "Pilot Me, O Gracious Saviour," after which a representative of Moira W.M.S. gave a "Reverie in Church," quite dramatically. Several of the "Old Girls" were present and Mrs. Horton of Belleville spoke for them voicing the heartfelt gladness of each at being "Home" once more, and Rev. Mr. Lovelace in his address of appreciation wished they could come home to stay. Mr. Lovelace ventured the idea that each number had been, not good, better, best, but all in the superlative degree, best, and all most inspiring.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Beulah ladies, by Mrs. (Rev.) G. W. Rivers of Madoc, for this most enjoyable surprise birthday party, and was seconded by Mrs. G. Gerald of Belleville, all joining heartily in tendering their appreciation of the splendid program and the warm welcome given.

A dainty and delicious lunch was served by the ladies, and a birthday cake with forty lighted candles graced the table and all were treated to a piece of the cake after the candles were extinguished.

All joined in wishing the society "Many Happy Returns of the day," as the good-byes were said.

Twelve of the Madoc ladies were privileged to attend the W.M.S. birthday party at Beulah on Tuesday afternoon last. These were indebted to the courtesy of Mrs. George Maybee and Mrs. Hamm in offering their cars for the most enjoyable drive, on the pleasantest afternoon of the week.



A Veritable Bed Rock

of our Economic Life

TESTED by every major catastrophe—world war, world epidemic and world depression—Life Insurance has demonstrated its strength and stability. It has proved a veritable bed-rock of our economic life. It has met every obligation 100 cents on the dollar and met it promptly. It has relieved financial distress, guarded families and homes, proved a sure protection against poverty and want.

Life Insurance companies in Canada have greater holdings of government and municipal bonds than the chartered banks. Their real estate loans are double those of the mortgage loan and trust companies combined. The policyholders' funds exceed the total deposits in banks, trust companies and all government depositories combined. These combined assets make Life Insurance pre-eminently safe and sound.

Life Insurance is reliable because—

It is established upon a sound scientific basis.

Income from premiums is sufficient to provide a large margin of safety against all contingencies.

No policyholder has ever lost a dollar through the failure of any Life Insurance company, licensed in Canada, to fulfill its obligations promptly and to pay all claims in full.

All Life Insurance companies are subject to continuous government inspection and control.

Arbor Day Is Held Trent River School

TRENT RIVER, May 9. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — The teacher, R. W. Umphrey and pupils of the Public school fittingly observed Arbor Day on Friday. Books were discarded for the day and the pupils cleaned and brightened up the interior of the school, cleaned windows and blackboards, while the library also received its share of renovating. All this work was done by the girls, while the boys helped with the outside work.

Three flower beds were prepared by the teacher and boys of the school and shrubs and plants of various kinds were planted.

The trustees of the school have leased about half an acre of land from H. B. Wood adjoining the school grounds, thus enlarging the children's playground.

The men of the school section arrived in the morning, some bringing with them horses and stoneboats, while others brought drills, shovels, crowbars, saws and axes; the latter were used in the erection of the new fence. Those who gave their services were Messrs. H. B. Wood, J. I. Free, Sam Adams, V. Chaplin, Clifford Chaplin, C. Alley, Geo. Bronsell, George Vance, Ernest Hawley, M. Wannamaker, Don Carnrite, Don Ellis, F. Cook, Emerson Glenn, Jas. Dunn, Ralph Vance, Don Seaborn, Thos. J. Brown, Matt Sedgwick, Frank Curtiss, Mr. Moore and son, Lloyd Vanvolkenburg. The pupils were dismissed early in the afternoon while the men remained to complete the fence.

Royals Tie Baltimore Birds For Second Position

MONTREAL CLUB WINS 9TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Rain Halts Rochester-Baltimore Game With Score Tied at 5-5.

ROYALS IN 3RD PLACE.

(By the Associated Press.)

With the race getting tighter almost with every game, a tied game has come along to complicate the International League situation.

The Baltimore Orioles and Rochester Red Wings were going along smoothly in the seventh inning yesterday with the score tied at 5-5 after a big Rochester rally in the sixth when rain came down and brought their struggle to an end.

The Orioles took an early lead, aided by Heffner, who provided the daily homer, but after they had driven Ray Starr from the hill, Clarence Heise and Jim Winford stopped them and the Red Birds nicked Ken Holloway for six straight hits and four runs before Paul Florence was thrown out at the plate trying for the winning tally.

Tie Orioles for Second.

The tie dropped Baltimore into a tie for second place with the victorious Montreal Royals. They are three games behind the Newark Bears, who were rained out at Buffalo yesterday.

Montreal turned in its ninth straight victory, turning back Jersey City 6-5 to break a tie with Buffalo and move up a notch in the standing.

Jersey's Skeeters took the lead at the start, driving Johnny Pomorski out in the second and leading 4-1 after the third. The Royals cut loose against Perkins in the sixth for three runs that tied the score and put over the winning tally in the next inning. Both teams hit hard with Joe Moore of the Skeeters getting four hits in five times up.

With one game rained out and Reading and Toronto not scheduled, the day's results left four teams within one game of one another. Buffalo remained a half-game behind Baltimore and Montreal with Rochester a full game behind. The difference is found in the victory column as all four teams have lost nine games apiece.

Canadiens Beaten By Tecumsehs 8-6

TORONTO, May 9. — If initial games can be taken as a criterion of what sort of a race professional box lacrosse teams will experience during the schedule, competition should be keen throughout. In downing the champion Montreal Canadiens for their first victory at the Maple Leaf Gardens last Saturday evening, Corbett Dennenay's Tecumsehs produced a four-cornered tie, each team having won one and lost the same number of games.

The game, which was witnessed by a crowd in the neighborhood of 2,000, was highly interesting, but rather slow in comparison with games played last year. This may be accounted for by the larger surroundings and floor at the Maple Leaf Gardens. Also it takes a crowd to make any game, and in this instance the gathering appeared very small in the spacious sports palace.

Tecumsehs took the lead in the early seconds of play, and, although the Frenchmen threatened and came within one goal of knotting the count on three occasions, the Indians always held the whip hand. They outscored the visitors 3 to 2 in the first period and 4 to 3 in the second while each team tallied once in the final chapter.

Peden And Fielding Winners In Bikeathon

Supreme On Land, Water And In Air

The mechanical genius of Great Britain is apparently without equal. In the air, Flight-Lieutenant G. H. Stainforth of the British Royal Air Force has attained a speed of 388.67 miles an hour in winning the Schneider cup for his country, in the famous "-1596". Kaye Don in Miss England II set a record for speed boats that has been barely beaten and is out to regain the world's speed record in the racing boat Miss England III, in trials in Italy. On land, Sir Malcolm Campbell, in his super racing car, has gained the world's speed record in almost unassailable time. The Schneider Cup, having been won for the third consecutive time by Great Britain in competition with the world, has now been withdrawn. The withdrawal was due to the failure of Italy, France and the United States to send entries. Great Britain broke all existing records twice, and with two different pilots, at Calshot last September. Flight-Lieutenant J. N. Bootham, two hours before Stainforth reached a speed of over 388 miles per hour, drove his plane to a new mark, exceeding the then world record by 11.45 m.p.h. Stainforth made four flights along the three kilometres speed course, on one of which, down wind, he reached 388.67 m.p.h. His average speed was 379 m.p.h. It was at first thought that had to be revised when the motion picture films taken by the electric timing apparatus came to be developed. Canadians will have the opportunity of seeing the world's fastest plane, the "S.-1596" at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year. If the speed boat Miss England III. comes up to expectations, Lord Wakefield will send her to the Exhibition accompanied by Kaye Don, the popular hero of the Harmsworth Cup races at Detroit, last year. These triumphs of British engineering in the air, on the water and on land demonstrate the complete supremacy of the Old Country in every field of endeavor.

CANUCKS SCORE BRILLIANT WIN

ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—Toronto's sporting public were still commenting to-day on the wild excitement at Arena Gardens Saturday night, when William "Torchy" Peden, Victoria cycling star, and Reggie Fielding of Toronto, rode to victory in the Queen City's first six-day bikeathon. Grinding away for more than 143 hours the all-Canadian pair pedalled 2,480 miles during the week and annexed a total of 1,337 sprint points.

It was in the final hour of the race that the Peden-Fielding combination cinched themselves the leadership after trailing the leaders throughout the greater part of the week. Their victory was by no means a walk-over, for tied in distance with the giant Victoria red head and his blonde mate were the French duo of Alfred Letournneur and Henri Lepage of Montreal. The pair of game Frenchmen battled till the last minute and it was only their inability to pile up sprint points in the final hours that lost them the race.

Trailing the leaders came the youthful team of Harry Horan, Newark, N.J., and Jules Audy, 18-year-old Montreal boy. The international pair covered one-twelfth of a mile less than the leaders and were well behind in sprint totals. Leading for the greater part of the week the grueling test of the final hours had telling effect on Reggie McNamara, grand old man of six-day grinds, and his partner, Al. Crossley, riding under the colors of the United States. It was not until the final hours that the Australian war horse and his mate relinquished the lead to the sturdy Peden and his mate.

Tied for fourth place in actual lap distance but well behind in sprint points, came the Boogman brothers of Belgium, and Freddie Zach and Lawrence Gadou of Montreal. Baggio and Van Slambrouck, the Italian team, finished in seventh place ahead of Stubecke and Bartelle, who brought up the rear.

Soccer Player Falls Into "The Drink"

One of the most humorous incidents that ever happened in local soccer took place on Saturday afternoon, when Wood, at inside right for the Scots, travelled down the field with the ball towards the Packers' goal, but just as he was in the act of shooting, he fell his full length into a large pool of water. When he stood erect, the water and mud dripped off him and to all appearance looked as if somebdoy had put him in the "drink." The players as well as the spectators enjoyed the incident humorously. His trainer immediately called him off the field to the dressing room and substituted new equipment to add to his comfort.

The silver fox ranked first in Canada's fur production for the 1930-31 season with 71,816 pelts sold worth $3,216,217.

MASKED MARVEL WILL APPEAR IN 1ST WRESTLING SHOW HERE

ON FRIDAY, MAY 13TH

Announcement of the main bout for the first of the series of wrestling shows he plans to operate here was received to-day from Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Club. The Queen City impressario has made a marked success of wrestling promotion, several of his shows at Maple Leaf Gardens having drawn capacity crowds of over 16,000 people, and he plans to bring the best available wrestlers to Peterborough which he considers should develop into a splendid centre for the sport.

In the feature match of the first show here, which will be held here at the Brock street rink next Friday night, the latest wrestling sensation will appear. The Masked Marvel, whose identity is kept a closely guarded secret from even the promoters will show his wares against a worthy opponent in Abe Kashey, the Armenian champion.

Battled With Londos

The Marvel has scored victory after victory in the New England states and lately had added to his list to triumphs in Canada. In Boston he defeated twelve men in succesion including the famous German, Hans Steinke whom he threw twice in seven minutes, a feat which no other wrestler has been able to accomplish. The fans clamored for a match between this Mystery Man and champion Jim Londos and finally the titleholder accepted the bout. For the first time since winning the title, Londos failed to throw an opponent in straight falls. He won, however, when the referee disqualified The Marvel for using the stranglehold.

Kashey has an excellent record, weighs well over 200 pounds and should extend this unknown wrestler to the limit. A stellar supporting program is being arranged.

Winnipeg Toilers Beat Montrealers

OTTAWA, May 9 (C.P.).—Winnipeg's Toilers, rulers of Dominion senior basketball for 1932, invade the Capital to-day for an exhibition game with Ottawa All-Stars. The Western quintette captured the championship at St. John, N.B., last week, and turned back Montreal Central Y Blues in an exhibition on Saturday night.

The All-Stars, composed of players from the various senior city league teams and two from the Dominion junior champions, Glebe Collegiate, have a week of intensive training behind them, and are confident of offering the titleholders a tough battle.

Yesterday's Stars

Burleigh Grimes, Cubs—Making first start of years, survived three-run attack in first inning and beat Dodgers 12—5.

GRIMES COPS FIRST START FOR CHICAGO

Cincinnati Reds Sweep Series by Taking Fourth Victory From Braves.

GIANTS BREAK EVEN.

Indians Defeat Macks at Home—Senators and Red Sox Are Victors.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Burleigh Grimes, whose name is synonymous with baseball courage, is back in harness again and the Chicago Cubs, tough enough without him, are just that much more formidable.

An attack of influenza laid low the veteran right hander just as the 1932 campaign opened but he came back yesterday in his first starting role to survive a three-run attack by the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first inning and finally beat them, 12-5.

Not by ay stretch of the imagination could Grimes' effort be termed good pitching, but it was characteristic of him that he could weather such a storm of base hits as the Dodgers turned loose and then hold them in check the rest of the way.

Max Carey's hopefuls, with Hack Wilson still out the lineup, pounded Grimes for six hits and four runs in the first two innings. After that they nudged the ancient elbower for only six more safeties and could not score again until the ninth when the Cubs already held a 12-4 lead. Dazzy Vance, usually extremely effective against the Cubs, had one man out in the third inning, when he lost control, walked three men in a row and was unceremoniously yanked. Before the inning was over the Cubs had scored five times and taken a 7-4 lead.

This victory stretched Chicago's advantage in the National League to three full games as the Boston Braves lost their fourth straight to the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5.

The New York Giants and St. Louis split a double bill. The Giants won the opener, 4-1, as Carl Hubell allowed only six hits and the Cardinals the nightcap, 6-5, as the eccentric Dizzy Dean went the route for the champions. Dean was hit hard but was fairly effective in the pinches.

Maintain Lead.

The Washington Senators maintained their lead in the American League race by nosing out the Chicago White Sox, 6-5 in 14 innings. Moe Berg's single drove home the winning run much to the annoyance of Ted Lyons, who travelled the full route for the White Sox. Walter Johnson called on four pitchers, Marberry, Burke, Fischer and Ragland in that order.

Cleveland walloped the Philadelphia Athletics again 8-5, and the Boston Red Sox broke an eight game losing streak at the St. Louis Browns' expense, 7-5.

Davis Cup Matches

JAPANESE TEAM ADVANCES.

ATHENS, May 9. — The Japanese Davis Cup tennis team won the last two singles matches from Greece yesterday to sweep the first round series 5-0. J. Satoh defeated O. Garangiotis 66-4, 12-10, 6-3, and Kuwabara defeated Nicolaides, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

AUSTRIANS WIN.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 9. —Austria advanced to the second round of Davis Cup tennis competition yesterday by beating Czechoslovakia three matches to two.

Leading 2 to 1 after the first two days, Austria won out in the final match when Franz Matjeka defeated Hecht of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 6-4, 8-6. Rodich Menzel of Czechoslovakia had tied the count at two-all earlier in the day by beating Hermann Artens, 6-2, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

MONACO ELIMINATES NORWAY

OSLO, Norway, May 9. — Monaco made a clean sweep of its Davis Cup tennis series with Norway yesterday, winning the final two singles matches. V. Landau defeated R. Hagen 6-1, 6-4, 6-0, and R. Gallepe defeated J Haanes, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0. Monaco previously had won the first two singles matches and the doubles.

GERMANY IN SECOND ROUND.

BERLIN, May 9. — Germany advanced into the second round of Davis Cup competition yesterday by winning the doubles from India and clinching the series 3-0. Dr. Walter Dessart and G. Nourney came from behind to capture the doubles, 6-4, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2, 63. On Saturday Gottfried von Cramm and Daniel Prenn won the first two singles matches.

RAIN AT GENOA.

GENOA, Italy, May 9. — Rain forced postponement yesterday of the Davis Cup tennis matches between Italy and Egypt.

BURGOO KING WINS KENTUCKY CLASSIC IN SMASHING DRIVE

Economic Second and Stepenfetchit Third—Favorite, Tick On, Well Back.

THIRD BRADLEY VICTORY.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 9. — The thoroughbred son of a royally-bred sire, Burgoo King, came down the stretch Saturday with a smashing drive to capture the rich Kentucky Derby, to duplicate the victory of his sire, Bubbling Over, in 1923, and give the hearts of the old bluegrass their greatest thrill in many a Southern moon.

Burgoo King whipped the best that the East had to offer in an unwieldy field of 20 starters, whipped them all soundly, and gave his former owner, Colonel Edward Riley Bradley, the master of Irle Hour Farm at Lexington, honors that no turfman had ever gained before.

Forty Thousand Roar Applause

An unexpectedly big crowd of 40,000 roared its tribute to Colonel Bradley's third victory within a dozen years, a record for all time. In addition to the conquest of Bubbling Over in 1926, the Bradley entry of Behave Yourself and Black Servant ran one-two in 1921. Bagenbaggage, another Bradley horse, ran second to Bubbling Over.

Taking full command in the stretch after being rated nicely all the way by Jockey Eugene James, a former Louisville newsboy, Burgoo King left little doubt he was the best of the 3-year-olds in the fifty-eighth running of the United States' most colorful horse race.

The big chestnut son of Bubbling Over-Minawand finished five good lengths in front of his nearest rival, Economic, owned by J. H. Louisheim of New York.

Economic, after setting the pace for the first mile and then being unequal to meeting Burgoo King's finish, saved the place by the margin of a head over Stepenfetchit, main hope of the stable of Mrs. John Hay Whitney of New York and ridden by the veteran Buddy Ensor.

Noses Separate Three

At half length behind Stepenfetchit, noses separated the next three horses as Brandon Mint finished fourth; Overtime, the other Whitney entry with Earl Cande in the saddle, fifth; and the heavily-played favorite, Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann's Tick On, sixth.

Tick On went to the barrier the popular favorite, but used up most of its energy in bad behavior at the barrier. The black son of On Watch contributed mainly to the delay of exactly 15½ minutes at the post, finally broke poorly, was kicked in an early jam and never a contender despite the effort sof Jockey Pete Walls to put the favorite out of the ruck. Tick On manifested plenty of gameness and speed in spite of misbehavior and bad breaks, which effectually destroyed any real chance this cold had of giving the winner a race.

Burgoo Ring's stablemate, Brother Joe, finished last, after Liberty Limited, the hope of the three D.'s stable of Fort Worth Texas, broke down in the bac kstretch, but nobody paid any attention to that oddity as the handsome victor came back to the stands to receive a terrific ovation, while Governor Ruby Laffoon presented the trophy to Colonel Bradley.

Complete List Starts

With the complete entry list of 20 going to the barrier, thereby upsetting expectations of a half-dozen scratches, the Derby was worth $62,875. The winner's net earnings amounted to $52,350. Economic drew down $6,000; Stepenfetchit, $3,000, and Brandon Mint, $1,000.

LEAGUE OPENER IS CALLED OFF

Packers Defeat Scots 4-0 in Exhibition Game on Saturday.

ON MUDDY PITCH.

Amid water and mud, local soccer players inaugurated the unofficial opening of the season on Saturday afternoon, at King Edward Park, when the Packers and Caledonians played an exhibition game, instead of the scheduled league match which had been declared off owing to the field being covered with large pools of water and in the goal area mud prevailed to the depth of ankle deep. On the north side of the pitch a considerable amount of earth had not been removed which was considered dangerous to the players.

Referee Alex McKinley inspected the ground and declared the field unplayable. To satisfy the fans present, the players decided on an exhibition encounter that was won by the Packers to the score of four to nothing.

First Half

From the kick off, the Packers sent the ball into the Scots' territory to evade the defense with close passing tactics which terminated in Frick clearing the scrimmage. Play reverted back to the Packers' citadel where O'Halloran sent a stinging drive in below the bar. David Green, in goal, for the Packers, threw himself into the air to convert the ball over the crossbar. Nothing resulted from the flag-kick. Two goals were collected by the Packers, when they had the edge of the play, as the forwards combination dominated the attack to gain two goals by Newt Downer. The first came off the left cross to give Frick no chance. A few minutes later, the pivot man picked the inside of the upright with a low grounder. Exchanges continued even until the winners' halves concentrated in close tactis to prevent the Scots making inroads on the Hakin-Downer full defense. Eventually the losers transferred the play to the other end through long swinging passes that had the opposition bewildered. Their attitude permitted O'Halloran to gain prominence by his deceptive shots inside the goal area. On one occasion, he accepted a pass from Coyle, on the left, with a first timer that Green diverted round the corner for a fruitless flag kick. Half time found the play in mid-field.

Rough Going

On resuming, the Packers' combination brought them within shooting range but found the going a little too rough owing to the uncertain footing around the goal. Captain Buchanan was in mid-season form with splendid movements to keep his forwards intact. Repeatedly he placed his inside men with a perfect pass to give them ample time to test the ability of Frick, Scots' goalie. Ross, accepted a pass up the centre who had three opposing men close upon him but he held on tenaciously to feint a move that deceived the goalie as he gently tapped the sphere to the other end of the posts. At this point, the Scots took up the attack in real earnest to range all kinds of shots at Green, Packers' custodian. Another fast run down the field by McCracken gave Green another busy session who seemed to enjoy the festivities around the "water area" as the attacking force could'nt connect properly in the mud. Just before the final whistle, O'Halloran hit the cross-bar with a rocket drive and two fruitless corner kicks ended the tussle. Packers 4, Caledonians 0.

Packers—D. Green, goal; Ernie Hakin and A. Downer, full backs; Art Downer, J. Buchan and Art. Bromley, halves; George Downer, Jack Ross, Newt Downer, Frank Dyer and Tom Foster, forwards.

Caledonians—A. Frick, goal; T. McPhate and T. Craig, full backs; A. Reid, A. McPhate and D. Best, halves; W. McCracken, J. Woods, J. O'Halloran, W. Rankin and J. Coyle, forwards.

Referee—David McGregor.

58th Kentucky Derby Winner

Burgoo King, aided Edward Riley Bradley set a record for Kentucky derby owners on Saturday by copping first place honors in this turf classic. Bradley is the first breeder to own three derby winners, Behave Yourself winning in 1921 and Bubbling Over in 1921.

CASUAL COMMENT

The senior ball players will workout for a while nightly at Stevenson Park this week, practicing fielding one evening, hitting another, and so on, with City League teams being given part of the grounds when they want to workout. Since Saturday's drill was washed out, the players will have to get in plenty of work through the week.

• • • • • • •

A number have affixed their signatures to senior certificates already, while other players have been sent theirs to sign. Among those returned okay so far are Russ Kitchen, "Cark" Rogers, Lambert Collins, Ray Rose, Deb Hillier, "Red" Hollingsworth, Tommy Foley and Harry Nicholls. The rest of the starting outfit will be signed up by next Saturday.

• • • • • • •

Art Primeau figures he'll just get from twelve to fourteen players to start with, with other good players being split up in the East Peterborough League teams. Then if he wants one of the latter he will negotiate with his E.P.L. manager and swap a player. The senior team then should be at top strength at all times, while the E.P.L. would not suffer from a depletion in its ranks.

• • • • • • •

Al Heckman will likely be seen on the mound for the odd game this summer, the big fellow having attended a couple of the workouts so far. He, Kitchen, perhaps Holmes, and another good hurler should form a strong pitching corps. Don Wood and Gil Kay, two promising youngsters, will be trying for a berth as twirlers also.

• • • • • • •

With two good receivers and these pitchers, the Petes' battery problem isn't very great. And the infield is shaping up pretty well so far. Outside of Tommy Foley, we haven't much dope on the men who patrol the gardens, but there are several good outfielders, who were with the East Peterborough League last year and are now trying out with the seniors, who ought to make the grade.

• • • • • • •

Both Charlie Curtis and Art Primeau have practically decided to stage an exhibition game, in the nature of a practice one, for next Saturday afternoon between the seniors and an all-star E.P.L. outfit at either the Ex. or Riverside. Doesn't sound like a bad idea at all, either for the players or for impatient fans.

• • • • • • •

The Girls' Softball League meeting is called for eight o'clock at Duffus' this evening, and there should be a good representation on hand. A bunch of details will be cleaned up, the important question of a higher entrance fee discussed, and so forth. Those who are interested should be there to express opinions, or hold their peace, forevermore.

• • • • • • •

Final rolling at the Brock today and tomorrow should have the new floor in readiness early this week for box lacrosse practises. Meantime, the intermediate lacrossers will hold an outdoor workout tomorrow night at six down at the Exhibition Grounds, and all players wanting places should be on the spot and on time.

• • • • • • •

The Canadian amateur boxing tournament and Olympic trials will be held in the Toronto Maple Leaf Arena this Thursday and Friday, with simon pure scrappers from all over the Dominion taking part. The nominations from each province will be restricted to four, but the tournament is open to anyone. However, extra boxers must enter eliminations of their own prior to the tournament proper.

The first professional wrestling show of the year will be staged here this Friday, at the Brock under Jack Corcoran's direction. The main attraction will be the mysterious Masked Marvel, heavyweight American grappler who knows his stuff but must be a capitalist or something, the way he goes around under wraps as does his manager. Anyway, he tackles Abe Kashey, billed as the Armenian champ. With a good supporting case, the card should satisfy the crowd that has been inquiring for months back when we'd have another pro grappling affair here. Garibaldi will appear here at an early date.

Two Youths On An Excursion Of Love Find Police Cell More Economical Than Hotel

Claiming that they had merely come here on an excursion of love, two Port Hope youths could not explain to a constable last night why they had changed their names and appeared before Magistrate Langley to-day, charged with vagrancy.

"We just came here Saturday night to see our girls and go to a party," they explained.

"Surely, no one is holding parties in Peterborough on Sunday nights?" queried the cadi.

"Oh, no, the party was Saturday night. Sunday night we just had a quiet evening. Their parents were present."

However, Chief Newhall stated that the same pair had spent several nights in the police station as lodgers during the past month, and each night gave a different name.

"We're known around here and we didn't want our friends to know we were putting up at the hoosegow," they explained.

Both were remanded until tomorrow to allow police to investigate their story.

The charge of selling liquor against John Wyatt was dismissed when the Magistrate gave judgment in the case, which was tried before him a week ago.

Arrested early Sunday morning outside a local cafe when his antics had attracted the attention of Constable Joseph Wheeler, a local youth was charged with having liquor in his possession not purchased on his permit. He pleaded not guilty, being remanded for a week. He was allowed his freedom without bail.

CAR ACCIDENT IS FATAL.

Port Dalhousie Man Dies From Injuries Received Saturday Night

ST. CATHARINES, May 9 (C.P.)—Harry Higgs, 52, of Port Dalhousie, died in the General Hospital this morning from injuries received Saturday night when he was struck by a car driven by James Rennie, also of Port Dalhousie, not far from his home. Rennie claims he was close upon Higgs before he saw him. Jamming on the brakes, the car skidded on the wet pavement and turned over, pinning Higgs underneath. He sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Miss England III. Is Ready For Don

LONDON, May 9. (A.P.) — The builders of Miss England III to-day turned the speedboat over to Lord Wakefield, her owner, and she was shipped to Italy to be prepared by Kaye Don, her driver, for the coming regatta on Lake Garda.

Lord Wakefield said he believed the new boat, which is more powerful than the Miss England II in which Don once set a world record was capable of regaining the world mark and also of winning the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit next Fall.

"THE BIG TIMER"

She was his wife and she was also his manager. She taught him how to roll his punches to protect his head—and then he lost his head and went haywire. And it took the best fight of his career, the fight in the wrecked office, to restore his self-confidence.

Pictures that have to do with the squared circle, like pictures of the big top, have a fascination all their own. In "The Big Timer," Ben Lyons, as "Cooky" Bradford and Constance Cummings, as Honey Baldwin, do one of those pyschological—human interest—swift action dramas that always hold the attention.

Cooky is the fighter who goes all the way in eats from hamburger steak to crepe suzettes, all the way in houses from an eating-house dump to a Park avenue apartment, all the way in reputation from fifth place to first position on the billboards. His wife-manager spurs him on, and then another woman, Thelma Todd, as the double-crossing Ray Mitchell, cracks him up.

Ben Lyon has a good part in this talkie, as the self-confident fighter who uses his fists to good advantage, and Constance Cummings is equally good as the feminine lead. Charlie Grapewin is "Pop," and there is also "Catfish," with its "sensational" line.

It is good entertainment; and has lots of swiftly-moving action.

With it is one of the very interesting African travel pictures. This episode pictures the capture of a ton-weight water buffalo and tells a lot about the attempts to eradicate the African scourge, the dreaded tsetse fly that spreads the sleeping sickness through the Dark Continent.—Jeanette.

JERRY'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Escape! From danger to be free!
That is enough for you or me.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat was in a hurry. He was in a great hurry. He was in such a hurry that he was forgetful and careless. You see he was on his way back from the pond of Paddy the Beaver, deep in the Green Forest, to his own beloved Smiling Pool on the Green Meadows. He had had a fine visit at Paddy's pond and had learned much. One of the things he had learned was that there was no place for him quite like his old home, and from the moment of that discovery he had become homesick. So for home he had started just as soon as it seemed safe to do so.

He was following the Laughing Brook partly because he would not feel at all at home away from water, and partly because the Laughing Brook would lead him straight down to the Green Meadows and the Smiling Pool. Thus there would be no chanc for him to get lost on the way home. And the nearer he got to home the faster he hurried. There really was no need for such haste. It was merely his homesickness that was driving him along.

The Laughing Brook was still swift and in places out of its banks, but Jerry knew that the water was falling and he felt that by the time he got home the Green Meadows would no longer be flooded. So he swam where he could and traveled along the bank where he couldn't swim and hurried, hurried. And so it happened that he almost ran smack into great big Buster Bear.

Buster had come over to the Laughing Brook to see if he could dig up some favorite roots in the soft, low places along the banks. Most of these were still under water, but here and there was a place from which the water had drained away and in such places Buster found skunk cabbage roots easy to dig in the soft earth. He had just dug a root in one such place and was sitting up as he ate it, his back to a big boulder on the edge of the Laughing Brook. Around this boulder came hurrying Jerry Muskrat and almost ran into Buster. It was a question which was the most surprised.

Well for Jerry was it that Buster happened to be so fully occupied with that root he had just dug. Jerry gave a frightened squeak and dodged to run around Buster and get to the Laughing Brook. He felt that there he would be safe.

Now Buster Bear may look to be slow and clumsy, but if you think he is you are fooling yourself. It is astonishing how quickly he can move when he wants to. This was one of those times. He dropped that root and in a flash was between Jerry and the Laughing Brook. Jerry tried to dodge around him, but Buster was too quick for him and one of those big paws nearly landed on Jerry. Then Jerry turned and scurried for a pile of rocks and stones near by. He was none too soon in reaching it. He dived in between two small rocks just as Buster struck at him again.

Now under and in this pile were passages in all directions such as we usually find in a stone heap. Jerry scurried along these. Of course, he didn't know where they would lead him, but he didn't care so long as they led him away from Buster Bear. Buster saw Jerry's funny tail disappearing and at once began to pull apart those rocks and stones. Now and then he would get a glimpse of Jerry or hear him and thus locate him.

This was fun. Yes, sir, it was fun. At least that was the way Buster regarded it. It wasn't so much his desire for a taste of fresh meat as the fun of trying to catch Jerry that kept Buster pulling apart that pile. It was like an exciting game and Buster was enjoying every minute of it. You see he was so strong that he could pull over small rocks with ease.

But if he was enjoying it, Jerry Muskrat was not. He certainly was not. He was scared. He was as badly scared as ever he had been in all his life. He hadn't dreamed that Buster Bear was so big or so strong. It hadn't occured to him that Buster would be able to pull those stones apart. He had had a narrow escape when he dodged in there. Now he was beginning to wonder if that escape really was an escape after all.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:40 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and from 6:45 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Astrological influences on May 9th will not be of an energizing nature, and it will be difficult to wind up the machinery for another week's work. Postponements, late afternoon hours, and unfinished tasks will characterize the day. Misadventures are augured for motorists, who are warned to take no risks, and not to drive with poor brakes.

The child born on this May 9th will not have a resigned nature, and will fight for those things which make an appeal to one of its temperament. Amongst its character assets are pluck, initiative and far-sightedness. Its main liabilities are impatience, conceit and selfishness.

Born on May 9th, you have too much individuality to ever become a standardized being—a typical person of any environment or profession. It rather pleases you to be thought eccentric, and you make it a point to stress your originality and individuality. You judge people quickly, and usually rightly, but your few violent prejudices prevent you from always being just. You have few illusions and your shrewd eyes quickly penetrate thin veneers or false pretenses. People are both hurt and amused by your ironic tongue. You generally "fell your oats," and in a dignified way are a conceited being. It hurts your pride not to be noticed, and you have many unconscious tricks which you spring in order so attract your share of attention.

There seems to be some affinity between you and the elements, and your spirits are usually stimulated by winds and storms. You are generally sleepless, during moonlight nights, and feel more than most people the mysterious fascination of this satellite of the earth.

Whilst making light of small bothers, you are a fiendish fighter over real issues, and no one dare try to smirch your personal honor or reputation. You are loyal to your friends, whom you try to protect through thick and thin. Marriage does not indicate either marked happiness or unhappiness.

FRANKFORD.

Frankford side streets are in a very creditable condition this spring. Last fall much gravel was spread, and this has settled and packed through the winter to make a good foundation for grading. During the last week the scraper was run over the roads, and they are now in a first class shape as a result.

Mr. Manning is having a fine summer cottage built on the east bank of the Trent River, a mile from Frankford. A few miles north E. Green is erecting a cottage on the opposite side of the river.

Smith Osterhout is erecting a dancing pavilion on the Frankford-Stirling highway overlooking the Trent River. This is an ideal spot for such a building, being accessible from both the road and the river, and should be a very popular spot this summer. The opening will be held on June 3rd. The Frankford Orchestra has been engaged for the season.

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH MARKS ITS 99 TH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Dr. S. T. Martin of Hamilton, Was the Special Preacher.

HAD 10 MINISTERS.

"God is as much in history now as He ever was and through the events of the present day is calling to His people," said the Rev. Dr. S. T. Martin, pastor of St. Gile's United Church, Hamilton, in preaching at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning on the occasion of the 99th anniversary.

At the outset of his sermon, which was outstanding by reason of its vigour and lucidity, the preacher voiced his appreciation at having been invited to address the congregation on such an auspicious occasion.

Taken from Isaiah 60: 1, "Arise, shine: for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee," the Rev. Dr. Martin briefly outlined the circumstances under which the text was written. It was written, he said, about 150 years after Isaiah had penned the first part of the book, and under altogether different circumstances.

In the early chapters of the book of Isaiah is recorded the more prosperous period of the Israelites' history, while the concluding chapters deal with the exile of the Israelites at a time when they were crushed, bruised and bleeding. They had passed through a great period of transition, both political and national, which other nations had failed to survive.

The first chapters of the book of Isaiah were also a denunciation of a proud and wicked people, whereas the second part of the book was the gentle pleading with a disturbed and chastened people.

He proceeded to draw a comparison between the events as recorded in the book of Isaiah and the present period, speaking of the period of prosperity which preceded the days of the Great War and after, when the people were inclined to be self-satisfied, "riding on the crest of the wave"; and the present attitude of the people who he said "are more or less chastened, or at least changed."

He had, he said, recently been looking over some of the sermons he preached a few years ago, and he hardly recognized them in comparison with the message he was preaching to-day.

The prophet's message to the people in exile had been, "Arise, shine: for thy light is come." It was a challenge that opened up a great possibility, he said.

Remarking upon the agelessness of the Scripture, he remarked that it always seemed to fit in with the need of the day. "I am convinced," he stated, "the church has never been confronted with greater opportunity in her entire history than she is to-day."

"We are the subdued people to-day," he maintained, "and thoughtful people all over the world feel that something has happened and that something is about to happen. People are perplexed to-day as never before, and are wondering where is the way out. There are a babel of voices offering this or that and we don't know which is right."

He thanked God for a patient people and said he had been amazed at the patience and courage of the people in these times of stress. "It is marvellous to me," he said.

Everywhere people were expecting something. "Now, if I say these are not conditions that challenge a Christian church she has never had a challenge. Arise, shine: for thy light is come."

"What is the church doing?" he asked. "What is her message?" It was not the church's business to stand behind this political organization, or behind that social organization, he said, adding that he believed the church's message was just the message of Jesus, whose mission it was to reveal to men the Father and the Kingdom of God.

The preacher contended that God's Kingdom was to be found on earth. "If we find God we also find His Kingdom," and he said "the world is now patient, sober, expectant and waiting and needs God."

He believed that a great deal of the world trouble was due to the fact that men did not realize their relationship to the Father. "We will get a different order as soon as men learn to play fair with God and with their fellow-men," he concluded. "God is as much in history now as He ever was and through the events of the present day is calling to His people."

The choir, under the direction of Thomas Phillips, provided a splendid service of music, which included the anthem, "Send Out Thy Light" (Gounod), and the two following solos by Walter Evans, tenor, of Toronto: "If With All Your Hearts (Mendelssohn) and "My Soul is Athirst" (Gaul).

It is fitting on the 99th anniversary of the founding of St. Andrew's congregation in Peterborough to recall the names of the various ministers. They are as follows: Rev. John Maurice Roger, 1833-1857; Rev. J. S. Douglas, 1858-1864; Rev. Daniel James McDonnell, 1866-70; Rev. Kenneth MacLennon, 1871-1877; Rev. Alexander Bell, 1877-1890; Rev. Andrew MacWilliams, 1891-1896; Rev. J. G. Potter, 1897-1910; Rev. James Rollins, 1910-1923; Rev. J. W. Gordon, 1924-1928; Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, 1928-.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 91

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

When at last the party came to the place beside the river where they had buried the gold, the Waziri singing and laughing, commenced to dig for the treasure. But soon their singing ceased and their laughter was replaced by expressions of puzzled concern. For a while Tarzan watched them in silence. Then a slow smile overspread his countenance. "You must have buried the treasure deep, Usula!" he said.

The Waziri chief scratched his head. "No, not as deep as this, Bwana," he replied. "We should have found it long ago." "Are you SURE this is the exact spot?" questioned the ape-man. "This is the place, Bwana. Someone has removed the gold since we buried it." The Spaniard, again!" commented Tarzan, "he was more than clever." Though they searched carefully, all trace of the golden ingots had been obliterated.

"It is gone," said the ape-man, "but NOT from Africa." He sent runners to the friendly tribes surrounding his domain, asking them to be on the watch for every safari and to let none pass that carried gold. That night before the campfire Tarzan lay beside Jad-bal-ja, examining the leopard skin the golden lion had retrieved in his pursuit of the Spaniard. What was the meaning of that map traced in blood?

Tarzan turned to his wife. "You were right Jane," he said, "the treasure vaults of Opar are not for me." "Never mind the gold and the gems," replied Lady Greystroke. "We have each other, and Korak. That's all that counts." "And a blood-stained leopard skin," laughed the ape-man ruefully, "with a map on it that I can make nothing of." Jad-bal-ja sniffed the hide and licked his chops, and only he knew why!

Nervous Indigestion

Troubled for Years, Mrs. John Machon Thanks Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Permanent Relief

Soon Saw A Great Change

"For many years I had been troubled with indigestion and my nerves," writes Mrs. John Machon, Calumet, Que., "I suffered constantly. I tried many remedies, but without gaining any relief. I was unable to get any rest. I got a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to give them a trial. I soon saw a great change. Now I can go to bed and have a good night's rest, and am able to do a day's work with any one. All I have to thank for it is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I would not be without them in the house."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are remarkably effective in cases like the above, because they create new rich blood which supplies to the nerves the very elements they need. Equally effective for all run-down and anaemic conditions. Try them. At your druggist's. 50c a package.

Weddings

HEFFERNAN-WOOD

Alma Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wood of Chili avenue, Rochester, N.Y., and Joseph J. Heffernan of Driving Park avenue, Rochester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Heffernan of Norwood, were married on Saturday morning, April 23rd, at the Holy Rosary Church at Rochester, the Rev. Francis Naughton performing the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pale blue net over taffeta, with matching hat, slippers and lace mittens. She carried a bouquet of Bridal roses.

L. A. Venner of Belle Isle acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a Canadian trip, Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan will take up residence at 361 Chili avenue, Rochester.

REICHERS READY FOR OCEAN HOP

Will Be Piloted Across Atlantic by Navigator Aboard Liner.

STARTS TUESDAY NIGHT.

NEWARK, May 9. — What Lou Reichers hopes will be the fastest flight across the Atlantic is scheduled to start from the Newark Airport to-morrow night.

Reichers, long distance speed flyer who hopes to cut in half the time of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's crossing, will fly a low-wing monoplane by way of Harbor Grace, N.F., and Ireland, making stops in both countries.

His course will be directed by Lieut. Harry Connor from the City of Hamburg, a Baltimore mail liner, now at sea bound for Havre.

Connors is one of the foremost navigators in the world.

WHEN IS CHILDREN'S DAY?

She was a little girl of six years. She noticed the pile of gifts that mother had received for her special day. With her head on one side, she asked thoughtfully: "Do they ever have Children's Day?"

SIX ACCEPT CHRIST.

Six persons advanced to the altar last night and announced their aim to follow the Christian life during the service conducted in the Grand Opera House by Rev. John H. Bostrom, evangelist. A large congregation heard his message on the subject, "Life After Death."

RUSH TO BUY TAGS.

Announcement that the newly appointed dog catcher would be abroad to-day discharging his duties brought quick action among many dog owners who had delayed purchasing tags for their pets. These dog owners, anxious to comply with the law before their neglect was discovered, hastened to the Police Station to secure the necessary tags. Police said they sold more dog tags to-day than during the past month.

TWO FALSE ALARMS.

Two false alarms were rung in to the City Fire Department within a period of three and a half hours on Sunday night, the first being received from Box 29 at Aylmer and McDonnel Streets at 8.02 p.m. and the second being sent from Box 16 at Perry and Bethune

Caledonians Will Hold Annual Picnic

The regular monthly meeting of the Caledonian Club was held last Friday evening in the Woodmen of the World Hall, with a good attendance of members present.

Several new members were put on the roll. The bowling schedule is now over, and the prize-list made up so that those who won prizes will received their awards next Friday.

An attractive program has been arranged for the balance of the month, and includes a lecture and concert. The Football Club has been granted the use of the hall for a social evening on June the 10th. It was decided to close the club for social activities from the end of May till the end of September

It was settled to hold the annual first of July picnic, but the location has not been decided upon.

Next Friday the Club, with their friends, are to meet at the Y.M.C.A. and be the guests of the "Y" for that night.

After the business the Executive served a light luncheon and the meeting adjourned.

IN MEMORIAM

WINTERS.—In loving memory of Mrs. Lewis Winters, who departed this life two years ago, May 7, 1930.

The flowing stream of life rolls on,
But still her vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of her we love so dear.
Friends may think we have forgot
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
That a smile hides all the while.

Relief Association Discontinues Work

Association Has Been Most Efficient In Its Work.

A meeting of the finance committee of the Peterborough Relief Association was held on Thursday last and passed the accounts for April for payment. The treasurer, Mr. R. T. Hicks-Lyne, presented the financial statement of the affairs of the association up to that time, showing an approximate balance of $2,000.00. The president was instructed to notify the City Council of the fact that the association had discontinued its activities for the present, and that the association felt the situation had reached such a point as to demand further joint federal, provincial and civic consideration.

Since its inception more than a year ago the Peterborough Relief Association has done remarkable work in the relief of distress in the city. The ladies of the organization did a very sympathetic social service, with special attention given to expectant mothers, where there was illness in the homes, where there was the necessity of additional help so that the family would not become undernourished, supplied clothing, boots and shoes, bedding, and in dozens of ways made the path a little easier in hundreds of homes where their efforts have been spent.

A lot of loose ends have been cleaned up by taking care of situations that it was impossible for formal bodies to attend to, and it can be said for the ladies of the association that they have had a great deal to do with the comparatively fine position the city is in by the enthusiastic and sympathetic manner they have carried out their work of relief.

Two Convicted In Procuring Of Food

BELLEVILLE, May 9.—Facing a charge of obtaining a quantity of goods and groceries from Reeve George Arnott of Frankford, Dorothy Judge and her sister-in-law, Eunice Judge appeared before Magistrate Mikel in the police court Saturday. After hearing the evidence of Reeve Arnott, who testified, that the two women had come to him and the Rev. A. S. Doggett of Frankford, for relief, he had proceured them the necessary foodstuffs and then had followed them to Glen Ross where he found, that they lived. The two accused women later admitted that they did not live in Frankford as they had told the Reeve. Eunice Judge also admitted in court the fact, that although she had told Reeve Arnott she was married this statement was not true. His Worship after hearing the evidence found the women guilty and enlarged the case until next Thursday for sentence.

Girl Is Released Under Army Charge

LINDSAY, May 9 (Special to The Examiner).—"Do you want to go back to your parents?" Magistrate Jordan asked Violet Graham, aged 20, this morning.

"No," replied the girl, "because my father beats me."

She was charged with vagrancy. Two weeks ago she left home with a young man, Alfred Bostock, who first stole $12 from the Elsmure Hotel, where he worked then hired a taxi to Peterborough and took the train to Port Hope. Their money being exhausted the young man and girl "hoboed" their way to Belleville and lived in "Jungletown" for a couple of days before being picked up.

The girl's mother stated that the father beat the girl and raised lumps on her hands. She was left off on suspended sentence, will live with her grandparents, and will be under the charge of the Salvation Army.

Constable Is Given Year In Reformatory

TORONTO, May 9 — (C.P.) — Cecil Walker, 43, suspended King township constable was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Reformatory, and John McNaughton, 47, Toronto lawyer, to two years less one day by Judge O'Connell in County Criminal Court to-day.

They had attempted to defraud Nelson King of $60 last Oct. 30, allegedly to have a disorderly conduct charge "fixed" in county police court.

CLASS PRESENTS PLEASING PROGRAM

Enjoyable Concert Staged by Sunbeam Members of St. James' Church.

The fine concert staged under the auspices of the Sunbeam Class of St. James' United Sunday School on Friday evening was an unqualified success from every point of view.

The class members, with their teacher, Miss Olive Prest, A.T.C.M., had arranged a very attractive stage setting, the softly glowing lights and profusion of ferns and potted plants making a charming interior, when a large and appreciative audience welcomed the artists of the evening.

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, pastor of the church, acted as chairman, announcing the varied and entertaining program.

Two delightful groups by the trio, Cecil Searles, 'cellist; Roy Rome, violinist, and Miss Olive Prest, pianist, were the opening selections and included: (a) "Hungarian Dance, No. 5," (b) Minuet. In the second group were (a) "Salute d'-Amour," (b) "Forget-Me-Nots."

Miss Ruth Fisher and Master Jack Skitch, pupils of Roy Rome, delighted everyone with their violin solos, and in each instance were heartily encored.

The vocal selections on the program were all charmingly sung. Mrs. E. Kitney, contralto, gave "Song of the Robin," with "Mighty Lak a Rose," as her encore, while Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, soprano, sang "Down Vauxhall Way," and "A May Morning."

Whistling Solos

A favorite artist is Miss Magnon Mayneord, whose whistling solos each received warm applause, to which she responded with encores.

The group of recitations by Mrs. Harold Bennett, which interspersed the musical program, were very much enjoyed and applauded. An unusually interesting selection was "The Sailor's Dance," played by Miss Frances Wells, a pupil of Miss Prest. This number won for Miss Wells the silver medal in the piano class at the Kiwanis Musical Festival, and also received great applause.

With fine tone and technique, Harold Wilson played two cornet groups delighting his audience. A pleasing innovation to the program was the group of bell solos, contributed by Mrs. Barton, who responded generously with encores. In duett, Mesdames Turner and Moynes sang in their usual pleasing style, "In the Little Church in the Valley," playing their own guitar accompaniments.

Miss O. Prest, A.T.C.M.; Miss Marguerite Rome, Mrs. S. J. Richardson and Harold Kitney acted as accompanists for the vocal numbers of the evening.

On behalf of the Sunbeam Class, Rev. Mr. Moorhouse voiced their thanks and appreciation to the assisting artists, who contributed so greatly to the success of the evening, and the National Anthem brought the program to a conclusion. The girls of the Sunbeam Class entertained those who assisted in the program, serving dainty refreshments, while a delightful social time was enjoyed.

Trio Is Sentenced In Lindsay Court

LINDSAY, May 9. Special To The Examiner).— Albert Ferguson and James Weaver were sentenced to one month in jail and $100 fine, and in default six months in jail for having an illicit still in their possession. Roy Weaver, an old offender, was sentenced to six months hard labor and a fine of $500 on the same charge. The trio were picked up by Officer O'Connell, after he had waited in the bush all night to get his men. The three took jail terms.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Frank Bostock, aged 56 years and his wife Dorothy, aged 54, both of Bobcaygeon, were released on $10,000 and $6,000 bail this morning on the charge of arson. They were arrested following an investigation of Provincial Constable Nelson and F. Bass of the Fire Underwriters' Association when their home was destroyed, along with a house adjacent and the church sheds. It is understood that the police have evidence of the removal of certain household articles and of the finding the insurance policy.

HOODLUMS TRY STORE LOOTING IN WELLINGTON

Fifty Raid Downtown Section While Police Watch Jobless Parade.

SEVERAL ARRESTED.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., May 10.—(C. P. Cable)—A recurrence of disorders this evening resulted in the smashing of 150 plate-glass windows in Wellington by a mob of 50 hoodlums who detached themselves from a big parade of unemployed men outside the parliament buildings.

The police arrested many of the rioters and quickly had the situation under control.

The disturbance was in no way comparable to that in Auckland some weeks ago, when hundreds of rioters caused great property damage in a series of outbursts which kept the city in an uproar for some days.

Three thousand unemployed men of Wellington marched on Parliament House this afternoon in order to protest against the conditions of work being carried out as a relief measure. J. G. Coates, minister of employment, agreed to receive a small deputation in his office, whereupon the leaders of the unemployed appealed to the crowd to disperse quietly.

Majority Disperse

The great bulk of the crowd did disperse but a group of 50 took advantage of the fact the police were fully occupied in watching the dispersal, to concentrate and rush down into the business section of the city. There many shop windows were smashed and a little looting was attempted before the police were on the scene.

The police, in the business district were reinforced after the arrest of the rioters, and within a short time the situation was quiet, with no indications of any further trouble. A feature of the proceedings was the absence of any general mob passion such as marked the disturbances in Auckland.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS TO PROBE LONDON BLAST

LONDON, May 10.—Ontario Government officials have begun an inquiry into the blast which damaged the fruit warehouse, owned by the Michigan Central Railway, last week, resulting in the death of a 17-year-old boy and injuries to other persons. The enquiry is particularly aimed at discovering whether the affair had any connection with the explosion on a Michigan Central Railway locomotive and the explosion in an M. C. R. section shack at Welland when three men were killed.

Albert F. Lebrun Is 14th President French Republic

Tardieu Extends Congratulations And Hands Over Executive Powers He Had Been Discharging Since Assassination—Hands In Resignation.

VERSAILLES, May 10 (C.P.). — Albert Francois Lebrun, the favorite son of the Department of Meurthe and Moselle, was elected fourteenth President of France to-day by an overwhelming majority to succeed the assassinated Paul Doumer.

M. Lebrun received 633 votes out of a total of 767 cast. Paul Faure, prominent Socialist leader, got 114 votes; 12 votes were cast for Premier Paul Painleve, and 8 went to Marcel Cachin, leader of the Communist Party in the retiring Chamber of Deputies, who lost his seat in the general election. Fifty-nine of the legislators who attended the joint Senate and Chamber session at which the President was elected, expressed no choice.

Great applause greeted the announcement of the voting. Deputy Boriot, a Communist, added to the uproar by shouting "Down with war."

All the members of the Cabinet went immediately to one of the great halls in this historic palace of Louis XIV., where they awaited the new President.

There Premier Andre Tardieu congratulated him and turned over the executive powers which he had been discharging as head of the Ministry, since the assassination of M. Doumer.

Eve of Resignation.

After that ceremony was over, M. Tardieu said he would receive the Press this evening—apparently for the purpose of announcing that he had presented his government's resignation to the new president.

After the brief ceremony of investiture, M. Lebrun's first act was to start for Elysee Palace to pay his respects at the bier of his slain predecessor.

Then he was to go to the tomb of the unknown soldier and later in the day to the Luxembourg Palace to receive the diplomatic corps and high officials of the na-

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.). — Before the Royal Commission investigating Ontario Hydro matters, R. W. Millard to-day testified he "had reason to believe another $50,000 was paid" to his former partner, John Aird, Jr. One of the matters under probe by the Commission is a $50,000 payment to Mr. Aird in connection with the Madawaska power deal.

Mr. Millard said he had understood the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission was to pay the Aird firm $50,000 for a fee and $50,000 "for time and expenses" in connection with the Madawaska purchase. Witness said he "understood" the second amount was to be paid, although C. A. Magrath, then Hydro chairman, had not promised it.

Pressed for further details, Mr. Millard testified "there was a possibility such a payment was made to Aird."

LONDON POLICE FORCE UNEASY

Men Resent Giving of High Posts to Military and Civil Servants.

NEW HIGH COMMISSIONER.

LONDON, May 10 (A.P.) — The Daily Express gave prominent today to an account of alleged discontent and unrest in all ranks of London's Metropolitan Police Force, growing out of the methods introduced by Lord Trenchard, the new High Commisson who succeeded Lord Byng, former Governor-General of Canada, last Fall.

The policemen, The Express said, "lost heart and became discouraged" over Lord Trenchard's changes in the organization, complaining that too many military and civil servants were appointed to high places instead of experienced police officers.

GAME OVERSEER DENIES CHARGE OF USING GUN

Dr. H. P. Kenedny Says Revolver Was Knocked Out of Holster.

STRUCK BY CAR.

Citizens Said to be Indignant Over Actions of Warden.

Complete denial that he had ever pointed a revolver at Norman Gainor, of Keene, was the statement made late today by Dr. M. P. Kennedy, game overseer. Describing the incident which took place on the Hiawatha hill last Thursday morning, Dr. Kennedy said, "While waiting on the top of the hill near the Keene road, in the course of my duties of fish and game overseer, I attempted to stop a car driven by Norman Gainor.

"Gainor failed to stop until he hit me and knocked me in the ditch," stated Dr. Kennedy. "I had my belt with my gun in my holster, which I carry for self-defence as is my privilege as game overseer, when I was knocked into the ditch by contact with Gainor's car. When I fell, the gun fell out of the holster. In rising to my feet I found the gun lying in the ditch as it was attached to a shoulder cord.

"I picked the gun up from the ditch and put it in my holster. The gun at no time was pointed at Gainor. As quickly as I picked it up I put it in my holster," Dr. Kennedy stated positively.

"I have every proof that Gainor knew who I was when I stopped him, for previously he had told Indians at Hiawatha that Kennedy was out on the hill."

Found Big Lunge

Continuing, Dr. Kennedy said that a week previous he stopped two men in a car near the same spot and found in the car a 17½-pound female lunge; "so I had every reason to be near that spot doing my duty as a game overseer."

Further, he declared, "The game and fish laws have always been considered something of a joke by many inhabitants around Rice Lake, but I have determined that as long as I am fish and game overseer I shall enforce the act in that district as well or better than in others under my jurisdiction."

Following the accident, Dr. Kennedy stated that he informed Gainor that he would not lay complaint against him under the Traffic Act for knocking him down.

Aird Bought Car Day He Received $120,000 in Bonds

A. B. Sheppard, Accountant, Testifies At Hydro Probe As To The Audit He Made Of John Aird's Books Last July.

UNABLE TO DISCOVER WHO CASHED COUPONS ATTACHED TO BONDS GIVEN BY BEAUHARNOIS

E. B. Millard, Former Partner With Aird, Declares "Garble!" Reports Have Led To False Impression In The Public Mind.

TORONTO, May 10.—(CP)—Efforts to trace the $120,000 in Dominion of Canada bonds which John Aird, Jr., received from the Beauharnois Power Corporation astensibly for the Conservative party in Ontario occupied the attention of the Royal Commission on Hydro here today.

A. B. Sheppard, an accountant employed by the committee to audit Mr. Aird's books was on the witness stand. He declared that up to the time the parliamentary commission investigated Beauharnois in July of last year, Mr. Aird had used $13,000 of the bonds, with some of the amount being used to exchange for different securities.

A long list of cheques for business and other purposes had been compiled by witness, one of which was for $3,000 and was payable to a motor car company. This was on Dec. 6, 1929, the day Aird received the money from the Beauharnois company.

A. G. Slaght, K.C., independent counsel, devoted considerable time to the coupons attached to the bonds, seeking to discover by whom they had been cashed. To the witness, he pointed out the bonds, had Aird been the "true owner" would have paid $6,600 in interest.

No Deposit Slips

Sheppard declared there were no deposit slips showing these coupons on any of the bonds, and he could not definitely say who had cashed the coupons.

E. B. Millard former partner with Aird during the negotiations for the Madawaska power rights, was the next witness and he was still on the stand when the enquiry adjourned for lunch.

His evidence was a repitition of that given on the first day of the enquiry, and covered efforts of himself and Aird to "sell the proposition" to the Hydro Electric Power Commission. The payment of $50,000 to Aird by the Hydro in this connection is one of the phases of the investigation.

In a statement of his own personal opinion regarding the transaction, he declared "garbled" reports had led to a false impression in the public mind. "I make no apologies for anything we did to further the project. We believed in it, and everything was fair and above board," he said.

Few at Hearing.

When the inquiry resumed to-day the court room was nearly empty. Only counsel, witnesses and newspapermen were present.

Mr. Justice J. F. Orde Commissioner, announced there would be no sitting to-morrow.

Alfred B. Sheppard, an auditor, was first witness called. He had audited John Aird, Jr.'s, books at the Commission's request. His report on Aird's bank account was read to the commissioner. Total deposits, including credits for loans, were shown in one bank between November 25, 1929, and April 16, 1932, as $53,288. Another bank showed $16,000. Another savings

LONDON DAIRY SAFE IS LOOTED

STORM PROVES AID.

LONDON, Ont., May 10 (C.P.)—Burglars, taking advantage of a drizzling rainstorm that enveloped the city, blew the safe in the office of the London Pure Milk Company, Dundas street east, early to-day. The robbery was discovered at 1.15 o'clock when J. Struthers, the storage man at the plant, came to the building, but the bandits, believed to be three in number, had escaped under cover of darkness some minutes before Struthers' arrival.

J. Ross, manager of the plant, estimated that the loss would be approximately $360 in silver and copper coins, and bills. In addition a number of cheques were stolen, but amount of these has not been determined as yet.

City police were at once called and Detective-Sergt. McCullough and Detective Oakley investigated. It is said that entry to the building was made by forcing the cellar window at the side of the plant.

The safe was apparently blown by experts using the usual soup of nitro-glycertine, which forced the combination bars in through the combination after the knob had been driven off with a heavy hammer or sledge.

South Monaghan Cuts Teachers' Salaries

Maintaining that teachers' salaries were entirely out of balance with the earnings of farmers, a joint meeting of the South Monaghan Township Council and School Trustees unanimously went on record that the maximum salaries of teachers be reduced to $700. The purpose of the meeting was definitely to discuss teachers' salaries and to undertake a uniform adjustment "in keeping with the times." There was much discussion previous to the resolution being passed in which both Councillors and Trustees agreed that the salaries of teachers must be reduced in proportion with the marked fall of farmers' incomes.

Fifteen dollars, it was further agreed in line with the salary adjustment, should be a fair amount to charge the teachers for board per month.

CALCUTTA, India, May 10 (C.P.). — Twenty-two guards and prisoners were killed and 35 seriously injured to-day in an outbreak which occurred at the jail at Mymensingh, Bengal, when a tornado blew the roof off the building.

Sixty-five others were less seriously hurt and 200 convicts, including many political prisoners described as dangerous, escaped. Armed police were scouring the vicinity trying to round up the jail's fleeing population.

The tornado also played havoc in several nearby villages, causing several deaths and destroying many houses.

FLIER INDICTED IN MURDER CASE

TRIAL OPENS TO-DAY.

MIAMI, May 10. — Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former British army aviator, has been indicted for first degree murder in the strange shooting of Haden Clarke, fiance of his flying partner, Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix.

The true bill against Lancaster was returned by the Dade County grand jury yesterday a week after his arrest on a murder warrant and Judge H. F. Atkinson ordered the flyer held without bail for trial at Circuit Court term opening to-day.

"Well, I'm innocent until I'm proven guilty," he told a deputy Sheriff after refusing to see newspapermen in his cell. Clarke, 36-year-old author, was fatally shot with a pistol owned by Lancaster, April 21. He and Mrs. Keith-Miller, whose life story he was writing for publication, and at whose home he lived, became engaged while Lancaster, formerly her fiance and for five years her flying partner, was in St. Louis on business.

Asked For Delay

They wrote Lancaster of their plans to marry, but he telegraphed them to delay the ceremony until he could arrive to be best man. He came here by plane and twelve hours later, Clarke was fatally wounded. Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller were held in custody for three days, but she was exonerated, of all knowledge of the shooting.

Lancaster likewise was released, but was rearrested on a murder charge when a handwriting expert branded as forgeries two suicide notes found beside Clarke's bed in the room he and Lancaster occupied. The flyer later admitted writing them, and said he did it to remove the blame from himself and Mrs. Keith-Miller.

Manitoba Electors Will Vote June 16

WINNIPEG, May 10 (C.P.).—Premier John Bracken to-day announced the Manitoba general elections will be held Thursday, June 16. The final session of the Legislature ended last Saturday afternoon.

The announcement by the Premier followed a Cabinet meeting this morning and assured the Province of one of the briefest election campaigns in its history. Predictions by political observers had set the election date a week or two later.

Plans of all parties call for nomination meetings throughout the Province within the next three weeks. Many candidates already have been selected.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Another legal action was laid at the door of Mildred Harris, former wife of Charlie Chaplin, to-day, when a hotel charged her with failing to pay a six-weeks' rent bill. A summons was issued calling for Miss Harris appearance in court Thursday.

Two breach of contract suits against Miss Harris are pending in Supreme Court.

SPARKS FLY AS THE EXPENSES OF C.N. OFFICIALS ARE REVIEWED

Practically No Check On Higher Officials Declares McGibbon.

MAKE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

OTTAWA, May 10 (C.P.)—Sparks flew again in the House of Commons Railways and Shipping Committee to-day when the matter of the expense accounts of the higher officials of the road for the year 1930 was under review. Whether the details of this should be made public or the whole thing left to the board of directors was a point that was debated at length. The committee had already named a sub-committee, which included Dr. Peter McGibbon (Cons., Muskoka), and F. R. MacMillan (Cons., Saskatoon), to examine the records of the system in connection with the 1930 expense accounts. To-day Dr. McGibbon desired to make the result of his investigations public.

In the ensuing discussion Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., North Waterloo) protested that much of what had taken place in the committee had resulted in "destroying in certain measure public confidence in the Canadian National Railways and its officials." To this, J. D. Chaplin (Cons., Lincoln) took exception.

"Let me tell you that the morality of the railways has already been destroyed," he declared.

"Morale," interposed Mr. Euler. "Not morality."

Figuring on the average membership of each of the clubs at 75, it is possible that approximately 22,500 American citizens will hear of Central Ontario's vacation lands by this means, states John A. McKone, secretary-treasurer of the Chamber.

Butcher Knife Operation Successful, But Shock Proves Fatal to Patient

CLEVELAND, May 10.—Although a surgeon's emergency operation with a butcher knife temporarily saved the life of Walter W. Frecker, 38, the patient died last night from a heart attack induced by shock.

Dr. L. W. Pott found Frecker unconscious when he arrived at the latter's home. Seeing that Frecker's throat was nearly closed from the combined effects of a childhood throat operation and an attack of tonsilitis, the doctor acted quickly.

His surgical instruments were not available, so the doctor resorted to the family's butcher knife, using it to open the patient's trachea just below the voice box so air could reach his lungs.

A fire department rescue squad aided, by administering oxygen through an improvised tube inserted in Frecker's throat, and the man had a chance to recover until his heart stopped from the shock.

Purchase of Bonds For Ontario Tories Absolutely Denied

Story Of Ferguson Demand Is a Malicious Lie, Declares Sweezey At The Royal Commission Probe Into Hydro Matters.

JOHN AIRD, JR., WILL BE QUESTIONED TO-DAY AS TO HIS PART IN THE $125,000.00 AFFAIR.

Former President Of Beauharnois Says Statement That Ex-Premier Stuck Him For $325,000 Invented—Expected To Give Contribution.

TORONTO, May 10.—(CP)—Appearance of John Aird, Jr., in the witness box before the Royal Commission investigating Hydro Electric Power Commission matters seemed likely today, as the commission swung into its stride before Mr Justice J. F. Orde. Mr. Aird, it is expected, will be asked to give his own version of the receipt of $125,000 from the Beauharnois Power Corporation, money intended, so far as the corporation was concerned, for the Ontario Conservative party's war chest.

R. O. Sweezey, former president of Beauharnois; H. B. Griffiths, secretary treasurer, and Loring Christie, a director, all took their turn in the box yesterday, with Mr. Sweezey and Griffiths both reiterating previous evidence the money had been given to Mr. Aird supposedly for the Conservative party, and Mr. Christie denying all knowledge of it until the matter was made public by the parliamentary committee last summer.

Too, Sweezey and Griffith denied that $200,000 worth of Victory Bonds, bought from the Montreal branch of the Dominion Securities Co., had gone to the Ontario Conservative party as a contribution from Beauharnois. They made no secret of the fact that the money had been used as a political contribution, but were emphatic in their statements it had not gone to an Ontario party.

Aird had gone to Montreal, both declared, and volunteered his assistance in clearing away obstacles which lay in the path of the corporation with regard to the contract with Hydro by which the Ontario body was to purchase 250,000 horsepower.

He had given them the impression he was an emissary from the political party, and after two meetings they had eventually turned over $120,000 in bonds and $5,000 in cash to him because they thought it was a subscription to the party. No receipt had been received from Mr. Aird because according to Mr. Sweezey, "I thought it was a political subscription and it was not customary to get receipts for that kind of thing."

TRAFFIC HALTED.

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 10. — (C.P.). — Powerful Chinese rebel forces were reported in despatches to the Rengo News Agency to-day to be closing in on Hailung, an important railway town north-east of Mukden. The Japanese Consulate there was believed to be endangered.

Meantime, the League of Nations Manchurian Enquiry Commission was working here, protected by heavy police guards.

The entire force was called out last night when the Commission arrived and all streets through which the party passed on its way to its hotel were closed to traffic to prevent the possibility of trouble.

ACIDSTOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well-known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralise or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. Your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist. It is safe, reliable, easy, and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Russian Prince Weds Princess

HERE ARE A PRINCE AND PRINCESS.

It took a World War and a Bolshevik triumph to make this picture possible. Prince Vasili Romanoff is seen here with his lovely bride, the former Princess Natacha Galitzine. They are spending the month with his brother and sister-in-law, Prince and Princess Rostislav, in their Chicago apartment. Although they were born to the splendor of great palaces, the pomp and ceremony of Imperial Russia's royalty, they are now selling perfume—and liking their work.

Chicago Forms Secret Police

CHICAGO, May 10.—Ninety Chicago suburbs, weary of fighting their crime battles alone, have pooled their law-enforcing facilities and hung a new Damoclesian sword over Chicago's harassed underworld.

Secretly they have organized a vast co-operative unit to be known as the Cook County regional police with the aim, leaders revealed to-day, of driving gangsters, hoodlums and racketeers out of the residential communities within the metropolitan area.

ASKS FARMERS TO COOPERATE

Chamber of Commerce Head Sees Agriculture Benefiting Most from Ottawa Meet.

NEW FIELDS OF TRADE.

SASKATOON, May 10. (CP) — Agriculture, as greatest contributor to Canadian economic life, stands to benefit most from the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa next July. But in order to attain success farmers must co-operate with working committees so their problems and suggestions might be discussed at the conference, W. L. McGregor, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said in an interview to-day.

Sound promotion of Empire trade unquestionably would open new potential markets for Canadian farmers he, said, but agricultural representatives must be advised on all aspects of farming and marketing so they would be able to present constructive suggestions at the Imperial parley. It was desirable, he thought, if the entire agricultural industry could speak with a united voice. Mr. McGregor suggested farm bodies should elect a representative spokesman or allow the Chamber of Commerce to act for them.

Great Chances

Agriculture would be confronted with great possibilities in Empire trade, Mr. McGregor thought. The British market could assure Canada of a much larger purchasing volume in grain, cattle and other farm produce, he said, but such an opportunity should be accompanied by a virtual guarantee of continuity of supply. Canadian bacon, cheese, butter and meat, for example, should command a premium in the British market, Mr. McGregor said, and Canada has successfully marketed her wares there. But, he added, harm had been done by exporting "when we felt like it." He urged cultivation of a sense of obligation in this respect and once a market was established farmers should be prepared to maintain it with a graded and standardised product.

The president and other executives of the Chamber are continuing their tour of Canadian cities in an endeavor to stimulate Empire trade and interest in the Empire conference. They left here to-day for Edmonton.

KU KLUX KLAN AIDED HEPBURN TO GET ELECTED

J. G. Hothesall Terms Hepburn an Ingrate to Ku Klux Klan.

MEETING IN BELLEVILLE.

Turned On His Supporters After Being Elected to Parliament Speaker Says.

BELLEVILLE, May 10.—Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader last night was depicted as the prodigal son of the Ku Klux Klan when John G. Hothersall of London, self-styled Ontario organizer of the Klan, fervently denounced him as one who had relied on the Klan for election, but who, once safely elected, had wisecracked the alleged Grand Klaagle of the white-robed brethren, Dr. George F. Cowan, M.P. for Long Lake, Sask.

To an audience in the city hall made up largely, he said, of Klansmen, Mr. Hothersall spoke of a conference in the back room of a store between Mr. Hepburn and prominent Klansmen of St. Thomas, of another informal session on the edge of a hotel bed at which Mr. Hepburn discussed Klan support with Nelson Parliament, of energetic campaigning done by Klansmen for Mr. Hepburn in his own riding and, in fact, throughout the province.

"If Mitch Hepburn is ashamed of the loyal support he has had from the Klan, let him say so," Mr. Hothersall demanded. "Let him repudiate us and cut himself off from us. But let him not attempt to make a secret of his relations with us; let him not attempt to disguise the facts by attacking a leader of the organization."

Last night's meeting was called by Mr. Hothersall himself in the name of the British Service Association, a yet embryonic organization which he says he is establishing in this province.

"I respect Premier Bennett. I know where he stands. I respect Premier Henry. I know where he stands. Protestant, Catholic, Liberal and Conservatives, it matters not what faith or politics a man professes, so long as I can put my finger on him.

"If public men want the respect of Canadians, let them show their cards. Let them deal off the top of the deck, not the bottom.

"There's one man says, know my onions because I have some on my desk.' And he gets a basket of onions in the house and sends them across the floor to another member and they sit and titter and make fun of a subject that is vital to the lives of that man's constituency.

"My executive thought we had found a real Moses descended on the Liberal party. And I got on his band wagon. I thought 'Here's a real man'—Mitch Hepburn.

"'Come on,' he said, 'get on the band wagon and I'll lead you somewhere.' This man who hunts with the hounds and runs with the hares. The man who attacked the capitalist press—I thought he was a big man. And then he put over the biggest double-cross that ever a public man attempted in this country.

BLAST INJURES GYPSY BUSY ON WELDING JOB

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.) —Miller Mitchell, 22, son of the leader of the local gypsy colony, lies in the hospital to-day, suffering serious injuries following an explosion in a workshop last night.

Mitchell, assisting in the welding of a large laundry washing machine was struck in the face by a piece of galvanized iron when a mixture of water and gasoline ignited from the heat of a welding torch. Mitchell was hurled against a brick wall from the force of the impact. His nose was badly mangled and both eyes were almost torn from his head.

An operation was performed late last night and a blood transfusion given.

MANION STIRS UP FIREWORKS ON RELIEF ACT

Tie Purchases for C. N. Draw Attacks of Mac-Kenzie King.

RADIO REPORT TABLED.

Bennett Lays Down Policy of 'Hands Off Business Enterprises.'

OTAWTA, May 10 (C.P.)—Premier R. B. Bennett enunciated to the House of Commons yesterday a policy of "hands off business enterprises." Although the Unemployment Relief Act would clothe the Ministry with power to loan money or make guarantees to public or private corporations, it would be used only in the most emergent situations where national credit was at stake. But, he added, there were enterprises whose solidarity affected the whole financial fabric of Canada and "no one would contemplate disaster overtaking some of them without using every possible effort to prevent it."

The Prime Minister's statement climaxed a heavy day in the House. Nationalisation of radio broadcasting was recommended in a report submitted early in the day by a special committee that has been investigating the industry for some time. Then the House turned to reviewing the Unemployment Relief Act, gave it second reading and discussed it for some time clause by clause in committee. But progress was stormy and verbal fireworks broke out several time.

Government-Owned System

As recommended in the committee report, the government-owned system would be controlled by a commission of three. It would be financed by license fees and advertising. Existing stations would be absorbed gradually, possibly over a seven-year period. It was recommended, however, that coast-to-coast chain broadcasts be commenced at once. Location of high-power stations would be determined by technical survey. British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec each would secure a 50,000 watt station. For Saskatchewan and Alberta, two 5,000 watt stations were proposed for each. Synchronized to operate on a common channel.

For the three maritime provinces, two alternatives were suggested, one giving each province a 500 watt station and the other to place one 50,000 station in a central location. In addition to these key stations, the committee would place one 1,000 watt stations in Northern Ontario, Western Ontario, Port Arthur, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec and a 500 watt station in Toronto.

In connection with the report, the Prime Minister announced the willingness of United States to make sufficient readjustments of wave-lengths and broadcasting channels, to make the Canadian scheme feasible.

Farm Produce Prices in U.S.

(By Ken Clark, C P Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, May 10.—If we had some ham we could have some ham and eggs if we had seven cents if we lived in Texas.

The Department of Agriculture has discovered eggs are 7 cents a dozen in Texas and 22.8 cents in Massachusetts.

It finds prices of foodstuffs vary throughout the country as much as 300 per cent.

Apples cost anywhere from 55 cents a bushel to $1.75; chickens from 9 cents a pound to 20.5 cents; farm prices of lambs range from 4.3 to 7 cents a pound; sheep from 2.1 to 4.7 cents; calves from 3.9 to 8.4 cents; beef cattle from 2.6 to 5.5; wheat sells for 35 cents in Oklahoma and 84 cents in Georgia.

In some States the average prices for farm products are so low as to read like a price list for 1832.

HOUSES FLATTENED.

Rescuers Work Feverishly Seeking 24 Still Buried From Sunday.

LYONS, France, May 10 (C.P.).—Landslides, similar to those which demolished two apartment houses here on Sunday and buried two score people in the wreckage, threatened the 1,600 inhabitants of St Genis-sur-Guiers, 30 miles east of here, to-day.

Several slides, in which more than 1,000,000 tons of earth and rocks tumbled down, sent the people scrambling down the mountain side Three houses and 1,000 trees were flattened and more threatened.

Deserting Goods, Stock.

Reports from Chambery said the farmers were taking their families down the slopes into the Guiers River Valley, leaving all their household goods and cattle behind.

Meantime, 24 tenants of the buildings destroyed here on Surday were still missing to-day. They were believed to be buried.

A girl 11 years old was extricated from the ruins to-day in a semi-conscious condition. In spite of heroic efforts to save her life she died shortly afterward.

Her recovery spurred the rescuers to work faster by convincing them that others of those still covered by the debris may be alive.

Five more bodies were removed from the ruins to-day.

Students Give Duce Hearty Reception

ROME, May 10—(A.P.)—Several hundred Fascist University students greeted Premier Mussolini with a roaring demonstration today when Il Duce, standing on the balcony of Venezia Palace, holding a book and a musket high in the air in each hand cried:

The students marched to the palace, in which is the Premier's offices, following their annual meeting which was addressed by Secretary Strace of the Fascist party.

The students cheered again when Mussolini said: "Sports contests were begun in the year of Garibaldi's anniversary to sharpen the spirit and muscles of young Italy."

FASHION SERVICE

There has been much study given to the designing of this distinctive sports type.

The front panel effect that starts with a double breasted bodice is particularly slenderizing.

It's a dress that is equally suitable for the matron or younge woman.

Style No. 2824 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Woolens and crinkle crepe silk are very smart.

Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Some ladies are a bit puzzled about the different ways to make and serve tea especially at afternoon teas.

• • • • • • •

Tea in a teapot is made in two slightly different ways. One is considered correct in this country and is advised by importers of tea while the other is the English and Continental method and preferred by the people in these lands.

• • • • • • •

The first method is to have the teapot heated and into it put the amount of tea desired. Onto these tea leaves is poured boiling water.

• • • • • • •

The pot is kept in a warm place for five minutes when the beverage is poured off the leaves either into cups or in another heated teapot.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

The second method is like the first except that the tea leaves are allowed to remain in the pot. English and European people apparently like the flavor, for they insist upon this being the right way to make tea.

• • • • • • •

Tea is also made in cups. In this case the boiling water is poured over a tea ball already in the cup or the cup is filled with the boiling water and the tea ball is then immersed in the water.

• • • • • • •

In both cases the ball should remain in the cup being gently stirred about in the water, until there is the weak or strong infusion desired.

• • • • • • •

It is then removed to its especial holder or the one provided in lieu of such a holder, or it can be put into another cup of boiling water and a second cup of tea made from the leaves in the ball.

• • • • • • •

So popular and convenient are tea balls that tea can be bought in wee bags or balls for individual servings. It should be remembered that such balls are not correct to use for afternoon teas where there are guests, although they may be permitted at home teas where convenience has to be considered.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

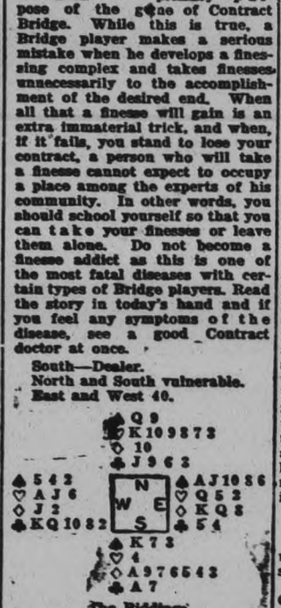
REFUSING FINESSES

A finesse, as most Contract players know, is an effort to win a trick through the positional location of honors. If the success of a contract depends upon the taking of a finesse, and if no way can be found to avoid it, the finesse, of course, should be taken. Every reasonable chance should be taken to assure the making of your contract, as that is the primary purpose of the game of Contract Bridge. While this is true, a Bridge player makes a serious mistake when he develops a finessing complex and takes finesses unnecessarily to the accomplishment of the desired end. When all that a finesse will gain is an extra immaterial trick, and when, if it fails, you stand to lose your contract, a person who will take a finesse cannot expect to occupy a place among the experts of his community. In other words, you should school yourself so that you can take your finesses or leave them alone. Do not become a finesse addict as this is one of the most fatal diseases with certain types of Bridge players. Read the story in today's hand and if you feel any symptoms of the disease, see a good Contract doctor at once.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West 40.



The Biddings:

South	West	North	East
1◇	2♣	3♡	3♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Against this game going contract, South opened the four of hearts. This East could not clearly read as a Singleton as there is one small card in the suit missing, but had he stopped to count his tricks he would have seen how unwise it was to take risks. However, loving finesses, he played a small heart from the Dummy and North won with the King. North was under no misapprehension as to his partner's heart holding and returned it at once, South trumping with the three. South then led the Ace of diamonds and continued the suit, North trumping the second round with the nine of spades and leading another heart. South again trumped and led the third round of diamonds which North trumped to lead another heart and thus allowed South to utilize his last trump on that suit. South then cashed the Ace of clubs and North and South called it a day, having won five spade tricks, one heart, one diamond and one club, thus defeating the contract 3 tricks.

The other picture is quickly painted. Had East refused to finesse the hearts, he would have made his contract. The lead of the heart four was a danger signal which East should have regarded not only because of the danger of the cross ruff, but because he can see his contract is probable, in fact almost certain, if he refuses not only the heart finesse but the spade finesse as well. The Ace of hearts should be played to the first trick and the spade led from Dummy and the finesse again refused, as when North plays the nine of spades it is apparent that he has either no more or both King and Queen, or the King or Queen alone. If he has no more, the finesse cannot be of any benefit. If he holds either honor singly guarded, the finesse, while ordinarily gaining a trick, would be, in this instance, atrocious play as in that case the trumps would break so that by laying down the Ace, North and South would win only 2 trump tricks. They will thus win 2 trump tricks, 1 heart, 1 diamond and 1 club and East would make his contract of two spades, a just reward for refusing to take foolish and unnecessary chances.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: What is needed to raise one in a suit to two in a suit?

Answer: Inasmuch as partner's Opening bid has shown about 4 tricks, the Responding Hand, having adequate trump support, can raise once, holding 4 supporting tricks. (4+4=8.) In case of intervening bid, this requirement may be shaded.

How to Stop RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints—Muscles.
EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till these dangerous poisons are driven out of your system. External remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by all druggists; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is one rheumatic remedy guaranteed by McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness and swelling and completely stop your rheumatic agony or nothing to pay.

BIG DISPLAY OFFERED FOR SALE AT BAZAAR IN THE MARKET HALL

Bazaar is in Aid of the Extension to Mount St. Joseph.

PLENTY OF FINE BOOTHS.

The big market hall is a scene of activity this week. The bazaar in aid of the extension to Mount St. Joseph is on in full force, continuing from yesterday straight through to a grand wind-up on Friday night.

The large interior which re-echoes weekly to the sounds of the Saturday marketing and has also, through the winter, seen many a hard-fought game of Badminton, has a different atmosphere this week. With gay streamers, bright colors and with plenty of pretty things on sale, the place is going to be a rendezvous for old and young alike, during the five days of the big sale.

The articles are especially attractive this year. Other bazaars have come and gone, but seldom has there been such a display of lovely needlework and pretty things at prices to suit every purse.

From the gay fish pond for the children, to the solid comfort of the dining-room, there are goods and eatables to please the inner man and contribute to amusement and comfort.

Against the western wall, pierced by its long line of high windows, eight large booths have been placed, cheek by jowl. Here is the blue and white booth of the Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral, in charge of the President, Miss Geraldine Collins, and her staff of helpers. Ice cream and soft drinks are sold in this pretty enclosure, where a unique effect has been achieved by decorating long strands of pussy willows with colored tiny artificial flowers, in delicate sprays.

Home-made Candy

Dainty little fluted paper boxes and baskets are sold in the candy booth, done in violet and green, with Mrs. J. K. Sheehy and Mrs. J. C. Rutherford in charge, assisted by Miss Alma Goselin and Miss Armene McCarthy.

An Italian booth where work done by expert Italian fingers, is on view, in exquisite tatting and embroideries, is a novel idea. It is in yellow and mauve, and is in charge of Miss Mary Ronco, with Miss Louise de Carlonis supervising the afternoon sales.

Mauve and white are cool and pretty colors used for the booth devoted to the sale of religious articles in charge of Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, assisted by Mrs. A. O'Grady and Miss Mamie McCarthy. A gorgeous Irish lace bedspread on which tickets are sold, is an attraction at this booth, and there is a distinctive little picture on view, done all in wool, with a house and a gate and a lovely garden of flowers.

Many of the lovely things on view this year are from the convent, done by expert nun's fingers, which accounts probably for the daintiness and attraction of much of the work.

A fancy work booth, in orange and yellow streamers, is in charge of Miss A. Gordon, who is assisted by Mrs. L. D. Letellier, Mrs. J. Dennie, Mrs. J. Martin, Miss Maud Theobold and Miss Theresa Hurley. Miss Gordon made the very pretty quilt on which tickets are sold, done in applique in the "Basket of Oranges" design. The display here is quite beautiful, with some delicately-wrought things in fine organdie; bridge table covers and an exquisite luncheon set in bright lemon yellow, embroidered in wool flowers in pastel shades. Yellow makes another linen set for a baby's crib, with tiny bunnies outlined in black thread, their little tails of swansdown. Another interesting draw here is for a pink taffeta bolster and spread.

Garden of Dolls

The arrangement of dolls in a mauve and yellow booth is very pleasing, with a predominance of lovely colors in the dainty dresses of the tiny miniature people. There is a real "Pink Lady" with wing-like skirts, for a fussy bed, there are all types of dollies from large to small, in rose and blue and mauve and green, there is "Guess My Name" baby, with an attendant traffic officer doll marked "stop" and there are cunning little things in crocheted garments. Mrs. H. T. Hickey and Mrs. J. J. Condon are in charge, assisted by the Misses Helen Grady, Mary Auliffe, Bernice Madden, Marie Milloy and Marguerite Weatherhead.

At the clothing booth, done in purple and orange, where quantities of useful and dainty articles in ladies' and children's wear, are on sale, in dresses, lingerie and aprons, Mrs. P. Eano is in charge, assisted by Mrs. D. Gleason, Mrs. Ted Crowe, Mrs. T. Dineen, Mrs. J. P. McCarthy, Mrs. P. Collins and Mrs. Redmond McAuliffe.

In a pink and green setting novelties are sold, and here is a large assortment of very attractive and interesting things. Every corner is crammed with pretty objects, at low prices. There is colored glass for table and dresser, brass and silver novelties, embroideries, lovely sachets filled with scent, candlesticks, desk sets, powder and perfume. Chances may be had here on a tall floor lamp with a lovely shade, also on a toilet set. Mrs. Ed. Hickey and Mrs. P. McFadden are in charge, assisted by Mrs. E. Goolah and Mrs. J. Conlin.

The county storew ill be a centre of activity for the week, with a busy wheel operating at nights and many articles on sale, including eatables and vegetables, in packages, jars and bags, quilts of many types, lovely embroidered cushions and quantities of assorted offerings. Mrs. W. O'Brien is in charge, assisted, as is the case in all the other booths, by a bevy of busy helpers. The draw for the handsome radio takes place here and tickets are being sold.

Daily Meals

The dining room is another busy center, screened off from the rest of the hall, with white-clothed tables centered by vases of bright daffodills, red and white streamers overhead to give a bright note of color, and many potted palms and ferns in the windows. The menu, as usual, is varied and tempting, and includes noonday and evening meals during the five days. Mrs. Edward Feeley is in charge.

A corner that will be much appreciated is the very attractively-arranged men's lounge and smoking room, outlined with cedar slabs and cedar boughs they give a fragrant odor to this section. It is furnished, through the courtesy of the Canadian Department Stores, very nicely, with wicker chairs, little tables and smoking sets, palms and ferns, radio and writing desk. Here are sold cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, with Mrs. W. Hickey in charge, assisted by Mrs. T. J. Ryan and the Misses Peggy Roche, Josephine Gordon, Berenice Martin and Geraldine Primeau.

A special attraction here also is the convertible walnut dinner-wagon, serving table and card table, combined in one article, on which tickets are being sold.

The children have a fish pond where, as usual, Miss Annie Simons is in charge. A fish pond for these bazaars would hardly be the cheerful place it is if Miss Simons, with her untiring efforts, did not assist in making it a success. It is draped in red, white and blue, with cedar boughs. Mrs. T. J. Lane is assisting.

For amusement, there is the Knights of Columbus bingo game, in charge of V. McCabe and the "little horses" game, with P. J. Devlin in charge.

Two Youths Drown As Duck Boat Sinks

WINNIPEG, May 10 (C.P.). — George Coakes, 20, and his chum, Clarence Arlott, 17, were drowned in the Red River here Monday when their leaky duck boat suddenly sank about 20 yards from the shore. Coakes, who could swim, struck out for land, but evidently took cramp, for he sank while still a couple of yards out. Arlott could not swim and sank with the boat.

Police who were called to the scene of the tragedy, recovered the body of Coakes shortly afterward, but have not yet found Arlott's body. An inquest will be held.

THE RADIO COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The unanimous finding of the special committee appointed to study the radio situation in favor of a nationally-owned broadcasting system comes as a surprise in view of the repeated reports that the committee favored a continuance of private broadcasting under stricter federal control, and also in view of the opinion of many radio enthusiasts that Canada should not embark in a publicly-owned system.

The committee, however, has come out flat-footedly for a national system to be administered by a commission and commencing with the establishment of five Government-owned 50,000 watt stations across Canada, with the launching of trans-continental chain broadcasting as "one of the first duties" of the commission.

The report also recommends the location of as many small stations, privately owned or otherwise, as may be considered necessary to give adequate coverage.

Advertising is not to occupy more than five per cent. of each program period, and the system is to be self-sustaining, its activities not to extend further than can be provided out of the revenue secured from advertising and radio licenses.

Details have been left to the commission, the committee contenting itself with recommending a broad outline for the consideration of Parliament.

The next step is for the House of Commons, where it is safe to say the radio report will precipitate a lively and most interesting debate.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

It is fitting at this time when the Peterborough Relief Association has practically suspended its activities after a most successful year's operations to pay tribute to the splendid results attained by the organization, and to the unselfish and commendable spirit shown by the workers whose great interest in the noble task of caring for victims of the unusual economic conditions has smoothed the road for hundreds of local families.

It is generally agreed that Peterborough has passed through the strain of the past year with proportionately less distress than any other centre in the province, and for this condition a great deal of the credit must go to the Relief Association which, thanks to the support given by the citizens, has been able to supply a helping hand to those who have been hard hit by unemployment, to furnish clothing, bedding and household necessaries, and to assist in a score of different ways in making the lot of such families a little less hard than would have been the case in the absence of such an organization.

The association has been a source of comfort through a period of grave depression; in fact, to look back at the record of the past year and imagine the conditions without such a source of ready help should be enough to show just how much is owing to the public-spirited citizens whose desire to serve in a time of emergency made such an effort possible.

SALE BY THE GLASS.

The Moderation League of Ontario is doing its best to create a favorable atmosphere for its plan of having wine and beer sold by the glass, and a circular just issued by the organization states the objective of the league and arguments why that objective should be supported, largely based on the recent address by R. Home Smith, of Toronto.

As stated in this pamphlet, the league's objective is given as follows:

"To obtain the sale of beer and light wines to both Ontario citizens and tourists through standard hotels, clubs and certain approved restaurants, under such regulations as may be provided by the Ontario Legislature by amendment to the Liquor Control Act, while retaining the principle of local option."

Of course, the reasons given why this program should be adopted are entirely altruistic.

Sale by the glass, the league tells us, would encourage conditions of true temperance "through the substitution of low alcoholic beverages for hard liquors," and the people of Ontario are entitled to the same "convenient and reasonable means" of obtaining beer and light wines as the people of other important provinces.

Similarly it is claimed sale by the glass would increase "the flow of worth-while tourist traffic," increase employment and the earning power of Ontario citizens, and enhance the public revenue.

Such reasons may sound plausible, but they cannot hide the fact that what is really proposed is a return to the condition of the old open-bar days, and against that system the majority of people are strongly opposed.

It is difficult to see how temperance will be encouraged by increasing the opportunities to drink, nor is it reasonable to suppose that "worth-while" tourists will be attracted by the sale of beer by the glass.

The Moderation League had better be content with the present law, which satisfies all reasonable people; a campaign to bring back the open bar will attract little support outside of one or two centres in the province.

THE PROBLEM OF THE TRANSIENT.

With the coming of warmer weather Canada's army of transient unemployed is on the wing, and there is little doubt that in the near future these wanderers will constitute a serious problem for municipal authorities and for the public generally.

Already many municipalities have ceased to operate hostels and to provide meal tickets for transients, and it is safe to assume that house-to-house begging on a large scale will before long prove a decided nuisance to citizens and provide the police with a problem of their own.

Relief measures would be simplified to a great degree if this movement of transients could be checked, and the majority of the unemployed men now drifting about the country could be kept in their own localities.

A large proportion of this army consists of young men who are actuated more by wanderlust than by any desire to find work; they are simply taking advantage of the conditions to travel up and down the land, counting on the generosity of the public to supply them with food and shelter.

It would be a much easier matter to take care of these men in their own communities, and they should be kept there if at all possible; perhaps the establishment by municipalities of the old-time wood-pile where transients would be required to do a little work in exchange for a meal might have a chastening effect upon the men who are tramping because they prefer it to remaining at home and looking for a job.

CANADA IS WORTH IT.

New Dominion taxes went into force yesterday, taxes on cheques and money orders, on telephone and telegraphic messages, on parlor and sleeping car tickets. We call them "nuisance taxes," grumble about them. Yet, come to think of it, none of us should consider it merely a nuisance to pay our just share of Canada's expenses, or to be able to help to keep Canada solvent. It is easy enough to complain that the Government spends too much money, or that Canada shouldn't have gone in for this, that and the other thing. But that sort of talk, common though it is, and perhaps true, is terribly futile. The reality to-day is that we're in difficulty, and the call is not for people to argue and debate about how we got there, but for people to help get us out. Moreover, when it comes to a question of deciding how we arrived at so much of debt and deficits there are few of us without blame. We were all for expenditure, all for this improvement and that; plunged along in headlong recklessness for outlays that grew bigger and bigger.

Now, in the day of reckoning, and with the bills due, it is no part of patriotism to grumble. Canada, after all, has been worth a lot to many of us, and will be worth a lot to many of us in the future. The decent thing to do, therefore, is to decide that Canada is deserving of more than fair-weather loyalty, and to pay without complaint. In this we might well take a leaf from the book of the British. Over in Britain they have been paying terrific taxation for years, yet when last year's British budget heightened taxes to a point unheard of in history, people stood in queues to pay.—Ottawa Journal.

A REAL QUESTION LOOMS.

A large enough question opens following the result of the recent German elections. There seems to be doubt whether the control is in the hand of von Hindenburg or Adolph Hitler.

Presume for the moment that Hitler gains the ascendency. There is no doubt regarding the radical nature of his outlook. He is a man of daring; he hates France; he hates things as they are done in Germany at present. He tells the German people he will free them of their external debts, and he has shown himself possessed of very considerable organizing genius in bringing together an army of almost half a million during the recent elections.

We have not the least doubt that if Hitler actually comes into power he will announce that Germany will not pay more reparations. If Germany does not do so, then what would become of the entire fabric of war debts, because the two are so closely linked together that they cannot be pried apart?

Would there be any move made toward forcible collection from Germany? France, it will be recalled, tried that system in the Ruhr valley several years ago and it was found to be unprofitable. It cost more to try and get coal out of that district than the coal was worth.

The question narrows down to this: Of what value is a reparation expectation if the people who should pay it will not do so? That may not be the question of the moment, but it may very well be the reality of the near future. The best authorities in Europe seem to lean more and more toward the opinion that an attempt now by von Hindenburg to pay war reparations would throw the country into so great a turmoil that it could be called nothing but revolution. The propaganda of not paying has sunk deep in the heart of the German people and it is not going to be an easy matter to dislodge it.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 10.—With butter not too plentiful on the local market yesterday and Western makes offering at 13c, delivered, there was a firmer feeling, and brokers were asking higher prices. Sales were reported at 17½c for No. 1, creamery, solids, but late in the day many were asking 17¾c for this quality. Second grade butter was fairly scarce, and brokers were asking 16½c to 17c, which were steady to ½c better. Buyers were showing more interest in offerings and prospects for the week's trading were brighter than previously.

Cream

Cream prices were steady with recent declines. The levels in effect last week-end were again quoted which, were 16c to 17c for special, 15c to 16c for No. 1 and 12c to 13c for No. 2, f.o.b., country points.

Cheese

Country cheese boards, at the week-end found trade not very active even though 9c was the price governing. Yesterday brokers were quoting new makes at ¼c to ½c lower than previously, while wholesalers were offering the trade both new and old makes at reduced prices. Brokers quoted new, large at 9½c; new twins, at 9¾c and new, triplets, at 10c. Retailers were offered new cheese at 11c for large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets, and 13½c for stiltons and old cheese at 17c for large, 17¼c for twins, and 17½c for triplets.

Eggs

Receipts of eggs were quite ample to meet local requirements and prices were barely steady. Brokers quoted ordinary packed, used cases, graded eggs, at 16c for extras, 14c for firsts, and 12c to 12½c for seconds, but storage packed supplies were not finding a strong demand and were quoted steady to ½c lower at 16½c to 17c for extras, and 15½c to 16c for firsts. Prices to country shippers were steady at 14c for extras, 12c for firsts, and 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, and retailers were offered supplies at about steady prices, being quoted extras, in cartons at 20c; extras, loose, at 18c; firsts, loose at 16c, and seconds, loose, at 14c per dozen.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 10. — Butter prices eased on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday. No. 1 finest, in carlots or less, being quoted all the way from 16¼c to 17¼c on Saturday. Receipts were 839 boxes. Jobbers were quoting the retail trade on small lots 19c for solids and 20c for prints.

On the egg market the tone was steady to a little easier. The general price for graded Ontarios in carlots was 17½c for extras, 15c for firsts and 13c to 13½c for seconds. Some dealers were asking 18c for extras, 15c for firsts and 13½c for seconds for Prairie eggs. Receipts were 2,032 cases.

The cheese market was quiet, with prices generally 9½c for current receipts. Some sales were reported at 9⅝s. Receipts were 502 boxes.

Some Florida potatoes arrived during the day, but there was no No. 1 stock included. The price for No. 2 new Floridas, ex-track here, was generally $8.50 per barrel of 150 pounds. Old potatoes were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 10—New Russian purchasing of wheat led to a brisk upturn of grain prices yesterday but the rise was largely offset by stock market declines.

Uncertainty about the United States Government crop report tomorrow afternoon served also to pull wheat values down.

A sustaining influence was 2,779,000 bushels shrinkage of the domestic wheat visible supply, reducing the total of 174,902,000 bushels, against 193,831,000 the corresponding week last year.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ off to ¼ to ⅜ up, compared with Saturday's finish; corn at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance; oats unchanged to ¼ to ¼ down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

The young man smiled, there was a mist in his eyes, but he shook his head gravely. "You do not wholly understand me. My indulgent father hastens to grant this wish, like every other. In his usual benevolent manner he arranges to send me in state. He makes my bed soft and tempers the winds for his son of the clouds. He sends men to fetch and carry for me. But—I must go alone and on my own feet, if I go at all. I must shoe myself and earn my bread."

Lee Ying lifted his head and opened his eyes wider. "What?"—Is this to be a—pilgrimage? You propose to go as a mendicant?"

"Good heavens, no! I'll earn, not beg, my way."

"What absurdity is this?"

"I merely want to be a man."

"It—would mean heat and cold and hunger and hardship—"

"Exactly!"

"—strife and misery. Pain! Deprivation! Discomfort! Danger!

"I'd like to learn the meaning of such words. Am I a beanstalk or an oak?"

The matter was not settled that night. It was discussed frequently in the days that followed. Sam's father was artful, he did not actually oppose the projected plan, he merely revolved it deliberately in his mind and delayed action, trusting that time would effect a change, defeat it somehow. But he became convinced finally that Sam was sincere.

Reluctantly, inch by inch, the old man yielded; he acquiesced in full at last but nobody knew the cost of his surrender. Having given his consent, he offered no assistance, no advice, for such was Sam's desire.

The hour of parting come. Sam appeared before his father dressed in one of his poorest suits of clothes and with a suitcase in his hand. He carried a warm overcoat and a cloth cap; nothing more. These he set down, then he kotowed three times to the motionless figure in the thronelike chair at the other end of the room.

"Is all in readiness?" the father inquired.

"It is. The ship sails at eleven o'clock tonight. I must report at six in order that I may be instructed in my so humble duties."

"Is it a large and seaworthy ship?"

"It is not large but it is venerable and it has weathered many storms."

"You say it carries a cargo of cattle. Are your duties hard, my son?"

"No harder than others which my countrymen perform every day. I am to assist in the peeling of potatoes, the cleaning of dishes, the serving of food to the sailors, and such useful labors."

Disapproval flicked over the father's face. His noble son, his godling, at unworthy tasks like these. He managed to conquer his repugnance.

"The prince fares forth in disguise," he said, "but he must remember his birth."

"I shall engrave your words upon the brass tablets of my memory," Sam promised.

Lee Ying choked. After a moment he rose and came forward across the polished floor and now he made no effort to conceal his emotion. Taking his son into his embrace he strained him to his heaving breast. He stood thus for a while, then in a broken voice he said:

"Go forth on your pilgrimage. I shall await your home-coming. Go now, while I can still see you."

Lee Ying listened until the elevator door had closed and until he had heard the last subdued whirr of the machinery that bore Sam down into the world he wished to know. With the going of his Heaven-sent son the vigor ebbed out of the old man. Stiffly he moved to the door of his shrine and with palsied hands slid back the panel. With difficulty he lighted the joss sticks, then knelt upon the silken floor cushions. His eyes were streaming.

Sam, too, was blind as he rode down to the street level. A feeling of guilt oppressed him for he realized now how old and how lonely his father was.

When he stopped out of the elevator he would have passed a waiting figure witrout noticing it if it had not stirred and if he had not heard his name spoken. He was surprised to recognize Eileen Cassidy.

"Are you leaving without a good-bye to your friends?" she inquired.

"Eileen! I didn't think anybody knew I was going. I—didn't know I had any friends."

"Is it true you're working your way across?"

"Yes. I'm an understeward, a—scullery boy."

"And how long will you be gone?"

"I shan't come back until I've forgotten a good many things and a good many people, Eileen."

"Me?" Sam shook his head. "I won't forget you."

Almost the boy inquired, "Why not? I'm nothing but a 'Chink!' We don't belong in the same street. We can't even touch fingers."

As if to disprove this Eileen reached forth a cold little hand and laid it upon his. "You're a kind of a prince to me."

She put her arms around his neck and kissed him full upon the lips.

"Good-bye, Brian Boru," she whispered. "Come back as clean as you go."

It was a virginal kiss, the first girl's kiss that Sam Lee had ever felt. His head was whirling when he bowed it to the wind and strode off towards the elevated station. A father's benediction, and a girl's kiss! What harm could come to him?

INSTALMENT 15.

Sam's experiences came swiftly on shipboard and he rose to meet them in a way that quite surprised himself. To begin with, nobody dreamed that he was Chinese, and that was a relief; he was merely a greasy member of the greasy crew of a greasy tramp. For that matter, his companions had little or no race prejudice; they were toothless fellows, most of them were failures, and prejudice of any sort is rare among the lowly. Among these castrals Sam made both friends and enemies. Acquaintance with them did much to awaken an agreeable feeling of self-confidence and superiority which was doubly pleasant by reason of its novelty.

He left the ship in Liverpool and in the seclusion of a cheap bedroom in a dingy quarter he wrote to Lee Ying. He used a brush, which he wielded skillfully and this, too, amused him, for Chinese ideographs were unwieldly things with which to recount experiences like his; the stately, ornate language of the fowery East was poorly fitted to describe the sordid doings of a pot-rustler on a cattle ship.

One day when Eileen Cassidy dropped in to inquire for news of the wanderer, Lee Ying told her:

"Frankly I'm both mystified and astonished at what he writes. He has completely changed. I let him go on this masquerade as a father allows his son to go out on the street at festival time—to peep at life. He seems to have thrown his mask aside and joined the revelers . . . I gave him much good advice, I urged him to walk with dignity but, if you will believe me, he bids fair to become a common roisterer. Let me read you ——" The speaker took from his sleeve a packet of thin rice paper which Eileen regarded with sudden interest.

"Oh, Gee! It's in Chinese!" she exclaimed. "Say! He's a smart kid, isn't he?"

"Mind you, I have admonished him more than once that the higher type of man is firm but not quarrelsome. Listen!" With eyes that shone queerly Lee Ying turned several pages then read from the vertical rows of hen tracks:

"'This person is convinced of the truth that a man who strikes with a sharp point will not himself be safe for long, nevertheless he is accursed with an appetite for undertakings in which no refined individual would take intelligent pleasure. Already he has engaged in two disgraceful combats of a nature which reflects no credit upon his self-restraint, albeit his reputation has not suffered thereby. For a time he endured patiently the offensive overbearing of a low-born kitchen person of abandoned manner and inelegant habits whose chief delight lay in effecting the discomfort of others. On a certain day of propitious circumstances, your son was engaged in exalted contemplation of the sublime virtues when this rapacious person endeavored by force to despoil him of his alleged-to-be-softer-than-others mattress. Returning from the middle air and mindful of the fact that he who moves not from his proper place is long lasting, the writer rose and, without affording his opponent an opportunity to arrange his charms and talismans to better advantage, smote him with a boot. He fell at one blow under the impression that he had encountered a class of circumstances differing radically from anything he had sought.

"'A certain renown accrued to your unworthy son as a result of this regrettable encounter and to this day a diligent search has failed to reveal in him the slightest feeling of remorse at the occurrence.'"

"The rowdy!" Eileen cried in delight. "What's his other fight?"

Lee Ying read on, smiling: "'On another occasion, he grew resentful of the unmelodious singing of a large grease-individual from the engine-room whose coarser-than-shark-skin voice and ribald verses interrupted his placid meditations. Tearing himself from his enchanting contemplations, your son addressed that person of no particular attainments likening him to a turtle and consigning him to various objectionable tortures of a vile and humiliating nature. Some time was agreeably spent by each in uttering remarks concerning the habits, the appearance and the accomplishments of the other and meanwhile the warlike spirits of our departed ancestors entered into and took complete possession of their least important descendant. They urged him with irresistible arguments to assail their defamer with a blunt instrument and this he did. Who could dissent to such counsel? There ensued an interminable conflict in which even a longer space of time was spent in determining whose directing spirits were the most powerful. A considerable rivalry sprang up among the onlookers who vied with each other in seeing who would be the last to interfere.

"'This person was at a disadvantage in regard to strength and stature but he called to his assistance the cunning and the valor of his most distinguished ancestors. Those benevolent influences graciously responded, imbuing him with feelings of a savage and yet agreeable order and conferring upon him a versatile dexterity which he had not conjectured to be his. Likewise they rendered their ignoble descendant wholly oblivious to pain and enabled him without any considerable feelings of inconvenience to endure acute discomforts not the least of which resulted from the long continued presence of his enemy's thumb in his eye socket. This he put an end to in course of time by smiting that degraded person about the middle with blows that caused his liver to dissolve. It was only by reason of interference of a determined nature that the valiant spirits of these departed warriors were frustrated in the high-minded intention of kicking their defamer in the face and thus terminating the affair in a manner wholly satisfactory to their honor.

"'Already the enviable black eye of the writer is beginning to open to the light as the shy petals of a morning glory unfold to the dawn. Alas, in another week it will have practically disappeared.'"

"He's proud of his first 'shiner'!" Eileen exclaimed. "He's learning to fight and he loves it."

"Where is he going from Liverpool? What does he propose to do, and who does he intend to lick next?"

"His wants are few and he believes that his gift of tongues will afford him a living. He speaks of London, Paris, Berlin ——"

"Paris! He would! That—girl is in Paris." The father shrugged, whereupon Eileen exclaimed, "So, that's where he's heading for! Gee, I'm stupid! If I knew how to wait I'd be a dumb waiter."

NORANDA SHOWS 60 CENT GAIN

General List on Standard Exchange Pursues Firm Trend This Morning.

LEADING GOLDS STRONG.

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.).—Standard Stock and Mining Exchange listings pursued a firm trend to-day, although volume was light.

Noranda made a good showing, rising to $15.25, for a 60-cent gain. International Nickel, however, was easier at $6.10. Eldorado gained a couple of cents, but miscellaneous other stocks sold unchanged.

Higher-priced golds were strong. Dome and McIntyre gained 50 cents each, while Teck Hughes added a nickel. Wright Hargreaves moved against the trend prevalent in the group, losing about 4 cents. Cheaper golds sold unchanged.

Oils were quiet, and unchanged.

PIVOT SHARES SUFFER DROPS

Nickel, Ford of Canada and Walkers Common Take a Decline.

OILS HOLD STEADY.

TORONTO, May 10.—(CP)— In light volume, Toronto Stock Exchange market drifted within a narrow compass this morning. Price changes seldom amounted to more than ½ point while the majority of issues came out unchanged from their previous finals and held at the same level. What changes did occur were mostly on the downward side, some of the pivotal shares losing part of recent gains.

Nickel, for instance, was back to 6 again. Ford of Canada dipped nearly ½ point to 8½. Walkers preferred continued to receive support at 9½ but the common dipped below 3 after having been steady at the higher figure Monday. Bell Telephone at 90 was below yesterday's best and C. P. R. eased ¼ point to 13⅛.

Oils were steady, mostly unchanged. The chain store stocks were firm with Dominion Stores some higher in slow trading. Brazilian and Smelters sold at last night's close.

Goodyear Tire preferred at 78 and Canada Wire and Cable "A" at 40 were each off 1 point.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 10.— (C.P.) — Price changes were unimportant on Toronto stock exchange to-day. The market went through a lethargic session with closing prices within a small fraction of last night.

Oils received good support on recessions and firmed slightly towards the close with some of the leaders showing small gains. The market as a whole was in a slightly better position in the last half hour when some of the losses incurred earlier were cut down.

There were setbacks of ¼ point and less in Bell Telephone, C.P.R., Ford of Canada, while Canada Wire and Cable "A" lost a point and Goodyear Tire Common came out 1½ points below its previous sale.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 10. (CP). Price action was mixed with losses in the majority on end of the Standard stock and mining exchange to-day. Volume remained light, with some selling pressure in evidence near the close.

Dome was again a feature, opening strong and closing above $11 for a 30-cent gain. Teck-Hughes advanced around mid-day but slipped back to finish unchanged. Granada dropped a few cents. Buffalo Canadian slumped 7 to 13 under evident liquidation and Moss, Siscoe and Macassa dropped a cent or so apiece.

An announcement that operations would be suspended in June was reflected in a 9-cent decline in Sherritt Gordon. Noranda continued strong and closed up 35 cents. Nickel was practically unchanged. Silver and oil groups were quiet.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 10 (C.P.)—Stocks were firm and dull to-day. Final prices were somewhat under the best, but many representative leaders closed with moderate net gains, among them being American Telephone, Borden, Coca Cola, Dupont, American Can, Allied Chemical and Standard Oil of California. U. S. Steel eased after its unfilled tonnage statement appeared, but quickly steadied. There was little activity in rails. Transactions approximated 800,000 shares.

Obituary

GEORGE DEANNARD

The funeral of the late George Deannard, who died Saturday afternoon after a brief illness at the age of 92, took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, Donegal street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, where solemn High Mass was sung by Rev. Dr. Masterson, with Father Maloney as deacon, and Father Carroll as subdeacon.

His kindly, exemplary life during his more than seventy years' residence in this district was feelingly spoken of by Rev. Father Carroll.

Interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery. Pall bearers were: S. Houlihan, D. Gleeson, F. Dawnson, H. Archambault, J. F. McCarthy, and J. Maher. Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien said the prayers at the grave.

NEW BIRD SANCTUARY

OTTAWA—The Whitlock Golf Club situated at Hudson Heights, Que., has been created a bird sanctuary and will be known as the Whitlock Bird Sanctuary. Official announcement to that effect appeared in the Canada Gazette of last week.

ACTION EXPECTED

WASHINGTON. — Action of a grand jury was expected to-day in the sensational larceny charge against Gaston B. Means, who allegedly took $104,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean by representing he could return the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

DOMINION MOTORS CLOSES YEAR 1931

Dominion Motors, Limited, closed the year 1931 in a secure financial position. Strictly liquid assets of $1,004,280 are revealed in the balance sheet as at December 31, 1931, and current assets, less current liabilities, show net current assets of $2,052,866. As current liabilities totalled $598,184, the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 4.5 to 1. Other favorable aspects included a reduction in bank advances to York Acceptance Corp. Limited, of $370,700. During periods when large profits were available, the company fortified its position, with the result that during the current difficult times its finances remain strong.

On June 1, 1931, Dominion Motors Ltd. took over all the assets subject to the liabilities of Durant Motors of Canada, Ltd. The Balance sheet therefore in addition to reporting the results of Dominion Motors, Ltd., and subsidiaries from June 1st to December 31st, also includes the results for the first five months of the year when the company was operating under predecessor name of Durant Motors of Canada, Ltd.

Prevailing conditions in the automobile business caused a decline in the volume of sales during the year and in common with many other automobile manufacturers operations of Dominion Motors were unprofitable. The loss for the period, after all charges, amounted to $242,751 against a loss in the previous year of $150,343. Dividends were paid of $113,977 against $113,969 and a reserve for dividends was established of $227,966. The surplus balance brought forward from 1930 was $891,1009 and after making provision for loss during the current year's operations, payment of dividend and the setting up of a reserve for future dividends, the balance transferred to capital surplus account at the end of 1931 was $3060,414. An adjustment re appraisal of fixed assets, Dec. 31st, 1930, amounting to $100,539, brought the total capital surplus at the end of 1931 to $406,954.

GAME OVERSEER DENIES CHARGE

Norman Gainor of Keene was recently stopped while driving his car in the vicinity of Campbellcroft Hill, by a man who represented himself to be a fish and game inspector.

According to Gainor the man stood squarely in the centre of the roadway flourishing a revolver, and was struck down by Gainor's car when he failed to step aside as it was being brought to a standstill.

Warden Is Uninjured.

Uninjured the alleged game warden demanded to test the brakes on the car, afterwards pronounced them to be "O.K." he then proceeded to search the car for illegally caught fish. "I had no fish," Gainor told The Examiner, "and was very upset by the incident." He added that feeling runs high at Keene. "People do not think it right that a man should be allowed to draw a gun on an unoffending citizen."

Look Elsewhere for Cottage.

The alleged incident occurred at 7.45 on a recent morning, and it is believed that two other motorists were also stopped and had their cars subjected to a search by the unknown man. One of the other motorists, who claims to have been "held up" was a Mr. Dickson, of Toronto, who was in the district looking for a place in which to spend his summer vacation. Following his experience here, he is stated to have said, that he would look elsewhere for a place in which to spend a holiday.

Gainor told The Examiner that after he ran the man down with his car, he offered to take him in to Keene to be examined by a doctor for possible injury. The man declined then, but later in the day he came into the village and went to Dr. H. Wright in company with Gainor.

Dr. Wright was not at home when The Examiner tried to get him by telephone this morning, but Mrs. Wright recalled the visit of the man. She did not know who he was. He had represented himself as a game warden.

B. C. Acting Warily On Land Settlement

VICTORIA, May 10 (C.P.). — British Columbia will not obligate itself to a policy of land settlement without an iron-clad agreement with the Ottawa Government, Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General and Acting Premier, said yesterday.

At a meeting of the executive, Ottawa's suggestion for such a scheme was discussed, but the terms were not made public. Clearing of suitable farm lands by unemployed and the sale of the land to settlers on favorable terms is thought likely to come under discussion.

DOMESTIC STRANGLES.

TORONTO.—Mrs. Smithwaite, 55, employed as a domestic here, was found hanging from the verandah of the apartment where she works to-day.

Gunmen Resent Being Chased, Shot At; Get Machine Gun, Teach Cops 'Lesson'

CHICAGO, May 10.—Five gunmen resented being chased by a pair of detectives across the west side early yesterday morning. They had recognized the plainclothesmen and jumped into their car, outdistancing the police while revolvers barked back and forth.

A half hour later they came back to the Roxy Hotel on West Jackson Boulevard to get their revenge. They had a machine gun this time, and sprayed lead over the police car and the restaurant where the detectives were eating. The policemen and four others in the restaurant dropped to the floor and missed death.

They put in a request for permission to carry shotguns or rifles from now on. Revolvers, they said, were not much help in a boulevard battle.

St. Paul's Elders Given "Summons"

Will some of the elders of St. Paul's Church endeavor this summer to obey the "summons" they found in their cars last night when they returned to them to drive home after attending a meeting of the Kirk Session?

The word "SUMMONS" in big letters on the top of a yellow slip first gave some of the elders a shock. They wondered what breach of the Traffic Act they had unwittingly transgressed. Studying the "summons" more closely, however, they felt that it did not concern them. Then the joke became apparent.

It was a "summons" to attend the grand opening of a new dance pavilion in the district.

COAL INDUSTRY TO BE ASSISTED

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY.

OTTAWA, May 10. (CP)—The Dominion Government has authorized further assistance to the Canadian coal industry. Provisions of an order-in-council made public by Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Mines, to-day will permit of coal mined in the Maritime Provinces entering the market as far west as Toronto. The action taken should widen considerably the existing markets for eastern Canadian coals the minister stated in an interview.

Coal shipped from Nova Scotia will now be assisted at the rate of $1.00 per ton when moved by water transportation to points west of Montreal including Lake Ontario points. Additional aid at the rate of one-third of one cent per ton per mile will be granted on this water-born coal when transported inland from discharging ports on Lake Ontario.

Of Canadian coal used by the railways over and above their consumption for 1931, it is proposed to pay to coal operators or coal distributors the difference up to $2.00 per net ton between the laid down cost to the railways of coal mined in Canada and used in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario and the laid down cost at the same points of imported coal that would otherwise be used.

The Dominion fuel board is charged with the administration of this order-in-council which becomes effective immediately.

COUNCIL MEET ENDS IN UPROAR

Police Eject Attorney at Kitchener in Argument Over Official's Dismissal.

MAYOR RAPS JUDGE.

KITCHENER, May 10.—(C.P.)—Heated arguments, and finally the ejection of the attorney, featured the city council meeting here to-day to investigate alleged incidents which caused the suspension of William Schultz, road superintendent, some weeks ago.

Alderman Gordon challenged the right of three aldermen to vote on the Schultz suspension controversy, and folowing this one alderman after another retired, necessitating adjournment through lack of a quorum.

When V. H. Hattin, attorney, refused to obey the Mayor's orders to "sit down," he was ejected by the police.

Mayor Bezeau criticized Judge Clement for his method of conducting an investigation, and the Judge's interim report intimated the Mayor had erred somewhat in his handling of the investigation.

300 NEW FARMERS

EDMONTON, May 10. — New farms for nearly three hundred settlers will be made available May 11 when 46,000 acres will be thrown open for homestead in Alberta by the Provincial Department of Lands and Mines. The farms, one quarter section each, are situated 30 miles southwest of Lac la Biche in the Buck Lake Forest Reserve section.

RELIEF SCHEME SMOOTHED OUT

Saskatoon Assured Province Will Finance Land Settlement Plan.

400 FAMILIES INVOLVED.

SASKATOON, May 10.—Comparative peace reigned last night in city council, after one or two stormy sessions in which the Provincial Government's attitude toward the Land Settlement Scheme for unemployed had been keenly debated, as word was received from Regina that the Provincial authorities were prepared to assume administration costs as well of financing of the proposed project, and aldermen saw some likelihood of coping with the unemployed problem in the near future.

Mayor J. E. Underwood was in conference with Premier J. T. M. Anderson at Regina and last night phoned that agreement had been reached. The whole plan will be delineated to city council to-night.

About 400 families in Saskatoon are expected to take advantage of the settlement offered.

AIRD BOUGHT CAR DAY GOT $125,000

account held only small sums. Still another bank had held $55,649.

The receipt of $120,000 Dominion of Canada bonds were shown as received on December 6, 1929. This was the Beauharnois payment of $120,000 in bonds to Mr. Aird. In addition, he received $5,000 in cash.

Sold Some Bonds.

On various dates, Mr. Aird had sold bonds to the Dominion Securities Company and to banks. The amounts received varied from $5,000 to slightly more than $1,000. The sales had ranged from November 25, 1929, to April 16, 1932. Most of the sales had been Victory bonds.

The entire receipts had been in the neighborhood of $60,000. However, Mr. Aird had exchanged some Victory bonds for others. In almost all cases, witness said, he had been able to trace the exact amounts received or paid out by Mr. Aird.

A cheque for $5,000 had been issued to "W. Green" on November 3, 1931, and a few days later a deposit had been made to cover this by Green, with $89 more.

There had been bank loans of $5,300, 10,000 and $11,000.

Under "miscellaneous" was shown $22,000 which Sheppard said it was impossible to identify as income. He had not received the deposit slips for this amount, but the banks had been asked to provide them.

Disbursements showed $29,980 to various business firms and $9,000 in cheques payable to "cash." These were all in small amounts, and were spread over a period of two years.

On Dec. 26, 1929, Mr. Aird had paid $3,000 to a motor car company.

Bought New Car

"Bought a car the day he got the money," commented His Lordship with a smile.

Starting with the $120,000 payment on Dec. 6, 1929, Mr. Aird had sold or exchanged many Dominion of Canada bonds and in July 1931, had still $57,000 of the Dominion bonds on hand. Since then, more had been sold to the extent of $17,000, and $40,000 was still on hand. In addition Mr. Aird's files showed letters and statements to the effect the exchanged bonds were still in his possssioen.

A. G. Slaght, K.C., independent counsel, then questioned witness. The bonds Mr. Aird received, Shepherd said, bore coupons. Interest was due June 1, and Dec. 1. Had Aird clipped the coupons he would have received $6,600 interest.

Witness had been "given every co-operation" by Aird in making his examination, he said.

Witness could not identify any deposits of coupons over the year 1930. The same thing applied to the exchanged bonds, and he could not definitely say who had cashed the coupons. There was nothing on the deposit slips to show Aird himself had clipped the bonds.

Witness declared he had not seen the actual deposit slips.

"If Mr. Aird having got these bonds and was not the true owner, it would be important to know if he cashed these bonds?" asked Mr. Slaght.

Mr. Tilley protested, declaring witness would be unable to answer this question of his own personal knowledge. No enquiries had been made at the income tax department at Ottawa regarding who cashed the coupons.

Sheppard declared he had tried to trace the coupons but "gave it up."

Giant Pulpwood Fire Dies After 12 Days

CHICOUTIMI, Quebec, May 10 (C.P.). — Fire which has been raging in the vast pile of pulpwood near the mill at Port Alfred, Quebec, during the past 12 days has been almost drenched out. Reports from the scene to-day said that of the original 250,000 cords of wood, the company expects only between 30,000 and 40,000 cords will be of use in the operation of the mill. The entire pile was valued at $3,000,000.

A white smoke continues to rise from the charred heap which the dredge General Montcalm, is still deluging with water from her powerful pumps. A score of hose streams are also being played on it to make certain that there will be no chance of the flames springing up afresh should a high wind develop.

PORT OF LONDON PRE-EMINENT AMONG HARBORS OF THE WORLD

E. C. Dolman Gives Interesting Address to Campbellford Rotary Club.

WAS PORT IN A.D. 61.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 10 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A brief outline of the Port of London, its history, facilities and trade was given to the Campbellford Rotary Club yesterday by E. C. Dolman, who in a very comprehensive manner delivered a most entertaining and instructive address.

Every ship sailing the high seas, both large and small, come in time to the Port of London, the speaker said, and every weeks there are as many as 1,000 large vessels tie up at this trade centre. As far back as A.D. 61 London was known as a trading centre and at that early date was crowded with shipping. The port and city owe their development to the river Thames, the site of the city being determined by the river, it being the nearest point of crossing.

The Pool of London originally formed the port, because of its good anchorage for ships. In the old days, ships entering the port waited for the low tide to discharge their cargo. With the increase of ships and trade came the increase of wharves and piers, both stone and wood.

Greater Competition

At the end of the 18th century, trade increase had become so great that conditions became congested and during this period much plundering and thieving of cargoes was the result, owing to inability to protect them. During this period agitation grew so strong that in 1882 the West India docks were built by Act of Parliament, these being situated on what is known as the Isle of Dogs. From then on competition became so rife and prices were cut to such an extent that at length it was evident that there were no resources for maintenance.

In 1908 a Royal Commission was instituted and the Port of London Act passed, whereby all docks were administered as one unit, under what is known as the Port of London Authority.

The tidal portion of the river Thames is 70 miles, from Teddington Lock in Surrey to Warden's Point in Essex. There are five large docks from London Bridge to Tilbury, these being the Surrey Commercial Dock; London and St. Catherine Dock, West India Dock; Albert Dock and Tilbury Dock.

The annual value of overseas trade to the Port of London the speaker said amounted to 70 million pounds, the coast wise trade being one thir this figure. Approximately 37 million tons of freight come into the dock annually.

The governing body, the Port of London authority is comprised of twenty-eight members, ten appointed and eighteen elected. These work without pay and are all technical men, holding office for three years. The body is self supporting, revenues being derived from dues.

Twenty million pounds were originally spent on port improvements and to-day the speaker said the Port of London is the biggest and best equipped in the world, having every device and facility necessary, both mechanical and electrical, including floating cranes and movable wharves.

Large Market Centre

It can accommodate all kinds and sizes of shipping and is in the centre of one of the largest markets in the world. London, which has nine million people within 25 miles of the city and 16 million within a distance of 70 miles. It is the biggest shipping centhe and has the largest insurance in the world.

Years ago there was only 25 feet of water at low ebb at Graves End but to-day, there is 30 feet of water at low tide with a width of 1,000 feet and a distance of 35 miles. Six miles beyond this the river is 600 feet wide and 27 feet deep at low water and four miles up 600 feet wide and 26 feet deep. To-day the largest vessels can go up into the docks. The rise and fall of the water in the river is now 20 feet spread over two to three hours; there are 9,000 barges operating on the river and 170 miles of water front.

The docks in all cover 3.640 acres of land and 727 acres water area, having a length of quay of 45 miles and are all connected with the main railways of the country. The docks are: Surrey Commercial, London and St. Catherine, East and West India; Albert, Millwall, Royal Victoria, King George V, and Tilbury.

Approximately 360,000 large passenger boats use the port annually. The best equipped port in the world, there are ten dry docks, all of the latest model. "The Port of London, said the speaker, is pre-eminent among the ports of the world."

The Rev. R. C. Tait presided over the luncheon. A. D. Bennett speaking to the club on the On-to-Hamilton convention at which it is expected Campbellford Rotary will be well represented.

SMALL CAKES* made with Magic, win First Prize for Mrs. Jeanne McKenzie

"Magic has always been my standby," volunteers Mrs. Jeanne McKenzie, of Toronto, winner of three first prizes at the 1931 Canadian National Exhibition. "In fact, I wouldn't think of using any other baking powder.

"I make all my cakes with Magic. If I didn't, I am quite sure I never would have won so many prizes. Magic gives all baked foods an extra fine quality of flavor and texture that lift them out of the ordinary class."

Magic Baking Powder is used exclusively by the majority of cookery experts, dietitians, and housewives throughout Canada. In fact, Magic outsells all other baking powders combined!

*Mrs. McKenzie's Prize Recipe

DELICATE CAKE

½ cup butter	2 teaspoons Magic
2 cups fruit sugar	Baking Powder
½ cup milk	Whites of 6 eggs
3 cups pastry flour	1 teaspoon almond extract

Cream butter and add sugar. Sift flour and baking powder together several times. Add flour and milk alternately to the butter and sugar. Then add egg whites beaten very stiff. Add almond extract. MANION STIRS UP FIREWORKS

Railways, provided most of the fireworks on the unemployment relief act. He accused the Liberals of "nearly wrecking" the Canadian National Railway, of using it as a "political club" and loading it with "useless and foolish expenditures" in connection with hotels, steamships and branch lines.

The relief bill, said Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, was an admission on the part of the Ministry of its "complete failure to deal with the unemployment problem in a constructive way." It had substituted "a policy of doles for a constructive policy of public works," he said, referring to the broad principle adopted this year of focusing activity on direct relief.

The Liberal leader prompted discussion of Canadian National Railway affairs when he charged that railway ties had been purchased with unemployment relief funds this year without calling for tenders and "the contractors were practically all immediate friends of the administration."

Defends Record

In a general defence of the unemployment relief record of his government, the Prime Minister said wide powers were sought because "it is the only method by which we can meet the difficulties, some of which are seen, some of which we can not anticipate and some of which we hope will be less serious than people would have us believe."

Only in a national emergency, said Mr. Bennett, would the government move to the defence of business enterprises through loans or gurantees. Although Beauharnois had not been in the minds of the government when the clause was drafted, an emergency might arise in connection with this development to prompt government assistance. In a general way, any assistance granted would be through established agencies, such as banks, he added.

KU KLUX KLAN AIDED HEPBURN

ble-cross one of the leaders of that organization, he's got another think coming. Because— because, well, just because that's all. Because I have a story about him which I am not going to tell here to-night, but if he provokes me, if he wants to get down to the muck and wallow, I'll wallow with him and throw muck with him and I'll make him sorry he ever tried to destroy me.

"I'll make him sorry he ever attacked Dr. George F. Cowan, the M.P. from Long Lake, Sask. Dr. Cowan is a fine Christian gentleman, and never since he has been in Parliament has he asked the Government to consider the religion or the birth of any man.

"But this Hepburn, this irresponsible cobbler, this nincompoop who thinks the Liberals of London are afraid to call him to time, gets up in the House and makes a cowardly attack on Dr. Cowan."

The speaker quoted Mr. Hepburn from Hansard to the effect that Dr. Cowan who, he understood, was Grand Kleagle of the Klan, would keep the wool industry by seeing that the members of the Klan used woollen instead of cotton sheets.

Planned His Election.

"Let me tell you," thundered the speaker, "this Hepburn would never have been elected but for J. G. Hothersall and his friends. I didn't tell about the day he sat with my friends in a store in East Elgin and planned his election. I didn't tell how we framed it so the Roman Catholics would not know he was supported by the Ku Klux Klan.

"This man was always willing to sit on a hotel bed with me and Nelson Parliament in St. Thomas, discussing this very thing he was attacking Dr. Cowan about.

"What's he trying to do? Make the Catholics believe he's for them with one hand and ride with the Klan with the other?

"If Hepburn wants to lead the Liberal party, let them be faithful to those who have been faithful to him. Let us know where he stands.

"That will do for Mitch Hepburn for the present. But if he comes back at me, I'll tell a few things he doesn't know I know."

TRIBUTES PAID TO MOTHERHOOD

Millbrook Sunday School Motored to Centreville Sunday Morning.

THE DAY'S SERVICES

MILLBROOK, May 10.—The practice of wearing a flower, white or colored, as a tribute to the ideal of motherhood, was fully observed by local congregations on Sunday, the Sunday School of Grace Presbyterian church motoring to Centreville in the morning and joining with the school of that charge for the special service, the two superintendents, R. O. Larmer, and J. H. McKnight, with the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, having seats on the platform, and taking, in turn, a definite part in the program.

The theme was "God's Helpers," the scripture lessons being read by Gerald Anderson and Robina Talt, and the talk on "The Influence of a Goodly Mother," given by Archie Deyell. The girls of Miss Dorothy Hall's class presented a pretty exercise, each wearing a gold letter spelling the word "Mother," and ending with the chorus of that name. Mrs. James Whittington took the topic, "A Mother's Privilege", Mrs. Clifford Hall's class following with stories of four different mothers. The minister, Rev. Mr. Williams, gave an address specially for the younger scholars, and presented to Mrs. J. H. McGill the lovely bouquet of flowers for the oldest mother, and the one most regular in attendance at Sunday school.

The little tots of the primary class, Mrs. Stewart Hall, teacher, brought flowers for one of their number, Marian McGill, who is ill, and the solo by McIntosh Bradshaw, was much appreciated. Mrs. James Hutchison presided at the piano, and the special offering was for the spread of the gospel in foreign lands.

Millbrook Service

Rev. Mr. Williams preached a special sermon at night, in connection with the service at Grace church, Millbrook, on II Timothy 1:5, speaking of good motherhood at the basis of all our prosperity, and narrating how the observance of the day was first instituted at Philadelphia, by Miss M. Jarvis who taught a class in Sunday School into the second generation, the presentation of a white carnation to each pupil, after her death, as an act of remembrance being enlarged the next year to take in all mothers. The points emphasized from the text included Timothy's faith being an outcome of his mother's example, his mother's teaching, and his mother's love.

St. Andrew's Church

In St. Andrew's church morning worship was a joint gathering of the Sunday school and congregation, the associate superintendent, James H. Might, taking charge in the absence of W. Fred Fallis, who was ill, and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, giving the address.

Martha Earle recited "The Scowling Face" as program was followed, the theme being "Honor thy mother." The choir sang an anthem, and the special offering was for extension work among the Sunday schools of the province by the O.R.E.C. The minister's address was illustrated by various objects on the topic, "Mother's Bible", the report for the day, by Oliver Brock secretary, recording twenty-three teachers and officers present, scholars 267, and offering $10.38. Next Sunday school will meet at 10 a.m., with preaching service at 11, and at night at 7.30, continuing so for the summer months.

At the close of the morning service six pupils wrote on the text examination on the quarter's lessons. Beautiful flowers were banked within the altar in the churches at Centreville and Millbrook, of both denominations, as a fitting tribute to motherhood, "on whose head a crown of honor is being placed this day."

In St. Thomas' church Rev. Mr. Simpson made reference to Mother's Day, but the observance of this particular occasion is not general within the Anglican communion which has a special time in its own church calendar for the honoring of motherhood.

Women At St. Andrew's

The local branch of the Women's Institute, with representatives of other branches in the East Durham district, to the number of approximately one hundred, attended divine worship at St. Andrew's church on Sunday evening, the district president, Mrs. W. A. Skitch, of Bailieboro, and the local president, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, heading the lines respectively in the parade from the basement to the church auditorium, where the centre pews had been reserved for their accommodation. W. A. O'Brian and John Rowland acting as ushers.

The special selections by the choir included two anthems, the second a particularly beautiful setting of the familiar hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. M. McDowell taking the soprano and alto duet. A printed order of service was provided everyone in the congregation, all the worshippers thus having an active part in the responsive prayers and lessons.

"Homes built upon the sand, and homes built upon the rock", was the theme of the minister's sermon, Rev. Mr. Jones prefacing his remarks with an appropriate reference to the continent-wide observance of 'Mother's Day,' seeking to place the crown of honor upon the noble brow of motherhood," and going on to speak of three types of homes: good, indifferent, and wicked or godless.

The sermon was based upon Matthew 7:24-28, and giving the text, "By their faults ye shall know them," the minister mentioned the homes of the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and the sandy foundations of envy, jealousy, scorn and hatred which crept into the first named; partiality, rivalry, deceit and falsehood between Esau and Jacob which marred the second; while favoritism, malice, murder, fear, dread, and sorrow, betrayed the sandy support on which Jacob and Rachel endeavored to establish their home.

Lot's home came in for mention last, drunkenness and the shame which accompanies this monster of evil, proving the instability of its continuance. I believe the members of the Women's Institutes will yet put on the statute books of our land a law that will wipe out this evil, and demand that strong drink shall not be sold as a beverage to the youth of our beloved Canada."

As a rock foundation obedience to Christ was emphasized, with the home an ally of the church, and of the Savior, the contribution of the Christian home to the national life in purity, social solidarity, and the wiping out of the evils which threaten to destroy the very foundations of our nation, with the responsibility upon the mothers, and such organizations as the Women's Institutes, to build up such homes, were strongly urged in the closing sentences of the sermon.

BOND PURCHASE FLATLY DENIED

Ontario Premier, "held up" the Beauharnois Power Corporation for $325,000 was "falsehood, malicious and intentional falsehood," Robert Oliver Sweezey, former president of Beauharnois, hotly declared yesterday.

Although he had purchased approximately $300,000 worth of Victory bonds in Montreal from the Dominion Securities Company, similar to the $125,000 received by John Aird, Jr., there was no relation between the two purchases, Sweezey stated. Both purchases were for "political purposes." The $200,000, however, had "not been for the Conservative Party in Ontario."

Because he had understood that Aird was a "properly qualified person' 'to receive funds for the Ontario Conservative Party, the $125,000 in bonds had been given him, Sweezey told Hon. Mr. Justice Orde at the resumption of the Hydro probe. After giving the bonds to Aird, he had no knowledge of what became of them, Aird had not rendered any technical or other service to Beauharnois.

When A. G. Slaght, K.C., counsel for Hydro critics, suggested that Beauharnois had purchased $200,000 worth of bonds from Dominion Securities Corporation, whose head office is in Toronto and that Sweezey had told two persons that former Premier Ferguson had "stuck him for $325,000"—the total of the two bond purchases by Beauharnois—Sweezey flatly denied it, and denied also that more than the $125,000 had been paid to Aird under the belief that it was for the Conservative Party.

Says Conversation Invented.

He flatly denied that he had ever told any persons named George Kurdydyk or George Hyde that he had been forced to pay Ferguson $325,000. He knew both the men named by Mr. Slaght and had had dealings with them. But such statements, he declared, were "purely imaginary conversations." He added that he knew "why" these conversations with him had been "invented."

Sweezey and Hugh B. Griffith, former secretary and treasurer of Beauharnois, and Loring Christie, present secretary, were the only witnesses to appear during the first day of the resumed probe. Both Sweezey and Griffith had understood John Aird, Jr., to be a representative of the Conservative party in Ontario when he approached Sweezey and sought $250,000 which he later "slid down" to $125,000.

As a result of Aird's apparent knowledge of the Hydro-Beauharnois transaction, Sweezey had accepted Aird as the "right" man. Six days after the contract had been signed in Toronto, Aird was handed the $125,000 worth of bonds in the Beauharnois office in Montreal. Nothing had been said as to who would eventually receive them. Throughout the transaction, however, any knowledge of Aird had been based upon "impression" rather than statements.

Aird had never named the political party which he represented, although it had been understood that it was the "party in power." No one else had approached Sweezey for the party. He had met Premier Ferguson only twice, once for five minutes in the premier's office and once in Montreal with Premier L. A. Taschereau. On neither occasion [illegible] had been discussed. Ferguson having made it clear the first time that it "was Hydro business."

BENSFORT SOCIETY WILL HOLD PARTY

Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. Hold May Meeting in Basement of Church.

The May meeting of the Bensfort Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. was held in the basement of the church on Tuesday with a good attendance, when in the absence of the president and the vice-president, the treasurer, Mrs. George Whittington conducted the Ladies' Aid meeting.

A flower committee was appointed to write a list of members to provide flowers for the church services and provision was made for the purchase of plants for shutins. A motion to hold a garden party on a date to be arranged later was carried, and the meeting was brought to a close.

The W.M.S. meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. Robinson, the scriptural lesson being read by Mrs. C. Emberson. The treasurer, Mrs. Buckham, gave a very encouraging report of money received, and the corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. C. Dawson, read some correspondence received during the month. The Watch Tower proved very interesting, Mrs. T. Dawson, Mrs. C. Emberson, Mrs. George Whittington and Miss M J. Emberson taking part. Mrs. W. C. Dawson, leader of group A, then took charge of the meeting, and Miss M. J. Emberson gave a paper on "Prayer," while Mrs. Thomas Dawson gave a reading on Christian stewardship.

Reference was made by the president to the great loss sustained by the society in the passing of Mrs. James B. Lang, who assisted so cheerfully and so efficiently in all departments of the work, a loss to the society and a personal loss to each member.

RIGHT BACK TO WORK

« « « Those who insure their lives help indirectly to bring comfort and happiness to thousands of people, apart from the beneficiaries immediately concerned.

They provide largely the funds for public and private enterprise—railroads, farms, utilities, factories—all those collective activities which mean work and pay rolls.

Life insurance tolerates no idle dollars.

Its very existence depends on the prompt re-investment of every dollar received in premiums, for the benefit of the policyholders. These dollars, like water passing through a power house, turn the mighty turbines of trade . . . and then, released, flow on to bring happiness to distant valleys.

While in trust with the insurance company, they turn the wheels of industry, and return at last to the policyholder or his beneficiaries, bringing to the aged or bereaved welcome freedom from financial hardship. Like mercy, life insurance "blesses him that gives and him that takes"—not only those whose future it safeguards but all whose fortunes are linked with those vital economic enterprises that it stimulates and maintains.

INSTALL OFFICERS AT NORWOOD FORESTERS' LODGE GATHERING

District Deputy Grand Master Seeney Has Charge of Installation.

DISTRICT NEWS

NORWOOD, May 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The installation of officers of Norwood Lodge, No. 262, I.O.O.F., was held in the lodge rooms, under the direction of District Deputy Grand Master Bro. Ernest Seeny, of Havelock, and his staff of assistants.

There was a splendid attendance of members as well as members from other lodges and several ladies.

Refreshments were served in the lodge room.

The newly installed officers are: J.P.G., Bro. R. A. Dean; N.G., Bro. Dr. Carleton; V.G., Bro. William Baker; recording secretary, Bro. Howard Adams; financial secretary, Bro. Edgar Buck; treasurer, Bro. Thomas Lumsden; warden, Bro. William Parcels; conductor, Bro. Herbert Campbell; R.S.N.G., Bro. N. S. Rogers; L.S.N.G., Bro. Ira Cummings; R.S.V.G., Bro. David Lobb; L.S.V.G., Bro. Harry Andrews; R.S. Sup., Bro. Robert Leeper; L.S. Sup., Bro. Samuel Buck; I.G., Bro. George Graham; chaplain, Bro. W. H. Giffen.

Church Meeting.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. H. McDonald, Ridge street. There was an attendance of twenty ladies. Mrs. Reeves, the president, took charge of the devotional and business part.

The committee in charge for the month then took charge, Mrs. T. M. Lumsden, Mrs. W. Robb and Miss C. Clysdale.

It was decided on to send literature to the Cecelia Jeffry School at Kenora. A letter was also read by the supply secretary and clothing promised for a boys of nine years, also for children up to six years.

Mrs. W. D. Robson, dealing with our diamond jubilee in Formosa, took from the Study Book "The Tide of Opportunity."

Mrs. Jean Porter, who had attended the provincial meeting held in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, gave a splendid report. Mrs. M. Callander and Mrs. J. Rogers gave two very nice solos during the afternoon.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, Mrs. McDonald, for her kind hospitality.

Women's Institute.

The May meeting of the Women's Institute was held in their rooms on Friday afternoon with a very good attendance of members.

This meeting was their annual election of officers. The business part, which Mrs. Rothwell, the president, took charge, was then dealt with. Some of the ladies who live near the pond that broke away early this spring feel it should be repaired and it is a most unsightly place at the present. So two of the ladies decided to interview Mr. Latta of the Milling Company and see if he would be willing to help fix it as he has it leased for a number of years.

Mrs. O. Buck, vice-president, then took the chair and charge of the election of officers: Hon. president, Mrs. Buker; president, Mrs. J. Rothwell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Stewart; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. Grover; secretary, Mrs. William Buchanan; treasurer, Mrs. H. Brown; directors, Mrs. H. Rogers, Mrs. William Chamberlain and Mrs. G. A. Barton; district director, Mrs. H. Rogers; flower committee, Mrs. Rae, Mrs. A. Innis and Mrs. Buck; visiting committee, all members; organist, Mrs. A. Innis.

United Church W.M.S.

The May meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held in the Sunday school hall, with Mrs. John Gardner's group in charge. Mrs. Stillman, the president, took charge of business. Mrs. F. Gardner read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Lochead gave a most interesting paper from the Study Book on Korea.

A vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. Brethen and Mrs. Lawlor. Lunch was served by the ladies of the group.

summer evenings' diversion. A lunch was served at the conclusion of the evening. Miss Giles of Brantford, and Miss Josephine Anderson are teachers at S. S. No. 12.

Weddings

HOPE—BARKER.

PENELLA, May 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, May 4, at 3 o'clock by the Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., when Lucy Mae, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barker, Penella, was united in marriage to Lowrie George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hope, Centreton.

The bride looked charming in a dainty gown of triple sheer Corsica blue, with trimmings of eggshell lace, with hat, gloves, shoes and hose in harmonizing tones. She was wearing the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls, and carried a corsage bouquet of pink and white sweetheart roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mildred Barker, wearing a gown of sand beige crepe, with accessories to match, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of tea roses.

The groom was supported by Charles Childs.

After the ceremony, which was performed at the United Church parsonage, the officiating clergyman and the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents where supper was served from a table beautifully decorated with full bloom pink and white roses and centred with the wedding cake, the bride, following the usual custom, cutting her wedding cake. Many beautiful roses were also scattered throughout the home.

For travelling the bride donned a gown of navy blue georgette, blue hat and grey tweed coat, with gloves, bag, shoes and hose in matching tones. The groom also presented his bride with a handsome china tea set; to the bridesmaid, he gave a platinum bar pin, and to the best man, a pair of cuff-links.

A touch of sentiment was found in the wedding date in that it marked the twenty-seventh anniversary of the bride's parents' wedding day and the fifty-seventh anniversary of the bride's grandparents' wedding day on the maternal side.

Obituary

LORNE LANNIGAN

STIRLING, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence)—A gloom was cast over the community at the death of Lorne Lannigan, on Tuesday morning of last week. He was the son of Robert Lannigan and J. Montgomery. Born June 23, 1895, seven years ago he was united in marriage to Lottie Sprague of Sutton.

To this union was born two children, Mary five years of age and John of three.

Besides his widow and children he leaves to mourn his loss his father, one sister (Kathleen), Mrs. A. Blair of Brockville, Clarence a brother in Rochester.

He was a Conservative and an Anglican.

MRS. LOVILLA PARKER.

MOUNT JULIAN, May 10.—Mrs. H. T. Northey received the sad news of the death of her mother, Lovilla Parker, aged 70, wife of the late John Parker, who predeceased her some years ago. Mrs. Parker had spent the later part of her life with her daughter, Mrs. M. Mills at Grandview, Manitoba, where she passed away on Sunday, April 24, 1932. Interment in Grandview cemetery.

LADY BESSBORO' BACK IN CANADA

Is Accompanied by Several Guests Following Visit in England, France.

PLANS WESTERN TOUR.

MONTREAL, May 10 (C.P.) — Delighted to be back in Canada again, Her Excellency the Countess of Bessborough arrived at Montreal yesterday on Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm after an absence from Canada of some months.

Lady Bessborough was accompanied by the Governor-General's sister, Lady Gweneth Cavendish, her nephew, R. W. Baring, son of Lady Cavendish, and the Hon. Margaret Thesiger, daughter of the Earl of Chelmsford. Lady Cavendish, who is paying her first visit to the Dominion, told reporters that she is looking forward very much to her stay here. "Although we have so far only seen Canada between Father Point and Quebec, you can say our first impressions are that the country more than lives up to our expectations," Lady Cavendish said.

The Viceregal party was met at Quebec by Major Eric Mackenzie, Comptroller of the Household, who boarded the Montcalm at that port and came to Montreal on the ship.

Enjoyed Visit.

"I have much enjoyed my visit to England and France and seeing all my relations and friends," Lady Bessborough said. "But I am enchanted at being back in Canada, which is home to me now.

"We have made a most peaceful journey, and coming up the St. Lawrence yesterday was absolutely perfect, the weather being heavenly and the scenery absolutely lovely.

"I had boasted so much about the Canadian sun to my sister-in-law, Lady Gweneth Cavendish, that I was specially pleased she should have such a happy first impression of these shores.

"I am now looking forward to our tour in the West, as I am longing to see all I can of this wonderful Dominion."

Members of the Viceregal party are to be guests of Sir Montagu and Lady Allan at Ravenscrag, and leave for Ottawa later to-day.

CONSULS GET CHANGE

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Philip Adams, Cambridge, Mass., United States consul at Sarnia, Ont., has been appointed by the Department of State to succeed Richard P. Butrick at the consulate in Saint John. It is not known definitely when Mr. Adams will take over his duties here.

Mr. Butrick has been made consul at Shanghai, China.

ARBOUR DAY IN CAVAN SCHOOLS

Fishing Trip for Seniors of S. S. No. 5 Special Event.

CAVAN CHURCH W.M.S.

CAVAN, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — Arbor Day was fittingly observed on Friday in the rural schools. The program included cleaning the school grounds having a bonfire of rubbish followed by a treat of candy. R. A. Sutton, of S.S. No. 5, followed his usual custom of taking his senior pupils on a fishing expedition.

Messrs. Lloyd Sutton, M. Elson, T. Douglas, M. McDowell and L. Smith motored to Port Hope on Friday evening and attended the poultry meeting.

On Tuesday afternoon the members of St. John's W.A., Ida, held their spring sale of home-made cooking, plants and bulbs. Afternoon tea was served and a social time enjoyed. Eight dollars were added to the treasury of the society.

On Thursday afternoon a joint meeting of the Cavan United Church W.A. and W.M.S. was held in the church. The devotional exercises consisted of a hymn, the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. D. J. Hunter, followed by prayer by Mrs. Swain. Mrs. Snider was secretary pro tem. The roll call of the W.M.S. was responded to by nine. It was decided to procure a blue book. The treasurer's report showed $2.15 as collection at the last meeting, $13.00 as Easter thankoffering, with a later receipt of $2.00. Arrangements were made for each member to piece a quilt block for a quilt to go in the missionary bale this fall. Mrs. Whithame gave an interesting and instructive paper on a chapter of the study book. A paper was given on Chinese funeral customs. The collection was $1.94. Prayer by Mrs. Matchett closed the meeting.

The session of the W.A. was presided over by the president, Mrs. D. J. Hunter. Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. Staples, and Mrs. Snider read interesting selections, which were much enjoyed.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

Mothers' Day Celebrated at St. Andrew's Church.

LAKEFIELD, May 10.—Mother's Day was fittingly observed by the Sunday School and congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday. The program followed the printed form published for the occasion under the auspices of the Presbyterian church in Canada and each child performed his or her part most acceptably. Among those who read portions of the scripture were: Mr. Andrew Fairbairn, who is 89 years of age and the oldest member of the congregation and probably the oldest Sunday School scholar in Canada, who read in a clear, distinct voice the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. Other portions of the scripture were read by Lulu and Douglas Smith.

Jean and Billy Clark sang a duet very sweetly "My Mother" and Donald Smith sang "Mothers of Salem", in a very acceptable manner. Mr. Fairbairn read a poem entitled "An Unfinished Song."

Stories were told by Mrs. Wilker of Jesus' Mother, who believed in Him; by Ellen Moore of Samuel's mother, who made him a little coat; by Tommy Moore of Moses' Mother, who put him in a basket by the river; by Ethel Lake of "My Own Mother," who feeds, clothes trains and loves me.

Rev. R. J. Burton spoke of the importance of mother in the home, community and nation's life and stressed the value in children in God's sight. The attendance was good and the service very hearty.

Baptist Sunday School

There was a large attendance at the Baptist Sunday School for Mother's Day which featured the hymns which mother used to sing, hymns which are old but ever new and beloved by young and old. Rev. W. B. Walker, the pastor, compared the mother of Samuel in I Samuel 1:28 with Althaliah. II Chronicles 22:3, drawing a vivid word picture of the mother of Samuel who dedicated her son to God and to His service and the other mother who set an example of evil doing. A true mother's love is spontaneous, self-sacrificing, courageous and timely. Mrs. Norman Curtain sang very feelingly "My Mother's Prayer." The regular program was carried out very effectively by the Sunday School under the leadership of Mrs. W. Northey, the superintendent.

Arbor Day Observed In Belmont Schools

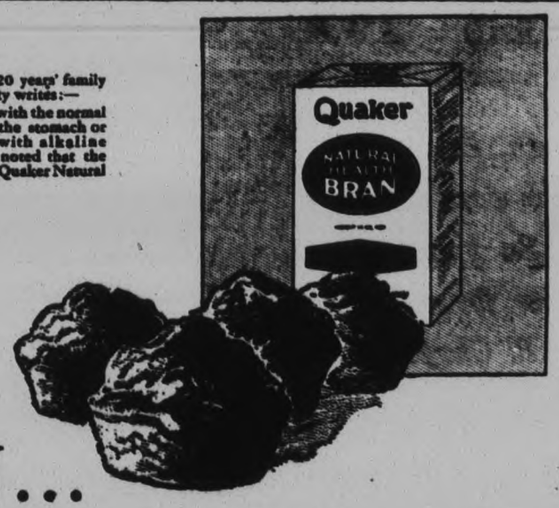
HAVELOCK, May 10.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Arbor Day was observed at all the rural schools in Belmont by a general clean-up in the morning and in many places tree and shrub planting in the afternoon.

The usual procedure is to go for a hike in the woods after the work is all done, but the rain of the afternoon spoiled the contemplated stroll in the woods.

At school section No. 2, Preneveau, twelve trees were planted by the twelve boys attending the school. Each tree was named after one of the youths. After the work was all done Miss Leonard, the teacher, invited the pupils into the school were a sumptuous repast, which had been prepared by herself and some friends, was served, and a short program was enjoyed.

At S. S. No. 12, Cordova Mines, a social evening was held in the evening at the school and a delightful program was given. Mr. Will Steenburgh, of Toronto, who is visiting at Cordova, played a number of selections on a Hawaiian guitar, as well as some much appreciated vocal solos with guitar accompaniment. On the same evening a volley ball team was formally organized. A net has been placed on the school ground and everything is now in readiness for the long

A PHYSICIAN of over 20 years' family practice in a Canadian city writes:—
"Bran does not interfere with the normal acidity of the juices of the stomach or bowel, as is the case with alkaline laxatives. My wife has noted that the finest muffins are made of Quaker Natural Bran."



BRAN...
Natural Corrective
for constipation ills...

NATURAL bran . . . the coating of the wheat . . . supplies you with the roughage nature intended you should have. It is needed to sweep the intestines clear of accumulated body waste. It encourages the natural action of the intestinal walls by stimulating the muscles, thus promoting healthy, regular normal action.

Quaker Natural Bran furnishes this roughage in its finest form. It is milled to a softness so that it does not irritate.

Many physicians recommend Quaker Natural Bran. It is not habit forming. It induces healthy movement by the bowel itself rather than the action gained by using any drugs which abnormally stimulate certain organs. For constipation ills, abandon drugs. Use Quaker Natural Bran every day. Sprinkle it over your regular cereal. Or, eat it in muffins or cookies or some other form of bran baking. Easy recipes are found in every package.

CLANCY-SHIVER CLOUT HOMERS AT MONTREAL

Five-run Splurge in Third Gives Brown His 3rd Win of Season.

BISONS BEAT BEARS.

"Slim" Brewer Scores Second Victory Over International Leaders.

(By the Associated Press.)

The longest winning streak of the young International League season had carried the Montreal Royals into undisputed possession of second place to-day.

With their pitching staff operating like clockwork, the Royals bowled over Jersey City, 7-6, yesterday for their 10th victory in succession.

With second place definitely gained, the Royals now can start in pursuit of the league-leading Newark Bears, who are only two games distant.

Hard, timely hitting and excellent pitching from the entire mound staff have been the chief contributing factors in the Royal's surge toward the top. In their last 10 games, they have scored 68 runs while holding the opposition to 32. In seven instances Montreal's starting pitcher also has been around at the finish. Gowell Claset, with three victories; Walter Brown and John Pomorski with two each, have been the big winners during this spectacular winning streak.

Brown was on the mound yesterday and traveled the route, although he was tottering around a bit in the seventh when Clancy clouted a homer with two on, to put the Skeeters within one run of a tie. In the last half of the same inning, Shiver drove the ball out of the lot to put the Royals two runs in the lead and a ninth inning Jersey City rally for one run fell just short. The Royals drove Irvin out of the box in less than three innings. Irvin retreated in the midst of a five-run splurge in the third. Fallenstein, his relief, was very effective the rest of the way.

Buffalo Gains Nod

Home runs by Detore and Crouse furnished Buffalo with its winning margin over Newark, 3-1. Slim Brewer gave the Bears nine hits, but was accorded sensational support. Buffalo collected 11 off Holsclaw and Miner. The victory sent Buffalo into a tie with Baltimore for third place.

The other two games were postponed on account of adverse weather conditions.

Brampton Seniors Lose To Sea Fleas

TORONTO, May 10. — National Sea Fleas took the lead in the O.A.L.A. senior race when they registered their second victory in as many starts by outscoring the Brampton Excelsiors 7 to 5 before a rather small crowd at the Maple Leaf Gardens last evening. The loss gave the Flower City team an even break on games played to date, they having beaten Hamilton in the latter city previously.

The game was a rough-and-tumble affair throughout, no quarter being asked nor given by either team. The Sea Fleas deserved victory on the night's play, but Brampton, whose team was shattered through players jumping into professional ranks, have gathered together a neat aggregation, and they will likely be heard from later. This team, made up mostly of intermediate and junior players, shows plenty of fight and when the players get more work together they should give all comers a battle.

Officers Elected For Norwood Club

NORWOOD, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual meeting of the Norwood Lawn Bowling Club was held on Friday evening. There was a large turnout of members, and all were looking eagerly forward to a good summer's sport. Considerable work was done on the grounds last autumn, levelling and resurfacing, and they are now in excellent condition. The grass wintered through well, and the greens never looked better at this time of the year.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Dr. N. F. Sutton; 1st vice-president, J. C. Riseborough; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Alexander Kempt; secretary-treasurer, D. B. Cutcliffe; auditor, Walter Bitten; Grounds Committee, P. M. Grover and R. Brennan; Games Committee, Dr. H. G. Carleton and Alexander Kempt.

BRAVES COP 6-5 VICTORY IN 12th INNING

Herr Max Prepares For Sailorman

Max Schmeling next month makes his first ring appearance of the year when he takes on Jack Sharkey, the Boston Gob. Max has an inch edge in height over Jack, who measures exactly six feet, but the sailorman will be about ten pounds heavier than the champion when they climb into the ring. James Joy Jobertson, the promoter, is counting on another million dollar gate but it's hardly likely the figures will even approach the estimate. The last time Sharkey met Max he killed his chances by fouling the German. This time it is unlikely that a foul will mar the bout. Both fighters will wear abdominal protection and, unless there is a knockout, the fans will see the full fight. When Sharkey recently turned the first sod for the new stadium on Long Island he remarked that he was "digging Schmeling's grave." Perhaps!

SOCCER PLAYERS ARE REGISTERED

Postponed Game Between Scots and Packers on Saturday at Three O'clock.

Over forty players were registered last evening with the secretary of the Peterborough and District Football Association in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms. President V. Stewart in the chair and a full attendance of the executive and club representatives.

League Game on Saturday.

It was agreed that the postponed game of last Saturday be played this week-end between Caledonians and Canadian Packers, at three o'clock. Owing to the association not having an official referee, Jack Clark offered his services for the match.

Deloro requested sixteen forms be forwarded to them for registration of players, and announced they would enter the Holloway Injured Players' Cup. They are ready to play at any time and await instructions about their first game, which in all probability will be next Saturday afternoon.

Players Registered.

The Canadian Packers' list is as follows: A. M. Rose, Fred Dyer, Arthur Downer, Frank Nicholls, W. A. Bromley, James Buchan, A. B. Downer, Newton Downer, Thomas Foster, Malcolm Fletcher, Ernest Hakin, Harry Hotson, and George Downer—13 players.

The Caledonians' registration: Ernie Hanson, Thomas McPhate, Archie McPhate, Wilf Rankin, George Clark, Robert Murphy, Thomas S. Craig, Theodore Reid, Andrew B. Colye, Albert H. Frick, D. O. Humphries, A. O'Halloran, and Walter James—14 players.

Canadian General team: Stanley Clark, William Bolam, Ernest W. Cooper, Ben B. McMaster, Leonard Anderson, James Quinn, Rupert C. Lewington, John J. McMaster, Harold Darling, James M. Mitchell, Joe H. Daynes, Robert Clyde, and E. C. Tice—13 players.

Ontario Cup Entry.

All applications for the Dominion championship series must be in the secretary's office no later than May 18. The entry fee is $10.00, which must accompany all entries. In the Ontario Cup the last day is July 1, with $10.00 fee, one-half going to the local association. All preliminary rounds will be drawn in districts.

CENTRAL SCHOOL WINS BY ONE RUN

King George Nine Beaten 8-7 in Tightly Contested Battle.

Central defeated King George, 8 to 7, in an exciting Public School Baseball League game at Central yesterday evening. The issue was very much in doubt until the last man was struck out with the tying run on third in the seventh frame. A big crowd of rooters were divided in their allegiance and made plenty of noise about it all.

The strong King George outfit started out as if they were in for another win, notching one marker in the first, the second and the third innings. In the last of the third, the Centralers broke away and between solid hits and a couple of errors, crossed the platter five times. After the East City nine got one back in the fifth, the winners shoved across three more when Burton weakened on the mound. But the Ashburnham boys came within one of tying it in the sixth, and a had a runner around to third in the seventh, but couldn't make the grade.

Both Burton and Wright turned in some good pitching and each received fair support, the victors playing airtight toward the end. Some fine clouting was seen, including a number of hard extra-base blows for the two teams.

REYNOLDS SLUGS WASHINGTON CLUB TO 3-0 WIN OVER INDIANS

Ninth-Inning Rally Gives Cardinals 7 to 6 Victory Over Dodgers.

REDS-BRAVES WIN.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

It hasn't taken Carl Reynolds long to convince his new employers, the Washington Senators, that they drove a very brisk bargain when they obtained him from the Chicago White Sox in one of the winter's most discussed deals.

The speedy outfielder, who joined the Senators in a trade involving the two veteran pitchers, Sam Jones and Irving Hadley, is in no small measure responsible for the fact that Walter Johnson's outfit is leading its closest American League rivals by three full games to-day.

He is hitting at a .420 clip, the highest average in either league; is second in total hits notwithstanding a late start, and is as brilliant as ever afield. If he holds his present pace, he might easily make the difference between the pennant the Senators want and the third place they won last year.

Reynolds virtually was the whole show offensively as Washington won yesterdays' opener from Cleveland, 3-0. He scored the first run off Wes. Ferrell in the seventh, when he singled, eased his way around to third and went home on an infield out. Tis home run in the next frame with Joe Cronin aboard settled any double of the issue.

Lloyd Brown continued to pitch sparkling ball for the leaders, allowing only four hits and walking three. The victory was Washington's ninth in ten starts.

Games Postponed

Three other American League contests gave way to rain and cold. But the idle Yankees slipped into second place as a result of Cleveland's loss.

The St. Louis Cardinals put on the day's best act in the National League when they scored three times in the last of the ninth to hand the Brooklyn Dodgers their four straight defeat, 7-6. With one away, the champions jumped on old Jack Quinn, Brooklyn relief hurler, for four hits to turn the tide. Jimmy Collins' single, his third hit, scored Sparky Adams with the deciding counter.

Win in Ninth

Something similar was seen at Cincinnati, where the Reds pushed across a run in the ninth to down the Phillies, 4-3, and break up a pitchers' duel between Owen Carroll and Ed. Holley. Wally Gilbert's sharp single brought in his old Brooklyn playmate, Babe Herman, who had doubled. Another ex-Brooklyn player, Ernie Lombardi, also starred at bat for the Reds, with a home run and a triple.

Fritz Knothe's single in the twelfth knocked two runs across, and the Boston Braves staggered out with a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh, their first in five starts in the West. At that, it took three pitchers to put down a pirate rally in the last of the 12th. The bases were full of Pirates when Cantwell finally retired the side.

The Giants were rained out at Chicago.

EIGHT TEAMS IN GIRLS' LEAGUE

Loop Will Run Single Schedules in Two Halves—Entry Fee Raised.

OPENS MAY 25TH.

Eight teams will comprise the Girls' Softball League this year, Keene, Sixth Line, Brintons, Choates, Westclox, C.G.E., Rovers, and Maple Leafs. This was decided at last night's meeting in Duffus'. With a good representation, most of the details were taken care of for the present. The league will open its schedule May 25th.

Following the reading of the minutes, there was much discussion regarding the size of the league. It was finally voted to keep it the same size as last year, giving Maple Leafs the eighth franchise owing to their application last year. The entrance fee will be raised to ten dollars this season, but the new entry, the Leafs, were permitted to join for five dollars. If the league finances warrant it at the end of the year, this entrance fee is to be returned to all teams.

The entrance fees must be in by May 25th. Following the rule of last year, the gate receipts will be split three ways, one for the league and one for each of the teams. The Ladies' Softball Rules will be used. After some argument, Wednesday, May 25th, was set as the opening date of the schedule, which is to be, like last year, single schedules in two halves. The first two teams play off two out of three games for the leadership of each half, and the two finalists play a best three out of five series for the league title. The drawing up of the schedule was left to the executive.

The executive will appoint an umpire-in-chief who, in turn, will appoint the base-umpire for each game. D. Greenwood was appointed caretaker. Regarding transfer of players, it was agreed that no player could be transferred from one team to another without the permission of the two managers affected and the executive. This includes the players on last year's teams.

Each team is allowed fifteen players, all of whom must be signed by June 15th. The games in the East City Bowl will begin on time, at six o'clock until June 15th o'clock (Daylight Saving), and the effect. After that, the city teams will start their games at seven o'clock Daylight Saving), and the country teams will start their games at the Bowl at 7.30 (Daylight Saving). With nothing else coming up, the meeting adjourned.

Wrestling Last Night.

Montreal — Nick Lutze, 202, Venice, Cal., defeated Charles Hansen, 203, Boston, two falls out of three (Lutze first, 33.50, Hansen second 11.15, Lutze third 4.25); Lionel Conacher, 198, Toronto, threw Young Hackenschmidt, 215, New York, 6.10; Billy Bartush, 225, Los Angeles, threw Jack Forsgren, 210, Vancouver, 21.50; Marvin Westenberg, 220, Tacoma, Wash., drew with Raoul Simon, 232, France, 20.00; Frank Judson, 205, Boston, drew with Yvon Robert, 216, Montreal, 20.00.

Wilmington, Del. — Lee Wykoff, 221, St. Louis, threw Jack Patterson, 225, in 30.20; Andy Brown, 202, New York, threw Louis Allaire, 205, Worcester, Mass., 32.16.

Camden, N.J. — John Kilonis, 177, Greece, defeated Speedy Schaeffer, 172, East St. Louis, Ills., two falls out of three (Kilonis first 14.21, Schaeffer second 16.58, Kilonis third 14.35); Alan Eustace, of Kansas, drew with Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N.Y., 45.00; George Zarynoff, Ufania, drew with Leo Numa, of Seattle, 30.00.

PARADERS FINED

HAMILTON—Five men, charged with forming a procession without first securing permission of the chief of police, were convicted and fined in police court yesterday afternoon. The men were held in connection with unemployed demonstrations preceding May Day. A sixth man, Hadley Foster, was allowed to go as there was no evidence that he was connected with the illegal parade.

FLOATING POWER

"Others Make Claims

—but only Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler cars have Floating Power. So I invite you to ride and see for yourself," says Walter P. Chrysler.

RIGHT HERE and now, I challenge the maker of any car to equal the smoothness and riding ease of Floating Power.

I don't care what competition may say or claim, what I demand is proof. The sort of convincing proof that we are giving thousands in Canada this week in these Floating Power Rides.

If you haven't taken a Floating Power Ride I urge you to do so.

You'll come back from that Floating Power Ride a Floating Power enthusiast just as I am.

You won't find Floating Power or get Floating Power results in any other car. For Floating Power is exclusive to four cars — Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler.

Of course, if you went to France you'd find Floating Power there. Because just the other day, we licensed the largest and most progressive automobile manufacturer in Europe to use Floating Power. That's Andre Citroen.

Floating Power must be a revolutionary and desirable achievement or Andre Citroen wouldn't have adopted it. Wouldn't have paid for the right to use it.

You'll Never Forget Your Floating Power Ride! Take It This Week!

TO BE up-to-date in motoring matters, you must know about Floating Power. Everybody is talking about it. You will, too, after enjoying a Floating Power Ride.

For a surprise and a thrill, call on any Plymouth, DeSoto, Dodge or Chrysler dealer and tell him you want a Floating Power Ride. Or, if you prefer, ride with a friend who owns a Floating Power car. Let the car speak for itself.

It's something he wanted in the automobiles he builds. It's something you'll want in the car you drive after your Floating Power Ride.

Every Plymouth, DeSoto, Dodge and Chrysler dealer in Canada is ready to prove that there's no performance to equal Floating Power performance. That any car without Floating Power is out-of-date.

Make him prove it. See for yourself. Accept my invitation, and his, to a Floating Power Ride.

• • • • •

"From all over Canada come reports of thousands who have taken their Floating Power Ride this week. If you haven't shared their delightful experience, I urge you to do so, today. It will be a revelation to you."

CRAW'S TEAM WINS EXAMINER HONORS

Doubt Pin Topplers Beaten by 49 Points in Final Matches.

The championship of The Examiner Bowling League went to Craw's team at Duffus' last night, when the winners of the second half topped the Doubt crew, first half leaders, in the playoffs by 49 points. The bowling of both teams was much below par, Scates being high man with 552 for three games. The losers won the second game, 725 to 687, after losing the first game, 727 to 712. They faded in the last to finish behind, 668 to 596.

Norm Killingbeck's outfit took third place by finishing second in both halves, and Bob Pearse's team captured fourth last night over Stewart Thexton's bowlers. Following are the results of the finals, with the players' totals for three games:

Dummy	498
C. Butcher	503
F. Scates	552
W. Craw	529
Total	2082
Ron. Taylor	532
E. Humpage	465
Roy Taylor	487
R. Doubt	549

Slave Ship, Mudder Of The 1st Order

BALTIMORE, May 10 (C.P.)—If there is a muddy track next Saturday for the renewal of the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico, Slave Ship, Walter M. Jefford's hope will be sure to have heavy backing as well as heavy footing, if he starts.

The black Toney-Light Ship colt proved himself a good mudder yesterday in beating easily four other eligibles for the Maryland classic in the mile and sixteenth Woodberry, over a sloppy track in 1 minute, 48 3-5 seconds.

Tick On, which finished sixth in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, with J. J. Robinson's Lucky Tom arrived at Pimlico yesterday from Louisville, and are almost certain to start Saturday.

Faireno, the Belair stud's eligible, has been declared out of the Preakness and shipped to New York.

Canadian Titular Bouts This Week

TORONTO, May 10.—While every class at the Canadian amateur boxing championship and Olympic trial tournament to be held at Maple Leaf Gardens next Thursday and Friday will be well filled, none will eclipse the lightweight division, entries for which have both quantity and quality. It is expected that that Frankie Genovese, local star, will be a starter, in which case the fans will hope that the draw pits him against Harold Stewart, ace of the Montreal team. Genovese sprang one of the season's surprises when he defeated Stewart by a narrow margin at the Lions' show, and the latter will be after revenge. Montreal officials are stall confident and believe that no boxer in Canada has as good a chance as Stewart to gain a place on the Olympic team.

Six Jump To Safety As Home Takes Fire

TORONTO, May 10. (CP)—Six members of the family of Louis Rich, a tailor, in the downtown district, jumped to safety from an upper story window to the top of a bread truck to escape from their burning home early to-day.

Trapped in the second storey over the tailoring establishment the frantic family screamed for help through the windows. A passing bread-driver heard the call and backed his truck over the curb so that its roof provided a safe landing place for the family.

Nearly two-thirds of the artificial flowers exported into the United States last year came from Germany.

CADDOCK IS MATCHED AGAINST MARCHIONI IN THE SEMI-FINAL

Promoter Jack Corcoran Promises Plenty of Action in Friday's Wrestling Match.

FRANKIE HART RETURNS.

Jack Corcoran, Toronto wrestling promoter, is sparing no effort to expense to make the first of his series of shows at the Brock Street Rink of an outstanding nature. He is securing wrestlers of main bout ability and the feature bout for next Friday's show in which the Mystery Man of wrestling, the Masked Marvel, will meet Abe Kashey, Armenian champion, stand out as one sure to arouse plenty of interest.

On top of the main bout, Corcoran announces a splendid semi-final in which "Babe" Caddock, nephew of Earl Caddock, the former heavyweight champion of the world, will meet Adolpho Marchioni, flashy Italian who has scored some notable victories of late.

Caddock has made rapid progress in wrestling and has risen to stardom in a remarkably quick space of time. He has beaten men heavier and more experienced than himself and has proven so versatile in his attacks that many of the critics refer to him as "the man of a thousand holds". Marchioni, like Caddock, is exceptional fast and clever and their bout should be a splendid exhibition of the mat sport. They are not likely to be as rough in their methods as the Masked Marvel and Kashey but they can be depended upon to produce some spirited grappling, especially as the winner has been promised a main bout in the near future.

Frankie Hart, the "Flying Dutchman," who made a favorable impression here last year, will be on the program in the preliminary.

The main bout is a finish match to be decided by the best two out of three falls with a two hour limit. The semi-final will go forty-five minutes unless decided by a fall and the opener thirty minutes.

Colorful Wrestler

FRANKIE HART

spectacular member of the wrestling game who will perform in the preliminary of the Corcoran mat show here on Friday night of this week. Hart wrestled here on several occasions last Autumn and was a great fan pleaser.

Popular Promoter

JACK CORCORAN

The popular Jack Corcoron, professional boxing and wrestling promoter of the Queensbury Club, Toronto, who will promote a series of important bouts in Peterborough this summer. Corcoran, sometimes known as the "Tex Rickard of wrestling" has made a name for himself with his outstanding matches in the Maple Leafs Arena, and his decision to use Peterborough with Ottawa as the only cities in Eastern Ontario for his shows has occasioned considerable surprise in athletic circles.

LEAFS-CANADIENS PLAY IN NEW YORK

Canadian Teams Introducing Box Lacrosse to Gotham Fandom.

NEW YORK, May 10. (C.P.) Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens—familiar names to New Yorkers in the winter season—are in town to-day, but they are not hockey clubs. The two teams, members of the International professional lacrosse league, will introduce box lacrosse to Manhattan in Madison Square Garden to-night.

The game will be an exhibition affair only in the sense that it puts its speed, dexterity and ruggedness on display for New York fandom. The game counts in the league standing and is expected to draw a large crowd. Mayor Walker will give an official start to the contest.

The game is being played for the benefit of two New York charities—the Cardinal clinic of New York university and the Institute for Crippled and Disabled. Each organization will adopt one of the clubs and root for it accordingly.

According to present plans, to-night's game will be the only indoor contest of the season in New York. Col. John S. Hammond, vice-president of the Madison Square Garden Corp. and president of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, will be on hand with representatives of other teams in the N.H.L., and if the game proves popular the Ranger leader will attempt to gather a team to represent New York in league competition next season.

The Leafs and Canadiens held a light workout in the Garden after their arrival yesterday.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"LADY WITH A PAST"

Although the title is suggestive, the talkie is very innocuous. The picture stars the lovely Constance in a role utterly foreign to her type, that of a backward, shy girl who is a flop socially and who hires a gigolo to show her the way around. Ben Lyon has the part of the gigolo, Guy Bryson, a young American stranded in Paris who takes a large interest in the pretty blonde rich girl, lonely and lacking a compass. David Manners is the good-looking Don Wainwright and the supporting cast, largely made up of men, is quit satisfactory.

"Lady With A Past" pictures the woes of a girl who wants to be a success and secures romance, and doesn't quite know how to do it. She learns from Guy, who manufactures an interesting past to give her an aura in the eyes of her gentlemen friends. The atmosphere is somewhat satirical.

Constance Bennett is always a good actress, even with a very unsympathetic role, and she wears gorgeous and striking gowns. She has the odd name of Venice Muir and does some rather feebly wise-cracking, most of the time.

The comedy relates the woes of a pair of prize-fighters of the ham variety and there are some very interesting short reels of current events.—Jeanette.

CASUAL COMMENT

Girls' softball here is shaping up pretty well now. There's practically nothing to be done now but get the grounds in shape. The executive will draw up a schedule shortly and appoint an umpire. And in the meantime, most of the girls' teams are pretty well organized and getting in some practice. They go to the post May 25th.

• • • • • • •

There'll be eight outfits in again this season, although it looked as if two others would join as well. The Auburns of last year dropped out and that left seven. Three others applied, Maple Leafs, My Valet and Lakefield. After thorough discussion, it was decided that with so many in, the league would be unwieldy and the schedule liable to run until snow fell, or something.

• • • • • • •

Lakefield was voted out because of the distance from there to Keene and Lang, home of the Sixth Liners. And My Valet was discarded as they were not a sure entry anyway, at this time. That left just the Maple Leafs of the newcomers, and as they had tried to get in last year, they were admitted this season.

• • • • • • •

The entrance fee was increased five berries, but this will be returned at the end of the season if the league can spare it, which is very likely. Meanwhile, the teams will get a third of each gate, which is what we'd call plenty liberal. This is the only league in the city that treats the teams so generously. The large crowds that attend the gals' fixtures makes it possible.

• • • • • • •

The grounds should be in good shape by May 25th, which is just two weeks from tomorrow, and the campaign can get under way once more. One thing noticeable, is that the grounds will be considerably larger, having been filled in around the outfield. Not so many homers probably, hence fewer chocolates which aren't so good for athletes anyway.

• • • • • • •

The transfer idea settled last night is sound and protects the different teams. No player can change teams without getting the two managers affected and the executive of the league to agree to it. If a player refuses to play for one team and cannot get permission, she's out of luck for the year.

• • • • • • •

Sugar Bowl and Red and White Stores in the Men's Softball League are nearly set already, while Bert Deck's team, including many of last year's Westclox stars, is being organized rapidly. The Examiner and All Saints' have their players lined up, but need some workouts yet, but both C.G.E. and C.N.R. are dark horses so far, not much being heard of their proposed personnel. The Stars have some three dozen players trying for berths and should be strong.

• • • • • • •

Fred Hickey topped the Marathon bowlers in the Duffus competitions last week with a total of 2,420, which is 242 per game, and not bad rolling at all. J. Brady was next with 2,383, and L. Magill of Oshawa third with a 2,351. The next five were: Harold Freeman 2340, H. Delahaye 2,289, Bert Duffus 2,251, Fred Scates 2,229, and Bill Prindible 2,228. Quite a number took part in the Marathon contests.

• • • • • • •

The fast King George School got it in the ear from Central last night, being on the short end of an 8-7 count after seven close innings. Some of the grown-up fans present did a lot of squawking at decisions regarding rules which they obviously didn't know anything about. Infield fly rulings, balk decisions, and batting out of order protests got the umps some criticism which was absurd.

• • • • • • •

We'd like to see more interest taken at this time in the City Baseball League. Several more teams are needed to round it out properly. While the seniors have promised to assist this league where possible, some local club might back an entry as in hockey and the boys would be learning the game under the best of circumstances. It requires more time than it does money to run a good City League team.

• • • • • • •

Frank Hart, popular flying Dutchman, will be back here again on Friday against the bulky Art Dick, he of the hairy chest. This pair grapple in one of the prelims on the pro card at the Brock. Babe Caddock tangles with Adolpho Marchioni in another, while Abe Kashey will attempt to pull the Masked Marvel from under his disguise in the main bit of mayhem. Just like old times, what?

Practices

MAPLE LEAF JUVENILES

The Maple Leaf Juveniles will practise at six this evening at James Stevenson Park, and all players are asked to be on hand.

RED AND WHITE STORES

The Red and White Stores softball team will work out at Central tomorrow evening at 6.15, and every player should be present.

SOFTBALL NOTES

SOUTH END LEAGUE

All managers connected with the South End Softball League are requested to attend a meeting tonight, May 10, at eight o'clock at the home of M. Chapman, 77 Park Hill Road.

Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT WILL BE REPEATED

Performance Will Be Held on Friday, May 20th in Collegiate Institute Hall.

At the meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association, held Monday afternoon it was unanimously decided to grant repeated requests for a second performance of the gymnasium Pageant. This will be held Friday, May 20 in the Collegiate Institute Hall. There will also be a musical program and a request has been sent to Mrs. N. W. Rowell of Toronto to speak that evening as well as at the annual meeting of the Association, which will be an afternoon meeting for regular business and reports, to which all member and friends are welcome.

The splendid audience which packed every seat of the Opera House for the Gymnasium Pageant has been most enthusiastic and appreciative of the wonderful exhibition of class work and the dainty charm, pretty dances and costumes of the ballet, Mother Goose Gone Modern, and many congratulations have been paid Miss Littlefield and the Association on this year's Pageant, which the audience claimed the best yet. The many who were turned away, others who could not attend the first performance of the Pageant, and those who have expressed a wish to see it again will mean a large audience for this special repeat performance of the Pageant, which will be enhanced by being combined with music of song.

The price of this entertainment will be 25c, and tickets may be obtained from "Y" members or at the Association. It is suggested that people secure tickets early as only a limited number will be available.

Financial Reports

The financial reports read by the treasurer, Miss Morrow, were encouraging in that the deficit had been considerably reduced from the previous month. The Board regrets that this year the Association will have to close with a deficit, but feel that the extra work which the Association has been able to render during the past year justifies this expense. A very carefully prepared budget is being drawn up by the various committees for this year, and it is hoped next year's income will provide for all necessities and some needed repairs. A letter from Mrs. P. Foster of the National Y.W.C.A., was read congratulating the Association on its splendid work during the year.

Mrs. Somerville was appointed representative to the Local Council of Women, and Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, and Mrs. H. Wightman, and staff members and others will represent the Association at the National Y.W.C.A. Conference, the end of May, in Toronto.

The general secretary's report included business arrangements in connection with the Pageant and opening of the pool, regular education classes and club programs, co-operation with Girls' Work Board in promoting the C.G.I.T. Conference, Bowling Banquet, 60 calls through the employment bureau, and personal help given to many.

The physical director reported 28 extra practises in connection with the Pageant; thirty leaders helped the night of the performance, and the Peter Robinson Chapter very kindly ushered. The making of the costumes was in charge of groups of ladies from the various churches. Special swimming parties have been arranged so that all gymnasium pupils might enjoy a free swim in the pool.

The meeting closed with prayer by the president, Mrs. E. E. Harvey.

TWO REMANDED ON CHARGE OF ARSON

Frank Forest and Wife on $15,000 Bail.

LINDSAY, May 10.—Frank Forest and his wife Dorothy, of Bobcaygeon, were further remanded by Police Magistrate Jordan today on the charge of arson. This charge was laid by Provincial Constable Nelson in connection with a fire in the village on April 27. Mr. Forrest is out on $5,000 bail and Mrs. Forest on $10,000.

Farmers on the outskirts of the town are complaining of the practice of amorous youths and maidens who use their laneways for parking spaces. Several have decided to lay trespass charges.

The funeral took place today of a former resident of Emily Township in the person of William Lewis, who passed away in Guelph on Friday last in his sixty-second year. The deceased, who was born in Wales, resided at Dunsford for forty-five years, before moving to Guelph. Two brothers, David, of Smith township, and Isaac of Peterborough, survive, as well as five sisters. In religion deceased was a member of United Church.

In spite of representations made by the Federal member as well as resident of the north country, the C.N.R. authorities will not restore the daily train service on the Haliburton as well as Coboconk lines. It is pointed out that the curtailment of service on both branches is in keeping with the policy of the management curtail in service wherever possible and cut out unnecessary operating expenses to the minimum. The drastic change in service has naturally resulted in the cutting down of train crews.

WYSONG GOES TO WINGS

CINCINNATI, May 10 (C.P.)—Cincinnati Reds pitcher, has been released to the Rochester club of the International League in part payment for the return of Benny Frey, whom the Cardinals obtained in the trade which brought Chick Hafey here.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MAN COYOTE COMES ALONG.

B'lieve not in chance, but ready be
To profit by the things you see
—Old Man Coyote.

Old Man Coyote had left his home far up in the Old Pasture for a visit to the Green Forest. It seemed to him that just now his chances of getting a good dinner were better there than elsewhere. He had been one of those who had visited the pond of Paddy the Beaver while Honker the Goose and his flock were there. He believes that opportunity comes only to those who are looking for it. He had no real expectations of catching one of those Geese, but he knew that he certainly could not catch one if he kept away from where they were. Besides, he rather liked to visit Paddy's pond. There was no knowing who might appear there. Just shortly before the arrival of the Geese he had all but caught Jerry Muskrat at the end of Paddy's dam and would have but for Paddy's warning to Jerry.

"It is all very well to plan carefully and I believe in so doing when I have something definite to plan for, but I have found that I get just as much by wandering about and being in the right place at the right time without planning it at all," said Old Man Coyote as he trotted along through the Green Forest, turning aside to sniff here and again to sniff there, and stopping often to look, listen and smell.

It was while he was standing still listening that he heard in the distance a sound that caused him to prick up his ears and listen intently.

"Now what can that be?" he muttered. "It sounds as if someone is throwing a lot of stones about over near the Laughing Brook. I wonder if Farmer Brown's Boy is over there and if that is what he is about. I can think of no one else who would be likely or able to roll big stones about like that. Anyway, it will cost nothing to find out."

So Old Man Coyote headed for the place from which those sounds were coming, and he was very careful to work around so as to have the wind in his face. He knew that his nose would be the first to tell him who was there. At the same time his own scent would be carried away. The noise grew louder and Old Man Coyote grew more and more puzzled. Then with the noise of rolling stones he heard a loud "woof! woof!" At the same time a Merry Little Breeze brought him a scent he couldn't fail to recognize.

"Buster Bear!" he exclaimed under his breath. "Now what can that black rascal be doing?"

He crept nearer until at last he was where he could see Buster and that pile of stones. Buster was digging among them and working hard. Now and then he would loosen a big stone and pull it out of the way.

"There is someone down in there," thought Old Man Coyote. "I suppose it is a Mouse. Buster will do a lot of work to catch one little Mouse, but I seldom see him trying for any one else. Well, a fat Mouse would be a tasty bit for me just now. I'll just be ready in case one runs out."

Just then Jerry Muskrat ran out, hesitated and ran back. He hadn't quite dared make a dash for the Laughing Brook.

"So ho!" exclaimed Old Man Coyote under his breath. "It is Jerry that Buster is after. I wonder if he will have the patience to keep on trying to pull that pile apart and drive Jerry out. Buster's patience seldom does hold out long. He can start more things and not finish them than anybody of my acquaintance. He is getting tired of it now. I'll just step out and see what he has to say."

So Old Man Coyote stepped out and grinned at Buster Bear. "You seem to be working hard," said he.

"I am," replied Buster Bear with a grunt as he pulled over a stone. "I don't know what I am doing it for, I really don't. Nice spring weather, isn't it?"

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

Id May 10th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8:25 a.m., and from5 p. m. to 7 p.m.

Cross currents will be at work on May 10th. These will have the effect of nullifying, to a considerable extent, efforts, that at the time of initiation seemed to be full of hope and assured success. In order to convert defeat into victory, it will be necessary for you to be able to make swift decisions, and act on them.

Children born on this May 10th will have impatient minds and will quickly forge ahead of the usual school curriculum. They will show business aptitude, a proper regard for money, and an eagerness to take part in affairs of the world. They will have cheerful dispositions, but will not be temperless.

Born on May 10th you are a useful member of society—intelligent, industrious and independent. You do your small part to help the world forward, and are never one of the weaker links in any chain. You seem to belong to a heroic age, and most people find you in "that tower of strength which stands four square to all winds that blow." You love complicated situations, and your spirit is always hungry for excitement. You are always capable of creating a stir and bustle out of lethargy and calm. You are not, however, a trouble maker, and always make certain that you are within your rights and not offending any personal susceptibilities.

Your personality is as charming as it is forceful, and you use as much tact as elbow in fighting your way through to any success. You prove that in most games of life, the race is to the swift and the battle to the ingenuous. You snatch your opportunities whilst others are still thinking about them, and you have the brains to make good use of all materials in hand.

You are a guider of talk rather than a talker, and it is remarkable how you bring other people out of their shell and appear interesting. You can put the most humble or the most exalted being quickly at their ease. You are charitable, tolerant minded, sympathetic, generous and affectionate.

MARMORA SEES FRANKFORD PLAY

Three Act Musical Comedy, "Gypsy Rah," Draws Splendid Crowd.

MARMORA, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence).—Playgoers have seldom experienced such a treat in Marmora as afforded them on Friday evening when, at the town hall, Trinity Young People's Association of Frankford presented the three-act musical comedy, "Gypsy Rob," with outstanding ability. The play is built around the character of Rob, an English nobleman's son, who has been stolen, when an infant, by Meg, his nurse, who later becomes the wife of Marto, a gypsy. As Rob grows up he meets Lady Constance Martindale as she is lost in the woods. They fall in love eventually. After two years, Rob comes into rightful possession of estates and then is able to return to Constance and win her as his bride. The play has a beautiful musical setting and a well-trained cast and chorus almost lift it into the realms of professionalism. Hearty applause was accorded the play throughout by the large audience present.

It was presented under auspices of St. Paul's A.Y.A., who later entertained the cast and accompanying friends in the parish hall with an enjoyable dance and lunch.

The Cast.

The cast of characters was: Meg, Rob's foster-mother, Mrs. E. C. Ketcheson; Zara, the belle of the camp, Eva Harrison; Marto, Meg's husband, William Corfield; Sinfo, Zara's gypsy lover, Lorne Green; Rob, the gypsy rover, Arthur Harrison; Lady Constance Martindale, Aileen Green; Lord Craven, an English fop, William Simmons; Sir George Martindale, William Slater; Nina, Sir George's second daughter, Ida Embury; Captain Jerome, captain in English army, Jack Rodgers; Sir Toby Lyon, society butterfly, William Simmons; Mr. Corkle, London song publisher, Ed. Ketcheson.

Chorus.—Girls: Eleanor Mae Rostie, Aileen MacLaren, Jessie Dickson, Helen Embury, Annie Kellar, Gladys Ketcheson, Ida Embury. Boys: Carl Walker, Ed. Ketcheson, George Brown, Jack Rodgers, George Ketcheson.

The accompanists were: Piano, Doris Ketcheson; violin, Cecil G. Smith.

The Rev. B. F. Byers, of Stirling, who was present, made a short speech in the course of the evening. This was the fourth presentation of the play and it will visit several other places in the course of the next few weeks, including Belleville.

CLIMBING GLACIER

SEWARD, Alaska.—Trappers of Unimak Island report the Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, glacier priest and two of his students are fighting their way up the treacherous slopes of Mount Shishaldin, a volcano active two months.

Recent rains melted snow on the slopes and turbulent streams handicapped the explorer's party. The main camp is established at the base of the mountain.

TWO CHURCHES IN LAKEFIELD ARE TO UNITE

Peterborough Presbytery Completes Arrangements at Meeting.

PRESBYTERY MEETING.

Delegates Appointed to General Council and Quinte Conference.

Arrangements were completed at a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church, held in George Street United Church yesterday, for the amalgamation of Knox Church and Regent Street Church in Lakefield. Rev. W. R. Archer will remain as minister of the united congregations, who will worship in the Regent Street Church.

A committee was appointed to confer with the two churches in the outside area, Young's Point and Wesley, which have hitherto been under the jurisdiction of the two Lakefield churches.

Rev. T. M. Wesley of Lakefield and E. C. Squire of Norwood were appointed to represent the Presbytery at the General Council to be held in Hamilton next autumn.

Bridgenorth, W. A. Sidey; Cavan, W. A. Finley; Fraserville, John Porter; Lakehurst, William Thompson; Westwood, G. A. Humphrey; Havelock, B. Smith, K. Waters; Keene, David Austin; Lakefield, E. A. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard presided.

HERBERT TRENEER SPEAKS AT MADOC

Organist Gives Address on Work of Canadian Institute for Blind.

MADOC, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Friday evening in the United Church, the organ recital and illustrated address given by Herbert Treneer, late organist of King Street United Church, Oshawa was fairly well attended, and all were much pleased with the excellent program offered of instrumental and vocal music, while the address on the work done by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was very interesting and most instructive.

Rev. G. W. Rivers of Trinity United Church was the chairman of the evening and Gray Rivers superintended the operating of the lantern for the pictures. Mr. Treneer gave several beautiful pipe organ selections, and among others a vocal selection, "Open the Gates of the Temple." At the piano after playing the "Polish National Dance" he played and sang, "Old King Cole," for the boys and girls. He delighted all by his "Carmencita," and "Tommy Lad," while his numbers, "Valse Chromatic," and "Barcarolle," were much enjoyed.

Mr. Treneer extended his thanks to the Women's Institute for sponsoring the concert, and to the girls of the Junior Institute who sold tickets, to Trinity United Church officials for the use of the church, and to Rev. Mr. Rivers for his valuable help and assistance, and to the Presbyterian Church for the use of the lantern, also to Gray Rivers, who so ably operated the slides during the lecture, and to all others who assisted in any way to make the lecture a success.

Young Alligator Is Shipped From Florida To Ross Dobbin, Manager Of The Utilities

When Ross L. Dobbin, manager of Peterborough Utilities Commission opened a package recently received by registered mail from Florida, it is a safe guess that he had to pinch himself to make sure that he was not dreaming. It must surely have been one of the strangest mail consignments ever to pass through the local post office.

Guess what it was? Do you give up?

Well, believe it or not; it was a three-months-old baby alligator, measuring a little over a foot from stem to stern. It lies listlessly, as is the nature of such things, in the depths of a large cardboard carton at the Utilities offices, while its new found owner is wondering just what to do about it.

As soon as the weather gets a little warmer, Mr. Dobbin contemplates placing the little reptile in the sparkling waters that overflow from the illuminated fountain at the waterworks.

The label on the cigar box, in which the alligator made his long trip from the south bears the following information and instructions: "From the Alligator Farm, Lantana, Florida—Live Alligator. Keep away from steam pipes, extreme heat, draughts or cold—Buyer: feed raw meat or fish, twice a week."

Mr. Dobbin's strange present was sent through the instrumentality of an acquaintance whom he met while on a recent trip to the south.

OUTLINES RULES FOR HAPPINESS

Dr. A. J. Madill Addresses Murray Street Young People.

HAVE DEFINITE GOAL.

Dr. A. J. Madill was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the B.Y.P.U. of Murray street Church last evening, taking as his subject happiness and bringing many interesting and helpful thoughts to his listeners.

Four rules for happiness as given by Dr. Madill were, activity; fraternity, admiration and sacrifice. "We are never so happy as when occupied, especially when we are doing some good work. We must have good feeling toward our fellowmen, one school conveyed the idea when they took as their theme 'Do the best you can and rejoice with those who do better.' We will be more happy if we have the gift of admiring the beauties of God's handiwork, and believing in the statement, there is more pleasure in giving than receiving."

Added to these Dr. Madill suggested an aim or definite goal in life and we would find ourselves more happy while striving for it.

Walter Cocks presided for the meeting last evening in the absence of the president, James Mann. An invitation was accepted from B. Y. P. U. of Port Hope to visit them on June 13.

Two Youths Given Suspended Sentence

George Wallbridge, of Belmont Township, and Roland Miles, of Dummer Township, who entered pleas of guilty to two charges of theft, were granted suspended sentence to-day by Police Magistrate Langley. Both were arrested late Thursday night by Provincial Constables D. Silvester and W. Warren, following the theft of two tires and and rims from the garage of G. E. Childs and gasoline from R. J. Covert's service station. They earned the leniency of the court owing to the fact that it was their first offence and because of their straightened financial circumstance.

The two Port Hope youths, who were remanded yesterday on a charge of vagrancy, changed their pleas to-day to guilty, they promised to leave the city immediately if freed and under such promise were ordered from the court room

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

At sight of the true Tarzan, Esteban, his heart cold with terror, fled blindly through the jungle. His one thought was to put as much distance as possible between himself and the ape-man. Through dense thickets of thorn he forced his way, thorns that tore at his flesh. Yet he clung to his leopard skin and the sack of diamonds. Presently he heard the sound of a great body moving toward him and saw the baleful glare of two yellow-green eyes.

With a despairing cry of terror the Spaniard relinquished his hold on the leopard skin, which had again caught on the dense bramble, wheeled and dived into the river. A strong swimmer, he struck boldly down stream. Upon the bank, Jad-bal-ja looked down upon the widening circles of water, then turned and sniffed at the hide the Spaniard had been forced to leave behind. He grasped it in his jaws, tore it from the thorns and carried it back to lay at the feet of Tarzan.

When Esteban came to the surface he found himself near a fallen tree which was floating down stream. He managed to get astride it, thanking his stars he still had the sack of diamonds. All night he drifted with the current, seeing no signs of life until shortly after daybreak he passed a native village on the shore. It was the village of Obebe, the cannibal. At sight of the white giant on the floating tree there arose a great hue and cry among the natives.

"It is the river devil," said the old witch doctor. "Now shall we catch many fish." "It is NOT the river devil," rumbled the deep voice of Obebe, the cannibal. "You are getting old. Besides, your medicine has been poor stuff lately and now you tell me that is the river devil. That is Tarzan of the Apes. I know him well." And indeed every cannibal chief in the vicinity had cause to know and fear Tarzan, for relentless was the ape-man's war upon them.

APPEAL FOR CANADIAN RELIEF FUND

Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman has consented to make a short appeal for the Canadian Legion Relief Fund at the sacred program to be given by "The Madrigal Singers" on Wednesday evening in Trinity Church.

The musicians who are generously donating their talent for this occasion are hoping that the public will show its appreciation of a most beautiful program by a very liberal response to this appeal.

The music will be inspiring and beautiful, and the public is advised to be in Trinity church in good time on Wednesday evening.

Obituary

MRS. L. E. PALMQUIST.

The death occurred yesterday in Kansas City, Mo., of Mrs. L. E. Palmquist, formerly Miss Helen Wiskin, of Peterborough, and whose mother, now Mrs. W. Sawyer, of Kansas City, was formerly Miss Carrie Doupe of Peterborough.

Mrs. Palmquist's father, the late J. Wiskin, was killed in action in France on May 9th, 1917, the same date on which his daughter passed away. He went overseas with the old 93rd Battalion.

Mrs. Palmquist, who was twenty-two years old, is survived by her husband, two children, a boy of four and a girl of two years of age, also two sisters, Mrs. R. Laughlin of El Paso, Texas, and Miss Kathleen Wiskin of Kansas City.

HENRY WILCOX CRAWFORD.

The funeral was held at Uxbridge this afternoon of Henry Wilcox Crawford, of Toronto, who died on Sunday in this city, at the age of 77 years.

Mr. Crawford was a native of Newmarket, Ontario. He had resided in Peterborough for about five months, having formerly lived at Toronto.

Predeceased by his wife over nine years ago, he is survived by two sons, Charles of Langstaff, Louis of Craighead Avenue, Toronto, and seven daughters: Mrs. H. H. May and Mrs. Coombe of Peterborough, Mrs. J. Marr, Mrs. F. DeMeo and Hazel of Toronto, and Mrs. W. Dymond and Mrs. J. Frewin of Lansing, Ontario.

SUITE CHANGES MADE BY C.N.R.

Manion Explains Alterations in Bennett's Chateau Laurier Apartment.

WISHED TO KEEP GUEST.

OTTAWA, May 10.—(CP)— The administration of the Canadian National Railways assumed all responsibility for the alterations to the suite occupied by Premier Bennett at the Chateau Laurier, the House of Commons committee on Railways and Shipping was told today. Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, brought up the matter in response to a request some time ago from Arthur L. Beaubien (Lib. Provencher).

Dr. Manion had discussed it with Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. R. he said, in view of the fact that money for such alterations was included in capital expenditure. He did not think any preliminary suppositions should go out in connection with the matter.

On Jan. 2, 1931, Sir Henry had written him, Dr. Manion said, setting forth the railways' responsibility. He had thought for some considerable time that the suite, occupied then by Mr. Bennett when leader of the Opposition, should be improved.

Important Guest

After the 1930 election some discussion had arisen about the Prime Minister securing a residence in the capital. But the Chateau did not wish to lose so important a guest. That was a viewpoint which no one could criticise, Dr. Manion said.

The presence of the Prime Minister enhanced the prestige of the hotel. Should he decide to go elsewhere there would be no difficulty, Sir Henry had said, in renting the suite to one of the foreign diplomatic officials in Ottawa. The accommodation would not in any sense be wasted.

Dr. Manion declared that if this matter was to be discussed by the committee the Prime Minister desired to be present. The committee, however, did not wish to pursue the question further.

SPARKS FLY AS THE EXPENSES

morale; well, then, that morale needs some correction," Mr. Chaplin retorted.

The matter developed when R. B. Hanson (Cons., York-Sunbury) recalled that the sub-committee named to make this enquiry had presented a memorandum to the committee on April 20, asking that certain specific information be given. Sir Henry Thornton had declared it was not considered in the interest of the railways that this should be given, and he objected to it. The matter would have to be determined by the committee.

Mr. Hanson recalled that the 1930 accounts contained items of two million dollars approximately for the travelling and entertainment expenses of officials. In 1931, this gross had been reduced by $300,000, with the prospect of a further reduction of $750,000 this year. A new system of audit had been established by the board of directors to take care of this matter. In view of that, Mr. Hanson suggested that the matter be left to the executive committee of the board of directors so that the whole item of expenditures may be placed on a proper footing.

Not in Interests of C.N.R.

Mr. Euler did not believe this to be in the interest of the railways, nor did he see what good could come of discussing the matter in committee. He had always contended that such details were best left with the directorate and that the committee should not attempt to duplicate that work.

"I believe that much of what has taken place has resulted in destroying a certain measure of confidence in the Canadian National Railways and their officials," Mr. Euler said. "The injury has been greater than if this had been transferred to the proper authority—the board of directors of the C.N.R."

Dr. McGibbon was insistent on his request for the production of the information.

Mr. Euler can take any stand he wishes; but he is not going to dictate the stand I am to take in the interests of the taxpayers of this country," said Dr. McGibbon. He added that improvements in the expense accounts had taken place since that matter had been ventilated before the committee last year.

"We went down to Montreal and found there was practically no check on the higher officials," Dr. McGibbon said.

If anything arose that should not be made public, then the chairman should clear the room of all except members of the committee, suggested Mr. Chaplin.

Not Proper Examination

The limited time at the disposal of the sub-committee could not have enabled them to make a proper examination of the expense accounts Mr. Euler asserted. The practice of all large corporations was to deal with these matters through a sub-committee of the directorate Since the C.N.R. board was already enquiring into this, and since an analysis of the expense accounts of ten or twelve of the higher officials would result only in impairment of the morale of the railways, he thought Dr. McGibbon's report on the sub-committee's investigations should be presented to the directors.

That, contended Dr. McGibbon, was a new departure from parliamentary government—that information regarding railway officials should be withheld from members of the house. The directors had no time to deal with these matters within the time at their disposal for board meetings. As a practising surgeon he had found that it was frequently necessary to cut deep in order to save the patient.

"I say without hesitation there were some startling things disclosed" he declared, referring to his enquiry in Montreal. He had the right to know what was being done, and he refused to surrender that right.

"You sent us down there to get the information" he said, "do you want it? This committee is not doing any good by smothering it. The people want a frank, free statement of the affairs of this railway. They were never as much roused over it as they are now in these matters. We got this information for the committee and the committee can decide what they want to do with it.

"If this thing had been investigated four or five years ago this country would have been saved a lot of money. The railways at the top have been allowed to run wild" added Dr. McGibbon. "The system in the past has been simply awful."

Honesty and open display of the facts would get further with the public than anything else. If the committee did not want the information then it would have to stand the censure of the taxpayers of the country.

Mr. Euler moved an amendment that the information secured by Dr. McGibbon be referred to the C.N.R. directors for necessary action. This amendment was defeated on a vote by 8-9, and Dr. McGibbon's motion was carried by the same vote.

Widening the scope of the investigation, the committee called for the expense accounts of the C.N.R. directors for 1930.

tion when they made their calls of congratulation.

In Politics 60 Years.

M. Lebrun, 60 years of age, is an old friend of Raymond Poincare, former President and former Premier, statesman and financial expert, and probably the greatest public figure remaining in France. During Lebrun's 30 years in politics, he has frequently been Poincare's choice, and he was Poincare's choice for the Presidency.

Since 1900, when he was first elected to the Chamber of Deputies, M. Lebrun has had an active political career. His greatest achievement has been his leadership of the sinking fund commission. Poincare placed Lebrun at the head of the commission, and that institution for reducing the national debt was Poincare's favorite child.

Bromley Asks Japan Permission To Land

TOKYO, May 10 (A.P.) — The Ministry of Communications received a request to-day from Harold Bromley, United States flier who made an unsuccessful attempt to fly the Pacific from Seattle in 1930, asking permission to land in Japan on another flight which he plans this month.

The application said Bromley plans to take off from Seattle about May 20 in a monoplane.

Officials indicated the permission would be granted.

STEAMSHIP LINE CZAR

PARIS.—The Paris edition of The Chicago Tribune said to-day a proposal to appoint Emil Lederer of New York, director of the Hamburg-American Line, as "Czar" of the trans-Atlantic passenger service would be discussed to-day at a meeting of representatives of trans-Atlantic steamship lines here.

FARFELLOW.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Sadie H. Farfellow, who entered into rest May 10th, 1931.

"We often sit and think of you,
And think of how you died;
To think you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.
The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for you who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away."

IN MEMORIAM.

WINTERS.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mr L. Winters, of Ennismore, who departed this life May 7, 1930.

"We loved her, yes, we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more,
And He has safely called her
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were open,
And a gentle voice said come;
With farewell words unspoken,
She calmly entered home."

EIGHT ARRESTED FOR SMUGGLING

Ring Believed to Have Brought Goods Worth $1,000,000 Into Canada.

DURING LAST 6 YEARS.

MONTREAL, May 11 (C.P.) — Eight men were arrested here today in connection with smuggling silk goods, said to be valued at a million dollars, into Canada during the last six years. The men will appear before Judge Tetreault in Arraignment Court late to-day on a charge of conspiracy to bring smuggled goods into Canada to the value of over $200 during a period extending from July, 1926, to the present time. While the value of the silk alleged to have been smuggled by the men is only placed at over $200, it is understood that Federal agents believe that the value is between $800,000 and $1,000,000.

The men arested were Julius Levine, an ex-alderman, Julius Cohen, L. Harry Simon, Max Finglestein, Myer Cranisky, Isadore Jacobs, Louis Miller and Charles Feigenbaum. Another man, Harry Cohen, who is at present in hospital, will be arrested when he recovers, a warrant having been issued.

The arest of the eight men by Federal agents under Isaie Sevard, recently appointed inspector of the Investigation Branch of the Customs Department, caused a postponement of the enquete into a charge of conspiracy to smuggle against Feingenbaum which had previously been laid.

RUINS OF SODOM AND GOMORRAH FOUND ON SHORES OF DEAD SEA

Traces of Violent Conflagrations Uphold Biblical Story of Cities' Destruction.

DATED 2500 TO 2100 B.C.

LONDON, May 11. (A.P.)— The Biblical story of the destruction of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah by fire and brimstone is believed by Father Alexis Mallon, Jesuit archaeologist of the Pontifical Biblical Institute at Rome to be confirmed by archaeological discoveries on the site of the two towns.

Father Mallon, who with Father Robert Koeppel, has spent three years excavating on the north shore of the Dead Sea in Palestine said their investigation has shown that the two cities were contemporary and existed from before 2500 B.C. to not later than 2100 B.C. at the latter date, he said, both had been destroyed by fire and never were reoccupied.

Traces of violent conflagrations were found in the ruins, he said, including layers of ashes. He added that on the plain below the hill on which the cities stood there was a curious rock formation, about five feet high which legend associates with Lot's wife, who, according to the Biblical story was turned into a pillar of salt at the time the towns were destroyed.

Find Three Cities

The excavators penetrated 26 feet and dug through three cities.

LLOYD GEORGE MISSED DEATH WITH KITCHENER

Had Arranged to Go to Russia in 1916 on Ill-fated Cruiser Hampshire.

TOLD BY BEAVERBROOK.

Welsh Wizard Saved by Asquith's Appeal to Handle Irish Settlement Deal.

By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer

LONDON, May 11—David Lloyd George, who was then minister for war, had actually arranged to go with Lord Kitchener to Russia in the ill-fated cruiser Hampshire in 1916.

This is revealed today in the second volume of Lord Beaverbrook's "Politicians and the War." Lloyd George was prevented from going, and from sharing the fate of Kitchener, only by the projected Irish settlement and Prime Minister Asquith's appeal to him to handle the negotiations.

Lloyd George

The volume by the Canadian-born peer and newspaper executive who was the Canadian government's representative at the front in 1916, is vividly interesting to those who were acquainted with the political crisis of 16 years ago.

Intense Situation

The domestic political situation, at that time, was as intense as the similtaneous hazard of the war. Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, the Canadian statesman who was later Prime Minister of Britain, gradually saw the necessity for a drastic change.

Lord Beaverbrook describes Bonar Law of whom he was a close friend, as a "self-effacing man who under-estimated his own talents and was willing to let the credit for his own actions go to other." Asquith, he recalls, who was one of the pall-bearers at Bonor Law's funeral, remarked on leaving Westminster Abbey: "It is fitting that we should have buried the unkown premier next to the unkown warrior."

Of Lloyd George, Bonor-Law is reported saying to Asquith: "You know as well as I do both his qualities and his defects. He has many qualities that would fit him for the first place, but he lacks the one thing needful—he does not inspire trust."

Lord Beaverbrook declares Lloyd George showed no eagerness to have the premiership—which he accepted later in 1916—and when Bonar Law placed Lloyd George's name before His Majesty as being the man whose leadership was most

19 YEAR YOUTH ENDS HIS LIFE TO SAVE ARREST

Fires Gun as Police Arrive — Blamed for Killing Brother-in-law's Wife.

WOMAN FOUND IN CREEK.

Husband Confesses—Tells of Quarrel During Auto Trip and Fatal Blows.

WOOSTER, O., May 11 (C.P.).—The suicide of a 19-year-old youth after he was implicated in a murder confession by his brother-in-law, provided a crashing climax early today to an investigation of the slaying of the brother-in-law's wife.

The accused youth, Harold Young, fired a shotgun charge into his head just as officers arrived at his home, near here, to arrest him. His death came less than an hour after Herbert Meeker, a Wayne County farmer, named Young as the actual slayer of Meeker's wife.

Husband Implicated.

Sheriff John Stevens of Holmes County said Meeker also implicated himself.

The nude body of Meeker's young wife, Gertrude, was found Monday morning lying in a creek near Millersburg. She had been killed by blows on the head.

About a mile away, officers found the husband's automobile with blood on the running board, wrecked against a tree. Search of the Meeker home later uncovered a blood-stained shirt.

With this evidence, Holmes County officers subjected Meeker to questioning, but he denied any knowledge of the killing until early today when he confessed.

Sheriff Stevens said Meeker related that the two men and the woman were riding in Meeker's automobile when Young struck Mrs. Meeker with a tire pump. Subsequent blows killed her, and the two men then attempting to cover up the crime, sent the automobile hurtling down the road, driverless, to make it appear the woman had been killed in an accident.

Heard Fatal Shot.

Immediately after obtaining the confession, Sheriff Stevens and Sheriff Clark Shearer of Wayne County went to Young's home to arrest him. They were breaking through a locked door when they heard a shotgun fired, and a moment later found Young's body with a fatal wound in the head.

Meeker was held in the Holmes County Jail at Millersburg, pending the filing of charges.

PICKEREL FRY FOR RICE LAKE

Eight Cans of Pickerel Fry Have Been Ordered by the Department.

SECOND CONSIGNMENT.

The Provincial Department of Game and Fisheries has signified the intention of shiping eight cans of pickerel fry from the Belleville hatchery for placement in Rice Lake by Messrs. R. S. Holdaway and W. W. Kennedy, in the near future.

This will constitute the second consignment of fry from Belleville hatchery into this district during the present season, eight other cans of trout fry having recently been placed in Jack's Lake, by H. W. Emmel of Marmont Inn, Apsley.

Application for the fry was made by the Trent Waterway Association, from whose offices it was announced, a further consignment of pickerel fry may soon be expected for placement in Paudash Lake.

Milkman's Jump Saves His Life

OTTAWA, May 11.—A fast jump was all that saved A. J. Glasner, Ottawa milk driver, from death to-day, when his wagon was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at Westboro, a suburb.

The horses cleared the track safely, but the train, travelling 40 miles an hour, struck the rear of the wagon. The impact was so great that it freed the animals. A second before, Glasner had jumped to safety, escaping without a scratch.

Only one wheel of the wagon and an empty milk bottle were intact after the smash. Several windows in the Westboro station were broken by flying bottles.

HOUSE ADOPTS RADIO REPORT WITHOUT VOTE

Without Dissenting Voice House of Commons Adopts Committee Report.

LEGISLATION FORECAST

Ample Coverage is Provided for All Canada in Committee Report.

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—Without a dissenting voice, the House of Commons this afternoon adopted the report of the special committee investigating radio broadcasting.

Ample coverage had been provided for all Canada and with the promised additional channels the suggested system would lay down a basis of caring for Canada's radio requirements even if the population were doubled.

A problem that faced the committee was the fact that there existed in Canada no machinery to plan and control radio programs, advertising or the possibility of the business becoming a monopoly. And there seemed no doubt radio was susceptible to monopoly. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad company had told the committee that radio was a "natural monopoly."

5 Percent. Advertising

The subject of advertising was one that received a great deal of attention, Dr. Morand said. In the publicly owned British system direct advertising was completely from the air. In the privately owned British system direct advertising was completely eliminated from the air. In the privately owned United States system advertising was the primary factor. Canada, being in such close communion with the United States, could not afford to prohibit advertising together as it would be unfair to Canadian products to have United States' competing products advertised on American programs which would be picked up here. So the committee had limited advertising to five per cent. of the program period, and left it to the proposed radio commission to define just what class of advertising would be accepted.

To provide this controlling machinery the committee had recommended a commission of three members. The finances would come entirely from revenue and with an estimated 700,000 receiving sets paying $1,400,000 per year in license fees, it was felt that the new system could be established without any capital expenditure.

Chairman Lauded.

As a memebr of the Radio Committee, he felt that he would like to make one or two comments, said W. D. Euler, Lib., North Waterloo. He testified to the "complete and constant good feeling which had prevailed at meetings of the committee," and paid a tribute to the tact of the chairman.

Speaking generally, the committee, in its recommendations had followed the Aird report. The principle followed was that radio is, in itself, a natural monopoly. Only so many channels existed which could be used, and the committee was opposed to private monopoly of these channels.

KINGSTON MAN FATALLY SHOT, BROTHER HELD

Row Supposed to Have Started When Victim Turned on Radio at Early Hour.

AGED MOTHER TESTIFIES.

Prisoner Pleads Not Guilty to Murder Charge—Shot in Self Defense.

KINGSTON, May 11 (C.P.) — Frederick McIlquham pleaded not guilty to a charge of murdering his brother and was committed for trial when he appeared in police court to-day. He will face the Supreme Court in September.

Shortly after his brother William, 40, had been found dead early today with a bullet in his head, accused made a statement. Police Chief Robinson testified, in which he declared he was forced to shoot his brother in self-defense.

Mother Testifies

The aged mother of the pair testified as to the shooting at a preliminary hearing to-day. William, she said, had come home very intoxicated and turned on the radio. He twisted the dials so that the noise was "very disagreeable," and she finally arose from her bed and asked him to turn the machine off.

"He told me to go back to bed," said Mrs. McIlquham, "and when I continued to ask him to turn it off he said he could lick the whole family. Fred came downstairs and immediately they got into a fight. They rolled around on the floor, and William, who was the stronger of the two, was choking Fred."

She had left the room for a few moments, and while she was out heard the shot and returned to find William on the floor. Mrs. McIlquham was in a dazed condition, and told her story with difficulty.

Call for Police.

"Send a man up here quickly, and also a doctor," said a man's voice over the telephone at the police station early this morning, this being the first intimation the police had of the shooting. Two constables responded and shortly afterwards Chief of Police R. J. Robinson and another constable appeared.

The McIlquham brothers lived with their mother, Mrs. Isabella McIlquham in a double brick house. James McIlquham, another brother, lives in the other half.

When the police reached the house, they were met at the door by James McIlquham and when they entered, they found William McIlquham lying dead on the floor in the dining-room.

William McIlquham was born in Kingston and had resided here all his life and the family is well known in Kingston and the district. His father was Andrew McIlquham who died some years ago and who conducted a livery stable here for many years. Deceased was married.

RUSSIA LIFTS RESTRICTIONS

Milk, Eggs, Cheese, Tea Come Off Ration List But Price Remains High.

MEAT HARD TO GET.

MOSCOW, May 11 (C.P.).—The Government has begun making good its promise to improve the living conditions of the people, it appeared to-day with the issuance of a decree permitting unrestricted sale of a number of staple articles which heretofore have been very hard to get.

Certain articles of food such as milk, eggs, cheese and tea are taken off the ration list of foodstuffs which can be bought only in limited quantities. Still on the list, however, are flour, bread, meat, gruel, herring, butter, oil and sugar. Also removed from the ration category are candies of all kinds, tinned foods except meats, soap and cigarettes and knitted goods. Restrictions on the sale of men's clothing are partially lifted.

It must be remembered, however, that although the decree permits purchase of these articles, prices are still exceedingly high and the supply is small.

DRAFTING PROGRESSES.

GENEVA.— The Naval Drafting Committee of the World Disarmament Conference, in two sittings to-day presided over by Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General of Canada, reached agreement along provisional lines on the report to be presented to the full committee on naval affairs. This is a sifting out of the respective recommendations for naval disarmament.

If Oath Abolished Thomas Declares At Ottawa Parley

British Government Will Not Enter Into Any Trade Agreements With Irish Free State At Ottawa If Oath Is Abolished.

BRITISH DECLARATION WILL NOT AFFECT OTHER DOMINIONS MAKING AGREEMENTS.

Declaration Comes Following Question Of Whether The Government Intends To Repudiate Existing Agreements.

LONDON, Ma 11 (C.P. Cable). — The British Government to-day clearly indicated that if the Irish Free State passes the Bill for abolition of the oath of allegiance to the King, the Government of the United Kingdom will not enter into an agreement with the Irish Free State at the Imperial Economic Conferenc at Ottawa.

This was the interpretation placed by well-informed correspondents on the statement of J. H. Thomas, Dominions' Secretary, who said in reply to a question in the House of Commons to-day the British Government could not enter into negotiations for further agreements with any Government that repudiated existing agreemnts.

J. H. Thomas, Dominions' Secretary, intimated if the Abolition Bill became law, it was not reasonable to expect the British Government would enter negotiations for further agreements "with a government which had repudiated an existing agreement."

The implication was that the Import Duties Act, imposing new general duties which are not applicable to the Dominions and Colonies until Nov. 15, would not be amended to continue the preference benefit to the Free State after that date.

Question Asked.

The Minister was asked by C. Emmott, Conservative, whether the Government intended entering into negotiations with the Free State in regard to the application to the Irish Free State of the Import Duties Act after November 15. This date was fixed as the limit for the continued preference to dominions and colonies in the expectation that by that time a revision would be made in the light of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

Mr. Thomas said the position was the Free State Bill for abolition of the oath of allegiance was directly in conflict with obligations undertaken by the Free State under the Anglo-Irish Treaty of 1921.

Idea Unreasonable

"It appears to the Government that if the bill is becoming law it would be unreasonable to expect they should enter negotiations for further agreement with a Government which had repudiated an existing agreement," Mr. Thomas said.

The statement was made in the regular question hour. George Lansburg, Parliamentary Labor Leader, and James Maxton of the Labor left wing, objected that it was not to the public advantage that the House should debate the question before the Irish Dail Eireann had actually adopted the Oath Bill (now before Irish Free State Senate).

Stanley Baldwin, Acting Prime Minister, agreed. No one desired to discuss the bill while it was still being debated in Ireland, he said.

Mr. Baldwin explained that Mr. Emmott's question was a hypothetical one, and the Government, after careful consideration since it was laid on the Order Paper, had dealt with it in a straightforward fashion.

No Effect on Dominions

LONDON, May 11 (C.P. Cable). —The Government statement that passage of the abolition of the oath of allegiance in the Irish Free State would result in Britain declining to negotiate with the Free State at the Imperial Economic Conference, has

CHEQUE ARTIST ENDS HIS LIFE

Arthur Wyss, Known to Police as Rum Runner, Hold-up Man.

QUARRELLED WITH WIFE.

OMAHA, Neb., May 11.—Arthur Wyss, alias Art Williams, 38, who once was accused of passing $600,000 in worthless cheques to Canadian liquor dealers, ended his life by shooting himself to-day.

Wyss, possessor of a lengthy police record as a rum runner and holdup man, left home last night after a trivial quarrel with his wife. He fired a bullet through his brain, dying almost instantly on a downtown street.

Arrested here in 1921 for Saskatchewan authorities on the cheque charge, Wyss was acquitted, relatives said to-day. Authorities said Wyss and his companions were on their way toward making $1,000,000 on their cheque scheme, when they were tracked down by Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Wyss served a term in the Nebraska Penitentiary on a holdup charge.

DIRECT RELIEF WILL BE GIVEN

Municipalities to be Treated According to Their Needs.

PREMIER HENRY SAYS.

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.)—Direct relief is being continued to municipalities pending a further arrangement with the Federal Government, Premier Henry informed a deputation from the city of Niagara Falls and the Townships of Stanford and Welland to-day, who urged that a greater amount of assistance be given under direct relief.

Premier Henry stated further that municipalities will be treated according to circumstances and those in dire need, in all probability will receive greater contributions.

Groom Injured on Way to Wedding

NEW HAVEN, P.E.I., May 11 (C.P.)—A wedding was postponed to-day when a car in which the groom-to-be and his best man were driving to the church turned over three times.

Frank Malone, who was to wed Miss J. Anne Gaughey, was seriously injured.

Patrick Malone, his brother, who was to stand by him at the ceremony, also was injured.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

TORONTO — Mrs. Margaret Wilkins, 30, of York township, was committed for trial to-day on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Alva Algie, 22.

Mrs. Wilkins is alleged to have committed an illegal operation on Mrs. Algie. An autopsy proved death was due to peritonitis, according to Dr. G. W. Loughheed.

Mrs. Wilkins was released on bail of $15,000.

Resignation Rumors Denied By Thornton

OTTAWA, May 11.—(C.P.)—Denial that he was about to resign as chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways was issued here to-day by Sir Henry Thornton. In an official statement issued this afternoon, Sir Henry said:

"With respect to the report that I am about to resign as chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, I, in common with other officers of the system, will continue to administer my official responsibilities just so long as such services remain acceptable to my employers or as long as health permits."

FARM PRODUCTS MARKET BOARD TO BE STUDIED

Weir Hints No Action Likely Until After Imperial Economic Parley.

GOAL—STEADY PRICES.

Bushel Scheme and Acreage Plan for Wheat Bonusing Both Defeated.

OTTAWA, May 11 (C.P.)—A commission of experts will inquire into the feasibility of creating a farm products marketing board, Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, announced in the House of Commons yesterday that in view of the Imperial Economic Conference, the Government did not consider the board should be established at the present time.

A marketing board, to deal with exports of agricultural products, has received considerable study in the past few months. Members from all parties in the House of Commons have contributed to the discussion. It was understood the board's activities would apply not only to butter but to many farm products in which the export surplus is relatively small in comparison with the domestic consumption. One of the board's functions would be to handle the export surplus in such a way that Canadian prices would not fluctuate widely, due to the domestic price being affected by the world figure.

Advantage To All.

Mutual advantage to every section of the far-flung Empire will be the objective of the Imperial Conference, which opens in Ottawa July 21. This pronouncement was made by Premier R. B. Bennett during an hour devoted to considering problems to be faced at the Commonwealth gathering. Preparations were well advanced, he said. Committees were gathering information on the three broad subjects to be discussed — trade, communications and currencies.

The Prime Minister himself will head the Canadian delegation, and Ministers will be called in, depending upon the subjects under review. Every Dominion has accepted the invitation to be represented, and with the exception of New Zealand and the Irish Free State, have named their delegates, Mr. Bennett said.

It had been intended to devote the entire afternoon to Imperial questions, but Robert Gardiner, leader of the United Farmers, upset the plans when he introduced the subject of wheat bonusing. The House turned down two different schemes, a five-cent bonus on export wheat on a bushel basis—the same as last year—and another on an acreage basis. The farm bloc leader sponsored the bushel scheme and Dr. Thomas Donnelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, the acreage plan. Both were defeated without recorded votes.

CAMPBELLFORD BOARD TO CUT TEACHERS' PAY

Estimate Saving of $3,000 Will Be Made in Year by Reductions in Salaries.

MAY REDUCE STAFF.

Discuss Deficit in Bus Services—Grant Teacher Leave of Absence.

CAMPBELLFOR, May 11. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Reductions in the salaries of all Campbellford Public and High School teachers was voted last evening at a special meeting of the Board of Education called to consider the compilation of an estimate for presentation to the town council regarding the striking of the rate. The measure, which is temporary, includes the reduction of $100 a year on all High School teachers' salaries and $50 a year on the salaries of all Public School teachers. George O'Sullivan presided over the meeting.

Dr. H. O. Richardson, chairman of the Internal Committee, brought to the board a recommendation from his committee that the teaching staff of the High School should be reduced from eight to seven teachers." This action had been taken, he said, after a study of school attendance over several years. At present there are 211 students on the roll of the school.

On the question of salary reductions he stated that the committee did not agree and therefore left this decision to the board as a whole. Discussing this matter it was felt that this action would not decrease the efficiency of the staff and if the attendance warranted it next year the extra teacher could obtained. This action was agreed upon, by the board.

Considerable Discussion

The question of salary reduction brought forward considerable discussion, opinion being divided on the subject, although the board as a whole felt thoroughly satisfied with the efficiency and good results of the staff. The High School was dealt with first and the board approved a cut in the salaries of this body. Then the amount of reduction was fought out, the members agreeing tentatively that an even cut was better than a percentage. It took in-

16 ARMY OFFICERS ARRESTED MUST FACE COURT MARTIAL ON INSUBORDINATION COUNT

Rumors That King Alexander Had Fled Country Are Denied.

REPORTS CENSORED.

Conspiracy Aimed to Overthrow Monarchy and Set Up Republic.

VIENNA, May 11 (A.P.)—Sensational reports which circulated in Vienna last night to the effect that King Alexander of Jugoslavia had fled the country in the midst of a military revolt apparently were based on the arrest of 16 officers of the army for insubordination, it developed to-day.

The affair was serious enough, however, to cause Minister of War Stojanovic to og to Marburg, the scene of the insubordination, and the officers, including a colonel, were brought to Belgrade for court martial.

Special despatches to Vienna newspapers amplified these details considerably. The correspondent of the Reichspost said military officers were arrested at several garrisons beside Marburg and that one Marburg officer committed suicide and another attempted it.

Overthrow Plotted

The despatch said the strictest censorship prevented the details from reaching Belgrade, but that the conspiracy was aimed at the overthrow of the monarchy, the establishment of a republic, and the reorganization of the State on a federal basis.

Officials at Belgrade, insisted, however, that the affair was due merely to "personal" differences between the officers and a superior. The Official News Agency issued a communique which said:

"The reports which have circulated abroad concerning the alleged disorders in Jugoslavia are completely without foundation and wholly biased in nature."

INJURED BY CAR.

Born in Lakefield 42 Years Ago—Devoted to His Family.

LAKEFIELD, May 11.—(Examiner Correspondent).—Frederick S. Brown, proprietor of the Brown Canoe Company, Lakefield, died shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon at Nicholls Hospital from internal injuries sustained when pinned against the wall of his garage after he had cranked his automobile in gear.

The accident happened on Monday morning just as Mr. Brown was preparing to leave home for business. He was rushed to hospital and was given the most skilful attention of both doctors and nurses.

The death of Mr. Brown, who was a comparatively young man, aged 42 years, has caused a distinct shock not only to his many friends in Lakefield, but throughout Central Ontario, where he was well-known, and held in high esteem and respect.

Native of Lakefield

Mr. Brown was a native of Lakefield in which village his father, the late James G. Brown, established the Brown Canoe Company over half a century ago. His mother is still living here.

His parents emigrated from Ireland and the late James G. Brown began his boat building career with the late Thomas Gordon, the first boat-builder to settle here.

After graduating from Toronto University with a B.A. degree Mr. Brown studied law for a period of two years at Osgoode Hall, afterwards entering into partnership in the Canoe Company. Since his father's death eleven years ago he has carried on the business itself until recently.

It is a sad coincidence that his father was also the victim of an acident, having died from injuries in a traffic accident while in To-

FINE WEATHER IN FEW DAYS

Weatherman Says Fine Weather Coming Gradually and Before Long.

NOTHING UNUSUAL.

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.)—"Well, the end is in sight. We'll have fine weather in a few days." With these words, the weatherman leaned back in his chair and smiled a satisfied smile. And the reporter slowly tucked away his pencil and left.

The interview happened up in the Meteorological Office early to-day when the reporter, disgruntled and wet after a week of almost constant rain, had dropped in on his way to the office. It was still chilly and very, very damp outside, but the weatherman, parked beside a radiator, seemed to be quite warm.

"What do you think of it all?" asked the reporter.

"Nothing unsual at all. It's rather typical of the end of April and the first weeks of May. We don't expect any sudden change. Fine weather will come gradually and before very long, for the end of this period is in sight."

Burglar Suspect Given Rude Jar

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.). — Albert Fsher, 23, of Port Arthur, was sleeping peacefully when detectives entered his room to arrest him on charges of theft last night, and Fisher didn't like the idea of being awakened by the gruff voices of the law.

So he poked a strong finger forward beneath the bedclothes. "Stand where you are, I've got you covered," he remarked to Detective-Sergeant Crowe.

"You goofy baboon," retorted the sergeant politely, at the same time dropping his 200-and-thensome pounds directly on the reclining form of Mr. Fisher.

Some time later, when Fisher was able to breathe again, he declared he didn't have a gun anyway, and he didn't.

OLD SMUGGLING CASE REVIVED

Canadian Bootlegger Involved in 1928 Rochester Liquor Scandal.

21 INDICTED.

ROCHESTER, May 10 (C.P.).—Four years after it first shook Western New York liquor enforcement and immigration circles, the Dreher smuggling case is on the calendar of the United States Federal Court term opening here today.

Twenty-one persons have been indicted. In April, 1931, four men were tried at Buffalo, but the jury disagreed. These four are to be tried at the present term.

The delays have been laid to political influences, and only recently, during the Senate consideration of Fred A. Bradley's fitness for reappointment as collector of customs at Buffalo, it was charged the Republican leader's influence had kept the case from being tried.

C.N. Men Involved.

Former Federal officers, Canadian Railway employees, and alleged Canadian bootleggers were included in the list of persons reported involved. It was called the Dreher case because Charles F. H. Dreher is the principal defendant. Dreher was chief immigration inspector at Black Rock at the time.

Federal authorities said Government officers and railway officials were bribed by the liquor syndicate to smuggle liquor by the carload from Canada by a system of fraudulent waybills and wrongly routed freight cars. Dreher is accused as the contact man between the bootleggers and the actual smugglers.

To be tried with Dreher are Lawrence Roehm, former Federal customs inspector at Black Rock, and Thomas F. Gannon and Arthur M. Sharpe, former railway clerks.

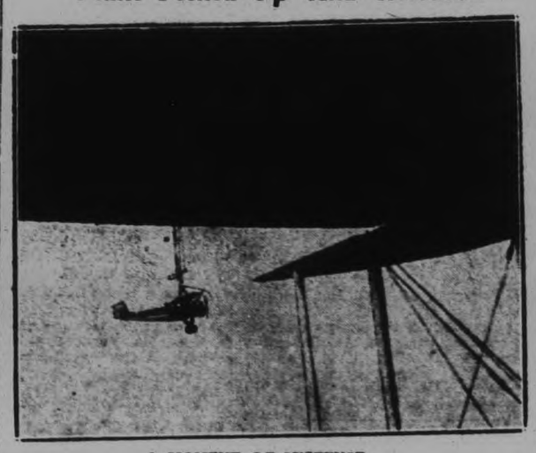
Plane Picked Up And Released



A MOMENT OF SUSPENSE

A moment of suspense as the U.S. navy plane catches the trapeze contraption suspended from the Akron for the first "book-on" over Lakehurst, N.J. The plane, after making the connection, was pulled into the huge "hangar" shown in the hull of the giant dirigible. Later it was lowered and with its motors running, took a dive into the air and flew safetly to earth. The tests were successful beyond the fullest expectations of the naval authorities who witnessed them.

Lord Grenfell is 26 years of age. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father in 1923.

Tweed

The annual meeting of the dioceses of Tweed and Trenton was held at St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church this week. Twenty-five priests were present, and the discussions centred on the plans of the deanery for the coming year. At noon the visitors were entertained at lunch at Huycke's Hotel. Among those in attendance were: His Grace Archbishop O'Brien, Kingston; Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, secretary of the deanery of Kingston; Rev. J. J. O'Reilly, of Trenton; Rev. J. F. Nicholson, of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wilson spent the week-end with Rev. W. L. Wright in Hamilton.

Mrs. H. Ward and daughter, Doris, of Newburg visited Mr. G. Clement over the week-end.

"What would taste good for dinner to-night?"

How many wives have asked that question . . . and how many brides of the future will ask it . . . of indifferent husbands, right after breakfast or lunch? Hopefully at first, almost desperately after a time, and finally as part of a dull, daily soliloquy. For every wife discovers that a man with a newly satisfied palate is a total loss as a source of inspiration for future meals.

Nevertheless, it's an important and trying matter, this business of planning the menu. There are cook-books, of course, but better than that, why not find out what's new in the markets? Pick up your newspaper—that will tell you. There's news about food—in the advertising of local markets and stores, and in that of the nationally known producer of tempting things to eat.

Here's a new way of buying and serving chicken, for example, and one that's no trouble at all. Or a ham, with a new and piquant flavor. It may be that artichokes have just come to market—the first of the season. Or berries, or fruit, or corn on the cob. The advertisements in your paper tell you these things, with the prices, and where you can buy them. Here is inspiration for many a meal, without dragging weary feet from store to store, looking for what would taste good to-night.

When you ask for a product by name as a result of advertising do not accept a substitute —substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

MISSIONARIES ON FURLOUGH RELATE THEIR WORK IN CHINA

Dr. and Mrs. Reeds Address W.M.S. of United Church.

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE

OMEMEE, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — "Hunger" was the subject spoken on by Mr. Graham, assistant editor of the New Outlook, Toronto, at the meeting of the Men's Association on Friday evening in the auditorium of Trinit United Church. A plea for the nourishment of the mind, heart, and soul as well as the body was made by the speaker. A child is not long in this world before it is asking for something to eat, and just as the body demands food, also does the mind and heart demand sustenance. Mr. Graham told of several cases in Toronto where children had died during the past winter from lack of bodily food. He also spoke of the undeveloped mind, stating that some people are too busy with the material things of this world to take any notice of the beautiful things of life, such as trees, birds and flowers. Ther is the hunger of the heart that also should be satisfied, and this can only be where there is friends eand love. Now is the time to express our love and gratitude to our parents and all those who are dear to us.

In closing, Mr. Graham made mention of the hunger of the soul. Dr. Mayo, who probably knows as much about the body as any living man, says he has never discovered the soul in the human body, but yet he knows that it exists. After the doctor has done all he can for a patient, there is still something that he requires, and the minister is sent for so that he can talk of the eternal things and so satisfy the hunger of the soul.

Owing to the unfavorable weather conditions this meeting was not well attended, even though it was an open meeting, but those lucky enough to be present were delighted with Mr. Graham's address. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Blanchard, was in the chair and read the list of nominations for the ensuing year presented by the nominating committee. This list of names was adopted, and the same officers will hold office this year as did last year. The president, Mr. Sandy, made a short speech in which he tendered a vote of thanks to Mr. Graham for his splendid address. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was fortunate in securing Dr. and Mrs. Reeds, missionaries home on furlough, on Thursday evening when they gave illustrated lectures on their work in China. The basement of the church was three-quarters filled and the Rev. Mr. Blanchard acted in the capacity of chairman. In introducing the speakers, he stated that Dr. Reeds had been born and raised in Reaboro, and is known by a number of people here. Interesting were the stories told by Dr. and Mrs. Reeds about China and its inhabitants. Many Chinese suffering from various diseases come to the hospital for treatment, and as a result many are converted. After conversion a great change takes place in the lives of the natives. Their very expression turns from one of misery and hopelessness to one of light and cheer. Foot binding is steadily being done away with, and girls and women are properly respected and cared for after the Gospel has reached their homes.

Delightful vocal solos were sung by Doreen Morcombe, "Be Careful," and the Rev. Mr. Blanchard, "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way."

Mrs. Vaughan, president of the Women's Missionary Society, thanked the speakers for the inspiring and helpful message that Dr. and Mrs. Reeds had brought, and the appreciation of the audience was signified by a hearty clap of the hands.

Mother's Day.

Mother's Day service in Trinity Church on Sunday morning was well attended, the pastor, Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, taking charge of the lesson period, which featured an address on "The Value of Our Mothers." The leaflet of the Mother's Day service was read and Mr. H. Lamb, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School led in the service. The choir rendered two beautiful anthems, "Pilgrims" and "My Mother's Voice." The children of the Primary Class sang "Jesus Loves Me." During the service the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Pogue was baptized.

Travel Club Meeting.

The Travel Club met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sandy, the hostess being in charge of the meeting. Several items of business were discussed, after which an interesting and educational paper was given by Mrs. Mackey, "Russian Poetry." Mrs. Mackey gave an account of the lives of many of the Russian poets, also reading a number of their poems. Mrs. R. Johnson gave an instructive paper on "Russian Art." Mrs. . Bradley gave a reading from "The Russian Princes." Mrs. McMann favored the ladies with an instrumental. At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Johnson.

Women's Guild.

The Women's Guild of Christ church held their May meeting in the basement of the church Thursday afternoon with a large number of members present. Owing to the Robinson, another president was Robinson, another president was appointed, Mrs. V Jones.

The afternoon was spent in quilting, after which the hostess, Mr. Sawyer and Mrs. S. Nurse served dainty refreshmnets.

CHILDREN'S AID HOLDS MEETING

Board of Management Holds Its Regular Monthly Meeting.

SPLENDID REPORT.

The Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society established a record for speedy meetings yesterday, when it got through routine business in the space of twenty-five minutes.

The regular monthly meeting, held in the City Council Chamber, was presided over by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, with the following members present: Mesdames J. S. Fanning, J. J. Lynch, S. Newhall, W. Oke, W. H. Darcy, and Messrs. J. Edgar, James Abraham, R. H. Parsons, E. B. Fowler, W. Stocker and the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by J. Edgar, who also gave the superintendent's report, as follows: Applications for children, 6; children brought to Shelter (not wards) 1; children returned to parents (not wards) 1; wards placed out, 2; wards visited, 4; wards returned to Shelter, 1; approximate mileage covered by superintendent, 400; complaints received, 5; investigations made, 7; warnings given, 1; foster homes heard from, 3; children involved during the month, 15; mail received, 41; mail sent out, 76. There were 15 children in the Shelter at the end of April.

Mr. Edgar read the correspondence, which included notice of a legacy from the Martha Dickson Estate, of $500; also a request from a ward of the society, aged nineteen years, and married, asking that a bond for $100, part of a sum of $375 held in trust for by the organization until her coming of age, be converted into cash and paid to her at the rate of $10 a month. As her husband is out of work, it was decided to accede to the request.

Mr. Edgar also read a report given by William O'Connor, Inspector for Children's Shelters, on the local establishment, after a visit here on April 13th.

Splendid Report

Mr. O'Connor reported 16 boys and 4 girls at the Shelter on that date, with an average stay of 14 and two-thirds months; general appearance, healthy and happy; schooling, good; building in good condition; children kept clean; ample accommodation, with moral and religious influence and attendance at Sunday School; ample playgrounds, and a general favorable impression.

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe commented with satisfaction on the good report of the local Shelter, saying: "All that has been done warrants such a letter."

W. Stocker reported on several improvements and repairs to the Shelter premises.

The report of the purchasing committee, presented by Mrs. J. S. Fanning, was as follows: Bell Telephone Company, $5.95 and $3.95; R. Fair & Company, $5.92; A. Watson (butcher)) $15.31; Grafton & Company, $264; J. John, $1; Silverwood's Dairy, $50.67; W. E. Bogue, $1.25; Canadian Packing Company, $11.70; F. W. Woolworth Company, $1.20; H. W. Nigh, $3.70; J. Lynch, $2; H. J. Boyle Company, $2.60; James H. Whatley, $4.45; Jopling Brothers, $1.42; Purity Bakeries, $14.38; E. F. Mason, $1.35; P. J. Harrison, $15.11; R. Neill, Ltd., $45.08; W. J. Kent, 50 cents; Examiner, 50 cents; R. Hall, Ltd., $38; Darcy Foster, $7; John Edgar, $5.35. Total, $231.03. Accounts charged to Capital account totalled $105.56, including Peterborough Hardware Company, $12.16, and Adamson & Dobbin, $93.40.

Are Affiliated With Third Princes of Wales Dragoons.

MAJOR STUART PRESENT

MILLBROOK, May 11.—"This is the best inspection yet, and I have been coming here now for four years," declared Captain M. Isbester, D.C.O., of Military District No. 3, at the annual parade and inspection of Millbrook Cadet Corps, No. 403, held on the school grounds on Monday, at 3 p.m.

The Inspecting Officer also spoke in approving terms of the change, made for the initial time this season, from platoon and company drill to platoon drill only, in four sections, and declared, with emphasis, that he was proud to be associated with the organization and felt that the citizens generally should share this feeling.

The Cadets turned out forty strong, and looked very natty in their trim uniforms, some with badges on their sleeves indicating that they are Empire marksmen, and marched from the Armouries to the parade grounds for inspection by Captain Isbester.

The Saluting Base

A large Union Jack floating from a tall pole marked the saluting base, those who took the salute as the Cadets marched smartly by, keeping excellent time in spite of the wet and uneven ground, including besides Captain Isbester, and Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, their Instructing officer, Major Clare Stuart, O. C. of the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, and Major Max Sloan, both of Peterborough; Lieutenant A. Johnson; W. H. Coombe, chairman, ex-Warden W. T. Wood, and G. E. Burnham, representing the school board; T. C. Ingram and J. R. Eakins, of the Municipal Council, W. H. Jordan, and S. W. Cawker, Principal and Assistant Principal of the Continuation School.

The reputation established in former years for executing with precision, alertness, and despatch the various manoeuvres was fully sustained by the cadets in Monday's inspection, and in the physical training a number of entirely new and novel exercises were introduced, the onlookers sharing the enthusiasm and excitement of the friendly competition, and expressing their pleasure by repeated outbursts of applause.

Officers of the Corps

The officers commanding the Millbrook Cadet Corps, and who evidently are thoroughly competent in their respective positions, are Captain Nelson Davis; Lieutenant Joe Thorndyke and N.C.O.'s Sergeant Gordon Davis; Corporals Alvin Wildis. Corps No. 1; Jack Stinson No. 2; Harry Kennedy No. 3; and Henry Raper, No. 4.

Captain Isbester warmly congratulated Lieutenant Dawson, on the fine manner in which the cadets under his instruction had acquitted themselves, and mentioned with approval their affiliation with the local cavalry unit of the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, promising that they would share in consequence in the prize money awarded by Dragoons' Association.

The medals awarded the best appearing Cadets on the parade ground were presented by the Inspecting Officer to Corporal Harry Kennedy, and Private Robert Theobald, the onlookers signifying their approval of Captain Isbester's choice by applause, and in conclusion the visiting military official established his lasting popularity with the school pupils by suggesting that the school board grant a half holiday at some later date, since the inspection had taken place too late in the afternoon for the favor to be received on that particular day.

Major Stuart's Compliment

Major C. Stuart, Officer Commanding the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, was the next speaker, declaring himself pleased with the showing made at the inspection, and adding, "We are highly honored to have the Millbrook Cadet Corps affiliated with our unit as a junior part of our regiment, and hope to able to further your interests in several ways." Major Stuart also announced that he would confer with Captain Isbester at the close of the proceedings relative to the distribution of the prize money from the Prince of Wales Dragoons' Association the two boys receiving medals for best appearance, also the best section, No. 4, under Corporal H. Raper, to have a share in the donation.

Colonel J. W. Odell, P.S.I. had as usual a stirring message for the Cadets, urging that they be true to the principles for which their movement stands — true manliness; promptness in the discharge of duty; and help where help is needed. Condemning the habit of adversely criticising the Cadet movement by those who know nothing of the situation, the speaker listed its advantages as learning to obey commands; training in smartness of dress, courtesy, and alertness; and the ability to make a contribution of real service in any situation that might present itself.

Half-Holiday Promised

Ex-Warden W. T. Wood, speaking on behalf of the school board, promised the half holiday "whenever best suits you to have it", and congratulated the cadets, and their Instructing Officer, on having again lived up to the reputation already established.

Lieutenant Dawson, principal of the public school, and Lieutenant of the Third Prince of Wales' Dragoons, thanked the cadets for their willing and capable help with the training and the creditable showing made; the parents for their support and assistance; and the Continuation School staff for allowing the pupils who are cadet members, in the midst of a busy time table, periods off whenever it had been necessary.

Led by Captain Isbester the inspection concluded with three rousing cheers for the King; the school board; for Lieutenant Dawson; the boys continuing with three and a tiger for the popular Inspecting Officer and proceeding then to the armouries for dismissal.

RUINS OF SODOM

each built on the ruins of another. Underneath these three, they said, is probably a fourth. The ruins of Sodom and Gomorrah were found in the top layer.

The houses were rectangular indicating that the inhabitants had developed out of the primitive circular hut stage. The floors of the homes in the upper layer were of stone and those in the lower of brick. In the floor were holes in which grain was stored.

The inhabitants were evidently dedicated to agricultural pursuits, judging from the number of agricultural instruments of Silica or Fling unearthed. Some instruments, of th same material, were for war. These included formidable mace-heads.

Many skeletons came to light, with the same characteristics as a skeleton to-day. Babies were buried in pottery urns. One incident of the discoveries was the finding of a child's head cut off apparently by a sharp instrument. Some ancient person had taken the head and made an urn around it.

FRED S. BROWN

ronto where he had gone to spend the winter.

For the past two years Mr. Brown has been engaged in selling bonds as representative of the R. A. Daley Company of Toronto. His territory included the whole of Central Ontario, and he was widely known in consequence.

It is said of him by those who knew him intimately that he was a man of great capability, and one who had the faculty for making friends and keeping them. Of a quiet, unassuming disposition he was essentially a home lover. In all things his home and family took first place.

While he was at one time a member of Lakefield Curling Club, and also showed a certain fondness for tennis, it is said, that he never allowed those interests to keep him away from his home. He was devoted to his family.

Some years ago he served for a term on Lakefield School Board. He also displayed a mild interest in politics, being an independent with Liberal leanings.

In religion he was a Methodist and a member of Lakefield United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, formerly Kathleen McCoy of Madoc; and two daughters, Miriam and Barbara, all at home; his mother, Mrs. James G. Brown of Lakefield; two brothers, Rev. George Brown, D.D., United Church pastor in Vancouver, and Professor Walter Brown, principal of Victoria College, Toronto, and recently of Yale University; also two sisters, Mrs. A. R. Bravender of Seattle and Mrs. Gilbert Palmer of Toronto.

The funeral is to be held on Thursday at 2.30 p.m. at Regent Street United Church, under the auspices of Clementi Lodge A. F. and A. M., following a private service at the family residence on King Street. Interment at Hillside Cemetery.

Miss Bessie Thompson Appointed Nurse To Carpelan-East Indies Expedition

A trip round the world with an opportunity to visit many strange lands on the route of the ordinary globe-trotter is to be the interesting experience of Miss Bessie Thompson, daughter of Wm. Thompson of Mount Julian and sister of W. Roy Thompson of Silverwoods.

Miss Thompson who is a graduate nurse has been appointed nurse to the Carpelan, East Indies Expedition which sails from New York in mid summer for a tour of at lease two years to be spent in scientific research. Thirty-five American college professors comprise the investigators who will study a great many things from the music of far off lands to the fish to be found in strange waters.

The islands of the Pacific will be visited and leisurely studied and the itinerary includes Australia, Borneo where four months will be spent, Java and other East Indian countries, Arabia and Egypt and other lands equally interesting. The final port touched before sailing for home some time in 1934 being Naples.

Miss Thompson will be one of four women to accompany this scientific expedition, the personel of which will include two doctors.

C. H. DAVIDSON ELECTED REEVE

Veteran Public Servant is Winner of Three-cornered Fight at Campbellford.

TOTAL OF 236 VOTES.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — In the three-cornered fight for the reeve's chair at Campbellford, C. H. Davidson, veteran public servant, won the contest yesterday, leading his nearest opponent by a margin of 33 votes and being 44 votes ahead of the low man. W. S. Wiggins stood second in the election and J. A. Anderson third.

The election was not a brisk one, feeling being against it. The vacancy, which was caused by the death of the late J. Nelson Stone, was expected to be filled by acclamation, but however, the three candidates stood for nomination, and qualified. Out of a total poll of 1,825 votes, only 631 citizens took advantage of the franchise.

Davidson led the race in Wards 2 and 5, but with small majorities, his average all along the line being more or less even. In Ward 1, Wiggins polled the largest vote, with a total of 97, while in Ward 3 Anderson had the second largest count with 87 votes in his favor.

This will make the 28th year of public office for "Charlie" Davidson, his public work covering a period of thirty years. He has served in the council, occupying every chair, and has also held the office of warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. In addition to this, he has for many years been chief of the Campbellford Fire Department.

The result of the polls by wards, with the total vote of each candidate is as follows:—

	Wards 1	2	3	4	Total.
C. H. Davidson	56	64	55	61	236
W. S. Wiggins	97	42	30	34	203
J. A. Anderson	29	43	87	34	192

to consideration that the teacher's work would be increased to some extent with the decrease in the staff. It was finally decided to reduce each teacher $100 per year as a temporary measure, and to discontinue the schedule.

Principal E. H. Greig who was asked to speak on the matter, stated that he felt the staff would fall in line with this action. He had a good staff, he said, and did not want to disrupt it in any way, pointing out that more pupils this year in middle and high school were taking examinations.

Without much discussion and on motion of W. M. Stephens and W. Cook the teaching staff of the Public School were reduced $50 a year on their salaries.

The total saving oy the board's actions will amount to approximately $3,000 for the coming year. No action was taken regarding the caretaker's salary, although this was brought before the board.

T. E. Hall, chairman of the Finance Committee, brought to the board the matter of the bus services, pointing out that two of these were paying propositions and one was not. To the end of the school year the Orland bus would show an approximate profit of $478.40; the Trent River bus a profit of $3888.40 while Hastings bus a deficit of approximately $1,599.50, making a total deficit on the three services of about $722.70. Although no action was definitely taken it was intimated that next year the Hastings bus would not run.

The board ratified the action of the committee in granting Miss G. Payne leave of absence from her teaching duties owing to ill health, this being without pay, and also sustained the action of Principal Haig in engaging Miss Hinton as substitute for Miss Payne. The secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to Miss Payne in the loss she has sustained by the death of her father, the late Magistrate G. A. Payne.

The Public and High Schools will close at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, May 17 to enable the pupils to attend a special program being presented by the Canadian Chatauqua, Ltd. This was on action of the board.

NEW DIRECTORY NOW OFF PRESS

25th Edition of McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications.

BOOK MOST COMPLETE

The 25th edition of the McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications has just been issued by A. McKim, Limited, Canada's premier advertising agency.

This book is the most complete directory of its kind in Canada, and contains 577 pages of authentic information about Canadian newspapers, trade papers, magazines, and periodicals of all kinds, also reliable data on Canadian provinces, cities, towns, villages, and practical information on the resources and facilities of the various Canadian markets. A. McKim, Limited, with offices throughout Canada and in London, England, is in a position to secure reliable information through direct channels.

An outstanding feature of the 1932 issue of the Directory is a complete set of charts showing the comparative wealth of the provinces of the Dominion.

The McKim Directory has enjoyed a wide circulation among advertising men, publishers, and manufacturers for the past twenty-five years. Every business man interested in Canadian publications should have this valuable handbook on his desk for reference.

Inquiries for the Directory may be addressed at any one of the McKim offices—Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Halifax and London, England. Its retail price is $3.00, postage free.

BEGINNING TO MEND.

As gratifying evidence that conditions in Canada are at least on the mend may be offered two recent statements by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics—one showing that manufacturing in Canada during March reached a higher level than in any of the preceding six months, and the other containing the official news that retail sales are on the increase.

These reports, of course, are not mere hearsay—they are the authentic findings of a department whose business it is to collect accurate information and may be accepted as facts.

Surely they are not without their significance or without their message of hope.

As the Ottawa Journal points out, if the factories are turning out more products and the merchants are doing a little more merchandizing and the railways are moving more freight, then business must be better, and a lot of people must be getting the benefit.

Such increases as those officially reported by the Bureau of Statistics are at least encouraging, and they help to offset the pessimism of the many people who see no signs of improvement anywhere.

WASTE MOTION.

As a sample of the sort of thing that is disgusting a good many people with the two old political parties, the argument between Premier Bennett and Mr. King as to the latter's stand on the constitutional issue in 1926, was outstanding.

What does a man who is without work care about what Mr. King did six years ago about anything so supremely disassociated from present-day problems as is the constitutional issue of that time?

And the farmer, who is trying to pay inflated taxes out of an income cut to shreds by a collapse in prices, how is he being helped by the two leaders taking up the time of Parliament arguing about something that has no more to do with the present crisis than the color of Mr. King's hair or the size of the Premier's collar?

Constitutional technicalities are, as a matter of fact, of very little concern to the people of this country just now; what they desire is leadership that will assist them in passing through a very distressful period, and they are taking scanty interest in the bickering of the two old parties.

Debates like that of Monday are simply waste motion.

DEALING WITH COMMUNISTS.

The Toronto Star, referring to police activities against the Communists, ruefully remarks that British countries were at one time regarded as a safe asylum for political refugees, and that all such were once assured of fair treatment when they came under the Union Jack.

It must be remembered that in that connection that Britain was a safe harbor, as the Star intimates, for people of that ilk because the refugees played the game when they located in the British Isles and were careful not to plot against British institutions.

The Communist with whom we have to deal in Canada at the present time is quite a different kind of bird.

He is not grateful because he is living in a land of freedom, he despises the flag of this country, he has no desire to adopt Canadian ideals of government, and if there is anything he can do to upset the existing system he will cheerfully do it.

The organization to which he gives allegiance preaches the doctrine that violence in attaining its aims is entirely justifiable, and its orders, coming from Soviet Russia, are unhesitatingly complied with by the brethren in this country.

Even the recent May Day disturbances, according to such a recognized friend of Labor as Mr. Mitchell, Labor M.P. for Hamilton, were commanded by the Soviet.

With men whose whole belief is foreign to Canadian ideas, it is nonsense to talk of temporizing; they have no intention of becoming good citizens, and the only effective way to deal with them is to send them back to the lands from which they came.

SUNDAY MORNING NOISES.

In an address to the Rotary Club the other day, R. G. Kingan, veteran business man, advocated in the interest of those who want to rest on Sunday morning the abolition of church bells.

That will probably be the first intimation many people have had that the bells do ring on Sunday morning, so numerous and insistent are the other sounds that shatter the silence of the early hours of what is supposed to be a day of rest.

By the time the young folks down the street a few doors have noisily dispersed after the Saturday night outing, along comes a heavy-footed horse dragging a milk wagon behind it, and a few "whoas" from the driver and the rattle of bottles arouse the neighborhood. Hardly have these sounds died away than a rival milk vendor repeats the performance, and possibly a third and fourth encore are provided by still more wagons delivering the lacteal fluid.

Then the good neighbor at the rear trundles his car out of the garage and gives the engine a preliminary warm-up prior to an early start on a Sunday jaunt. The neighborhood begins to wake up. A fellow down the street shouts to another half-way up the block in anxious inquiry as to whether or not the second man thinks it will rain, and in even louder tones No. 2 answers no, he doesn't think it will. By this time the worthy burghers of Peterborough are on the wing, and car after car slides or rattles or snorts past en route to the lake country or headed for the highway. When the hour for early service arrives the din of passing traffic is so great that the church bells have little chance to noticeably project themselves into the symphony.

If the only thing that disturbs Mr. Kingan's Sunday morning slumbers is the sound of the bells, he is to be congratulated; most people have so many other noises to contend with they usually fail to hear the summons from the churches.

118 DOUKHOBOR GUESTS.

Out at a place called Thrums, which is somewhere near Nelson, B. C., 84 Doukhobor males and 34 Doukhobor females started to parade in their birthday clothing, shocked the other natives, got arrested, have all been sent to Dominion penitentiaries for three years—the men to New Westminster, the women to Portsmouth in Ontario.

All we can say is that we trust this Doukhobor idea of going more naked than some of the rest of us doesn't spread. Because if it does, and we're going to put all the completely nude ones in the penitentiary for three years, the country will go broke.

It costs money to keep people in the penitentiary. If, as we assume, it costs about $300 a year per person, then these 118 Doukhobor guests are going to set us back something like $100,000, which looks to us like a lot of money to pay out just because these Doukhobors in British Columbia thought they'd like to go naked.

It's surely a curious world. Here we are away down here in Ottawa growling about taxes, yet just because a lot of Doukhobors nearly 3,000 miles away decide to shed their clothes and run about without them, a magistrate decides that we-alls must entertain them to free board and lodging for three years.

We're not going to say that this is what is wrong with the world, because everybody else is saying that something else is wrong with it, and so many things seem to be wrong with it that we don't know how they will all ever get right. What we do hope, however, is that after this when people decide to go naked they won't start a procession, getting into the penitentiary at our expense. We can stand having to pad our tax bill for armies and navies and good roads and the C.N.R. and such things like that; but we're darned if we like to be paying out our good cash to be hosts to Doukhobors who go naked. If Thrums doesn't like Doukhobor scenery, Thrums should pay.—Ottawa Journal.

BRITAIN AND ARGENTINA.

The Argentine Republic is reported to be awaiting the decisions of the Imperial Economic Conference with considerable anxiety and the Argentine Ambassador in London has been ordered to follow closely all preparations that are being made for the conference and to report upon them fully.

Argentina's established position in the British market for foodstuffs is responsible for this special attention being given the pre-conference arrangements. Annually, the Republic exports large quantities of grain and other foodstuffs to the United Kingdom and, in return, buys an equally large volume of manufactured articles from Great Britain. There is, naturally, little desire on the part of the Argentine Government to see such a trade interfered with, nor is it reasonable to believe that the British manufacturers who sell so largely to the Republic are anxious to see their sales in that country pass into other hands, as they might were restrictions to be placed upon Argentine exports to Great Britain.

Britain has invested heavily in Argentina. Railways and other public works have been built with British capital. Great packing plants owe their origin to British enterprise and British capital. Steamship lines plying between Argentine ports and the Mother Country are largely owned by British interests. It will thus be seen that Great Britain has a very heavy stake in the southern republic which it would be reluctant to forsake unless there were assurance of corresponding benefits arising out of other trade arrangements.

New and closer trade agreements between Great Britain and Argentina were mooted some months ago, after the Prince of Wales had journeyed to South America for the purpose of opening the great British Empire Trade Exhibition. They have been, however, held in abeyance until after the Empire Economic Conference, as also have been improved trade arrangements with other foreign countries. It is altogether unlikely that, whatever the result of that conference, Britain will abandon the mutually advantageous trade that has been developed with Argentina, any more than the Dominions will be asked to abandon the trade treaties that they possess with different countries outside of the Empire. She has too much at stake in that part of South America to warrant such action.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At least the Hydro inquiry serves to recall the fact that money was once easy in this country.

The Civil Service Commission has been retired, which sounds like three perfectly good jobs for three other fellows.

Before long Parliament will probably be appointing a committee to study how Government operation of broadcasting is working out. And there will be complaints of political interference to investigate.

A THOUGHT.

THE ENVIOUS MAN

The envious man is in pain upon all occasions which ought to give him pleasure. The relish of his life is everted; and the objects which administer the highest satisfaction to those who are exempt from this passion, give the quickest pangs to persons who are subject to it. All the prefections of their fellow-creatures are odious. Youth, beauty, valor, and wisdom are provocations of their displeasure. What a wretched and apostate state is this; to be offended with excellence, and to hate a man because we approve him.—Steele.

Much Business Done at Regular Meeting of Emily Municipal Council.

The Emily Municipal Council met in the Farmers' Club rooms, Omemee, recently.

Communications were read from J. E. Ellis, secretary of unemployment relief, explaining just what was meant by direct relief and what was meant by unemployment relief.

From the Consolidated Fire and Casualty Insurance Co., enclosing rates for fidelity bonds for municipal officers.

Circulars and price-lists were received from a number of culvert and road machinery companies.

School orders were received from School Sections 3, 6 and 12.

An account was received from Geo. O'Donnell for groceries furnished for relief account amounting to $18.62.

R. J. Grandy and Hugh Elliott addressed the council in the interests of the Globe Indemnity Co. and the Merchants and Employers Guarantee and Accident Insurance Co., respectively.

Moved by Mr. Rice, seconded by Mr. Patrick, that the road accounts as presented by C. W. Mills be approved and the same paid by the treasurer.

The following orders were drawn on the treasurer: J. M. Thurston, Secretary-Treasurer, S. S. No. 3, teacher's salary, $100; Vincent Perdue, Secretary-Treasurer, S. S. No. 6, teacher's salary, $100; Paul McGuire, Secretary-Treasurer, S. S. No. 12, teacher's salary, $200; George O'Donnell, groceries for relief account, $18.62.

On motion of Mr. Rice and Mr. Patrick, a number of abatements were allowed on the collector's roll of 1931, as the said amounts have been returned to the county treasurer for collection.

Moved by Mr. Rice, seconded by Mr. McGuire, that the township's road insurance be placed with the Globe Indemnity Co. for the ensuing year. Amount of premium, $170; R. J. Grandy, agent.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Patrick, seconded by Mr. Jackson, that the township's road insurance be placed with the Merchants and Employers Guarantee and Accident Insurance Co. for the ensuing year. Amount of premium, $150; Hugh Elliott, agent.

The reeve declared the original motion carried.

On motion of Jackson and Patrick, the wages for laborers on the public roads of Emily were fixed for the remainder of the year 1932 at 40 cents per hour for man and team, and 20 cents per hour for man without team, and the remuneration of members of the council was fixed at $3 per day and mileage, and the clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law to confirm this motion.

On motion, the treasurer was instructed to issue individual cheques to every person working on the roads, and also to have said cheques in the Bank of Toronto, Omemee, not later than two days after each council meeting.

The matter of extending relief to any indigent persons was left in the hands of the reeve until the next meeting, and council adjourned until Wednesday, May 25, when the council will meet at 10 a.m. as a Court of Revision, and afterwards in general session, if time permits.

THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

We turn to Ireland and our interest is captured by the figure of the newly-elected president, Eamon De Valera. One reads of his determination to do away with the Oath of Allegiance to the King and we wonder if he is going the right or wrong way about consummating his desire for a reunion of North Ireland and the South.

He is making a great mistake by trying to do so. When the people of our country read the history of De Valera he is not at all fair to his own people after all. All the War Veterans, both Protestant and Catholic, should see that our Government makes De Valera and his Ministers of office (as his Government is not a Free State party by any means) take the Oath of Allegiance to the Crown before setting foot on Canadian soil if they come to Canada in July for the Conference or any time. We as War Veterans fought for a good cause in the Geat War.

The history of De Valera shows he was born in New York City in 1882, son of a Spanish father and an Irish mother. He was educated in Ireland and in 1913 he became an ardent supporter of the Irish volunteers. In 1916 he was sentenced to death for his political activities against the British Government but this was commuted to penal servitude for life and in 1917 he was released under General Ammesty. Immediately he set about reorganizing the Sinn Fein Party in 1917. He was elected to Parliament and went to London as a member for West Clare. In May 1918 he was arrested on a charge of planning another uprising. Escaping in 1919 he went to the United States of America and there raised a huge sum of money for his cause. In 1927 he led the new party called Fianna Fail. In the Free State Parliament of Ireland he took the oath of allegiance saying it was but an empty political formula. Now as president he is intending to do away with the Oath and this is his plank in his platform which aims also at the abolition of the payment of land annuities to Great Britain with a claim of restoration of annuities in the past.

Suspension of the Public Safety Act with its military courts for the reinforcement of law and order is also part of his policy. This Irishman with a Spanish name is writing history in his country and the world watches with deepest interest the unfolding of a new chapter in a long and troubled story.

I say let De Valera go to the United States where he belongs. If De Valera don't want to keep the peace in his country let Great Britain give him pieces. When the Great War was over on November 11, 1918 we had five million men in arms. When former President Cosgrave was in power he used the British annuities according to reports in a certain paper to build homes for his people. Twenty-five thousand homes were built in the nine or ten years he was in power. The annuities granted were about two million a year at 3½ per cent interest to be paid back annually.

Thanking you, for the space in your paper.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

Every week or so thereafter Eileen either telephoned to Lee Ying or dropped in to inquire for news of Sam and in spite of her contention that the importer was a hopeless old heathen whose beliefs were a scandal to all right-thinking people, they nevertheless became quite cronies.

Sam went on to London as soon as his honorable black eye had grown well, and there he encountered adventures and vicissitudes as interesting to him as to his heart-hungry father and his little Irish friend. At any rate, he made them interesting in the telling, for he wrote very well and his new independence was expanding him in a miraculous manner: it was giving him an amused and an amusing outlook upon life as unexpected as it was un-Chinese. He was no longer the serious-minded, bulbous-browed student Eileen had known.

He secured some fitful employment among the Oriental importing houses as an interpreter. He tried and failed at several jobs which he should not have undertaken and he was cheerful about his failures. Then in a certain letter came news that startled the pair at home. He was in southern France: he had become a sort of assistant to a successful English playwright and was by way of becoming a man of letters. His salary was small but he was living like a nabob in a charming villa overlooking the Mediterranean; there were servants to do his bidding and he had made a friend. The how and the why of this amazing change in his fortune he set down with much appreciation.

One night in London he had witnessed, from a high-perched, low-priced seat, the reigning melodramatic success of the season. It was a lurid play of the Orient and in it were several Chinese characters played by English actors. Sam had quickly discovered that the author knew no more about Chinese customs and the Chinese language than did the actors who played his Oriental roles, and acting upon impulse he had gone around to the stage door when the play was over. Mr. Cyril Bathurst, the dramatist, had happened to be in the theater that night and he had turned out to be a most agreeable and approachable gentleman. He had listened to Sam and had readily confessed to an abysmal ignorance of everything Chinese, an ignorance which embarrassed him the more because the success of this play had involved him in an undertaking to write another with the same background. He was writing it now and he was both worried and discouraged by his limitations. He was swamped in research work, the which he detested, and he was half tempted to throw up the job. If Sam knew anything about China, his appearance was in answer to prayer.

Mr. Bathurst had invited his self-appointed critic to go to supper with him and to talk about China, and Sam had gone. On the following afternoon the author had borne him off to his country home and there they had spent the week-end.

It had been a great lark for Sam. Bathurst had proved to be a splendid fellow, an Oxford man, a sportsman, a tennis player; he and his guest had hit it off immediately. They had played tennis and, due as much perhaps to Sam's skill with the racket as to his knowledge of things Chinese, Mr. Bathurst had made him a sporting proposition to remain with him during the writing of the new play as a—well, as a salaried guest, an unofficial literary assistant, a tennis partner, or what have you? Naturally, the young man had jumped at the chance.

They were on the Riviera now, the play was growing and Sam's back-hand was improving. Spring in Southern France is lovely, flowers were in bloom and the sea was incredibly blue. There was much social life at Paradis, where they were stopping: Mr. Bathurst went out a great deal and entertained considerably. Sam was meeting some nice people, both English and American. It was a diverting experience. The gods were grinning.

Lee Ying and Eileen discussed the letter at length, and another matter, too. All the luck, it appeared, was not Sam's, and Eileen's good-natured contempt for her "ancestors" had been succeeded by a wholly new respect. The strangest thing had happened. Her mother had come into an inheritance! It was an astounding fact. It was just like a story in a book, and the Cassidy home was in turmoil. One of those footless relatives she had told Lee Ying about, a cousin of her mother's by the name of Malachy Daly, had considerately died and bequeathed Mrs. Cassidy fifty thousand dollars. Or, to be exact, the interest on that amount. News of this legacy had come through a San Francisco bank and it had nearly finished the good woman. She had promptly suffered another heart spell, but she was better now although still dazed.

"The interest is paid to her every month—that's so Dad and Jim can't spend it—and upon her death the principal goes to me. Me!" Eileen was round-eyed, breathless. "Dad and Jim declare it's a gag of some kind because none of Ma's family ever laid up a cent. Maybe it is, but the first cheque has come. And the funny part is Ma can't remember that she ever did a thing for her cousin Malachy."

"The truly benevolent do not remember their acts of kindness."

"Of course, she never had much to do with. But—I do hope for her sake there's no mistake about it."

"I'm sure there is none. As for the forgotten obligation of her departed relative, time brings to the truly righteous man a sense of gratitude for the favors he has received. No doubt your mother's venerable cousin was a man of lofty motives——"

"He didn't have that reputation."

"——and could not pass on high with a debt outstanding against him."

"Well!" The girl drew a deep breath. "I don't know a thing about him for I never saw him, but I'll say he passed 'on high' when he did pass. He was hitting on all six, with the muffler open."

INSTALMENT 16.

"How true it is that destiny is unavoidable," Sam wrote in one letter. "He who is marked for honors will be elevated even though he dwells in the heart of a solitude, and that man who is marked for drowning will meet his fate even if he builds a house in the branches of a tree.

"It was my resigned intention upon leaving the shelter of your august roof to forego not only your innumerable favors but also the titles and honors borne by our respected family and to become as one insufferably poor. It was my commendable desire to eat rinds and to sleep on dried rushes in order that a humble appreciation of my feeble attainments and unendurable deficiencies of resource would be made apparent and that I would acquire a becoming contentment with my predestined no-worth.

"Strange to say, discomfort flees from me, the rinds turn by agreeable magic into the richest foods and in groping through ashes for heat I uncover precious stones. No malignant evils pursue me and no Mandarin could travel in easier state than I. My time is agreeably spent in visiting celebrated places and in refined conversation with persons of high rank whose manners and accomplishments are infinitely superior to mine: I sleep upon a mountain of softest down: my garments are of splendid quality and I engage in languid and luxurious amusements. Furthermore, the dignity and respect which attend those engaged in the distinguished arts is mine, by virtue of my association with a notable patron.

"This place is frequented by rich people who devote themselves entirely to refined pastimes of an expensive character and to the elegant observances practised among the idle class. Chief of these observances is gaming for enormous sums, and accommodation therefor is provided in a splendid building of shining white marble. Entertainment of several sorts is provided therein, including feasting and dancing to harmonious music more pleasant than the beating of many gongs.

"Your worthless and impoverished offspring did not presume to demean this noble edifice with his presence lest he be tempted to engage himself in gambling which he could ill afford to do. But on an occasion when his patron had entertained with notable extravagance certain of his friends, it was suggested that all visit the temple of avarice. Social dictates forbade this writer from excusing himself although he experienced a pronounced feeling of no-enthusiasm for the project.

"It is well known that a sufficiency of charms about the head and a suitable arrangement of sacred written sentences will enable one to be closeted with demons and yet suffer no ill effects. Virtues of surprising potency evidently reside in my talisman, for their wearer prospered to an extraordinary and pleasing extent. So powerful was its effect that your son swiftly obtained a renown among those present far exceeding the honors due him as an intellectual person engaged in the composition of inspired theatrical dialogues. It even provoked a display of inelegant resentment among those rapacious persons who operated the place, but to the latter he was in a measure oblivious.

"Certain of the more avaricious patrons who plainly had neglected the higher virtues in a pursuit of wealth, kotowed to the ignoble bearer of your name, in a manner both servile and offensive. They urged him to touch their money in order that he might thus convey to it some potency it otherwise lacked.

"These requests, with one exception, he ignored. He did permit a maiden of elegant personality, whose lucky charm had proven utterly inadequate to protect her, to lay a hand, lighter than a fern, upon his spine and obtain therefrom whatever delicate benefit she could.

"It so chanced that he encountered her at the tennis club on the following afternoon and in recognition of their earlier meeting she engaged herself in pleasant and inspiring talk with him. Many estimable compliments were exchanged and only by a painful effort of will did this presumptuous person finally tear himself away from that enchanting conversation.

"A beneficent fate, aided somewhat by the ingenuity and effrontery of the writer, contrived numerous meetings thereafter, indisputably proving the prepotency of that charm aforementioned. No person of this insignificance has ever been the recipient of her distinguished liking for she is of haughty lineage and studiously ignores the poor and the low-born, thus reflecting honor upon her house. Her name is Wagner and her honorable father acquired such wealth and standing through the manufacture of soaps and cleansing powders that she moves exclusively in the most hard-to-enter circles. It pleases her parent to display toward this undeserving person indications of polished approbation and to assume an artificial interest in his commonplace remarks.

"Upon the conclusion of this intolerably tiresome letter the writer will dress himself becomingly and meet Miss Wagner at the tennis courts. She is an unskilled but an impetuous player of extraordinary grace and one derives keen spiritual satisfaction in observing her for she is not unlike that Empress whose feet were so symmetrical and whose beauty was so divine that a flower sprang up wherever she trod.

"Among the sublime virtues is an intelligent submission to the inevitable. How can this contemptible writer quarrel with a fate so kind, however mocking it may appear?"

Sam finished his letter with suitable expressions of his affectionate regard, laid aside his writing materials and then changed into his flannels. He was not nearly so resentful at his condition as he had pretended to be, for following his meeting with the impetuous Miss Wagner life had suddenly taken on a new and profound interest.

Yes, he walked in pleasant places, he was liked and respected, Mr. Bathurst treated him not as an employee but as a friend and a companion. Their work was anything but trying, for the playwright wrote only in the mornings and the rest of his time he devoted to the amusements in which bachelors of means and of social standing indulge themselves. Many of these he shared with Sam. Bathurst was a good-natured giant and although his profession had brought him large rewards its honors rested lightly upon him, he regarded it as a not very dignified occupation for an able-bodied man and he professed no faith whatever in his so-called talents.

Prices Are Higher On Montreal Curb

MONTREAL, May 11 — (C.P.)— In quiet trading prices on the Montreal Stock Exchange moved fractionally higher during this morning's session. Movements were narrow with many issues holding firm at their previous closing prices.

Montreal Power, the active leader, advanced ½ at 28¼, while Canadian Pacific Railway after having registered a small loss in early trading climbed back to 13 1-8, where it was unchanged. Brazilian Traction and International Nickel came out in broken lots only.

Bell Telephone retained its early upturn of 4¾ points at 90¾ and British Columbia Power "A" was 3-8 higher at 19 1-8. McColl-Frontenac gained⅜ at 9½.

St. Lawrence Paper preferred dropped to a new low for the year at 7, where it was off a point. Canadian Car lost ¼ at 4 and General Steel Wares declined 1-8 at 7-8.

Dominion Bridge at 12, Dominion Textile at 40, Canada Steamship at 2 and National Breweries preferred at 25 were all unchanged.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 11 C.P.). — Prime commercial paper, 3-3½ per cent. Foreign exchange steady. Demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain 3.67⅛. France, 3.94 11-26; Italy, 5.15 1-8. Germany, 23.81; Canadian dollars at 11 5-16 per cent. discount.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 11.—(CP)—Action continued mixed on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market in the afternoon today, list closing with some broad swings in evidence. Sales were unusually light, total of 81,000 shares comparing with 182,000 yesterday.

Dome retained a net gain of 35 cents on end and odd lots of Lake Shore changed hands at a 75-cent advance. Wright-Hargreaves and Teck-Hughes firmed a little and Hollinger and McIntyre were steady. Kirkland Hudson Bay and Howey appeared in somewhat improved demand, but Buffalo Canadian, as a result of assignment of its financial backers in Montreal, sold down another 10 cents, touching an all-time low of 2 cents.

Reflecting disorganized copper conditions Hudson Bay slumped 30 under light but persistent selling, but Noranda and Sherritt Gordon both managed to show small net gains on end. Eldorado firmed a couple while Mining Corp. slipped 7 in odd-lot turnover. Oils showed little change.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 11.— (C.P.) — There was a somewhat easier ton to the Toronto Stock Exchange market in later dealings to-day but the position of stocks did not alter much, volume dwindling when buying slackened.

International Petroleum was the outstanding stock on the local board, being under accumulation throughout the entire session with much of the buying reported from New York. This stock held its gain of ¼ point over last night's close despite the fact Imperial closed lower after the market turned easier. Supertest Petroleum lost a point, but other issues in the group were firm.

Bell Telephone closed with a net gain of ½ point. It had been a point higher. B. C. Power "A" held ½ point gain and Canadian Dredge and Photo Engravers were above their recent lows.

C.P.R., Ford of Canada lost fractions and Smelters closed 1¼ points down at 38. Nickel, Brazilian, most of the foods and the beverage stocks were unchanged.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 11 (C.P.) — After gains had maintained their buoyancy for the majority of the session, prices on the Montreal Stock Exchange slipped lower at the close to-day with fractional losses predominating. Trading was quiet.

Montreal Power, which sold up to 28¾ during the session, eased to 28¼, where it closed with a gain of ½. Canadian Pacific Railway lost ⅛ at 13, while Brazilian Traction held firm at 10. International Nickel came out in broken lots only.

Bell Telephone under the influence of investment buying, advanced four points at 90. Consolidated Smelters lost most of yesterday's advance, declining 1½ points at 37½.

WALL STREE CLOSE

NEW YORK, May 11. — Stocks made narrow changes in dull trading to-day. The closing was somewhat easy, due chiefly to some heaviness among rails following New York Central's dividend omission.

Central, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific sagged a point, but stocks like U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can were about steady. United Aircraft issues dropped to new lows.

Eastman, Westinghouse and Coca Cola rallied a point net. Transactions approximated 700,000 shares.

Exchange Rates

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.)—Exchange rates at noon to-day were as follows:

Pound sterling in Montreal..4.14¼
Pound sterling in New York..3.16¼
Canadian dollar in N. Y. .88 11-16

FRENCH COLLIER GOES DOWN.

PARIS, May 11.—(C.P.) — The 957-ton French collier Ares sank off the coast of Ouessant to-day. All members of the crew were saved.

GAINS LEADING TORONTO MART

Bell Telephone Advances to 91, Its Highest on Current Recovery.

B. C. POWER "A" UP 1-2.

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.)—Gains were in the majority on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but the market was again despairingly slow in its movements.

Bell Telephone, which has been steadily improving its position of late, got up to 91 this morning, the highest it has been on the current recovery. B.C. Power "A' gained ½ point to 19 and Brazilian, although no higher, was firm at 10.

The foods and chain store stocks were firm, maintaining their previous position. Oils continued to display the firm undertone which has featured this group for some little time. Imperial Oil fluctuated just above 9, and International Petroleum moved up another ¼ point. Canadian Oil at 9¼ was firmer; B.A. Oil at 9, unchanged, and McColl higher at 9¾.

Walkers Common was unchanged and the Preferred up slightly at 95-8. Nickel, Ford of Canada, Service Stations, Canadian Dredge, Building Products were all unchanged. Smelters reacted 1½ points to 38.

MINE ISSUES ARE IRREGULAR

Strength in Noranda and Dome Offset by Weakness in Hudson Bay and Buffalo Canadian.

ELDORADO FIRMER.

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.). — Further strength in Noranda and Dome Mines was offset by weakness in Hudson Bay and Buffalo Canadian on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day, giving the list an irregular appearance when taken at noon.

Dome turned over at $11.50, up 45, in the second hour, but was traded at somewhat lower figures in odd lots around midday. Wright-Hargreaves and Hollinger also were firmer and general tendency among higher-priced golds was upward.

Reflecting assignment of its financial sponsors, Masterson & Co., of Montreal, Buffalo Canadian slumped to a low of 2, off 11 from last night. Hudson Bay lost 35 to $1.25. Noranda was 15, and Eldorado firmed a few cents to $1.13.

Tenders Are Called For Rural Mail Man

Tenders are being called and applications will be received by the Post Office Department at Ottawa until noon on June 24, for the contract for the conveyance of His Majesty's mails six times a week over Peterborough rural mail route No. 6.

Fred Burgess, the present rural mail carrier on this route, has held the contract for two terms of four years each.

The computed distance of the round trip is eighteen miles, and the contract is let on the following conditions: "Courier to leave Peterborough P. O. daily (Sundays excepted) as soon as possible after the sortation of mail due at Peterborough at 11.35 p.m. per Montreal, Smiths Falls, and Toronto train east; proceed south-east along river road to junction of 13th concession and the side road running north-east to Downer's Corners at lot 25; 1 1-10th miles thence north-east 1 1-5th miles to Downer's Corners, thence south on the 12th concession 5 3-10th miles to a side road between lots 12 and 13, thence west 2 miles to the 14th concession, thence north 1½ miles to the base line, thence east 1 mile to the 13th concession, thence north 4 9-10th miles to Peterborough P.O."

The contract if satisfactorily discharged continues in force for a term of two and not exceeding four years. Each tender is required to state the price asked per annum.

TROOP ACTION SURPRISES JAPANESE IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, May 11. — (AP) — Word from Tokyo that the Japanese government had decided to withdraw all its troops in this vicinity within a month caused considerable surprise in the local Japanese community and even among the military authorities.

The latter were reticent about discussing the development, but it appeared that they did not expect it. Japanese laymen seemed to feel that the situation hereabouts is still too precarious to justify complete withdrawal of all troops.

AWAITING TERM FOR TRIAL

HAMILTON — John Weissman, Waterbury, Conn., arrested at Vineland several days ago, pleaded pleaded guilty to obtaining $10 from Murray Griffen, gas station operator, by a trick. Magistrate Burbidge in police court remanded him till Monday for sentence. His companion, Morris Helman, Cleveland, O., will not be prosecuted by local police but is being held for the Toronto authorities.

Turkeys Making Enviable Record

Mrs. H. Watters of Warkworth, has shown that turkeys can be raised with profit even on a small scale. Mrs. Watters began her turkey venture with a year-old hen and one three weeks old in August, 1930. After wintering them, both turkeys began to lay in April, laying 45 eggs before they stopped. Both turkeys were set and together hatched 34 young turkeys, all of which did well. In September the older bird again laid a large number of eggs. With some interruption both turkeys continued to lay up until the middle of the winter, having their nest out in the open snow.

Again this Spring both turkeys began to lay, and others which were wintered are also laying nicely. One dozen of these eggs average three pounds in weight.

Farmer Has Close Escape From Injury

Narrow escape from possible death or serious injury was experienced by an unidentified farmer whose team of horses took fright and ran away while proceeding south on Aylmer street yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Fire Station. It is thought that a piece of broken harness gave the horses the cause for alarm.

Young and frisky, the team suddenly took fright while passing the Fire Hall, and commenced to careen madly down the road with part of the wagon encroaching upon the sidewalk. The farmer was pitched from the wagon when it came into contact with a tree, and narrrowly escaped being run over by the wheels, it is stated.

At the junction of Aylmer and Charlotte streets, one of the busiest intersections in the city, the team and wagon became separated in collision with a stop sign, which was completely demolished. One of the horses fell down and was easily recaptured; the other continued its mad dash as far as King Edward Park before being brought to a stop.

Midcontinent Area Plants Make Money

TULSA, Okla., May 11 (C.P.) — Oil companies operating in the mid-continent area, are making a profit, some of them for the first time in a year, reports to the Associated Press revealed to-day.

Only those major companies which do not have headquarters here or whose spokesman could not be reached are missing from the list of those once more making money, the survey showed.

Without exception these companies attributed the improved condition to the recent advances in prices of crude oil and refined products and lessons in economy taught by the lean months.

BOYS' SCHOOL HEAD IS THINKING OF RESIGNING

Dr. G. E. Reman's Resignation Under Consideration at Bowmanville

BOWMANVILLE, May 11.—(CP) —Dr. G. E. Reman, superintendent of the Ontario government boys' school here, has his resignation under consideration," the doctor said today. He said this followed some "difference of opinion in regard to the ideals" of the institution. The school is under the direction of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare. Dr. Reman has been superintendent since its opening about six years ago.

WOULD CANCEL POLITICAL DEBTS

Bruening Holds Move as Most Important to World's Economic Recovery.

WILL TO DISARM GROWS.

BERLIN, May 11 (A.P.)—Complete cancellation of political debts is the most important requisite to economic recovery of the world, Chancellor Bruening told the Reichstag to-day in a long speech in defense of his foreign and domestic policies.

Germany's contention that she can no longer meet reparations payments has not changed since the Chancellor first announced it last February, he said, adding that there is increasing evidence that the other powers are coming to realize the justice of that view.

"Reparations," said he, "cannot be separated from two other issues: the world crisis and the problem of disarmament.

"It is easy to understand," he said, "why the people are beginning to lose enthusiasm because of the deliberation with which the Disarmament Conference at Geneva is proceeding, yet there has been a certain noticeable improvement since February.

"The will to disarm is increasing. There is a growing understanding of Germany's position. What we want, briefly, is restoration of Germany's equality through general disarmament."

Mr. Holden of Allandale will conduct the service in St. Paul's church on Sunday, May 15, and will move into the rectory on Tuesday.

Mother's Day service was held at 3 o'clock in the United Church when the pastor, Rev. Mr. Scott, was in charge. A massed choir contributed the music for the session with Mrs. T. J. Jackson presiding at the organ. Three babies were brought to the service for baptism, and were: June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Monk; Katherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bigelow and Donald Hubert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lowes.

Mr. and Mrs. Warreham of Toronot, formerly manager of the Bank of Toronto at Bethany, called on friends in the village on Mother's Day.

Mrs. A. Driver was in Peterborough on Sunday, the guest of her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Bousfield of Toronoto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Palmer over the week end.

Mr. G. Dainard was a business visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson of Manvers Station were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tighe of Toronto spent Mother's Day in the village.

Mrs. H. Rogers of Lindsay remained after the funeral of her mother, the late Mrs. Davis on Saturday to visit her father and sister for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Whiteside's twin sons were baptized on Monday evening, the service being conducted by Rev. Mr Fierheller.

10 Sent To Hospital In Wellington Riots

WELLINGTON, N.Z., May 11 (C.P.). — Ten men were sent to the hospital and 20 others were less seriously hurt to-day when police, swinging their clubs, broke up a riot by 2,000 unemployed.

The mob grew unruly during a harangue from a soap box. When police ordered them to disperse they threw sticks and stones and the police charged.

Yesterday a disorderly crowd stoned the Parliament Building and the stores around the square, breaking 150 windows and looting some of the shops.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF UP.

OTTAWA.—The House of Commons renewed discussion to-day of the Government Unemployment Relief Measure.

STIFF SENTENCES FOR CONSPIRACY

Two Windsor Men Found Guilty of Conspiracy and Theft.

WINDSOR, May 11.—(CP)—Seven years in Portsmouth penitentiary was the sentence passed today on Cecil Smith by Mr. Justice Raney in Ontario Supreme court. Louis Brooks, his companion, was given a five year term.

The men were found guilty on charges of conspiracy, securing money under false pretences and theft. The charges were laid by Ralph Hickman of Detroit and Emmett Adams whose home is in Kentucky. They alleged that they entered into agreements with Smith and Brooks for the delivery of narcotics but that they did not get what they paid for.

Smith was at one time the self-styled "king of bootleggers" along the border. He came into particular prominence when he fought against paying income tax claiming that his business was illegal and consequently not subject to tax. He lost his case.

Aged Man Drowned While Repairing Boat

OSGOODE STATION, Ont., May 11. (CP)—James Moses, 75, was drowned, and Eber Nixon, a companion, had a narrow escape, when the boat from which they were fishing capsized in the Rideau river near here.

While making repairs to the row boat which sprang a leak, the carft turned over. Nixon managed to reach shore, but Moses due to his advanced age lost his grip on the boat.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR HIGHER WHEAT PRICES IN UNITED STATES

Winter Production Report Places it at 440,781,000 Bushels Against 787,465,000 in 1931.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 11 (C.P.).— Prospects for higher wheat prices became brighter to-day with the U.S. Agriculture Department's second report on winter production, placing it at 440,781,000 bushels, against 787,465,000 for last year.

Continued unfavorable growing conditions brought the indicated harvest down 18,000,000 bushels from the April 1 forecast of 458,000,000. The May 1 condition was 75.1 per cent. of normal.

The prospective total 1932 crop both winter and spring, now is between 650,000,000 and 700,000,000 bushels.

Of the important producing states only five — Ohio, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, and Oregon — will have crops this year in excess of the five-year average, 18,000 through 1928.

The total amount sown last fall was 38,682,000 acres, a 10 per cent. reduction from the previous year's plantings. With an abandonment over the winter of 16.6 6per cent, the acreage left for harvest is 32,277,000.

Acreage sown to wheat for the 1931 crop in 19 countries for which estimates are now available is 106,791,000 acres against 106,103,000 last year and 105,328,000 for 1930.

Seeding Delayed.

The Department said seeding of spring wheat in Canada has been delayed by cold, wet weather, moisture conditions are better than for the last three years.

Winter wheat acreage in Europe (excluding Russia) as now reported is about 2,000,000 acres less than last year. France, Italy, and Germany have seeded larger areas, but decreases have been noted in other countries, chiefly the Danube Basin.

The late spring has retarded development of the winter crop and has hindered spring seeding. Conditions in Australia and Argentina are more favorable for seeding than last spring and some increase in acreage is expected. The Department said a rough approximation of the acreage in Australia as forwarded by the International Institute of Agriculture is 15,500,000 acres as compared with 14,500,000 last year.

Prince Attends Doumer's Funeral

LONDON, May 11 (C.P.). — The Prince of Wales left for Paris to-day to attend the funeral of President Paul Doumer of France, who was assassinated last week.

He travelled by train because the weather was unfavorable for flying.

no immediate effect upon relations between the Free State and sister Dominion governments.

It was learned to-night the statement was decided on in Cabinet meeting to-day, and the Dominions were not consulted because the treaty which the British Government asserts is being broken by the Free state, is merely between Ireland and Great Britain.

The immediate question was what effect the statement would have upon the Irish Free State Senate. The Abolition Bill has been given third reading in The Dail and is now going through the Upper House.

Five Communists Sent On For Trial

SUDBURY, May 11.—(CP)— Five of the 15 alleged Communists arrested in May Day disturbances here were committed for trial before a judge and jury by Magistrate J. C. McKessock in police court this morning. The charge against one of the accused, Harry Sewchuk, was dismissed. The remaining nine have yet to receive their hearing.

Sam Yrzchuk, charged with assaulting Police Sergeant Leo Campeu was remanded one week. Annie Kinchuk was remanded till tomorrow for hearing on a charge of assaulting Mayor Peter Fenton.

CUTTER BADLY BATTERED IN RACE TO BERMUDA

NEW YORK, May 11. — After nearly three weeks of battling gales, fog and tides, the cutter Viking, owned by Philip Leboutillier and entered in the Bermuda race, has just made port from Chester, N.S.

Viking, an able vessel about 50 feet long, had one of the hardest trips down the coast reported in a long time. Her log tells one continuous tale of gales, which at their height reached 75 miles an hour, and of cold weather, with the thermometer never above forty for the first ten days of the trip, and more often hovering around the freezing point.

SHOOTS PRAIRIE CHICKEN, SAULT MAN IS FINED

SAULT STE. MARIE.—Henry Argent and William Cadman, of Kapuskasing, were fined $10 and costs by Magistrate E. R. Tucker at Hearst, on a charge of shooting a Prairie chicken out of season, the first case of the kind ever to be tried in the district so far as is known. Prairie chicken have been becoming more common in this area lately.

EXPLOSION AT ST. JOHN'S WRECKS BANK BUILDING

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 11 (C.P.). — A boiler explosion early to-day wrecked part of the Bank of Montreal building. No one was injured.

The elevator shaft took the force of the explosion and the skylight was blown off.

The main office was undamaged but in the manager's office and several other offices windows and doors were broken.

ECLIPSE FOR 100 SECONDS.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 11 (C.P.). — After setting up ponderous instruments to make observations during the 100 seconds of a total eclipse on August 31, astronomers will have a "50-50" chance of cloudy weather to render them helpless, Professor Frederick Slocum of Wesleyan University, said to-day.

ITALY WINS SERIES

GENOA, May 11. —(AP)— Italy today won its fist round Davis cup series with Egypt, taking the last singles matches for a three and two victory.

George De Stefani, Italian ace, won the series for his country by defeating Loutfallah Wahid 7-5, 6-4, 6-1 after Capt. Pierre Grandguillot had sent the series to the final match for decision by winning from Count Oscar De Minerbi 1-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3.

Italy will meet Spain in the second round.

LLOYD GEORGE MISSED DEATH

likely to win the War, Lloyd George replied in effect, "No. I don't want to be premier. I have not been fighting for the premiership but simply to get rid of the Asquith incibus."

Finds Fault With Carson

A poor opinion of Lord Carson as a minister—he was first, Lord of the admiralty in 1917 and then a member of the war cabinet without portfolio—is expressed by Lord Beaverbrook. "Carson's mind was always filled with prejudice. When he was in insurrection against a person or government the strength of his character was overwhelming. Yet the instant the opponent, premier or ministerial system, was defeated and Carson reigned in their stead, an astonishing change came over his mentality. He became at once the orthodox minister trusted by the permanent officials, and ready to loyally defend their errors. In counsel he showed indecisiveness, and even weakness."

Lord Beaverbrook says that what he desired for himself was the presidency of the Board of Trade, but this, it seems, was out of the question and he was offered another office. "Possibly it was as much as I was entitled to or fit for, but at any rate it did not appeal to me for it had no relation to the conduct of the war," he says. He referred to his chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster in 1918.

Not a Willing Peer.

"It will be seen I was not altogether a willing peer," he also says in connection with his elevation in 1916. "I would much rather have stayed in the Commons with a suitable office, but I had been jockeyed, or had jockeyed myself, into a position in which I thought I had no choice. The peerage was a way of escape. I took it. It would be absurd to deny it was a very foolish way of escape."

MONTREAL FIRM BUYS 150,000 TONS N.S. COAL

MONTREAL, May 11. (C.P.) — According to financial counsel it is understood that arrangements have been practically completed whereby an order for 150,000 tons of coal will be given Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. of Sydney, N.S., by Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Co., of Montreal. The coal will be supplied from the Princess Colliery at Sydney Mines and will provide over 40 percent of the entire requirements of the Montreal company. Previously the entire amount has been imported from the United States.

1728 Days Work Provided Levelling Park

STRETCH OF WASTE LAND CHANGED INTO CITY PARK FOR PETERBORO CITIZENS

New Park On Water Street Been Worthwhile Project.

$6,000 BEEN SPENT.

Cost To The Taxpayers Of Peterborough Will Be $1,000.

Transforming into a park of rolling lawns and shrubs, several stretches of waste ground which for years had lain unused, a low tangled mass of unsightly rocks and weeds, has been one of the major accomplishments of the Board of Works Department during the past winter and spring.

Not only was the task undertaken to improve the appearance of one of the main drives of the city but it was started mainly to give work to the city's employed. In this second as in the first it was successful, since it is conservatively estimated that 1,728 days of work were supplied, and there is still more available before the completion of the undertaking. Forty men and eight teams were given six weeks work and almost $6,000 was thus put into the pockets of men who otherwise would have to be given charity.

$1,000 from Taxpayers

Six thousand dollars had been spent on this project but of this amount only $1,000 will come from the city taxpayers. The rest came from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and the Federal and Provincial governments.

The park is situated on the east side of Water street and comprises the property in front of the Auburn power house. It stretches for a tenth of mile along this well-travelled artery of the city.

Hundreds of load of gravel from the two city pits across the road from it were dumped into this rock-strewn hole in order to raise it up level with the roadway. This work of filling in and levelling is completed now and loads of rich top soil for grass, shrubs and trees are being spread over it.

New Building Lots

Not only was the property reclaimed for a park on which citizens will disport themselves but also the two gravel pits across the road were so vastly improved that they too will now serve as building lots, playgrounds, or tourist camps. The gravel pits were levelled off and fully cleaned from the refuse and undergrowth that had resulted from years of disuse.

Above the new park, the low-lying marshy ground between the road and the river has been filled in, widening it out more than thirty feet. The old wire fence has been removed and it is planned next year to plant a row of trees that will in years to come make it a picturesque and shady drive. The Utilities Commission will be asked to straighten out the poles which now run in an irregular row along that side of the road.

In addition to the work given unemployed men in building the new park, two weeks work was given forty men in levelling off the gravel pits and straightening and cutting down its tumbling high banks.

This work of beautifying and improving this waste property was suggested by Mayor Denne last fall when the city was hard put to find suitable undertakings in the scheme to give work to the city's unemployed. A deputation from the council secured the approval of the Hydro Commission to the proposition and the Hydro agreed to give $3,000.

During the winter $6,000 was spent. Of this amount the city got back $4,000 from the Federal and Provincial governments since the work was done under the direct relief plan. The Hydro contributed $1,000, and the remaining $2,000 of the Hydro's share will be spent upon spreading the top soil, making lawns, planting shrubs and trees, and building the driveway through the park.

Alderman James Hamilton, chairman of the Board of Works Department, gave much attention to the project throughout the winter since it was his department which was responsible for the undertaking.

A balanced dish

There's nothing like PEP Bran Flakes. With milk they're almost a perfect food. Rich in wholewheat nourishment. Healthful because they've just enough bran to be mildly laxative. And the flavor — why it's the famous flavor of Pep. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

SOCIETY HEARS SPLENDID TALK

Rev. J. N. Blodgett of Wycliffe College is Speaker at Fenella Gathering.

W.M.S. MEETING

FENELLA, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence) — "What would have happened, had St. Paul in his work of spreading the gospel, journeyed eastward, instead of westward, what would have would have happened had the gospel been carried eastward, into Asia, to China, and Japan, instead of being carried westward to our ancestors," said Rev. J. N. Blodgett, Field Secretary for Wycliffe College, Toronto, in a brief address, when he responded to an invitation to speak at the regular monthly meeting, of the Fenella W.M.S., which was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Cowling.

Mr. Blodgett was present, guest of his sister, Mrs. A. Nill, and when asked to bring a message to the meeting responded briefly. He said "I scarcely know where I belong in this meeting, but in the work of missions, we are well met on one common ground." Speaking of impressions received by Charles Darwin, the emminent scientist, who visited islands of the sea, in remote parts of the world, studying the habits of the people in the interests of science, and how, on visiting these same islands, twenty-five years later, he was so impressed by the great change wrought in the lives of the people by the gospel carried there by missionaries, he contributed yearly a substantial sum to the cause of missions. "And now," continued the speaker, "I like to think of other islands in the sea, where long ago, the gospel was carried to the inhabitants by missionaries, where, one time these people painted their bodies with the juices of fruits, clothed themselves with the skins of beasts, and worshipped strange gods. Those islands, are now known as the British Isles, and the inhabitants are our ancestors."

Then he asked the question, "What would have happened, had St. Paul journeyed eastward to Asia, instead of journeying westward? Had St. Paul journeyed to Asia, as he wished to do, but the Lord suffered him not, the gospel would have been carried into China and Japan, instead of being borne westward to our ancestors. In remembering that fact to-day, we have no choice, other than to help send the gospel to other lands and islands of the sea, where they know Him not. For giving science and education, all credit due them, for their share in civilization, without the gospel of Jesus, it were a poor thing."

The meeting was opened with the usual opening exercises, followed by the reading of the minutes of the two previous meetings, owing to the small attendance at the April meeting and the absence of the recording secretary, Miss Florence Macklin. Decided on motion to secure a play from outside to be presented in the near future. Decided also on motion to prepare blocks for the quilt asked for by the supply secretary as a part of the contribution to the bale. On motion, it was decided to entertain the baby-band members, and their mothers at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. James Knox on Wednesday afternoon, June 1.

Mrs. W. H. Sandercock, baby-band superintendent and Mrs. Howard Macklin, program leader, will have charge of arrangements, for entertaining the guests. Several orders for the Blue Book were handed to the literature secretary, Mrs. Clark Jewell. Leaflets, dealing with the subject for the day "The Ministry of Prayer" were read by the following ladies, Mesdames Clark Jewell, W. H. Sandercock and C. W. Macklin and Miss Florence Macklin. Mrs. George Montgomery read the devotional leaflet, "Judas the Man who might have been." Mrs. Fred Talling rendered a vocal solo, "God's Way is the Best Way," and Mrs. James Knox contributed a reading, "A Previous Engagement." Mrs. W. H. Curtis, program leader took charge of the above program. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Nill. The attendance was thirty-eight, which included a number of visitors, among them, Mrs. Robert Mouncey, Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. Frank Brown, Roseneath. At the conclusion of the meeting, the hostess assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Cecil Roberts, Mrs. George Mouncey, Roseneath and Mrs. Frank Down and Mrs. Roy Cowling, daughter-in-law of the house, served lunch.

for FULL-FLAVOURED COFFEE

This Question Must be Answered

WHEN buying coffee, ask yourself this question: Is there ANY air inside the tin or package or can any air get in?

If so — coffee deteriorates, loses flavour. If not — coffee keeps its full flavour indefinitely.

Vita-Fresh Process Removes Every Trace of Oxygen

Maxwell House is the only coffee packed by a method which removes and excludes all traces of oxygen from the sealed tin.

Such protection afforded the famous quality of this old Southern blend ensures rich flavour and satisfying smoothness—more than you've ever enjoyed in any other coffee before.

Get a tin from your grocer today. Look for the words "Vita-Fresh" marked on the sealed and locked tin.

GOOD TO THE LAST DROP!

It's the Air Inside the Tin or Package That Ruins Coffee Flavour

Loose or bag coffee loses 65% of its flavour in 9 days after roasting.

Coffee in old-fashioned tins or cardboard cartons loses 45% of its flavour in 9 days after roasting.

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

Egg Plants, a Garden Delicacy

The egg plant is not one of the staple vegetables in food value but it is one of the delicacies of the garden and a valuable addition to the summer menu in the way of variety. There is only one way in which the delicate and characteristic flavor of the eggplant may be enjoyed and that is by eating the vegetable fried. Stuffed eggplant, another favorite method of cooking this vegetable, usualy disguises the flavor by the more highly seasoned stuffing.

The eggplant is a striking looking plant in the garden and has an ornamental value, particularly when carrying two or three of the large purple "eggs." Three good sized eggs to a tree is a bountiful yield. Two big ones is a good crop. Half a dozen plants will furnish sufficient for the average family. It is another of the lesser known vegetables that has become a common acquaintance through green grocers who find it valuable for display purposes in their show windows.

The eggplant belongs, botanically to the same family as the tomato, pepper and potato, the nightshades. It needs much the same soil conditions, and, like the pepper, wants plenty of moisture. It needs plenty of room as the plant makes a very heavy stalk and large foliage, so three feet apart will be none too far for it.

Feed the eggplants well. liquid fertilizer from time to time, some of the balanced commercial fertilisers or light dressings of nitrate occasionally will be beneficial. Feeding is particularly essential when the "eggs" have formed to speed their development.

Eggplants are in stock at seed houses in the shape of plants at planting time and seed may be planted in the open ground as soon as the soil is warm for a late crop. It is a fast growing plant if given good growing conditions and will soon make an imposing showing in the garden.

It is best to pinch out all blooms after the first two or three "eggs" have formed. The later ones will not have time nor will the plants have the strength to develop the size and quality of more than two or three. As a well developed "egg" will be from six to eight inches in diameter there is no use of trying for more than two or three to a plant.

Do not be in a hurry to get them into the ground until the temperature is reliably warm.

A.B.C.'s of Transplanting

When transplanting use a measuring stick. Each plant requires a certain amount of space in which to grow.

From the opening of the gardening season until cold weather checks out warm days, there is always more or less transplanting to do. It is an all-season task whether it be annuals in spring, perennials in late season, or dividing and transplanting perennials. Careful transplanting starts the plants on their way with little check. Poor transplanting will kill a percentage of those moved.

Dig a large enough hole to spread out the roots, firm the soil carefully about the roots, soak the transplanted plants into place, shade newly transplanted plants from hot sun for a few days. These are elemental points in successfully transplanting. Another factor is that of trimming the tops to balance the root system which is bound to be somewhat disturbed and shortened in moving. This is done by trimming off half the leaves.

For making holes to receive seedlings from seed rows or boxes, a dibber is the handiest tool. This is merely a steel or cast-iron rather blunt pointed instrument which you stab into the soil, give a twist and the hole is ready for the plant. It is much faster than digging each hole with a trowel. The dibber will also be very useful for bulb planting in the fall. You need one in your garden tool kit.

Observe distances carefully in transplanting. The little seedlings may look lost and lonely when put two or three feet apart, as in the case of zinnias, but remember the size they will attain if given a chance to do their best. Follow the direction for spacing on seed packets carefully. It will pay you and you will get more from your plants than if you crowd them so no plant can reach its best development.

Select a cloudy day if possible and also preferably a cool one to avoid the wilting of the plants. Pour a little water in the hole before you set the plant and then soak it in afterwards. The object is to get the earth in as close and perfect contact with the roots of the plant as possible so that the roots will at once begin the work of supporting the plant and starting it into renewed growth.

A plank set on flower pots is the easiest way to shade a row of transplanted seedlings. Strawberry boxes should be saved for the purpose, as they are easily handled.

Making the Home Grounds Livable

Often in pictures of successful interiors, one notices many details which seem to make one feel that here is a room in which the owner really lives and enjoys himself. Is it not true that a room in which you delight to spend the hours at home—a room which gives your friends a great deal of pleasure when they come into it—can be considered a success from the stand point of good decorating and satisfactory living?

Likewise it is the ability to live in and make use of the grounds that makes them part of the home. Where there is nothing outside the house to enjoy, there is no comfort in going outside. Lawns without shade, flowers and borders, are like bare rooms with hard benches and no other furnishings. The developing of the landscape can be thought of as a part of the home furnishing. The grounds become livable and comfortable as they are planted with trees which give us comfortable shade, with shrubs which screen out undesirable views, or form a background to the flowers which give us beauty. The most livable grounds are those thoughtfully planted.

The Use of Pruning Shears

There's a "best way" to do everything. Many amateur gardeners give little thought to the way they handle pruning shears.

Always work with the cutting blade lowermost, so that you pull it upward, through the pressure is downward on the handle of the cutting side. This allows you to cut smoothly and close to the stem from which the pruned shoot is removed. It insures against possible stripping of bark resulting from a downward cut.

Watch the "set" of the blade. Don't let it get sprung.

Never use shears that are dull. Keep them sharp as you work.

FARM FLOCK MANAGEMENT

Proper Housing Important—Best for One Only to be in Charge.

KEEP ACCOUNTS

George Robertson, Assistant Dominion Poultry Husbandman, discussing the question of housing and management of poultry on the farm, states:

"Unless the flock is properly housed profitable returns cannot be expected. A house to be satisfactory should be bright, dry, and well ventilated, but above all it should be free from draughts. If a flock of 100 birds is contemplated a straw loft house 16 by 32 feet, plans of which may be obtained by writing the Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will prove satisfactory. The house may be divided by a partition so that the pullets and hens may be kept separate, the partition being placed according to the proportion of hens and pullets making up the flock.

Good Training.

One member of the family should be placed in charge of the flock so that it becomes his or her responsibility. The handling of such a department of the farm work is excellent training for either son or daughter, and if the manager is treated as a partner, sharing in the profits, it will be an incentive that few will not respond to.

Accurate accounts should be kept of all expenditure and receipts, and credit should be given the flock for all produce used in the home just the same as though it had been marketed in the usual way.

Farm, Egg and Poultry account forms which may be obtained for the asking from the Poultry Division, if used to advantage will show just how your poultry accounts stand at the end of each month, and the keeping of this daily record will make the work far more interesting and is an incentive to better flock management."

VERULAM BOYS' SWINE CLUB

Boys in Vicinity of Bobcaygeon Follow Example of Other Groups.

COMPETE FOR PRIZES

During the past two years the boys in Victoria County in the vicinity of Emily have conducted a Swine Club, exhibiting their pigs at the Peterborough Fair, where prizes were donated by the Fair Board and the Provincial and Dominion Governments. In addition to this the Canadian Packing Company gave a banquet to the members.

At the Peterborough Fair the Victoria County boys competed with similar clubs from Peterborough, Northumberland and Durham counties.

This year a similar club is being sponsored by the Verulam Agricultural Society. Boys mostly in the vicinity of Bobcaygeon, have signified their willingness to purchase a pair of Yorkshire gilts just weaned. These pigs will be taken to the boy's farm, fed and cared for by him during the summer time and exhibited at the Bobcaygeon Fair.

Prizes for competition among the members shall be awarded according to the following schedule:

40 points for award on pair of sows, which will be judged on the basis of bacon type, development, uniformity and breeding standards.

30 points for judging competition and answers to questions. Competitors must judge two classes of swine, one bacon and one breeding. The examination, which may be either oral or written will be based on club work, feeding, management and marketing of swine.

30 points for Junior Stockmen's award. This will be made up as follows: 10 per cent for care and feeding methods noted at time of visits made. 10 per cent for regularity and accuracy in forwarding monthly reports to Agricultural Representative. 10 per cent for attendance and interest shown at meetings and judging classes.

Prizes Donated.

Prize money is being donated, one third by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, one third by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and one third by the Verulam Agricultural Society. The total amount of prize money will be about eight dollars and each boy exhibiting at the Fair will receive at least two dollars.

Pigs were given out to the members at Bobcaygeon on Saturday, May 7, at 1.30 p.m. These pigs have been purchased in the surrounding district and are a very fine lot of sows. Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist, or one of his men will be present and will worm the pigs and also give a talk on parasites.

Mr. T. H. Martin has been appointed by the Fair Board as Club Leader and has assisted in the securing of boys and also in buying pigs. The Department of Agriculture is represented by Mr. M. H. Winter, Agricultural Representative, Lindsay, and the Dominion Department of Agriculture represented by H. L. Ford, Peterborough.

Germany expects to raise through its rent tax $11,425,000 for the construction of homes for the unemployed.

Annuals, Flowers of Economy

An Arrangement of Annuals.

Annuals are the cheapest of all materials for the flower garden. You get more returns for less money out of a packet of annual flower seed than from any other garden investment. They are sure-fire producers and the garden standby for the summer months, particularly for August and September and perennials are few in number which have those months as their blooming season.

Annuals are pre-eminently for outdoor sowing, about May 1 in the northern states and all winter in the far southern states, grading acording to latitude between the two extremes. You can't have too many annuals, either for color in the garden or for bouquets indoors.

They come in all sizes from zinnias rivaling the dahlias in size to the small but indispensable baby's breath or gypsophila.

There are a few annuals that everybody wants. For edging, ageratum is a standby in its dwarf form. For cutting the older species of tall growth,ageratum mexicanum is best, making three feet of well-branched stem with fine length of stem fur cutting its lavender blooms, which go so well with many pinks, such as zinias and larkspur.

The newer single types of asters and the new Sunshine anemoe flowered are more popular for cutting when one becomes acquainted with them even than the older late branching and ostrich plume types, fine as they are. They are well worth a trial.

Calendulas are an indispensable bouquet material in glowing orange. Marigolds give a wealth of bouquet material and bloom until frost cuts them down. Zinnias are everybody's flower, either for masses outdoors or for cutting. The bachelor's buttons or centaureas, ragged and dingy of foliage, are beautiful bouquet material that will grow for anybody. Snapdragons are now aristocrats among cut flowers and beautiful for beds in the garden—you can get almost any color except blue in snaps now.

Ten weeks' stocks furnish beauty and fragrance in the garden and have fine value for indoor use. The annual gaillardias are fine cutting material in red and yellow. Petunias are sure-fire sheets of color for the garden and for window and porch boxes, a most obliging annual in an amazing variety of form and color.

Plant annuals lavisly with an eye for all season bouquets as well as sheets of color outside. There is such a wealth of variety in annuals that any taste may be suited.

How You May Have Continuous Bloom From a Garden of Shrubs

Yes, it is quite possible to have almost continuous bloom in the shrub border if care is taken to plant the border and garden with the proper varieties. This is an excellent time to check up on your planting and see if there are gaps in the flower parade that need filling.

As the warm sunny days of spring arrive they are greeted by the golden bells of Forsythia, an excellent background shrub. And if you have at least one Garland flower (Daphne cneorum) its lovely fragrance will first delight you during the spring days of April. Eager also for first place is the Thunberg Spirea with its feathery grace and myriads of dainty white flowers, but it must share honors with the glowing red flowers of the Flowering Quince.

May finds us with a wealth of bloom among our shrubs. Vanhoutte Spirea, with its pendulous branches, its snowy white blossoms and spreading grace dominates the scene. For pink, which is always welcome in the garden, we have the Flowering Almond. For exquisite fragrance there is nothing lovelier at this time than Viburnum carlesi, not exactly a newcomer but anything but common. Also in May we have the French, Chinese, Persian and Common Lilac, the Honeysuckle, and for one who loves yellow flowers there is the brightly cheerful Hugonis Rose.

Late May and June bring the Red Weigela. There is also the Mock Oranges, and their delightful Pink Tamarix and the White fragrance, set off by the Pink and Fringe to give variety to the June border.

Showiest of all July blooms is the Snowhill Hydrangea, and who does not love that little gem, Anthony Waterer Spirea, which is equally desirable? In July the Rugosa Roses also are very beautiful.

With the approach of August there are fewer varieties in bloom, but none less lovely. The Butterfly Bush is in its prime; the Sweet Pepper or Summer Sweet is at its best and for hedges and for backgrounds we can depend on the Rose of Sharon.

The late summer landscape is brightened by the immense flowers of Peegee Hydrangea, first white, then deepening to deep pink as the autumn season arrives. Soon after this the shrubs take on their glorious autumn colors as the final number with the entire cast.

SOME VARIETIES OF CATCH CROP

Try Oats and Peas for Hay Where Clover Too Thin to be Profitable.

MEANS MORE WORK

A catch-crop is a crop which is grown to take the place of a regular crop in the rotation which has been killed by unfavorable climatic conditions or it is a crop which is grown along with or between the seasons of regular crops. Most frequently the catch-crop is grown to take the place of some crop which has been winter-killed, such as clover or winter grains.

When clover winter-kills it is always a problem to know what is the best plan to follow. The first step is to decide whether the stand of clover is worth leaving, which cannot be done until growth starts in the spring. If the stand is too thin to leave, the best plan is to plough the land and seed it to some other crop. It is usually unwise to attempt to thicken the stand of clover by broadcasting clover seed early in the spring because such seed will not produce a crop of hay until the following year and hence will leave a very poor and unprofitable crop on the land for that year. Moreover, as the clover seed falls upon hard ground it frequently fails to get covered and does not germinate.

Best To Plough.

Under these circumstances, it is usually best to plough the land and plant it to a mixture of oats and peas for hay, seeding down the land again with clover and timothy. This plan undoubtedly entails more work and expense than would have been the case had the clover crop not winter-killed, but it is much better than allowing the land to produce a half crop of hay and become polluted with weeds.

Where fall wheat has been winter-killed throughout portions of a field, it is customary to re-seed the patches with oats or barley or an early variety of spring wheat. Barley ripens at nearly the same time as the winter wheat but the threshed grain is difficult to separate from the wheat; oats are much better in this regard, but are later than wheat in maturing. When stooking the grain, care should be taken to keep any sheaves of mixed grain separate from the wheat sheaves in order to secure a good grade of wheat. The use of spring wheat obviates these difficulties.

HOW LOWLY HOG AIDS SCIENCE

Experiments Under Way Continually With New Food Mixtures to Produce Weight.

ECONOMY ONE GOAL

(Experimental Farms Note)

Of what particular value are hogs except to produce our ham and bacon? Why are they experimented upon, and why is such care taken in the procuring of accurate experimental data? The answer to these and other questions may be derived, and a greater and clearer realization of the importance of the swine industry ascertained by a visit to the Central Experimental Farm and a survey of the work being carried on there by the Animal Husbandry Division.

Experts in livestock are not only guiding the work in the production of swine, but are producing more and cheaper pork. From their experience gained in actual experiments, they are enabled to advise the farmers throughout Canada how to make the same equivalent savings.

The swine herd consists of pure bred Yorkshires and Berkshires. By the introduction of new sires from time to time, supplemented with rigid selection and culling, a herd of high standard has been developed. From this herd, breeding stock is disseminated to other Experimental Farms throughout Canada and to the swine breeders and farmers of Eastern Canada.

Continual Testing.

Experimental and research studies absorb a large percentage of the pigs raised. Work is being carried on in testing the relative nutritional value of various individual feeds and in the compounding of suitable meal mixtures for pigs of various ages. Mixtures are tried out, and if found suitable, they are published in pamphlet form, and are widely distributed to Canadian farmers. Such distribution of valuable feeding information raises the standard of production, improves feeding practices and most important of all lowers the cost of pork production for the individual farmer.

Another line of work on accessory feeds deserves some comment. Cod liver oil, pilchard oil, mineral feeds, etc., are being tried out in an experimental way, and their value determined in swine feeding. These supplements to ordinary feeding have only of late come into prominence as livestock feeds, and especially so as swine feeds. Cod liver oil is a known source of vitamins A and D, and the claims for pilchard oil are that it contains these constituents and is available at a very moderate price. Comparisons of these two oils are in progress at the Central Experimental Farms, and the results when compiled should prove interesting and valuable.

Only One Instance

This is but one instance of the continuous testing and experimentation being carried on in the interests of the Canadian farmer, and also indicates the thorough way in which a problem is investigated. It is not only carried on at the one farm, but is replicated on many other Experimental Farms. By such corroboration of results, accuracy is assured, and the problem is completed much more quickly and with the same accuracy as if it were repeated on one Experimental Farm year after year.

The hog thus carries on, eating what he is given, thriving best on the more valuable feeding stuffs, and by his rate of growth, type, quality of carcass and economy of gains aids science in propounding advice for distribution to farmers and feeders concerning the suitable and economical swine practices.

The Farmer's Education

An outstanding Canadian authority discussing farming as a vocation recently, included among the essential subjects in the educational preparation for farm work, the following: A thorough training in the use of English; proficiency in mathematics; sufficient commercial training so as to successfully carry on his business; practical training obtained on the farm; a study of agricultural science, including chemistry, physics, entomology, bacteriology, and a thorough knowledge of the more practical subjects, just as horticulture, field crops, livestock, mechanics; and a practical working knowledge of economics and civics. For the young woman whose future happiness will be found on a farm he suggested special training in cultural subjects, and in the work of the home, such as cooking, sewing, management, and hygiene. Knowledge is as necessary to success in farming as it is in any other line of business.

Chicks Not Hatching As Good As Usual

Correspondence and reports received at the Poultry Division, Experimental Farm, would indicate that chicks this spring were not hatching as plentifully as usual, states F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman. Hatches as low as 10 per cent of the total eggs are reported, while 20 per cent, and 25 per cent hatches are not uncommon. This condition seems to be fairly general throughout the whole of Canada.

These poor hatches along with the late season may have a decided effect upon the egg production, next winter. Chicks generally also are later than usual, the result of the very backward spring, especially is this so in Ontario and the East.

Because of this condition some having chicks to sell are advising late chicks in order to make up the number. Buyers should be advised to buy late chicks with caution for experiments have shown that chicks cannot mature before winter are a poor investment.

Farmers' Three Worst Enemies—Wheat-Stem Sawfly, Forest Pest, Woolly Aphis.

CAUSE HEAVY LOSSES

Canada wants more insects. She wants them so badly that a scientist is being sent post-haste to Central Europe by the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Empire Marketing Board, with instructions to capture and send the insects back to Canada.

They are wanted to eat three of the Canadian farmer's worst enemies—the Balsam woolly aphis, a forest insect called Diprion polytomum, and the wheat-stem sawfly.

Recently the Department of Agriculture wrote to the British Parasite Breeding Laboratory at Farnham Royal, England (the central insect parasite breeding and distributing centre for the Empire, whose Director, Dr. W. R. Thompson, is a Canadian Scientist) and asked their help in combating the present severe outbreak of the forest insect in the Gaspe Peninsula, Quebec. They also asked for assistance in fighting the plague of balsam wooly aphis, which is causing serious injury to Balsam fir in the Maritime Provinces. If this infection spreads throughout the eastern forests (as it threatens to do) enormous losses in pulp wood will result.

Combing the Continent

The only hope seems to lie in the introduction of a parasite to check the advance of this woolly aphis. The pest came originally from Europe. But it is not common, the scientists will have to comb the Continent to find its insect parasites. These insects will then be brought carefully home and bred by experts at the Farnham Royal laboratories, which are maintained by the Empire Marketing Board.

Nearly one million insect parasites have now been bred and dispatched from Farnham Royal to all parts of the Empire. Several Canadian problems have been investigated during the three years of the Laboratory's life. Recently, for instance, a parasite was found for the Lecanium Scale which attacks larch trees in Vancouver. Mr. A. Gibson, the Dominion Entomologist, estimated that the introduction of the parasite saved the Vancouver Parks Board about $1,000.00 a year. The danger that the Lecanium scale would turn its unwelcome attention to the British Columbian apple orchards was also averted.

The Wheat-Stem Sawfly

The wheat-stem sawfly, one of the Western farmer's major problems, has been successfully tackled. Officers of the Farnham Royal laboratories collect parasites in France and bred them up in England. Last season several large consignments of broken wheat straw, containing sawflies plus parasites, were packed in special boxes and shipped to Canada. These parasites have been released in the wheat fields, and up to date are doing well. The Department of Agriculture has given funds to the laboratory to cover part of the cost of this season's shipments of parasites.

GRANTED CERTIFICATE

Noble I. Metcalf, Bowmanville, Ont., has been granted an R.O.P. certificate for the seven year old Holstein cow, Jane Triumph, bred by James Sweeney, Peterborough, Ont. In a lactation period of 323 days, this cow produced 13,630 lbs. milk, containing 618.75 lbs. butter, giving her the creditable average test of 3.63 per cent. fat. Her record was made on twice a day milking.

INDIANS FINED FOR TRAPPING; GAVE UP RIGHTS IN 1925 TREATY

Whetung Brothers of Dunsford Set Traps on Emily Creek.

TRIAL AT LINDSAY

LINDSAY, May 11.—An interesting test case involving the rights of Indians to trap over drowned lands where signs prohibiting trapping have been posted was disposed of by Police Magistrate Jordan today.

Arthur and Howard Whetung, Mississauga Indians, of Dunsford, were both found guilty and fined $17.15 each or in default of payment ten days in jail. The accused were undecided whether to pay the fine or take the term. They were represented by J. P. Mangan of Oshawa, who intimated that he might appeal the decision or move to quash the conviction on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction on the part of the magistrate, considering the question of title which entered into the argument.

The case was featured by considerable cross firing between Crown Attorney Anderson and counsel for the accused. It appears that William Arnott, a Verulam Township, had posted the land in question—drowned land on the border of Emily Creek—with signs prohibiting trapping and hunting. When Arnott saw the Whetungs trapping he lifted their traps and later laid the information. The Whetungs held that three generations of their people had trapped over that land for sixty-four years. They had never been bothered and had never asked permission to trap there.

Arthur Whetung said he had gone in when he had seen the notices because he believed he had the right to trap on drowned land. Mr. Mangan, counsel for the accused, based his claim on the statute of limitation and the doctrine of lost grant, and the Whetungs had trapped over his particular land for so long, they had gained the right to trap there. Since the question of title was involved, he claimed the case could not be decided by magistrate. Crown Attorney Anderson held that Joseph Whetung in his evidence had stated that the trapping rights had been signed away. The government has paid the Indians a large sum of money for those trapping rights. In view of this as well as the fact that Arnott owned the land, he claimed there was ample evidence to justify a conviction. Mr. Mangan pointed out that by the treaty of 1925 the Indians did not sign their right away as set forth in the statute of limitation. Police Magistrate Jordan, in passing judgment, pointed out that he could not see how the Indians could have the rights when they had signed the treaty of 1925. They had no right to go on Arnott's land.

It was announced today that fully one hundred and fifty thousand bushels of grain will be moved by the C.P.R. from the terminals at Port McNicoll and Midland for the east. It is believed in some circles that this constitutes part of a purchase made by Soviet Russia.

As a result of the recent rains, many of the side roads are reported to be in bad condition. The Provincial Highway between Lindsay and Fenelon Falls is barely passable. Motorists from Peterborough and points east, who have been using the detour on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway round the bend of the river, will be obliged to travel this stretch until well on in July. It is announced that the new concrete bridge over the Scugog will not be open for traffic until some time that month. Some 1700 tons of concrete has been poured into the deck of the structure, while ninety tons of steel has been used for reinforcement. The bridge is the first structure of its kind to be erected in Canada.

Kawartha Chapter I.O.D.E. is making preliminary preparations for the general meeting of the Provincial organization in Lindsay this year.

Play Is Presented In Warkworth Hall

WARKWORTH, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—A play, "For Fifty Thousand Dollars and a String of Pearls" was put on in the town hall here on Friday evening under the auspices of the Dartford United Church. In spite of the inclement weather there was a good attendance. The hearty applause which the players received expressed much appreciation for the way each one acquitted themselves of the different roles.

The cast of characters is as follows: Jerry Colewell, a thriftless farmer, Arthur Ward; Phebie, his complaining wife, Mrs. A. Lockhart; George Colewell, Jerry's rich uncle, Earl Nelson; Martha, his wife, Mildred Nelson; Doris Colewell, Jerry's orphan niece, Alta Dulmage; Bud Goodyear, a ward of George Colewell, George Nelson; Reginald Greenwell, Phebie's brother, James Bailey; Jessie Smith, maid at Jerry Colewell's, Edna Nelson; Bill Squires, hired boy at Jerry's, Percy Honey; Lawyer Biggs, George Colewell's legal adviser, Charles Honey; Miss Teresa Jones, Doris' escort, Jean Copperthwaite; Miss Patmore, nurse, Mae Watters.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolfraim and family of Castleton visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Harper on Sunday.

Mr. Gerald Smale of Toronto spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Smale.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Maycock, Mr. Everett Maycock, Mrs. Elmer Oliver and baby spent the week-end in Toronto.

Clare German and friend have returned to Clinton after spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. German.

Missionary Society Meeting At Madoc

Madoc, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. George Maybee on Thursday afternoon, May 5th, with a very fair attendance.

Sentence prayers were offered by Mesdames Wickham, Maybee and Dingman for special phases of the work. Treasurer's and committee reports were received, after which Mrs. Maybee, Sr. gave a paper on "The Grace of Stewardship," and Mrs. Wickham on "Judas, the man who might have been." A group of readings was given in synopsis on "The Ministry of Prayer"; petition taken by Mrs. Nickle; intercession by Mrs. Bristol; faults of prayer by Mrs. Hamm and rewards of prayer by Mrs. Ashley. A very interesting report of the recent Presbyterial was then given by Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Frank Dafoe, who was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for their graphic account of the addresses and discussions of the Belleville Presbyterial. A social half hour followed.

Mrs. Smith, Sr., celebrated her birthday on Mother's Day, and sons and daughters with the grandchildren were gathered for the birthday dinner at the home of her son, Wilfred, on South Durham street.

AIRPORT ON CITY ISLAND

Auckland, N.Z., is considering placing its first airport on Pollen's Island, which is owned by the city, and to have the work done by the unemployed. The plans were considered during the opening recently of the Avondale street car system which will run to a point near the island.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 11.—Receipts of butter from Ontario points were not heavy yesterday, and, though Montreal reported an easier feeling, prices were firm. Local brokers were quoting No. 1 creamery solids at 17½c and No. 2 at 16½c, with the latter grade scarce. Creamery men reported that 90 per cent of the cream received recently had graded No. 1, and, combined with the fact that regraded storage stocks have been largely depleted, and the backward season, have resulted in a lack of second grade. Conditions on this market have been unusual this year, for the spring season. The general price spread between No. 1 and No. 2 grades holds to 1c per pound, but there have been quotations where the difference in price levels has been narrower. The weakness at Montreal will of course, be reflected locally when the shipments from the West stop here for the higher prices but to what extent the West will be able to ship is the important matter. Recent reports from the West show that production there has been disappointing.

Cream

Cream prices held steady yesterday, local creamerymen offering 16c to 17c for special, 15c to 16c for No. 1, and 12c to 13c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points. Cream prices have reached the right ration, as far as the butter market is concerned, but weakness in the latter will call for changes.

Cheese

Trade in new cheese has not been active recently, and yesterday was no exception. The new low levels for new makes were about steady on this market, brokers quoting large at 9½c, twins at 9¾c, and triplets at 10c. Wholesalers offered the trade new makes at 11c for large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets, and 13½c for stiltons, with old makes at 17c for large, 17¼c for twins and 17½c for triplets.

Eggs

Though the prices on eggs were steady, there was an easier feeling on the local market. Brokers sold current receipts at 16c for extras, 14c for firsts, and 12c to 12½c for seconds, graded in used cases, and storage packed at 16½c to 17c for extras, and 15½c to 16c for firsts, but the demand was not too keen. Prices to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were steady at 14c for extras, 12c for firsts, and 10c for seconds, and retails were quoted unchanged levels at 20c for extras in cartons, 18c for extras loose, 16c for firsts loose and 14c for seconds loose. There were some sales to the trade at prices ½c lower than those shown above.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 11.— Butter, cheese and egg prices were fractionally lower on the Montreal dairy and produce markets yesterday as receipts improved and warm sunny weather forecast increased production in the country.

The butter market eased ¼c per pound, becoming generally 16¼c to 16½c for best No. 1, fresh or regraded, in car lots or less. Prices to retailers as quoted by jobbers were being shaded in instances and were 18c to 19c for solids and 19c to 20c for prints. Receipts were 286 boxes.

The cheese market was 9¼c to 8¾c per pound for current receipts. Arrivals were 1,777 boxes.

Egg Prices

The egg market was quoted at 17c to 17½c for extras, 14½c to 15c for firsts and 12½c to 13c for seconds, per dozen, in car lots or less, from Ontario and the Prairie Provinces. Receipts were 5,207 cases.

On the potato market, new Florida No. 2 sold at $8 to $8.50 per barrel. There were no No. 1 quality new potatoes available. Old potatoe prices were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 11.— Enlarged export business in North American wheat, together with broadening of famine advices from parts of Russia, had a strengthening effect on grain values yesterday.

United States Government crop estimates issued after trading was over were construed as decidedly bullish, 1932 yield of winter wheat forecast, 440,771,000 bushels being far less than the average private estimates, 463,000,000.

Russia Buys Wheat

Russia bought three new cargoes of Canadian wheat for immediate shipment to Vladivistok, making eight cargoes from Canada since Wednesday and three cargoes from Australia. It was estimated 1,500,000 bushels of North American wheat taken to-day for overseas, including some hard winter wheat from the United States.

With evening up operations in progress to prepare for the Government crop report this afternoon, wheat closed irregular, ⅛c to ¼c off to ½c up, compared to Monday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅜c higher; oats, ⅛c to ¼c advanced, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 12c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 11. — Uncertainty as to what the United States Government crop report would reveal served to hold wheat trading to a more or less routine affair here yesterday. Values closed ½c to ¼c higher.

May was ½c higher at 62⅛c, July ¼c higher at 63½c, and October ⅝c to ½c higher at 65⅝c to 65¾c.

Some export of wheat for Russia was worked out of Vancouver, but no estimate could be obtained as to the quantity.

Market Opens Higher.

Opening slightly higher, the market idled along until midsession and swung to higher levels on reports that further cargoes had been contracted for Russia from Vancouver. Unofficial sources placed the figure at 800,000 bushels. Accompanying the report came the statement that all No. 3 wheat and lower grades had been cleaned out of Vancouver terminals.

Broomhall reported the outlook in the East as very uncertain, with war clouds circling over China, Japan, and Russia. With the exception of Russian export, the day was uneventful, traders preferring to await announcement of United States visible figures.

There was a fair demand for cash wheat at fractionally higher prices. Coarse grains featured a small export in barley. Persistent reports that Russia was inquiring for quantities of rye could not be traced. Values moved in sympathy with wheat.

Death Of Member Mourned By Society

BETHANY, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Flack on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock with 16 members present and the president in the chair.

Much regret was expressed by the president at the sudden death of a member that morning, who was one of the most valued workers of the society. In January, the society was bereaved of the vice-president, a sister of the deceased lady, adding greatly to the sorrow of the society.

One new member joined and after the business part of the meeting discussion followed, we parting from the president at an early date. As nothing definite could be stated, no official change was made at the meeting.

Work was started and continued for a couple of hours on piecing a quilt. Some phonograph selections were enjoyed during the afternoon and at the close of the meeting, the hostess, Mrs. Flack assisted by Miss Kelr and G. A. Ironside.

The late Mr. Rutherford died on Sunday night after a period of ill health. He was in his 60th year. Born in Castleton, Ont., on April 7, 1873, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rutherford, for many years he was a well-known cheesemaker of the county.

Coming to Campbellford ten years ago, he opened a dairy business in town which he has operated until his death. He was a prominent member of Golden Rule Lodge, A. F. and A.M., a member of the Orange Order, was in religion a Presbyterian, being a member of St. Andrew's Church, and in politics a Liberal.

Surviving are his widow; one son, Wallace at home; one brother, John Douglas Rutherford of Oshawa; and two sisters, Mrs. Henry Warner of Colborne, and Mrs. F. E. Snedeker of Collingwood, New Jersey.

Sunday Hostess, Mrs. Flack Assisted by Miss Kelr and G. A. Ironside.

Mrs. Martin invited the ladies to hold the June meeting at her home, the invitation being accepted for June 7th.

SERVICES ARE HELD BALLYDUFF CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Cameron, Head of Young People's Work in Canada, is Speaker.

BALLYDUFF, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Special Sunday School anniversary services in connection with Ballyduff Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday, May 8, with large congregations gathering afternoon and evening to listen to very powerful addresses delivered by the special speaker, Rev. Dr. Canawan, who is head of young people's work in Canada and is responsible for the preparation of the Mother's Day order of service leaflets used in Presbyterian Churches throughout the land on Mother's Day. Previous to the afternoon church service the Sunday School in a body were delighted by an address especially for their benefit while earlier in the day Dr. Canawan had addressed large gatherings at Janetville Church.

Rev. V. Walker, pastor of the church, warmly welcomed the many visiting worshippers and in a few well chosen words introduced the special speaker.

A large boy's choir with J. J. Clarke of Bethany at the organ and Ben Page with the coronet furnished much appreciated music including two anthems, "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder" and "The Fight is on O' Christian Soldier."

In the afternoon Percy Preston in pleasing voice sang "My Task" while Miss Viola Gray accompanied him at the organ.

Reference was made by the pastor to the splendid work being done by the Young People's Society, which was organized during the past winter and announcement made of a meeting to be held on Wednesday evening, when Rev. C. Smith pastor of Janetville United Church would be the special speaker.

The speaker chose as his afternoon theme Proverbs 22, verse 28 "Remove not the ancient landmarks which thy fathers have set. Reference was made to several ancient landmarks, among them being the family altar in the home, the church and the Bible.

The evening service was devoted particularly to young people, the speaker announcing in the afternoon that those unwilling to be considered old should appear at the evening service.

A male quartet from the Bethany congregation including C. White, E. Bray, H. Preston and J. J. Clarke assisted with music in the evening.

A very liberal Mother's Day offering was contributed at both services the Rev. Dr. Canawan briefly referring to the need as he sees it in his work throughout the Dominion.

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM DAVIS

BETHANY, May 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. William Davis, whose death occurred on Thursday morning in her 80th year after a short illness, was held on Saturday afternoon and the service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Fierheller, who took for his text the 12th verse of Psalm 90, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

The late Mrs. Davis was the fourth daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Byron Twigg, and had spent practically all her life in this community, having been born about two miles west of the village.

She was a devout Christian lady and passessed of a very fine intellect; never forgetting the highest aim to please her Master, whom she loved and served most faithfully. She was a life-long member of the Anglican church and a most faithful member of the Women's Auxiliary, the Bethany branch of the Women's Institute and a constant attendant of the Adult Bible Class of St. Paul's Sunday School.

Left to mourn her loss are her sorrowing husband, one son, Byron, who resides on the old family homstead at Brunswick; four daughters, Mrs. Harry Rogers of Lindsay; Miss Lila Davis of Toronto; Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. James Boggs of Manvers Station; also one sister, three sisters and two brothers having predeceased her.

The burial was made in the family plot at St. Mary's Cemetery, Lifford, and the floral tributes were many and lovely, showing the esteem in which the late Mrs. Davis was held.

WALTER W. RUTHERFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The funeral of the late Walter Wallace Rutherford was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence, Booth street, interment being made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, the Rev. J. C. Robinson officiating. The funeral was under Masonic auspices. The pall bearers, who were all members of the Order being: John Storie, J. Nesbitt, H. Donald, G. Atwell, Charles McKelvie and J. A. Murray. Flower bearers were: J. Allan, H. Dunk, J. McArthur, F. N. Brown, Don Kelr and G. A. Ironside.

KNOX CHURCH DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

"A Deal in Fish" Has Much Romance and Sentiment In It.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT.

"Romance is a cauliflower. And when you boil it down, it smells like cabbage."

Although the above sentence sounds rather satirical, it doesn't really express the sentiment of the play entitled "A Deal in Fish," which the Knox Church Dramatic Club presented in their Leoture Hall last night, under the auspices of the church choir.

The play with the peculior title, which hasn't much of an application to th theme, has a great deal of romance and sentiment in it. In fact, the whole affair revolves about "Lovers' Retreat," a summer hotel in the mountains, where two enterprising young men take on a partnership in a scheme to bring romantic hearts together and incicentally reap the profits from such transactions.

One of theme agrees for a consideration to further the schemes of the socially ambitious Mrs. Hardnock (Mrs. E. Huffman), who is anxious to see her daughters shine in society and wants either one of them to marry Archibald Winterfield (John Donaldson), who is really quite a priceless egg of an Englishman and who becomes involved with a number of heart episodes. The two daughters of the Hardnocks are Ruth (Miss Gladys Chambers) and Betty (Miss Jean Murray), both very much in search of romance.

Then there is John Hardnock himself (Joe Daynes), the business man ambitious for more power and success and president of the Plinko Copper Company. He arrives at the summer resort to foil the plans of his wife.

"Lovers' Retreat."

The two partners in the business of running "Lovers' Retreat" are cheerful youths with a fascinating line of gab. They are Jack Gilmour (Alexander Wedlock) and Bob White (Norman Hughes), and they inject a lot of fun into the piece.

Last, but not least from the point of view of importance, as she throws a wrench into the machinery on several occasions, is Zoie (Miss Margaret Hill), also in search of a husband.

The parts are all very well enacted and the entertaining little comedy drama, in three acts, is splendidly staged, with furniture loaned by the Cain Brothers and with the stage management in charge of George Davis. It has plenty of amusement for the audience the first-night performance last evening receiving attentive and enthusiastic appreciation. It is a light and entertaining drama that will have its second performance tonight, therefore, it would not be fair to outline too fully the plot, which progresses through various entanglements to a very satisfactory conclusion.

The Rev. W. McDonald introduced the piece and thanked those who had helped in its preparation and setting.

The title, "A Deal in Fish," has to do with the quantity of tinned fish purchased by the two youths, the salmon signifying the flush of romantic youth, the sardines the solidity of married life, and the herring the somewhat withered appearance of old age.

This, the third play to be produced this season by this ambitious club of dramatically-minded young people, is under the capable direction of Mrs. H. McLachlan.

During intermissions last night the Cheerio Trio, with Frank Clarke playing banjo and H. J. McCannan and Bert Arnott playing harmonicas, entertained the audience with many tuneful and brisk tunes that set feet a-tapping and included such favorite melodies as "Annie Laurie," "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and the always popular "Golden Slippers." W. R. Potter played piano accompaniments for several of these numbers.

"A Deal in Fish," which hasn't much to do with romance, which, as one of the actors expresses it, "is like a boil—the bigger it gets, the more it hurts when it breaks," will be repeated to-night in Knox Church Lecture Hall.

TRENT EXHIBIT WELL RECEIVED

Exhibit Brings Much Publicity to Trent System at Detroit.

FRED. ROY PRESENT

The Trent Waterways, of which the Peterborough district is an important part, is getting some valuable advertising among American sportsmen this week and big returns are expected this coming summer. An impressive display of the Trent Waterway exhibit is now being shown at the great Sportsmen's Show in Detroit. Fred L. Roy is in charge of the exhibit which is in conjunction with an exhibit of the Ontario Government.

"Sportsmen's Show off to a good start. Ontario Government Trent Waterway exhibit best yet and looking for big crowds," was what Mr. Roy telegraphed The Examiner this afternoon.

ROADS IN FAIR SHAPE SAYS SUPERINTENDENT

County Road Superintendent E. A. Chalmers, who completed an extensive tour of the roads under his control yesterday, in connection with other duties, told The Examiner this morning that the roads, generally speaking, are in fair condition, although not so good as they might be as a consequence of the heavy rains which have been experienced lately.

A large quantity of gravel has been drawn from the county gravel pit in Otonabee Township and placed on the flat road, and the work is just about completed, he stated.

LIGHT OPERA TO BE PRESENTED

St. Andrew's Choir Plans to Present "Sherwood's Queen."

ON TWO EVENINGS

"Sherwood's Queen" is the title of the light opera which will be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week in the Sunday School auditorium of St. Andrew's by the choir of the church, under direction of the organist and choirleader, Thomas Phillips.

The presentation marks the continuation of the anniversary services which commenced on Sunday and the production, which is described as an historic event in the life of Robin Hood, is in two acts, both set in romantic Sherwood Forest, where the gay outlaw chieftain and bonny Maid Marian held their revels.

Robin Hood was the son of a nobleman, born near the famous old town of Uttoxeter in Staffordshire, on the borders of the Royal Forest of Needwood, in the year 1160.

His father, the Earl of Huntingdon, was killed in battle during the invasion of Ireland when Robert was only twelve years of age.

His guardian—an uncle—was a reckless spendthrift, and when the boy was fifteen his castle, lands and cattle had been forfeited for debts contracted by his guardian.

The nobility and clergy of this period oppressed the poor; and the penalty for killing a deer (which was consider suitable food for royalty and nobility only) was to have the forefinger and thumb cut from each hand, or to be put to death by hanging.

When twenty years of age, he escaped from a band of foresters who were taking him to the sheriff at Nottingham for having shot a King's deer; and with two followers he hid from the sheriff's officers in Sherwood Forest. He was then considered an outlaw and gradually gathered around him a band of followers which eventually numbered over one hundred men. Every man was tested for bravery and marksmanship with the bow and arrow, so that even the King's archers or the sherrif's officers were in fear of meeting Robin Hood's men.

They made raids on nobility and clergy, holding up travellers on the highways and making those who could afford it, pay heavy toll.

He was a friend to the poor and oppressed, and did many noble deeds.

Most of the fifty years spent as an outlaw was in the Forest of Sherwood near Nottingham, and Needwood—near Uttoexter.

When about eighty years of age—and threatened by the King's army—the outlaws disbanded and Robin Hood retired to a nunnery where his own cousin was the abbess. He was ill and requested his cousin to bleed him—but instead she cut a larger vein, from which he bled to death.

POT LUCK SUPPER IS HELD AT TRINITY

Trinity United Church Y.W.A. Holds Regular Meeting.

The May meeting of the Y.W.A. of Trinity United Church took the form of a Pot Luck supper, held in Reid street hall, with a full membership in attendance. The majority of the members entertained a guest.

The tables were prettily decorated with spring flowers and a very inviting supper was served.

Later, the business session took place, led by the president, Mrs. A. Parker. Mrs. Morgan read the Devotional lesson, Mrs. H. Dobson and Mrs. R. A. Wainman rendered a beautiful duet, "In the Garden."

Reports were then presented. Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, representative to the Local Council of Women, mentioned the Local Council's tea on May 19th. Arangements were made for holding a strawberry social under Y. W. A auspices on June 24th.

It was also announced that the name of the Y.W.A. has been changed to the Evening Auxiliary.

Mrs. Head read the Watch Tower. Miss Alma Blanchard sang very sweetly and Miss Gow, in a very interesting manner, dealt with chapter four of the Korean Study Book, "the Land of th. Dawn," the subject of the chapter being "Better Health."

NEW ASTRONOMICAL SITE

TORONTO—The Toronto branch of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada will take up location near Lake St. Peter, Que., in order to study the solar eclipse of Aug. 31, it was announced to-day. The party, numbering about 20, plans to observe the shadow bands cast across the earth's surface and if possible to take photographs.

NORHAM CHURCH PRESENTS GIFT TO IBEY FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. John Ibey of Meyersburg Move to Campbellford.

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE

Mission Band Concert Held in Norham Church Hall.

NORHAM, May 11.—On Saturday evening Mrs. Alfred Merrill and Mrs. Blakely, of Meyersburg, and Rev. and Mrs. Clare, of Norham, called on Mr. and Mrs. John Ibey, recently of Meyersburg, in their new home in Campbellford. Mr. Clare, on behalf of the church and their friends and neighbors of Meyersburg, spoke of the regret felt at their departure from the neighborhood and the loss it would be in the church, but wished them many years of happiness in their new home. They were presented with a floor lamp and an electric two-burner plate as a remembrance. Mr. and Mrs. Ibey each expressed their appreciation of the kindness of their Meyersburg friends.

Mission Band Concert.

Although weather conditions were unfavorable, a goodly number turned out on Friday night to the Mission Band concert in Norham Church hall.

The hall was prettily decorated in the Mission Band colors, yellow, green and white, and each member wore streamers of the same colors.

The children had been ably trained by the leader, Mrs. Douglas Knight, and her assistants, Mrs. Stanley Brenton and Mrs. B. West.

Rev. D. R. Clare was the chairman.

The opening chorus, "I Am a Missionary Band," was sung by all the members.

Mrs. Lorne Evans, president of the Women's Missionary Society, spoke on the value of the Mission Band.

An exercise by the little tots, "Mother Goose and Her Missionary Family," was well given.

A recitation by Margaret Plumpton.

A Chinese song, "My Chinese Cousins," was given by Frances Lane and Earl Clare as Canadians and Emma West and Cecil Gummer as Chinese (in costume).

Recitation, "My Birthday Quarter," was given by Ruby Brenton.

An exercise, "The Missionary Dollar and What It Does," was given with Edna Windover representing the missionary dollar and ten boys and girls told what their dimes did.

A chorus, "The Emblem of the Mission Band," was given by the members.

A telephone call, between Norma Hutchison as a Canadian girl and Violet Grills as an Indian maid, was well given.

The closing item was a dialogue of seven short acts, "A Charity Conscience."

The members of the Women's Missionary provided a splendid lunch at the end of the program. The proceeds of the evening were $10.00.

Mothers' Day Services.

The Mothers' Day service was held in the Norham Sunday School on Sunday morning. The church was bright with flowers. The choir was composed of some of the members of the Young People's Bible Class.

Mr. Gordon Mitchell, the efficient superintendent, led the school in the responsive service especially prepared for the day. A dramatized story on "Honor Your Mother" was given, with Earl Clare and Cecil Gummer representing the two boys and Miss Cecil Gummer took the place of Aunt Jean. Mrs. Bert West told the story of the "Scowling Face."

Mrs. Harper, of Warkworth, was the special speaker, and she gave an interesting, instructive and practical talk on "What Mor. y Won't Buy." She spoke first of what money will buy. Then of the many things we have even if we haven't money, such as sunshine and rain, growth, health, character, love, patience. Her remarks were interspersed with bright little illustrations that even the smallest could understand.

The superintendent expressed the appreciation of the school to Mrs. Harper.

At the evening service a mothers' choir provided the music. Mrs. B. West sang, "The Hymns My Mother Sang," with the choir joining in the chorus. The second selection was "Mother's Prayers Do Follow Me." Rev. D. R. Clare spoke on the wives of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Norham Personals.

Miss Eva Platt and Mr. Will Platt motored from Toronto to spend Sunday with their parents.

Rev. and Mrs. Clare were visitors in Belleville on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gummer were called to Stirling on Thursday on account of the death of Mr. Forman, returning on Friday. They were accompanied by Miss Orletta Gummer, who attended the funeral on Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Wilson and Fern visited her mother, Mrs. Runnells, of Dartford, for a couple of days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. David Evans were visitors to Trenton on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Anderson were in Campbellford on Saturday.

Messrs. Leonard Langford and Arthur McKenzie motored to Eddystone on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cole, of Oak Heights, attended the Mothers' Day service at Norham Church on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Leah, Mrs. Fairman and Miss Fairman, of Belleville, visited Mrs. Oscar Laver on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McCord and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Merrells were visitors at Mr. Bert Nelson's on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Windover and family were the guests of Mrs. Puddephatt, of Codrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Foster, of Hillier, and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Foster, of Picton, visited their mother, Mrs. Denike, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac, of Warkworth, spent Sunday with their son, B. Isaac, and family, of Norham.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Honey and son were the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Diamond, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Newman and son, W. J., visited friends at Castleton on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peirson, of Vernonville, were visitors to Norham this week.

Mrs. George Evans is confined to her home through illness.

On Friday the school teacher and pupils celebrated Arbor Day by a general clean-up of the school ground. In the afternoon all went on a fishing party.

The splendid rain of Friday and Saturday brought much needed moisture to the country and has clothed it in bright green.

COMMEMORATE RED CROSS DAY

Birthday of Florence Nightingale Was on May 12.

49 OUTPOST HOSPITALS

"In every part of the Empire" said Norman Somerville, Chairman of the Council and Executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society, May 12th will be commemorated as British Empire Red Cross Day. It is the birthday of Florence Nightingale who, besides her other invaluable services to her country, inspired the founding of the Red Cross. The seed planted by Florence Nightingale in the mind of Henri Dunant of Geneva, the actual founder of the Red Cross, has grown into a mighty tree with many branches. In addition to the care given by the Red Cross to the sick and wounded of armies and prisoners of war, the Red Cross, not only in Canada and throughout the Empire, but everywhere in the world, has originated and fostered many peace-time activities of supreme value.

"Under the Red Cross flag which flew last year over 49 Outpost Hospitals and Nursing Stations in pioneer districts of Canada, 34,028 patients were cared for. Among these were 1,317 babies who first saw the light of day under its kindly ministrations."

Mr. Sommerville spoke of the 237,974 Canadian school children who were active Junior members of the Red Cross in Canada last year. He said that this phase of Red Cross work had proved successful almost beyond the dreams of those who initiated it 11 years ago. About the middle of last century Florence Nightingale had seen the enormous possibilities of inspiring children to live healthily and unselfishly but two generations passed before her vision was realized. To-day the world-wide "Junior Red Cross" is profoundly influencing the habits and thoughts of millions of children of every race, creed and color.

"Because of all the relief work the Red Cross has had to do our Branches are very busy. Almost like the war days over again," said Mr. Sommerville. "Besides caring for the sick and helpless many thousands of ex-service men have been helped. Directly or indirectly we have had to do with twenty-four hostels for the unemployed. We have ourselves lodged and fed over 6,000 homeless ex-service men in various parts of Canada. The National Emergency Fund has enabled us to furnish clothing and other relief to over seventy thousand people.

"Florence Nightingale served the sick as an army nurse and as an individual. She had no organized body of support. To-day the Red Cross is fulfilling her ideals. Not one person but thousands and thousands of men and women in Canada are carrying out, through the Red Cross, the plans she formulated and are making realities out of her visions."

Pickerel Season Opens On May 16th

Pickerel fishing opens on the morning of May 16, having been set back over two weeks under the new fishing law enacted at Ottawa on March 26 this year. Section 8, Sub-Section 2, reads: "No one shall catch pickerel, perch, pike, or dore from April 1st to May 15, both dates inclusive."

Nearly $2,000,000 is being spent in the construction of buildings in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

APRIL MEETING OF X.L. MISSION

Pleasing Program Carrying Out Mother's Day Spirit is Presented.

PIANO SELECTIONS.

Mrs. Alex Rosborough, Gladstone avenue, lent her home last night to the girls of the X.L. Mission Circle for the April meeting. Thirty-two members braved the rain and were awarded by the specially fine program over which Miss Jessie Martin presided.

Carrying out the Mother's Day idea, the devotional period stressed mother love in the hymns sung, the scripture lesson read by Gladys Langton, Zoe McDonald, prayer offered by Edith Wright.

The business consisted of the reception of fees and offering and plans for future work. The roll call was responded to by the large membership present and the program of music and study proceeded. Edgar Guest's "Spirit of Home" given by Jean Hammond also paid tribute to mothers.

A delightful quartette "Waiting and Working" was sung by Misses Gladys Langton, Goe McDonald, Marion Wood and Jennie Smart. "Mothers in Korea" was given by Mabel Copeon in her interesting reading in which she compared these mothers and their care of children with our own Christian Canadian motherhood.

As a pleasing variation in the program Margaret Smart contributed a group of attractive piano selections.

The high light in all meetings of the X.L. Circle is the study period taken in town by the members and the story of Korea, "Land of Dawn" told in their own words, is presented at the meeting. Last night the story was given by Miss Marion Wood in her pleasing and inimitable style, when she explained how the hospital work was carried out by the medical missionaries in Korea.

A hymn was followed with prayer by Connie Wagar concluding this part of the program.

Mrs. Roseborough was assisted during the social half hour by Mesdames E. Kitney and W. M. Wood. A jolly telegram contest using the initial letters in the X.L. Circle provided much amusement.

The tea room was pretty with spring May flowers and the service of dainty refreshments brought another successful Circle meeting to a conclusion.

Orange Rally Held In The Norwood Hall

NORWOOD, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—A County Orange Rally was held in the town hall on Friday evening when a splendid crowd attended from all over the community. Norwood was chosen as a rallying point being easy accessible to all lodges in the county.

Rt. Wor. Bro. H. C. Shipman, Grand Master of Ontario East, of the Loyal Orange Lodge, who is holding a series of special county "Forward Drive" meetings throughout his jurisdiction was the special speaker for the evening with several of his staff.

This aim is to stimulate enthusiasm for the principles of Orangeism among the various lodges in the community.

Noted British Flyer To Wed Amy Johnson

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)— J. A. Mollison, noted British flyer, who announced his engagement to Amy Johnson, foremost British aviatrix yesterday, will not allow his impending marriage to interfere with a proposed flight to and from New York at the end of June.

Mollison plans to take off from Dublin, fly to New York, remain there to snatch a few hours sleep and then take off again for Croydon, near London. He hopes to complete the round trip in 2½ days.

Up to now he has refused his intended wife's request to accompany him. There is a possibility he may attempt the flight alone, or that Capt. J. Patrick Saul, who accompanied Commodore Kingsford-Smith on his trans-Atlantic flight, may go along. His friends said there was only a bare possibility that he might finally consent to Miss Johnson's request.

N.Y.C. OMITS DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, May 11 (C.P.)—Directors of the New York Central Railroad Company, at their meeting to-day, decided to omit the dividend on the common stock due at this time.

JUDGE RULES MAN MAY BE INSANE YET MAKE WILL SATISFACTORILY

Two Sons of Cartwright Township Farmer Lose Appeal.

TORONTO, May 11.—A man may be insane and yet have enough testamentary capacity to make a will, Chief Justice Mulock declared in the Appellate Court at Osgoode Hall yesterday. An insane person, the chief justice said, might have "lucid moments" when he would draw his will as sanely as desired.

His lordship's remarks were made in giving judgment dismissing the appeal of sons of the late James Hooey, township of Cartwright farmer, who asked that their father's will of Dec. 4, 1930, be declared invalid for lack of testamentary capacity. Judge Huycke had previously upheld the contention of the executors, and made an order admitting the will to probate.

The will disposed of an estate of $16,000. The appellants, George and Edmund Clement Hooey, sons of the testator's first wife, were each left $500, the residue of the estate being divided between Velma May Hooey and Myrtle Hooey, daughters of the testator's second wife. The executors who brought the action before Judge Huycke were William Beacock, clerk of the township of Cartwright and Samuel Foster, Ferguson, gentleman.

James Hooey died Jan. 18, 1931.

Question of Fact

"The question concerned here," said the chief justice "is one of fact. When the testator heard that his sons were dissatisfied with his first will be intimated that he desired to make another. To guard against trouble he bequeathed to each of them $500.

"He didn't call in his own physician because he considered he was too favorable towards his sons. He seemed to have a clear idea of the position. The sons had set up for themselves. It impresses us a reasonable will. But reasonable or unreasonable a man has a right to make his will as he likes. There seemed at any rate, a sufficient reason for his own conduct and no evidence of testamentary incapacity. The estate was a simple one and the testator knew perfectly well the natural objects of his bounty, the children. It has been pointed out that even an insane man may have lucid moments in which he can give effect to his reasonable intentions."

ACCEPT SMALL SALARY CUT.

BROCKVILLE, May 11 (C.P.).—Members of the staff of the Brockville Collegiate Institute have notified the Board of Education of their voluntary acceptance of a reduction in their salaries of two and one-half per cent., governing the year 1932-33.

Views Of Peterborough Manufacturers Being Taken In Regard To Empire Trade

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in obtaining the views of local manufacturers with regard to Empire Trade, and has distributed among the leading manufacturers here an Empire Trade Enquiry.

A meeting will shortly be called and a report forwarded to the Canadian Chamber, for submission to the Imperial Economic Conference to be held at Ottawa in July.

The "enquiry" constituted a questionaire, and is most comprehensive in the numerous points it covers. It is stated in an open letter on the front of the "enquiry": "The Imperial Conference at Ottawa this mid-summer should prove a landmark in Empire economic relations. An unique opportunity, moreover, is before Canada to give leadership to this Conference. It seems reasonable to think therefore, that the business interests across the Dominion will wish to share and co-ordinate their views on Empire Trade and to emphasize not only our ability to sell but also our willingness to buy. 'Purchasing in the Empire' might well be the slogan with which we enter this Conference.

WOULD RETIRE HON. W. J. ROCHE

Civil Service Commission Also to Lose Tremblay and McTavish.

GRATUITIES FAVORED.

OTTAWA, May 11 (C.P.)—Recommendation for the retirement of Hon. W. J. Roche after "long and meritorious years of service" and of Commissioners Newton McTavish and J. Emil Tremblay—the three civil service commissioners—is made in the report of the Commons committee which investigated the administration of the Civil Service Act. The report was tabled in the House this afternoon by J. Earl Lawson (Cons., York West).

The committee recommends:—

"That the present chairman (Dr. Roche) of the civil service commission, who has now passed the age of seventy years, be retired; that because of his long and meritorious years of service in the public service of Canada and as chairman of the civil service commission of Canada, he be granted a gratuity.

"That Commissioner J. Emile Tremblay be retired; that, because of his twenty-two years of service in the public service of Canada, he be granted a gratuity;

"That Commissioner Newton McTavish be retired and, in lieu of notice, be granted a gratuity."

Overlapping.

The committee has a reference to the secretary of the commission, William J. Foran. It finds that there is a great deal of overlapping in the performance of duties by the heads of different branches of the Civil Service Commission "owing to matters receiving the attention of the secretary of the commission which are in no way related to secretarial duties." Recommendation is made that the secretary, William J. Foran, be called upon to perform only those duties which are "peculiarly those of a secretary," and that the Civil Service Commission consider ways and means of eliminating duplication of correspondence and departmental memoranda which now pass through the secretary to the commissioners.

The committee adds that it has been impressed with the integrity of the assistant secretary, C. H. Bland.

Postmasters hereafter appointed to revenue post offices having a revenue in excess of $3,000 per annum, the report recommends, "shall be within the full operation of the Civil Service Act," and that such amendments as are necessary be made to the Civil Service Act for that purpose.

Exemption Under $3,000.

Exemption from the Civil Service Act of postmasters in revenue post offices where the revenue does not exceed 3,000 per annum is recommended by the committee.

Rejection of an appointee of the Civil Service Commission by a deputy minister should only be for "cause," the committee considers. "The Department of Justice," the report states in this connection, "having ruled that Section 24 of the Civil Service Act permits the deputy head of a department to reject an appointee of the Civil Service Commission without reasons stated therefor, and without trial, your committee recommends that the deputy head of a department have power to reject only for cause, and that such cause be specifically stated."

An amendment of the Civil Service Act as to the length of residence in Canada required for eligibility for apoointment in the Civil Service is advocated. The report urges that the length of residence in this country before appointment should be five years in place of three years. The five year proposal conforms with the naturalization Act which stipulates that an applicant for naturalization must have lived five years in Canada.

MISSIONARY HALL MORTGAGE BURNED

Good Program Provided at Havelock Event—Women's Association Holds Entertainment.

HAVELOCK, May 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Monday evening was a pleasant occasion for the friends of the Havelock Mission Hall, who had assembled there in full strength to bid farewell to their old friend, the mortgage, and to see the latter document go up in smoke at the hands of Alex Smith, it having outlived its usefulness.

The following associates in the work of spreading the gospel in this district who were present were Rev. M. E. Wilson, S. A. Kemp, Mr. Eberstein, superintendent of Faith Mission of Great Britain and Ireland, the Misses Gibb and Denyer, pilgrims from the same Mission. Rev. Mr. Kemp was the able chairman who presided over the following program, vocal solo, Miss Denyer; address, Rev. Mr. Wilson; solo, Mr. Armson; address on Home Mission work, Mr. Eberstein; solo, Mrs. Chase; address on need of evangelists in rural districts, Miss Gibb. Mrs. Kinnaird gave a brief outline of the work of the mission its organization to meet the needs of those who did not attend any church, and the success which has attended the work, which had far exceeded her expectations. The meeting closed with singing of "The Old account is settled" and "Long Ago."

Your Mother and Mine

The Women's Association of the United Church, under the able leadership of Miss Minnie Williams president, assisted by Mrs. (Rev.) Kemp, and Mrs. Coates gave a most enjoyable and versatile entertainment in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, May 5th entitled "Your Mother and Mine."

The program consisted of choruses, duets, quartets, solos, dialogues, recitations, playettes and life studies in repose, all in honor of the dearest and best friend on earth—Mother.

The theme was most appropriate and the presentation of the various numbers most artistic and effective. Subdued light was thrown on the stage for the dream pictures, giving a touch of that indefinable something of which dreams are made.

Even the children took their part with pleasing aplomb, which speaks volumes for those who trained them. The acting of the playettes was exceedingly well sustained, those taking part throwing themselves wholly into the spirit of the pieces, and giving another demonstration of the histrionic ability of "Our ain folk."

Each number was received with hearty and well deserved applause. During intermissions appropriate music was furnished by Miss Williams at the piano, assisted by Ronald and Gray Kemp, with saxaphone and drum.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close, one of the best entertainments of the season, and one which will linger in the memories of those who attended, as an added halo around the head of "Mother."

Fry—Griffith Trial

Thursday, May 12th is the day set for the trial between F. F. Fry of Belmont and W. E. Griffith. Considerable interest centres around this the second trial, since it is expected that His Honor Judge Huycke will make known the much talked of decision. A. E. Peck is acting for Mr. Griffith, while W.F. Huycke represents Mr. Fry.

Kidney and Bladder Trouble

Relieved by Anuric

Chatham, Ont.—"I had an acute case of kidney trouble; it was really kidney and bladder colic. I became stiff and sore all over and my kidneys and bladder were so congested that I went for a whole day without passing any secretion," said Mrs. Amelia Rushmore, of 81 Scane Street. "I was suffering something awful. Finally I took Dr. Pierce's Anuric, and it completely relieved me of this spell with my kidneys and bladder, and I have never had another attack." Sold by all druggists.

TORONTO TERMS DRAW CRITICISM

Hamilton Magistrate Says "They Will Be Slapping Someone on the Wrist Yet."

QUOTES LIGHT SENTENCES

HAMILTON, May 11 (CP). Magistrate Burbidge in police court here to-day directed sharp criticisms of the administration of justice in Toronto, when two men, John Kelley and Ernest Johnson, appeared before him for sentence on charges of vagrancy.

Johnson was given two months in jail to be followed by deportation and Kelly was allowed out on probation.

Perusing the record of Kelly, Magistrate Burbridge said: "In Toronto they will be slapping some one on the wrist one of these days." He gave instances of cases of sentences of 60 days for assault and robbery, 10 days for theft, six months for possession of drugs and other short terms for offenses of a more or less serious nature.

Bridgenorth

Very interesting Mother's Day services were conducted on the Bridgenorth Circuit on Sunday when the churches were beautifully decorated with flowers and plants. At Bridgenorth Church, recitations were given by Ina Robinson, Clarissa White and Mary Moore; at Fairview by Keith Mahood, Carman Bell, Marjorie Mahood and Miss Deck and at Selwyn, Clayton Fitzgerald, Russel Elliott, Morley Nixon and Miss Jean McIlmoyle gave readings. All readings were on the subject "Mother." The pastor's address on Mother stressed the fact that while other things come in twos and more, one has but one Mother and that Mother stands for the three main things in life, "Love, Home and Religion." These thoughts were illustrated by the discourse and poetic selections.

The Misses Pauline and Lillie Udy have returned to their home at Chemong after having spent the winter with their brother at London, Ontario.

The Misses Hilda and Olive Bell were guests at the parsonage for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Telford are moving to their summer home from Peterborough.

Messrs. Garbutt Mann, George Ball and W. J. Telford motored to Mr. Ball's home at Vennacher for the week-end.

Mr. Smith Kelly, of Toronto, renewed acquaintances in the village on Friday.

Mr. W. Sidey and Rev. R. J. Merriam attended the Peterborough Presbytery meeting in George Street Church on Monday, May 9.

The members of the Ladies' Aid held their regular monthly meeting in the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon when in the absence of the president, Mrs. L. McIlmoyle, Mrs. R. Petterson took the chair. During the transaction of business it was decided to hold a strawberry festival on the lawn in the early party of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Sisson were the guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Wheeler, for Mother's Day.

FOURTH LINE.

Mr. Harold Masterson spent the week-end with Mr. Dan Kincaid.

Miss Cecelia Cassidy, of Tweed, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cassidy.

Miss Irene Masterson visited Miss Jennie Fox over the week-end.

STOCO.

Mr. Clayton Murphy, of Erinsville, spent a few days visiting friends in this vicinity.

Miss Gertrude Cassidy spent the week-end with Miss Eliza Cassidy.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leveck visited Mr. and Mrs. Pat Fleming.

Mrs. Dennis Healey spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tracey.

Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Whalen and family visited the latter's mother, Mrs. Ford, of Read, over the week-end.

Miss Regea Keegan, of Napanee spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. William Doran, Mr. and Mrs. John Cassidy and Mrs. Peter Cassidy spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Taylor of Marlbank.

Advertising for the Merchant of To-Day

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough District with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

MAKING TWO SALES INSTEAD OF ONE

In these days of climbing overhead, profits come from decreasing cost per sale $—by better advertising to bring more people into the store—more unit sales and increased dollar value of sales.

The merchant's rent, taxes, proprietor's salary, clerk hire, etc., and items entering into his overhead are pretty well fixed and reduction in cost is barely possible without lowering quality of service.

The average daily expense divided by number of sales per day gives the unit cost of sale—that is, if the total yearly expense averages $20.00 per day and the average number of sales per day was fifty—the cost of making each sale would be forty cents—whether it be a ten-cent spool of thread or a twenty-five dollar dress.

Considering then that this unit cost of making sales is the same regardless of dollar value, it is evident that increase of size of sale lowers the percentage of sale cost. Personal effort, store policy, and store display should be built around a definite policy of increasing the size of individual sale—by(a) selling additional relative products by suggestion;

(b) selling the larger sized packages;

(c) selling more packages of the same product.

(a) With shoes should be sold rubber heels—rubbers in season—running shoes for children at the approach of Summer season. With flour and other cookery products should be linked up other cooking ingredients.

Where the commodities supplied are in almost daily need, the merchant can create further sales by mentioning a few other lines. Undoubtedly the average housewife appreciates this "service" if it is not overdone.

"A trade paper tells how General Foods sent a group of women representatives to call on 200 retail grocers and buy a loaf of bread or a package of cake flour and then spend anything up to $5.00 for what the individual grocer might suggest."

The most that any of these women shoppers spent on goods suggested by a grocer was $1.60. Many were able to spend less than fifty cents, in face of the fact that each of these two hundred grocers could have sold $5.00 worth of goods if he had exercised sales initiative.

(b) Many products are put up in two sizes—the smaller size intended for those who are only testing the product, with the large size for those who are using it regularly. The larger size usually gives somewhat better value and saves the customer money. It is usually better to sell the larger package—better for your customer and better for you—as while one 65c sale may not seem as profitable as a 35c package to-day and another three weeks hence, you might not get the second 35c sale.

Place the customer's needs if possible on a plane above what may be in their minds. If the customer says sugar and they usually buy in five-pound lots, you say ten pounds, and you probably sell the ten pounds—same time—a trifle more string and paper bag.

(c) The lines that are put up in one sized packages also offer excellent opportunity for increased sales. Thread 3 spools instead of one—shoe laces half a dozen or a dozen instead of a pair—tins of soup, 10c, three for 27c—breakfast food three instead of one even if you cut a little on the large quantity. Silk stockings two or three shades or weights, day or evening wear. Men's hose, two or three instead of a pair—much more comfort for the wearer—sell him also a better quality. Underwear, three suits instead of two to the advantage of the customer and your own.

Leaders—pick one article in each department each week, bring it to the attention of customers that week.

All through the picture there are many ways of increasing sales to your benefit and the benefit of the customer.

Next Week—Good Salesmanship

FASHION SERVICE

Extremely effective for the older woman is to-day's model. Few materials are so becoming to matrons as a small patterned crepe silk print chosen for to-day's model. It is navy blue and white. Plain blue crepe made the bodice and sleeves. The belt is worn at the normal waistline.

The pointed treatment of the hipline is very slendering.

Style No. 2853 is designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust.

Sheer crepes in floral or dotted prints are fascinating for afternoons.

Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material with 1⅛ yards of 39-inch contrasting.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred). Price of book, 15 cents. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

Henry Endorses Bonusing Of Coal

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.).—"I am very glad to learn the Dominion Government is giving a close study to this subject," declared Premier George S. Henry of Ontario, in referring to the action of the Federal Government in bonusing Nova Scotia coal in order that it might enter the Ontario-Quebec market. "This Province is disposed to co-operate in relation to the public use of fuel from any part of the Dominion where such a course is practicable," he said, having in mind the cost of the fuel we have been using up to the present.

A Saskatchewan clay has been found suitable for the manufacture of a high temperature cement.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

One of the difficult things in life which most persons have to put up with at one time or another is working under the direction of someone who knows little or nothing about the work.

• • • • • • •

Most of you have been on some committee whose chairman was unfamiliar with the complications which could arise in accomplishing the job before the committee.

• • • • • • •

The work in itself would seem easy when discussed. The chairman would consider it so and be amazed when things didn't run to schedule. Yet you, as the one to whom the lot of accomplishing the matter fell, found no detail without its obstacle.

• • • • • • •

To make the chairman understand why delays occurred, why outlays were imperative, why materials could not be assembled, etc., seemed almost impossible.

• • • • • • •

When a woman has once had a taste of working under an inefficient chief, or one who did not know the ins and outs of the work, she declares to herself that she will never lack understanding nor ask the impossible of anyone should she, herself, ever be in the position of director.

• • • • • • •

The woman who has never done her own work, must have a good imagination and a good executive head if she does not ask her maid at some time or another, to do more than she can in a given time.

• • • • • • •

To the maid the mistress must appear unreasonable. On the other hand a maid often expects the impossible of a mistress. The maid would find it quite as difficult to understand the complexities of a social life and its exacting requirements as the mistress to understand the reasons and the obstacles which hinder the doing of expected tasks.

• • • • • • •

There are some helpful considerations worth thinking about for all. Be on the watch for good things. Note them either to yourself or with words of praise.

• • • • • • •

Most persons work at highest speed and at best when they get encouragement not fault finding. Train yourself to see things from the other persons viewpoint. Look upon yourself both as a worker and a director.

• • • • • • •

How would you do the work? Remember until you have actually done it or something like it you are a theorist merely not a worker. Theory and practice fare far and wide apart. If you had to do the planning, how would you manage?

• • • • • • •

In all these considerations beware of thinking you could do the things better. This will make you a prig. Put yourself in the other person's shoes and see how you would fit the job.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION NEWS

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

The May meeting commenced with a larger attendance than usual. The sum of $15 had been donated to the Central Relief Committee, for which a kind note of thankfulness was received. The president, Mr. Hendry, spoke very kindly of the untiring work of Mrs. Ada Craig, the past president, after which the school picnic was discussed; the final arrangements being left in the hands of the executive in conference with the teachers. Anyone wishing to donate money for prizes please leave with Mrs. Ellis, 223 Mark street.

Miss Kelly's room had the largest attendance of parents. Some action regarding the cleaning of the Cadet suits is to be taken with the Board of Education.

The following program was presented: Reading, Ruth Ellis; piano duet, Viola Lee and Albert Bethune; solo, Bertha Binks; solo, Leslie Sage; piano solo, Miss Pearl Smith; piano duet, Betty and Barbara Wyatt; dialogue, Beryl Lee and Roslyn McLean; Betty McLead gave an address on Madame Curie, the discoverer of radium. George Ebbs and Betty McLeod were presented with prizes as winners in the oratorical contest. Refreshments, including Ovaltine, were served.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

The regular monthly meeting of Central Home and School Association was held last evening in the kindergarten room of the school. Mrs. J. Kingsbury, presided over a fairly large audience of mothers.

A treasurer's report showed a balance of $138.20. A recent paper collection brought in the sum of $35. The school picnic is dated for June 24. The banner for the month went to Mr. Wightman's room, as having the largest representation of mothers present.

After the business an enjoyable musical program and a splendid talk by Mrs. E. Wand proved very entertaining and interesting.

Freda Castle played very correctly and beautifully two piano solos, "The Robin's Lullaby," and "Little Patriot's March."

Two readings by Mary Wainwright were cleverly done and enjoyed. They were "Flo's Brother" and "Johnny's Mistake."

A piano solo by Frances Latimer was well rendered, and received great applause as also did a piano duet by Helen Latimer and Dorothy Smith. The president moved a vote of thanks to the clever little artists who were all pupils of Central School.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. E. Wand, was introduced by the president, and received rapt attention in a 30-minutes' talk on "The Purpose of the Home and School Association," which she delivered in a very entertaining manner.

Mrs. Wand, as president of the local Home and School Council, attended recently the convention of the Home and School Federation of Ontario, held in Toronto. The speaker covered very thoroughly the chief items of interest and stressed the high lights which took place at this great gathering. Mrs. Kingsbury moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Wand for her very interesting talk and this was heartily responded to by all present.

At the conclusion of the meeting Ovaltine was served by the refreshment committee through the courtesy of Mr. Shaw of the local Ovaltine plant, who was present and spoke a few words to the parents on the value of Ovaltine as a beverage for old and young in the home. The kindness of Mr. Shaw was greatly appreciated by the association.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Handy Recipes

By Edith Barber

LEMON SOUFFLE.

3 eggs
1-3 cup lemon juice
Grated rind 1 lemon
3 tablespoons hot water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar.

Beat yolk of eggs very light. Add lemon juice and grated rind, hot water, salt and one-half cup sugar. Cook in double boiler until thick. Add one-half cup sugar to stiffly beaten egg whites and fold into the cooked mixture. Fill baked pie shell and brown in moderate oven.

LEMON ICE-BOX CAKE

¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
3 eggs
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup lemon juice
Grated rind ½ lemon
12 ladyfingers
½ cup cream.

Mix sugar and flour and add to beaten egg yolks; add milk and butter and cook over hot water until thick and smooth; add lemon juice and rind. Remove from fire, cool slightly and add stiffly beaten egg whites. Cover the bottom and sides of a greased deep cake tin with halved ladyfingers. Pour in lemon mixture, cover with ladyfingers and set in ice box for twelve hours or overnight. Remove the serving dish and garnish with whipped cream.

LEMON JELLY.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups boiling water
1 cup sugar
Few grains salt
¼ cup lemon juice.

Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes; add boiling water, sugar, salt and lemon juice. Turn into molds and chill.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

175

THE ELEMENTS OF CONTRACT LESSON 1.

Contract Bridge is the fourth in line of succession of a great series of partnership games played with cards. The first was Whist, and Contract is a logical development of that game. Intervening between Contract Bridge, as we know it to-day, and Whist, which is still liked by many people, was Bridge and Auction. Auction retains many followers, but Contract, because of the greater degree of science in its bidding, is gaining in popularity daily.

The game of Contract, like Whist, Bridge and Auction Bridge, is played by four people with a pack of fifty-two cards, two playing as partners against two others. The arrangement as to partners may be made in any way desired. The laws of Bridge provide that partners shall be determined by drawing cards and that the two players drawing the highest cards shall be partners against the two drawing the lowest. This having been settled, the player who drew the highest card becomes the Dealer. The deck is shuffled and must always be cut by the player sitting at the right of the Dealer. After the cut is completed, the Dealer deals one card in turn to each of the four players in rotation, starting with the player on his left, until all fifty-two are dealt. There must be a new deal with the same pack whenever any player does not receive his cards in regular order or when one player receives more than thirteen cards. After the hand is played, the player to the left of the first Dealer deals the cards for the next hand. For convenience, it is usual to use two packs of cards and these should have backs of different colors, so that the decks will not be confused. The partners sit opposite each other. While the Dealer is dealing one deck, it is the duty of his partner to shuffle the "still" deck (the pack not then in use).

The four suits into which the deck of cards is divided are ranked, highest last, as follows: clubs, diamonds, hearts, spades, clubs and diamonds are the minor suits; hearts and spades, the major suits. They may easily be remembered by their initial letters in alphabetical order, thus — c and d (earliest in the alphabet) minor; h and s, major.

The thirteen cards of the suit rank as follows: Ace, King, Queen, Knave, Ten and so on down to the deuce (two spot), which is the lowest card of any suit.

The cards are played in rotation from left to right as in nearly all card games. Each round of four cards, one from each player in turn, comprises a trick. The highest card played in each round takes or wins the trick. Partners count their combined tricks — one of the two picks up all that they win together, and places them on the table, backs up, in front of him. The first six tricks taken by either side do not count in the score — only those over six are counted as tricks made. Thus, if seven tricks are taken, one is scored.

TO-DAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is needed to raise one in a suit to three in a suit?

Answer: Five supporting tricks. (4+5=9.)

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Jump Overcalls are Not Forcing.

Question: Would you kindly advise the writer how the following hands should be bid? A bids one diamond, B has the following hand:

Spades x x x
Hearts A K J 9 6 5
Diamonds A
Clubs A x x

and bids two hearts. Was that a correct bid? C passes and D, who is B's partner, has the following hand:

Spades x x x x
Hearts 10
Diamonds x x x
Clubs Q 9 7 5 4

How should D bid in response to B's Forcing bid?

Answer: B's bid of two hearts is correct. D with an absolute blank hand and a singleton trump should pass; his partner's Jump Overcall after A's Opening bid is not strictly Forcing, but merely a strong encouragement to keep the bidding open.

Lead of a King Against Notrump.

Question:

East	South	West	North
1 club	Pass	3 NT	Dbl.
4 clubs	Pass	4NT	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

SOUTH
Spades K 10 9 x x
Hearts 6 2
Diamonds Q x x x
Clubs x x
EAST (Dummy)
Spades A
Hearts x x
Diamonds K x x x
Clubs K Q J x x x

North, having the club Ace and A K J x x in hearts, leads the King of hearts. South plays the deuce (2). North then leads the heart Ace; South plays the six. North leads another heart, South discards the spade 9.

The question is: Should South play deuce 6 or should he play 6 to first trick and deuce the second lead?

Answer: South should play the 2 of hearts on the first lead, as any card other than the lowest encourages partner to continue the suit and conveys the information that the suit led may be readily established or is already set. In some cases, for instance, holding 10 9 x, the 9 should be played so as to be prepared to unblock.

Plus Values.

Question: Will you be good enough to clear up for me a little confusion I have relative to plus and partial score bidding?

Are there two kinds of "plus values" in the Culbertson System? How many honor-tricks in this hand?

Spades Q 10 9
Hearts A K Q
Diamonds A J
Clubs A K Q 4 3

The heart Queen, diamond Knave and club Queen each have a plus value but is it correct that they do not combine or constitute any honor values?

Spades A K Q J
Hearts K W J 5
Diamonds Q 7
Clubs J 10 5

Answer: You may distinguish various kinds of plus values; i.e., isolated Queens and Knaves, one or more J 10 combinations, additional honors in suits headed by A K, A Q and additional suit length in the Responding Hand over and above the minimum required for a Takeout. From the very nature of the values and depending upon which side is the Declarer, it will be easy to see how these values should be counted. No. 1 and 2 are valuable, both in offense and defense and especially for purposes of Takeouts. No. 3 will form the basis for Rebids by Declarer, but will be practically useless in defense. Finally No. 4 will serve for Rebids in the Responding Hand after partner has assisted, but will even be a liability against opponent's declaration.

Hand No. 1 counts 5-½ honor-tricks (spade Queen and diamond Knave combine to form ½ honor-trick), the other two Queens are available as plus values for Declarer's Rebids. The same applies to the spade Queen and Knave in hand No. 2. The plus values contained in these hands will, of course, also be valuable in partner's declaration.

A Close Decision.

Question: Will you please tell me the correct bid of the following hand? There was a difference of opinion when the hand was played.

DEALER
Spades A K 7 3 2
Hearts A 5 4
Diamonds J 8
Clubs A Q 4
THE PARTNER
Spades Q 6
Hearts K J 7 6
Diamonds 9 4 2
Clubs 7 5 3 2

Answer: The bidding on the hand submitted by you should be one spade, one notrump, three spades, pass. A bid of only two spades or two notrump on the second round would not convey the full strength of the hand, whereas a bid of three notrump would be too hazardous if vulnerable, although feasible if not vulnerable. This makes it necessary to take the slight risk of misinforming your partner as to the strength of the spades by jumping the bid on the second round in that suit. Partner's notrump bid is distinctly handed (only 1 trick: Hearts K J x x in addition to the spade Queen) but in my estimation justified and in the spirit of the Forcing System. The Dealer might well be short of a two-bid and yet game be very probable (for instance, spade Knave in addition to the rest of his holding).

This is the first of a series of articles in response to requests from numerous readers, designed to explain the elementary principles of Contract Bridge. One of these will appear each week. In them Mr. Culbertson will write especially for the benefit of those who have never played Contract and who may even be unfamiliar with the method of playing it. The articles will cover the game from its basic elements to the higher phases of Contract Bridge. The series in its entirety will comprise a complete course of instruction in "How to Play Contract."

"AN EDDY PRODUCT"

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

WEIGHT AND BODY SURFACE.

Some of our overweight friends defend their overeating by pointing out that as they have such a large body, so much surface measurement, that they must eat a lot of food, as the amount of food required by the body depends upon the amount of surface measurement.

In a general way their argument is correct, because the amount of food required, where the individual has reached manhood or womanhood, is based on this fact.

However this estimate does not apply to fat people any more than it does to thin people; and type of build (greyhound or bulldog).

How can you find out just how much food you need for your particular body? Simply by watching your weight.

Up to the age of thirty, making a very slight gain in weight from week to week or month to month is quite natural because a sort of 'filling out' process is going on. By the age of thirty or three or four years before, this process is usually complete, and no more weight should be gained.

It is at this time and anytime afterwards then that you should begin to watch your weight. When the amount of food you eat supplies all the energy you need and your weight remains the same day after day and week after week then you know that your food intake is just right. Should you gain a pound or lose a pound occasionally, this means nothing, and should never give any concern. This is usually due to a little difference in the amount of water in the tissues from time to time.

If, however, you find that there is a slow but gradual increase in weight, or a slow but gradual loss of weight, you can readily see that you are eating a little more, or a little less food than your body requires.

As you know, the body doesn't make or destroy weight; all the body does is to use the food material eaten, and, after using what it needs for the processes of the body-digestion, respiration and so forth, if any is not used for these processes or for the work or play done by the muscles of the body, then weight increases. If sufficient food is not eaten for these processes, and for muscular work, then there is loss of weight.

The point then is that fat people have continuously eaten more food than their body processes needed, or for the amount of exercise they have taken, hence their overweight. They should watch the scale and not talk about their large body surface needing so much food.

WORD "PERSONS" INCLUDES WOMEN

Old Dispute Crops Up in Assembly of Presbyterian Church in England.

LONDON, May 11. (C.P. Cable)—The question whether the word "persons" includes women, which was so long pondered over by the jurists of Canada and of the privy council before the latter decided women were eligible for the Canadian senate, cropped up again in the Presbyterian Church of England.

A motion including women in the designation of "persons" was carried after keen debate. The assembly was asked to prepare a roll call of names of those "persons" who are authorized to preach and undertake pastoral services. To the surpise of the assembly an amendment was moved that the word "men" be gustituted for "persons."

Rev. David Anderson, who was in charge of the resolution said it was clear in the minds of the committe that both men and women might become eligible for appointment. If educated and well-equipped women should offer themselves to presbyteries and congregations they should not refuse them. The amendment was lost by a large majority, and the motion including women was carried.

McAfee Hurls Royals to 11th Straight Win

RIGHT-HANDER HOLDS PESTS TO TWO HITS

Skeeters Score One Run in Seventh to Make Count 3-1 for Montreal.

GAMES POSTPONED.

Canadian Squad Has Played Errorless Ball in Nine of 11 Victories.

(By The Associated Press)

Bill McAfee, who started the Montreal Royals' current winning streak on April 28 has carried the Royals through to their 11th successive International League victory.

The right hander held Jersey City to two hits yesterday and enabled the Royals to make a clean sweep of the four game series.

The score was 3-1 and as it turned out, Montreal had the ball game won as early as the second inning when Henry's double drove in Grabowski and Walters for a 2-0 lead. That advantage looked slim enough at the time but with McAfee in his best form of the season it was plenty.

Just to make things look a little better the Royals punched through another run in the fourth inning. McAffee blanked the Skeeters for six innings but they finally broke the ice with one run in the seventh. But that was all McAfee was prepared to allow.

Bill Morrell pitched effectively for Jersey City, allowing only eight hits. He held the top end of the Montreal batting order safely in check but lost the ball game when he failed to halt the boys further down the list.

The Royals again turned in a magnificent game in the field, making not the semblance of an error. In their string of 11 victories, the team has played errorless ball in nine.

Unfavorable weather forced postponement of the rest of the day's schedule which included three prospective double-headers.

TECUMSEHS WIN FROM MAROONS

Dodds Stars as Toronto Squad Wins Under Avalanche of Goals.

1,000 SEE GAME.

MONTREAL, May 11 (C.P.)—Toronto Tecumsehs buried the Montrel Maroons under an avalanche of goals, 19-8, here last night in an International Professional Lacrosse League game before a slim crowd of 1,000 people at the Forum.

The victory for the Indians kept them up in first place as the previously existing four-way tie for the lead was broken here and in New York, with Canadiens and Pete Campbell's squad emerging from the combats as sharers of the top position. The 27 goals scored here last night equalled the league record for number of tallies in a single game.

Tecumsehs amassed a 5 to 3 lead in the first period and were never headed thereafter, increasing their margin steadily as the game progressed. The tussle was cleanly waged, although Red Spencer was tagged with a major for smacking Dussault on the head with his stick and opening a cut that required stitches.

Borrowed Tickers

The Watchett F.C. beaten 2-1 by Dulverton in the West Somerset charity cup final, have protested to the West Somerset F.A. against the result on the ground that three and a quarter minutes short of full time was played.

It transpired, on investigation, that the referee forgot his watch and borrowed that of the linesman. The watch that the linesman, in his turn, borrowed, stopped. The cup winners have been ordered to replay, but they do not agree so to do and have lodged an appeal.

"Torchy" Peden Wins Another Race

BIKE RIDERS ENGAGE IN A "SPILL"

Believe it or not, six-day "bike-racers" indulge in the occasional spill and tumble. The cameraman caught the riders following a spill during the race at Toronto, following an accident to Reggie Fielding's machine when his tire blew out. Fielding, the Toronto boy who is teamed with Torchy Peden of Vancouver and riding under the colors of the National Yacht Club, can be seen just after he was thrown from his wheel. The rest of the riders in the spill were also thrown into the infield, breaking the wooden railing which circles the track. To "Torchy" Peden, the "iron man" from Victoria, and his courageous partner, Reggie Fielding of Toronto, went the spoils. This pair, riding recklessly, and with tremendous speed, mowed them all down in the last hour, when they won nine sprints, and scored 691 points to offset the desperate challenge made by Alfred Letourneur and Henri Lepage, the French Canadian hockey club representatives. Peden and Fielding each figured in a spill in the final sixty minutes, but they came back strongly to ride as well as ever. In fact, if anything, Fielding was more effective than when he crashed into the fence and broke his bike and a rail. The spectators cheered him to the echo, and it was easy to see that they appreciated work well done.

NATIONAL LEAGUE CLUBS WILL CARRY 14 PLAYERS ON ROSTER

N. H. L. Directors Take Drastic Steps to Cut Expenses —Teams Finish in Red.

INDIVIDUAL SALARY $7,500.

NEW YORK, May 11 (CP) — The times being what they are, the National Hockey League has set a limit of $7,500 on individual player salaries and reduced the player limit to fourteen!

Action to reduce expenses was deemed necessary at the semi-annual meeting yesterday after it was revealed that only three of the eight clubs had not finished "in the red." Figures for each club were not made public but it was understood that only the New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens made money.

Not only was the individual salary limit cut to $7,500 but it was decided each club should be limited to a total expenditure of $70,000 for player salaries next season. To help in this latter respect, the player limit was fixed at fourteen. Some clubs last season carried as many as 20 players on the payroll although the league rules provide that not more than sixteen may be used in any one game.

No action was taken on the franchises.

Belleville Cyclists Win Intercity Event

BELLEVILLE, May 11.—In a reliability contest here for motorcycles, local cyclists were victorious over rides from Montreal and Toronto. Representatives from the Sports Motorcycle Clb, of Montreal and the British Empire Motorcycle Club, of Toronto, took part. Contestants were: L. Lyndon, of Montreal; J. Fisher, and D. Griffin, of Toronto; R. Ray, R. Weese, of Belleville.

The course was unknown to the riders and included Foxboro, Halloway, Ross' Corners and Wallbridge. The test took two hours and the judges were: Dennis Griffin and Jack Fisher, of Toronto and Bert Frink, of the Quinte Motorcycle Club.

R. Ray was declared winner of the trophy for best individual performance and R. Waite, of Belleville, won the club medal for the second best performance. The tests were followed by many motorists and several members of the Mercury Motorcycle Club, of Oshawa, were present, as were several from the British Empire Club, of Toronto. More tests will likely be held at a later date, probably near Bancroft.

CANADIENS BEAT MAPLE LEAFS 9-7

Box Lacrosse Makes Hit in Debut at Madison Square Garden.

NEW YORK, May 11—In a thrilling display of indoor lacrosse, Montreal Canadiens defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, 9 to 7, in an international professional lacrosse match here last night. Originally scheduled for Montreal, the game was transferred here to introduce the bob-tailed sport to New York enthusiasts. More than 7,500 persons attended, the proceeds going in aid of the Cardiac Clinic of New York University, and the Institute for Crippled and Disabled.

The continuous speed, terrific checking, high scoring and occasional flaring of players' tempers combined to provide an interesting spectacle and the spectators appeared to appreciate the new sport with the same enthusiasm they greeted and supported hockey when the game was imported years ago.

Society in all its finery was out in full force, the Garden was gaudily draped with bunting and varicolored streamers, while added color was imported to the pre-game ceremonies by the West Point Military Band.

Persons prominent in hockey circles, among them Frank Calder, president of the National League; Connie Smythe, Toronto Maple Leafs; Leo Dandurand, Montreal Canadiens, and heads of the International Lacrosse League, viewed the contests from points of vantage.

WARNEKE HURLS FIFTH WIN FOR ROGER S HORNSBY CLAN

Benge Stops Cincinnati Reds, Allowing Five Hits and Phillies Win 4-0.

TIGERS WIN 11-0.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Tearing along three games in front of their closest pursuers today, their great pitching staff mowing down opposing batsmen with relentless efficiency and their hitters thumping in unison, the Chicago Cubs threaten to make a runaway of the National League race.

When young Lon Warneke set the New York Giants down yesterday, 9-2, the leaders scored their fourth straight victory over eastern clubs and their thirteenth win in sixteen engagements. Unless Rogers Hornsby's team is slowed down soon, it will pile up such an advantage it will be able to coast through to the flag.

Warneke's sensational hurling has rounded out one of the most formidable staffs in either league. In winning his first five games, in each of which he went the full distance, the 23 year old product of Mount Ida, Ark., has given up only nine runs, all told. His work has overshadowed that of such veteran mates as Malone, Bush, Smith, Root and Grimes, and they have done well enough.

The Giants could find Warneke for only five hits yesterday, two of which came after two were out in the ninth and provided their second run. In six of the nine innings he was unhittable. His team mates fhaled three Giant hurlers for 11 safeties, every man in the line-up getting at least one. They were helped along by three Giant errors, runing the total for McGraw's crew to 21 miscues in 20 games.

The day's only other National League bout saw the Phillies break Cincinnati's five game winning streak, 4-0, behind Ray Benge's effective pitching. Five Red hits were widely spaced. Rain checked the scheduled activities at Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Tigers Blank Sox 11-0.

Vic Sorrell turned in the day's American League masterpiece when he allowed the Boston Red Sox only two hits in pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 11-0 victory. Hal Rhyne's two singles knocked Sorrell out of a no-hit game.

Lefty Grove was almost as effective as the Athletics blanked the Chicago White Sox, 9-0. The great southpaw allowed six hits but bore down in the pinches. Jimmy Dykes knocked in four of the winners' runs with a home run and a double.

Yanks Down Browns 10-3.

The wildness of Walter Stewart and "Bump" Hadley, who distributed eleven walks, helped the Yankees trounce the St. Louis Browns 10-3 in their delayed opener. Vernon Gomez held the Browns to seven hits in his fourth win of the year and likely would have had a shutout but for weak fielding behind him in the fifth, when the visitors scored all their runs. Cleveland was rained out at Washington.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

John City, Tenn.—W. I. (Young) Stribling, Atlanta, Ga., outpointed George Neron of Greece, (10.)

Des Moines, Ia.—Mickey Genaro, New York, and Hymie Wiseman, Des Moines, drew (10); Roy Williams, Chicago, outpointed Louie Mays, Des Moines (10); Babe Carnera, Des Moines, stopped Joe Boyd, Seattle (7).

HARVARD'S EIGHT FACES REAL TEST

College Crews Shape Up as Strong Contenders for Olympic Regatta.

NEW YORK, May 11 (U.P.) — Harvard's varsity crew, one of the East's potentially strong candidates for the Olympics, will get its first real test on Saturday, when it rows against Navy, Penn and M.I.T. in the four-cornered regatta at Annapolis. The Crimson eight displayed power but lack of finesse in defeating M.I.T. by little more than one length last Tuesday on the Charles River. This victory was not impressive because M.I.T. previously had lost to Yale by three lengths. However, the Tech boat had been shaken up for the Harvard contest, and apparently put up a stiffer fight.

FRANKIE HART TO MEET DICK

Former University Medicine Man and Dutch Grappler Will Tangle on Friday Night.

IN PRELIMINARY BOUT

Frankie Hart, handsome young Dutch wrestler, has been matched with Arthur Dick, former football star of Evansville College, Indiana, in the all-star program for the wrestling show to be held at the Brock street rink next Friday night under the auspices of the Queensbury Club of Toronto. Hart and Dick will supply the opening bout while Adolpho Marchioni of Italy will meet in the semi-final and the sensational Masked Marvel will oppose Abe Kashey, champion of Armenia, in the main bout which will be contested to a finish.

Dick is just the right type of opponent to provide a good bout against the acrobatic Hart. At college, where he was studying medicine he was proficient at football, basketball and wrestling and since entering professional wrestling he has shown marked ability. As an ex-football player he naturally makes good use of the flying tackle and that is one offensive against which the speedy Hart will have to guard carefully.

Unknown To Writers

The feature of the card, of course, is the bout between The Masked Marvel and Kashey. All sorts of conjectures as to the identity of The Marvel have been made and writers in the United States have picked on a number of outstanding wrestlers as The Marvel only to have their theories exploded. Some claim that he conceals his identity because he can not use his family name because of social or political reasons but at any event he has attracted attention all over the continent and the calibre of the men he has beaten goes to prove that he knows all about wrestling.

Kashey is a grappler of real ability and should provide a real test for The Unknown. The big Armenian has met such men as Gino Garibaldi, Italian champion, Joe Cox, Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Ray Steele and can take care of himself in any kind of competition.

Invention Dries Ground

During the forthcoming season the wicket at the Oval, after rain, will be prepared by the new drying roller, as recommended by the M.C.C.

The head groundsman, Martin, states that its application after rain will remove 75 per cent of the wet from the top of the turf.

Wrestling Last Night.

Oshawa Jobless Baseball Fans Given Passes to Senior Games

OSHAWA, May 11. — Feeling that there was a large number of unemployed men of the city who would otherwise not be able to attend the home games of the Oshawa Dukes this season, and considering that these men had been staunch followers of the sport in the past, the executive of the Oshawa Baseball Club, at a meeting held yesterday, decided unanimously to issue several hundred free passes, through the employment office, for the nine home games of the club.

It was arranged with Major Hamilton, who was present at the meeting, that the passes would be available at his office on Wednesday afternoon of this week for the opening game here on Saturday. Each pass must be called for personally by the men desirous of attending the game, and will be issued only to men registered at the employment office. Each card will be countersigned by either Major Hamilton or Mr. Douglas, his assistant, and will bear the date of the game.

The card will be collected at the gate as the men enter the grounds and will be returned to the employment office for future use. Cards not used for the game being played on the day for which they are dated, must be returned to the employment office, as they will not be honored for future games.

SCENE OF SEARCH FOR CHILD CHANGED

Negotiations Being Conducted Off Rhode Island Coast for Lindbergh Baby.

NORFOLK, Va., May 11 (C.P.)— With a new scene of activities off the Rhode Island Coast reported for his negotiations John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, was still absent to-day on a secret trip undertaken last week.

The Virginian pilot said to-day it had learned that the negotiations are now being conducted off Block Island, lying southeast of New London, Conn., and east of Long Island.

The reported shift in the activities came after repeated cruises out to sea from Norfolk had apparently failed in forming contact.

Baseball Notes

The Seniors will workout at Stevenson Park at six this evening unless it rains, in which case the practice will be held in the "Y."

ALL PLAYERS EXONERATED.

GUELPH, May 11.— The sensation created in Guelph softball circles when charged of alleged professionalism and misappropriation of funds were levelled at players and officials of the National Auto Bodies team of the city Industrial League completely peter out yesterday when three more players, the last of 14 against whom the allegations were made, appeared before a special investigation committee and received complete exoneration.

LIMESTONE CITY SENIOR BALL CLUB FIELDING STRONG TEAM

Stone, Quinn, Compeau and Elliott Looks Like Best in League.

GOOD MOUND HEAVERS.

KINGSTON, May 11.—Kingston's C. O. B. L. team in their practices held every evening this week, have shown the fastest infield they have boasted in several seasons, and there is every reason to believe that the team will be much stronger than they were last year, when they were good enough to cop the C.O.B.L. championship.

Brick Stone has been doing much of the work at first base, and looks more agile than ever, while the rest of the inner works, with Jack Quinn at second, Mickey Compeau at short and Bob Elliott at third, looks the best in the league. Compeau has already demonstrated that he is just about as good as he was before he went to the old Mich.-Ont. League. He has been making sensational stops at short, while his hitting is as good as ever. Elliott has been playing third in stellar fashion.

Smith on Mound.

It may be that the locals will have Hewitt Smith doing most of his work on the mound. Smith has a world of speed, and has shown that his control is better than ever. "Yammy" Jamieson is also looking for a big year, while Harold Buck will be ready for mound duty, as well as in the outfield. In addition there are Tod Godfrey, Chuck Fournier, Hooley Smith and Tom Goodfriend working out for pitching assignments, so that the team will certainly not lack for twirlers.

Lonnie Purvis has been practicing every evening, and ought to see a lot of service. Purvis always was a wonderful first sacker and a mighty fine pitcher as well, while his hitting leaves little to be desired. "Abber" Joyce is also available for the initial sack, and can perform as well in the outfield. Tommy Boyd will make a very good understudy for Compeau, thereby giving the infield plenty of reserve strength.

In the outfield the players who have been out to practice are Vin McQuade, Bert Vance, George Clark, "Red" Scrutton, and Harold Buck.

Behind the plate will be Arniel, Tetro and Foxton, while "Ab" Gratton, who was out with the team on Thursday night, looked like a million dollars. Gratton is small, but some of the greatest catchers in the game have been small in stature.

In all the team looks in great shape and right now are the best bet to pick off the honors in the C.O.B.L., despite the reports that strong line-ups are boasted by the other teams.

BLUE LARKSPUR WAS GREATEST

Burgoo King Ranks Third in Affections of His Trainer, Dick Thompson.

BUBBLING OVER SECOND.

NEW YORK, May 11. — (CP)— Burgoo King, Kentucky Derby winner, ranks no better than third in the affections of his trainer, Dick Thompson.

"Blue Larkspur was the greatest horse I ever trained," Thompson said at Belmont Park where Burgoo King is resting preparatory to the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday. "Next to him I would rang Bubbling Over which won his derby by six lengths."

Burgoo King, a son of Bubbling Over, won this year's Derby by five lengths. Blue Larkspur finished fourth in the 1929 renewal of that classic.

Although final decision was not to be made until after a workout today, Burgoo King seems an almost certain starter in the Preakness. Eugene James, who booted him home first in the Derby, is expected to hold the reins again Saturday.

Trinity Team Beats Mark Street 27 To 4

The opening games of the Church Softball League were run off despite inclement weather. The wet grounds and chill air prevented good ball being played. In the second senior game, where Knox defeated Mark Street, 13-10, Wedlock fanned thirteen of the East City batters, but walked ten. M. Hunter twirled for the other side. Following are the results of the four games:

Juniors

St. Paul's, 15; George Street, 14
Trinity, 27; Mark Street, 4.

Seniors

Trinity, 13; St. John's, 6.
Knox, 13; Mark Street, 10.

BOXING ENTRANTS AT ALL WEIGHTS

Over Ninety Amateurs to Seek Canadian Championships at Toronto.

TORONTO, May 11.—Amateur boxing tournaments more often than not experience a dearth of entries in classes from middleweight to heavyweight inclusive, but such is not the case with the Canadian championships and Olympic trials, scheduled for Maple Leaf Gardens to-morrow night. Every class promises spirited competition and the middleweight division has more entries than either the flyweight or bantam divisions, something very unusual for a Canadian amateur boxing event. There are no less than fourteen middleweights entered, while six light-heavyweights promise to provide interest in that division. Even the heavyweights will be seen in action, there being four for the unlimited category.

Officials in charge of the tourney will have a busy time, for there are already more than ninety entries and the total may finally be close to a hundred, as, though the lists were officially closed some days ago, out-of-town lads may arrive to-day, and in such case will be admitted to the competition. The welterweights will be very much in evidence, for there are no less than seventeen of them, more than at any other weight. Next in line are the featherweights and lightweights, with sixteen at each of those poundages.

Western Boxers Impress.

Most of the Western boxers are already here and the others will arrive this morning. Joe Draper of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, a welterweight; Arnie Johanneson, Winnipeg featherweight, and Emmanuel Battaglia, bantam from the same city, were particularly impressive in their workouts at Stockley's gymnasium yesterday.

Horace "Lefty" Gwynne, considered a strong contender for flyweight honors, has decided that he can no longer do himself justice at that weight, and accordingly the Toronto Central "Y" lad will compete in the bantam division. He may have an easier time than would have been the case in the lighter brigade, for there are just seven others at this weight, as compared with ten flyweights.

Added to the welterweight list yesterday was the name of Howard Williams of Kirkland Lake, the Ontario champion. Williams was a competitor in the Olympic trials of 1928, but made little progress. With four years of experience he may be quite a factor in the forthcoming tournament, particularly as he has recently had the benefit of training and tuition at Stillman's gymnasium, New York. Montreal has two very promising welters entered in Nick Nickilo, city champion, who won bouts in competition at Boston and New York last winter, and Tony Mancini, Quebec champion. There are a number of Ontario lads who may surprise the favorites here, while the Westerners, an unknown quantity, must be good to have earned the trip.

LACROSSE CLUB MEETING.

A meeting of the lacrosse club is called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce. Representatives of the city league teams and all the members of the executive are urged to be present.

Silver Cup Is Offered Lacrosse Club In Memory Of Late Captain Harold Hill

Colonel E. A. Olver of Toronto and other officers who served overseas with the 38th Battalion, C.E.F., have offered to the Peterborough Lacrosse Club a silver cup to be known as the Captain Harold Hill Memorial Trophy.

Col. Olver is manager of the Imperial Oil Company, and when the suggestion was made to him by Arthur Blade that a cup be given for the purpose of promoting lacrosse in Peterborough, Col. Olver's thoughts evidently called up an affectionate memory of the young Peterborough officer who as Adjutant of the 38th Battalion was killed in action at Vimy Ridge in April, 1917.

Captain Hill was the son of the late W. H. Hill and Mrs. Hill of this city, an outstanding athlete, a young man of wide popularity and great promise and a splendid officer who gave his life in the service of his country. The proposed memorial to him by the Colonel and other officers of his Battalion is an impressive tribute, accentuated by the years that have passed since Vimy Ridge and the associations that were severed in that engagement, and the enduring sentiment that has prompted it will be exceptionally pleasing to the many friends of the late Captain Hill.

Mr Blade has informed the Lacrosse Club of the offer from Col Olver, which will be dealt with at the next meeting of the Club.

CASUAL COMMENT

Right now, we're willing to predict a much closer league race in the Men's Softball League than was the case the last two years. From pre-seasonal dope at hand, it looks as if the whole eight teams will be strong, although some of the managers are playing their cards pretty close to the chest and not giving out any information.

• • • • • • •

The Sugar Bowl, last year's champs, will be at least as strong as last season. They have pretty much the same team lined up with a couple of additions. Three of their pitchers are Ted Nash, Bill Simmons and Lefty Sturgeon. Pat Calladine will catch again, and brother Bill will be out as well as Archie Weir, and the rest.

• • • • • • •

The Red & White Stores, under Percy Harrison, looks good too. Curry and Montgomery will carry the burden of the pitching staff with Dobson receiving. Foley, Smith, Dorrington and other well known softballers have been working out with the northenders. All Saints are expected to field a stronger team this year, and they were coming along fast late last summer.

• • • • • • •

There's no doubt but the C.G.E. crew will be no soft spot for anyone, as they have a whole shop full of players to pick from. And there's a bunch of nifty players in the Shop League. They're starting to get organized properly now. C.N.R. is a real dark horse. The Delahaye brothers will play and possibly Chief Gimblett. We understand this team will be largely recruited from a number of experienced players who are newcomers to the city, moved in connection with their jobs.

• • • • • • •

Bert Deck's Ashburnham outfit is being handled by Jim Ellis and will be no setup. Several of the Westclox stars are playing and a bunch of experienced East City fellows who formerly played independent ball around the district. The Stars have a big crowd trying for places, with two good pitchers being Forsythe and Butcher. The Clark boys, Gainey and several others have been showing up well in workouts.

• • • • • • • •

Some of The Examiner players already signed are: Creighton, Westbrook, Board, Jeff Hardill, Scates, Taylor, Gillespie, Price and Baird. This team looks pretty classy to us, and may go right through.

• • • • • • • •

Well, the stronger and more evenly-balanced the teams are, the better for themselves and for the league. The fans will flock out for the games if the issue is in doubt all the time, and that's the way it should be. The Men's League here play real fast softball, but the teams in past years have not always been well-balanced. Such will hardly be the case this summer.

• • • • • • •

Inclement weather has kept the senior players off the diamond and working out at the "Y" this week, so they'll hardly be ready to play a practise game with an E. P. L. team this Saturday. It's too early and the boys aren't quite limbered up yet. Saturday, May 21st would be a good day for an exhibition game, and it would provide the necessary finish for the Petes' game in Cobourg the 24th.

• • • • • • •

Belleville has five hurlers lined up now, three southpaws and two sane twirlers. Tommy Pointer leads the staff, and there's Alex Weir, Herb Morris, late of the Toronto Hillcrests, and Archie Campbell and Casey, Sulphide intermediates last year. Then, Chuck Allan may be seen in a Nats' uniform this year, the hardhitting pitcher and outfielder who once played for Lindsay along with Oulette, etc.

• • • • • • •

While, it's early enough yet, the C.O.B.L. race will probably be close, although what Cobourg will do remains to be seen. Their pitching should be okay and the infield, but we don't know what they'll do for catching or outfielding yet. The Petes, Ponies and Nationals are going to be stronger than last year, and some real senior baseball will result.

• • • • • • •

Two Prep School League cricket games have been arranged between St. Andrew's College, Toronto, and the Grove School at Lakefield, both being played in the village north of us, May 12th. The second eleven of the Saints and the third eleven will take on the two Grove teams this date to help them get in shape for their first Little Big Four league opening on June 4th.

• • • • • • •

Wet grounds last night forced calling off of the intermediate lacrosse practiuse again. If the weather is okay tomorrow evening, every player wanting a place on this team should be on hand at six bells for a good workout.

350-Pound Sea Bass Tows Boat 3 Miles

SAN PEDO, Cal., May 11.—A 350-pound sea bass towed a 15-foot motorboat, containing two men, three miles to sea in a zig-zag, circling course and might have kept going had it not been for a lighthouse keeper and his tender.

Andrew and Antonio Tutrone, brothers, hooked the big fish. Irving Konklin, lighthouse keeper, saw the swift, erratic dash of the boat as the fisherman hung stubbornly to the line.

Konklin speeded his tender in pursuit, but three hours passed before he overtook the fishing craft. He helped the brothers pull in the bass.

He was sentenced to six months' definite and not more than two years less one day indeterminate thereafter.

Some Fast Baseball Action

MOREHART AND FRITZ TOO FAST FOR NEUN.

This vivid action picture from the first game of a double-header between Toronto and the Newark Bears at the Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto, shows Neun of Newark straining every nerve and muscle in an effort to reach second base. All his perspiration was to no avail. Fritz has made no mistake in accepting Morehart's quick throw, and Neun is at least a foot short of safety. Newark won the game 4-0.

MUSICAL ACT COMEDY

May 21—Canadian Sports Week—May 28

Sport and recreation has become one of the strongest and most powerful influences for the social, physical and mental improvement of the civilized world.

Since human labor is being displaced in huge blocks by scientific machinery all over the world, the total amount of free time to be disposed of will go on increasing and increasing and the whole problem of leisure will become one of increasing gravity. Industry in the form of mass production cannot provide enough work for our great population. There will be, in fact there now is a human surplus, industrially speaking, and the problem is to find employment for the enormous mass of human energy that is being released.

According to leading economic authorities, the most logical and altogether desirable "safety valve" for this increased leisure energy is further universal participation in sport and recreation.

In line with these thoughts it is interesting and gratifying to note that the fifth annual celebration of Canadian Sports Week will be observed the week of May 21-28.

Sports Week was inaugurated to bring about a more general appreciation of the many advantages that sport offers to the Canadian people. During that week sporting organizations, athletic associations and clubs throughout the country are arranging special programmes with a view to increasing membership and bringing sport more prominently to the notice of those who are "stay-at-homes" and spectators of sport.

In the world of sport the spectator does not derive nearly as much pleasure or benefit as does the participant.

Although it will be readily conceded that only a very small percentage of us can be winners, still the "game's the thing," and provides the greatest measure of enjoyment when one is merely able to develop his skill.

SHANGHAI TO BE CLEAR OF JAPS INSIDE MONTH

Tokyo Decides on Move to Show World She Had No Territorial Aims.

"Fought Others' Battles."

States She Will Hold Other Nations Responsible if New Transgressions Occur.

TOKYO, May 11. —(AP)— The government decided today to withdraw all Japanese troops from Shanghai within a month. The decision was made by the cabinet at its meeting yesterday, the foreign office spokesman said in making the announcement today. "The decision is due to the Japanese government's desire to conform to world opinion," he said, "and to prove that Japan had no territorial or other ulterior motives in sending the troops to Shanghai."

The withdrawal will mean a return to conditions as they existed before theoutbreak at Shanghai last January which cost thousands of lives, both Chinese and Japanese, and the destruction of millions of dollars worth of property.

Only Left

Since the withdrawal of the 14th Division from Shanghai to be sent to Manchuria, announced by the War Department yesterday, only about 15,000 Japanese troops remain there. These are mostly in General Kenkichi Uyeda's Ninth division. They will be withdrawn within a month's time and will return to their original home station at Kanazawa.

Meanwhile, the spokesman said, Japan expects the Chinese to observe the armistice agreement signed last week and she also expects Great Britain, United States, France, and Italy, whose representatives also signed the pact, will act promptly and effectively if the Chinese commit any act of transgression.

"Since the decision was due to a desire to conform to world opinion and to end the world-wide odium which has fallen upon us," he said, "Japan will hold the other nations accountable if Shanghai is again endangered."

Means Early Parley.

The Government hoped, he said, that the complete withdrawal of troops would facilitate the early convening of a round table conference of all the interested Powers to discuss the city's future and proposals for a permanent neutral zone.

"The Japanese feel that they fought the battles of the other nations as well as their own," he said, "and gained only world-wide odium for it."

The new decision, he said, would give the other nations a chance to learn the value of Chinese pledges. Also he said, the decision would not affect Japanese policy in Manchuria, which Japan always has contended is an entirely different problem.

Liquor Control Board One Member Affair

VICTORIA, May 11. —(C.P.) — Changes in the Liquor Control Board of British Columbia will take effect Aug. 1, when W. F. Kennedy, one of three commissioners comprising the Board, will take over control as sole commissioner, it was announced last night by Hon. R. H. Pooley, Acting Premier. The Cabinet yesterday accepted the resignation of two of the three commissioners, effective July 31. Remuneration of the one-man board has not yet been considered.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

JERRY FOOLS THE PLOTTERS.

The best laid plot is often vain,
And effort wasted without gain.
—Old Mother Nature.

"It is nice spring weather," said Old Man Coyote to Buster Bear in reply to a remark to this effect by the latter. "It gives one a spring appetite for—well, say for Muskrat. Don't you think so?"

Buster Bear sat up and looked very hard at Old Man Coyote. "What do you mean by that?" he demanded.

"Nothing!" replied Old Man Coyote grinning. "Nothing but what I said. I saw you hard at work pulling this pile of stones apart and I happen to know that somewhere underneath Jerry Muskrat is hiding. I wouldn't mind a Muskrat dinner myself. Between the two of us we ought to have it, or at least one of us ought to. Don't you think so?"

"Don't I think what?" asked Buster Bear looking somewhat puzzled.

"Don't you think that between us we ought to be able to catch Jerry Muskrat?" retorted Old Man Coyote.

Buster Bear took time to think this over. "I don't know just how you come in on this," said he at last. "This is my Muskrat. I saw him first."

"Oh no you didn't. I saw him the other night," replied Old Man Coyote chuckling. "If he is yours why haven't you got him? Why are you trying to catch him?"

Buster looked a bit foolish. Then he grinned good naturedly, for Buster really is one of the best-hearted people in the Green Forest. "You win," said he. "He isn't mind until I catch him. No more is he yours until you catch him. So we will work together and he will belong to whichever catches him. Now what is your idea?"

"Simply to fool Jerry into thinking that the way is clear," replied Old Man Coyote. "I suspect that he is on his way home to the Smiling Pool down on the Green Meadows and I suspect that he is in a hurry to get there."

"I guess you are right," interrupted Buster Bear. Anyway, he was in a hurry. He was in such a hurry that he came around that big rock back there and almost ran smack into me. He dodged and got into this pile of stones and he is somewhere in here now."

"And there he will stay as long as you continue to waste time trying to move all these stones," replied Old Man Coyote. "But he won't stay a minute longer than he thinks he must. Now what we should do is to go off and leave him alone."

"But then he will come out and get away," protested Buster Bear.

"That is what we want him to do. At least we want him to come out," replied Old Man Coyote. "As soon as he gets out he'll start down the Laughing Brook and he won't waste any time about it. All we have to do is to go down the Laughing Brook to a place I know of where he cannot swim and will have to come ashore just as he did back there. You hide on one side and I will hide on the other side. One of us will surely catch him."

Buster Bear thought this over. It sounded like a good plan. The more he thought about it the better he liked it. He agreed to it. He pulled out one or two more stones, sniffed loudly two or three times, watched Old Man Coyote trot off down the Laughing Brook and disappear among the trees then shuffled down to the Laughing Brook, waded across and in his turn disappeared down the Laughing Brook.

Jerry Muskrat poked his head out just in time to see Buster disappearing. Jerry looked hastily all about and then darted across to the Laughing Brook and into it. For the first time since his unexpected meeting with Buster Bear he felt safe. He always feels safe in the water. But instead of going down the Laughing Brook he hesitated a moment and then started straight away from the Laughing Brook. He was fooling the plotters.

MADE IN CANADA

Winner Of Turret Cigarette Hockey Contest

Amazing as it may seem, out of 3,380,000 entries received from all over Canada in the Turret Cigarette Hockey Contest, Mr. P. A. Gillis of Moncton, N.B., gained the distinction of entering the only perfect estimate. The accompanying photograph shows the presentation of the $5,000.00 first prize being made to Mr. Gillis.

SULPHIDE.

The regular meeting of the Y. P. S. was held in the Community Hall. The topic, "Slavery in Canada," was given by James Corbet. Other items on the program were readings by Marjory Varty and Jim Corbet. The contests were tied.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Langeven and family, of Chippawa, Ont., have taken up residence in Sulphide.

Mrs. William Douglas is visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Hendry, at Chippawa, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gould and family spent the week-end with friends at Hay Bay.

Mrs. A. Eager, Sr., and son, Archie, of Actinolite, visited Mrs. J. Corbet on Thursday.

Messrs. Jim, Bert and Jack Wallace motored to Kingston to visit their sister, Mrs. O. Rogers, at Hotel Dieu, over the week-end.

Mrs. J. Deline, Beatrice and Clayton spent Wednesday with friends in Marysville.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 11th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9:35 a.m., from 2:20 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a.m. to noon, and from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

The physical, mental and emotional sides of life will be more stressed than material affairs on May 11th. Most illnesses will be those of the mind, and these can be cured by mental stimulus and by proving all things and only holding on to that which is good. In affairs of the heart, patience and restraint must be shown, as any sudden impulse will only estrange the object of affection.

The child born on this May 11th will pick things up very quickly, but will not have the retentive or accurate memory which usually accompanies a less rapid brain. It will be capable of doing spectacular feats, but will lack the enduring qualities necessary for slow and substantial building of any kind.

Born on May 11th, you are a most self-reliant and self-sufficient being, and in an indifferent way experience considerable happiness. You are too self-centered and selfish, however, to ever experience that divine happiness and blissful contentment which can only come through more selfless love and services. You are a pretty shrewd bargainer with the world, and you usually get whatever you go after. What life gives is what you take from it, and as yet you do not value properly many simple things of life which you pass by unnoticed.

When in an amiable mood, you are a most agreeable companion, full of life, merriment, and optimism. When your temper is on edge, you display a side of self which is not flattering; you are gloomy and pouty as a woman, and testy and grumpy as a man. You take it out on all who are unfortunate enough to be in reach of your tongue. You are so strongly afflicted with a sense of your own superiority that even an implied criticism offends you.

In dealing with a problem you dig straight for the roots, eager to find out if there is anything healthy upon which to build. You have an analytical mind, and are capable of deep thinking. You are domesticated enough to desire a home and home folks of your own.

FROM A BUGGY-FULL TO 25,000,000 CIGARS A YEAR

Away back in 1876 Henry Simon of Whitby, Ont., owned a little factory for the manufacture of Cigars. In a buggy, with a good reliable horse between the shafts, he made the rounds of the small Ontario towns selling his Cigars. So successful was this little enterprise that in 1902 the headquarters were established in Montreal and today the annual capacity is 25,000,000 Cigars a year

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Price 50c a box

Sharp Pains In His Heart Nerves In Bad Condition

Mr. Fred J. Chase, Thomson Station, N.S. writes:—"I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills with wonderful results.

My heart would beat so fast I would have to sit down when at work chopping in the woods.

I had sharp pains in my heart when I would lie down at night.

My nerves were also in a very bad condition but after using two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel just fine, and am fourteen pounds heavier than I have been for years."

Sold at all drug and general stores, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

ADDRESS HEARD ON TEMPERANCE

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard is Speaker at George Street Church W.M.S. Meeting.

REPORTS READ.

The May meeting of the W.M.S. of George street United Church was held in the Board Room of the Sunday School Hall yesterday afternoon with an attendance of nearly fifty members.

Mrs. W. McMillian, leader of Group 'D' was in charge of the program and presided for the first part of the meeting. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. M. Latimer, followed by prayer by Mrs C. W. Coon and Mrs. W. P. Hetherington.

A very fine paper on Missionary work in Trinidad prepared by Mrs. Wasson was read by Mrs. H. Dulmage.

Miss Ludbrook rendered a very pleasing guitar solo. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard delivered an educational and interesting address on temperance.

He spoke of the meaning of the word 'temperance' in its broadest sense as meaning self control and the need of the world to exercise this virtue in regard to our pleasures, business, desire for gain, referring to the last, he said, he left fully assured that the present economic difficulties were partially caused by men, who were intemperate in seeking to pile up dollar upon dollar.

Other cases enumerated were temperance in controlling our tempers and our speech. In the sphere of religion it is also necessary that we use temperance.

Recently the word 'temperance' has become almost entirely associated ith the use of intoxicant liquors when we mean prohibition and prohibition should begin with the individual.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker and Miss Ludbrook for her musical number. Mrs S. R. Armstrong then took the chair for the business meeting and satisfactory reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. J. A. Spencer and the treasurer, Mrs. H. Dulmage Mrs. Armstrong, general convenor of the mother and daughter Lanquet gave a splendid report thanking all who had assisted in any way. Mrs. J. A. Spencer gave the financial report showing a balance of over $80 from the banquet.

Mrs. G. Helson on behalf of the Well Babies Clinic thanked the society for their donation of $2 in aid of the pre-natal work.

Mrs. Dulmage reported for the Mission Band treat which was given by the Society.

Miss E. Might, corresponding secretary read several letters of thanks for sympathy extended to members.

A resolution was passed that according to the usual custom the Society close for the months of July and August, the last meeting of the season to be held in June with Mrs. Stinson's group in charge.

Mrs. Rowe, literature secretary, read a letter from the Presbyterian regarding the supply of literature.

The Supply Secretary, Mrs. F. Mather requested the ladies to meet next Wednesday afternoon to sew for the bale.

Mrs. J. W. Hales for the sick and visiting committee reported 51 calls made during the past month.

Very encouraging reports of the progress of the Twilight Mission Circle and Fidelis Mission Band were given by Mrs. Dulmage and Mrs. Millyard. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. A. I. Brown.

The King's Workers' Mission Band held their regular meeting in the United Church on Saturday afternoon with their leader, Mrs. Wilbert Smith, and assistant leader, Mrs. Leslie Sherwin, present. In spite of the heavy rain, the attendance was good and the meeting was one to be remembered. Considerable time was taken along business lines and how to raise funds for the society. It was decided to hold a sale of home-made cake and candy on Saturday afternoon, May 21. Immediately after the meeting the girls carried flowers and decorated the church most beautifully in honor of Mothers' Day.

The crokinole tournament held in the Town Hall on Saturday evening was quite interesting, although the crowd was small, owing to the bad weather. The challenge was between Alderville and Roseneath, and resulted in favor of the Alderville Indians. There were six men from each place, with Rev. R. W. Paton as scorer. Another game will be played on Friday night of this week in the Council Chambers at Alderville. Those who played on Saturday were: Messrs. Wilburn Chubb, Ernie Crowe, Edgar Marsden, Amos Marsden, Jack Loukes and John Smoke, of Alderville; Howard H. Lapp, Albert Taylor, Andrew Brown, Billie Halstead, Earl Radley and Clarence W. Varcoe.

BANK GOES UNDER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. May 11. — (CP)—The Central Trust Company of Cambridge and its branches were closed to business today, the directors of the bank having asked Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy to take possession of the affairs of the company.

According to the latest statement of the bank, it had deposits, surplus and capital totaling $11,808,000. There were 22,000 depositors.

Heavy withdrawals during the past three weeks made necessary the action taken, the directors said.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 93 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

A hundred brawny young bucks followed Esteban until the slow moving tree was caught in an eddy. Luckily, the Spaniard thought, it was beneath an overhanging tree on the river's edge. Chilled and hungry, he drew himself up and crawled over to the ground, totally unconscious that in the grasses around him lurked the cannibal warriors. He felt for the diamonds. Yes, he still had them. "I'm lucky after all," he chuckled aloud and simultaneously the cannibal braves leaped upon him.

He was down and securely bound before he could realize what had happened. "Ah, Tarzan of the Apes, I have you at last," gloated Obebe, the cannibal chief. Of course Esteban understood not a word. When they had him in their village there was great rejoicing. Soon there would be a great feast! Only the witch doctor shook his head and made dire prophecies. "You have seized the river god," he lamented. "Soon we shall catch no fish and disaster will come upon us."

Much preparation began for the coming festivities. A cold sweat broke over Esteban for he guessed only too well what the grewsome cooking fires and pots meant for him. Then, as if in answer to the witch doctor's predictions, a shout arose from the water where a huge crocodile had dragged under a native boy. "See, Obebe, what did I tell you?" exclaimed the witch doctor, exultingly. "Already does the river god take his revenge upon your people."

The ignorant natives, steeped in superstition, looked fearfully from their witch doctor to their chief. Obebe scowled. "He IS Tarzan of the Apes," he insisted. "He is the river god who has taken the shape of Tarzan of the Apes," insisted the witch doctor. A deadlock threatened until Obebe got a bright idea. "We shall see," he exclaimed, "if he is the river god he can make his escape for he is not human. But if he is Tarzan of the Apes he will not be able to leave us."

Notice Is Given Of Radio Legislation

OTTAWA, May 11 (C.P.)—The Prime Minister has given notice of legislation to implement the report of the committee on radio broadcasting. Mr. Bennett has given notice that he will move, in the House, the following resolution:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to bring in a measure to provide for the constitution of a commission to be known as the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission for the purpose of acquiring, operating, regulating and controlling radio broadcasting in Canada."

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 11 (C.P. Cable).—Rain prevented play in four matches and stopped play in a fifth, out of seven first-class cricket matches scheduled to start to-day.

The closing scores in the remaining two matches were:

Lancashire, 196 for seven wickets against Glamorgan, at Blackburn.

Leicestershire, 309 for eight wickets (Smith 92 not out), against Oxford University at Oxford.

Worcestershire had run up 11 runs for three wickets against Kent at tea-time, and there was no resumption of play.

The other scheduled matches were Middlesex-Hampshire, Surrey-Sussex (friendly), Essex-Northamptonshire and Cambridge-Yorkshire.

SAW MILLS OPEN NEAR NORTH BAY

Majority Are on Reduced Scale—500 Men Needed for Peak Operations.

TWO MONTHS' WORK.

NORTH BAY, May 11. — This month will likely see all the larger saw mills of this district operating, but on a reduced scale compared with last year. Practically all the operators have prepared their plants for the season, but one or two are undecided as to when the saws will be buzzing. Approximately 500 men will be required when operations are at the peak but all will be recruited from the ranks of old employes. The average period of operation will be two months while two big milling companies are unable to set a definite date of opening and give any idea of how long the wheels will be turning.

The George Gordon Co. mill at Cache Bay, one of the largest in the district, was started on Monday with 120 men.

The Pierce Lumber company will initiate the sawing season at callander when the mill will be started on a two-month cut with about 65 men at the various occupations. J. B. Smith and Sons expect to start the season's cut during the last week of the month with from 150 to 160 men on the pay roll.

CELIAC DISEASE CURE IS FOUND

New York Doctor Claims Diet Alone Proves Remedy.

NO MEDICINE.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11. — A cure for celiac disease without a drop of medicine was reported to the American medical association today. Diet alone does it.

This disease is one of the pitiful ills of childhood, causing retarded growth, serious stomach disorders, growing weakness and when too long neglected, almost certain death.

Predisposition to relapse has made it difficult to cope with. In announcing the successful diet, Dr. Sidney V. Haas of New York City, said there has not been one recurrence.

The new treatment is an example of the rapidly developing science of finding in two or three commonplace articles of food a regulator that enables the body to convert the entire diet into its natural "medicine."

One cause of celiac disease is a peculiar form of sugar starvation No matter how much sugar a child eats, the system cannot assimilate it, and the sweet only makes them worse. Dr. Haas found the sugar in ripe bananas can be eaten freely, and that in the childrens' bodies it converts ordinary sugars into an agreeable form.

He said an enzyme in the banana sweet probably accounts for this transformation. Enzymes are microscopically small substances possessing big chemical effects.

Two Thugs Are Given Terms And Lashes

TORONTO, May 11 (C.P.).—Davis Diamond was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary and 15 strokes of the strap, and Charles Walker received two years, less one day, in the reformatory, with 10 strokes of the strap, when they pleaded guilty to armed robbery here to-day. The men held up Halperin's drug store here on April 29, and beat the proprietor over the head with a gun when he attempted to resist them.

MIX MARRIAGE SOLEMNIZED BY ANGLICAN CLERGY IS VALID

Bishop of Quebec Speaking at Synod States Ceremony Cannot be Annulled.

PRIVY COUNCIL DECISION.

QUEBEC, May 11.—A marriage solemnized between a member of the Roman Catholic Church and an Anglican by an Anglican clergyman is perfectly valid, and cannot be annulled, Rt. Rev. Lenox Williams, Bishop of Quebec, told clergymen and lay delegates of the Diocese at the 39th session of the Diocesan Synod, which met in the hall of the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity here.

In the course of his charge the Bishop referred at length yesterday to the recent General Synod of the Church of England in Canada and dealt particularly with the question of "mixed" marriages.

"Whatever regulations the Church of Rome may see fit to make in her own breast in the case of mixed marriages," the Baship declared, "and these regulations have been very prominently broadcast of late, it ought to be made perfectly clear to our own church people that a marriage duly solemnized between a Roman Catholic and a member of the Church of England by one of our own clergy is perfectly valid and cannot be annulled."

Decided In 1921.

That was definitely decided, the Bishop stated, by decision of the Privy Council in 1921 in a case of that nature. Copies of that judgment had been published in the Synod journal.

"There is no obligation whatever that the ceremony must be by a priest of the Church of Rome," the Bishop said, "and no promise should ever be made by a member of our own Church that the children of the marriage should all be baptized and brought up in the Roman Catholic Church."

Referring to present economic conditions in Canada and all over the world, the Bishop said the unprecedented amount of poverty and hardship which had resulted from unemployment constituted a challenge to the courage and faith of the Church.

The Bishop touched on resolutions passed at the General Synod and at the Lambeth Conference in 1920, stating that the pursuit of self-interest in economic life was the basic root of present-day business woes. "The Church is sometimes said to be trailing the present age," he complained. "In reality the Church is ahead of it, for this age is too materialistic."

DROUGHT AREAS TO YIELD CROPS

Western Communities Send Thanks to Eastern Brothers in Time of Need.

HYDRO IS SCORED.

HAMILTON, May 11. — That drought-stricken areas in the Canadian west will likely yield substantial crops this year was the hopeful message brought to the Synod of Niagara, Church of England, today by Rev. Canon C. W. Vernon, secretary of the social service council of the church.

The assistance given these stricken areas last year had strengthened the morale of the people and had come at a most opportune time, he stated. Canon Vernon brought the grateful thanks of these western communities to their eastern brothers.

A strong attack upon what he described as an in human method in dealing with poverty stricken power users was launched against the Hydro Electric Power Commission by men. Archdeacon Robertson of Hamilton.

"In theory, if not in fact, the Hydro is owned by the people and power in Hamilton is a cheap as elsewhere." Archdeacon Robertson said. "I know of a family in the city who had only a small electric plate with which to cook. They could not pay for their power bill. The meter was taken out, and they were left without power.

"We are sometimes told we have a lesson to learn from Russia, yet we have Socialism under our noses and we see how it works.

If we had a capitalist owning the power, we could go to him and he would probably give the service free to the poor family. Everybody's interest is nobody's interest. Is that the way we are running our socialized industries?"

Police Court

Adam H. Cox, of Douro street, was arraigned this morning in police court on a charge of criminal negligence arising from the accident at the corner of Hunter and Simcoe street on Saturday afternoon, April 30, which resulted in injuries to eight persons when Cox's driverless car hurtled on to the sidewalk and in among a throng of people.

Cox pleaded not guilty. Hearing of the case was fixed for next Tuesday morning, the man being allowed his freedom without bail. R. R. Hall, K.C., will act in his defense, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., will prosecute.

Edwin Walker and Oscar Sloan both entered pleas of guilty to a charge of speeding. Police said their speed was 40 miles an hour on George street south early on the evening of April 26. Each was fined $10.

Obituary

WILLIAM SMITH

The funeral of the late William Smith of Toronto was held from the Duffus Funeral Parlors on Tuesday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock to Lee's cemetery in Manvers township. Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, St. James Church, Peterborough, conducted the service prior to leaving and at the cemetery.

The large number of floral tributes was a silent testimony of the esteem in which the late Mr. Smith was held by his friends and neighbors, as well as by the number who attended the funeral.

His brothers, Messrs. Charles and John Smith of Toronto and his sister, Mrs. Morton of Oshawa and many others from a distance were present. Numerous former neighbors and friends met the funeral at the cemetery.

SQUIRES' FATE TO BE DECIDED UPON JUNE 11

Premier Minus Support of Several Lieutenants Will Lead Gov't Forces.

OPPOSITION STRONG.

Present Ministry Was Returned to Office Oct. 29, 1928, By 30 to 10.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, May 11 (C.P.)The fate of the Government of Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires will be decided on Saturday, June 11.

Proclamation for a general election in Newfoundland was issued to-day. Nominations will be filed on June 1.

Sir Richard will lead the government forces, but he will be without the support of several of his former lieutenants.

Sir William Coaker, veteran founder of the Fishermen's Protective Union, has resigned his portfolio and will retire from active politics. Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and Hon. Dr. Arthur Barnes, Secretary of State, also will leave the field.

Only Three Running

Only three, therefore, of the nine Ministers who with the Prime Minister made up the Government at its inception in 1928, will enter the coming campaign. They are Hon. Dr. Alexander Campbell, Hon. F. G. Bradley and Sir Tasker Cook, all Ministers without Portfolio.

Hon. Peter Cashin, Minister of Finance in the original ministry, resigned at the start of the last session of the Legislature, charging the Prime Minister with irregularities; Hon. P. J. Lewis later crossed the floor in support of Mr. Cashin, and Hon. Dr. H. M. Mosdell severed his connection with the Government through dissatisfaction with provisions in the budget which imposed duties on foodstuffs and fishermen's supplies.

Hon. J. Bindon, who was appointed to the executive after Mr. Cashin's resignation, and R. H. Hibbs, Minister of Public Works, also are expected to drop out of the running.

Three other former supporters of the Government: Walter Skeanes, St. Barbe; K. McK. Brown, Twillingate, and P. Fudge, Hermitage, have signified their intention of retiring.

Hon. Dr. Mosdell is not through with politics. He will be in the battle as an Independent, contesting the constituency of Fortune Bay.

Alderdice Leads Opposition

F. C. Alderdice, who will lead the Opposition forces, is said to be gathering a strong line-up for nominations.

The Government was returned to office on Oct. 29, 1928, with a majority of 30 to 10. At the last session of the Legislature the standing was approximately 25 to 15, several Government supporters having crossed the floor.

Plans For Academy Nearing Completion

Plans for the new academy at Mount St. Joseph are expected to be completed this week by the architect, A. W. Holmes, of Toronto. It is understood that their preparation has taken a little longer than was anticipated, but that they will be ready to be submitted for tenders in a few days.

The sisters of Mount St. Joseph are holding a bazaar in the Market Hall this week in aid of the proposed academy for girls. In view of the fact that its construction will cost approximately $100,000, Mother Irene is anxious for the success of this endeavor to assist in the financing of the project, which will be one of the major works to be carried on in the city this year.

Prisoner Gets Away Walks Out Of Court

WINNIPEG, May 11 (SNS)—All Winnipeg is laughing over the daring escape of a clever Los Angeles stock broker, Julius Roth, who, under the eyes of city detective, walked out of the local law courts, stepped into a taxi-cab and away to freedom.

A crowd was in the court listening to the argument of counsel for three Communists who had been spirited to Eastern Canada, in favor of granting them habeas corpus orders.

A few minutes before, Roth had been released by the court on a similar order. Detectives were waiting to re-arrest Roth on amended charges. They became so interested in the case against the Communists that Roth walked out of the courtroom with none to say him nay.

He stepped into taxi-cab at the curb, ordered it to drive him to St. Boniface stockyards and stepped out of the cab, telling the driver to wait while he transacted some business. The driver waited until long after noon and then drove into the city to lay a charge against "an unknown man."

League Of Nations Work Is Emphasized

OTTAWA, May 11 (C.P.)— The necessity of fostering an informed and understanding Canadian public opinion in the work of the League of Nations, especially now with critical days ahead, was stressed by Dr. H. M. Tory, President of the League of Nations Society in Canada, when he welcomed delegates to the tenth annual meeting here today.

To-day, the society has 5,553 members, a decrease of 768 during the year, with receipts of $20,826, making a surplus of $654 on the year's work. The society is in good finacial condition, Major W. R. Creighton, honorary treasurer, reported, with assets of $15,308.

Rubber Plant Blaze Loss Nears $50,000

CANTON, Mass., May 11.—Fire, which swept the large warehouse and reclaiming plant of the Plymouth Rubber Company shortly after the factory opened for word today, caused loss estimated at $50,000

The fire was preceded by a series of explosions in the reclaiming plant where naptha is employed in making the rubber plastic. The main factory building was slightly damaged by the blaze which necessitated a general alarm here and resulted in aid being called from the Sharon Fire Department.

The destroyed buildings were of wooden construction. The company manufactures rubberized cloths, heels and miscellaneous items.

Sweden now has 160,000 registered motor vehicles.

$3,000,000,000 DEFICIT FACES UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, May 12. — The U. S. Government's deficit for the 1932 fiscal year reached $2,519,525,267 on May 10 with prospects of amounting to $3,000,000,000 or more before the end of the fiscal year on June 30.

On last Tuesday the government had collected from all sources $1,710,436,405 and had spent $4,229,961,672.

The deficit then was nearly three times that for the previous fiscal year.

SARNIA BRANCH FORMED

SARNIA, May 12 (C.P.)—Formation of a local branch of the Moderation League of Ontario was initiated at a meeting here last night. W. F. Morgan-Dean and Paul Martin of Windsor, were the speakers.

Amendment of the Liquor Control Act to legalize the sale of beer and wine in hotels and approved restaurants was the objective of the organization.

3-Year-Old Boy Is Drowned in Well

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 12—Norman, three-year-old son of William and Mrs. Weaver, Willoughby township, was drowned in a well on his parents farm yesterday afternoon. The body was recovered in twenty minutes but life was extinct. He had raised the lid of the well and was throwing sticks into the water when he fell in. His mother was attending a Women's Institute meeting at Stevensville and the little lad had been left in care of the men folk. He was missed and the open well seen and the body found in the water.

PLOT TO SEIZE CANBERRA CITY IS UNCOVERED

"New Guard" Aims Were to Capture and Imprison All Ministers.

DOCUMENTS CONFISCATED.

Discoveries Astound Officials —Military Precautions Taken.

SYDNEY, Aus. May 12.—(C. P. Cable) — Astonishing discoveries were made by officers who have raided for a second time the offices of the headquarters of the "New Guard," a Fascistic, anti-Communist body formed more than a year ago and now claimed to have more than 100,000 members.

Documents seized included plans to capture the disused Berrima jail where the organization proposed to place "certain ministers of the crown and high police officials," ambitious schemes for the kidnapping of certain notabilities, formulated before the recent opening of the Sydney bridge, and a scheme for an alleged march on Canberra, the capital of Australia.

The New Guard apparently planned to capture the seat of government and imprison the ministers Canberra is the site only of the legislative and administrative buildings, with homes of members of parliament and civil servants and its capture would be comparatively easy. Canberra is populated by only 5,000 officials and 1,000 trades-people.

"Police Frame-up"

Eric Campbell, "General officer commanding" the New Guard, has taken up the cudgels in defence of some of his men who were jailed for assault on Monday. He declares they were victims of a police frame-up. Chief Police Commissioner Childs bluntly replies, "Campbell is a deliberate liar."

Another police discovery during the raid consisted of plans for establishment of ammunition dumps. The government has for some time instituted a special guard over military depots and arsenals.

Bush Fires Blazing In New Brunswick

FREDERICTON, N.B., May 12.—Hundreds of acres of second growth timber on Crown Lands along the head waters of the Oromocto river in Sunbury county are ablaze and a crew of 90 men has been sent into the region to combat the flames which authorities believe were set by an incendiary.

The devastating fire is located on Shin Creek in young growth in an area burned over some years ago The situation in the locality developed so seriously to-day that the New Brunswick forest service was obliged to increase the fighting force by 50 men and the fight probably will last for several days.

LAWYER LAYS DEFENSE FOR NINE ALLEGED REDS

HALIFAX, May 12 (C.P.). — L. A. Ryan, young Halifax lawyer, to-day was preparing to defend nine alleged Communists against deportation orders issued by the Department of Immigration. He is to visit them in their cells here to-day to discuss the procedure.

It is understood the Canadian Labor Defence League with headquarters in Toronto, will take an active part at the tribunal, and A. E. Smith, national secretary, has stated he will come to Halifax next week.

REICHERS READY TO-NIGHT FOR HARBOR GRACE HOP

NEWARK, May 12 (C.P.). — If the weather is satisfactory Lou T. Reichers, the Arlington speed pilot, probably will take off on his solo flight to Paris about 10 p.m. (E.S.T.) to-night.

His low-winged monoplane, The Liberty, was primed for action at Newark Airport. It was inspected and approved by Major James H. Doolittle, noted pilot.

The 31-year-old Reichers has expressed no fears of the Atlantic Ocean. What he wants, however, is good weather at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and at Dublin — points where he plans to refuel.

In his 50-pound cargo will be a letter from Mrs. Alice Liddell Hargreaves, the original "Alice in Wonderland," to her granddaughter.

Site of the New Canadian Departmental Store

OLD FAMILIAR CORNER TO HAVE NEW BUSINESS CENTRE

Southwest corner of Charlotte and George Streets where the Canadian Departmental stores will erect their new Peterborough building The billboards and old stores are to be demolished, with the exception of the three-storey building (nearest the left of the picture) on George street. Beyond it again the small stores at the extreme right will be razed to provide a wide lane entrance to a spacious parking area.

The new C.D.S. store will have 90 feet frontage on George street and 115 feet on Charlotte.

On the George Street face of the corner four stores in the three buildings, the centre one of which was formerly occupied by John Hill are to be torn down; and Charlotte Street property will be cleared to the old Dunne building, shown near the right of the picture. For more than a hundred years this corner has been a public focal point with comparatively few important changes in its aspect. The proposed C. D. S. building marks a final fadeout of the old order, and when the new highway is completed the corner of George and Charlotte streets will become practically, if not actually the junction of highways 7 and 28.

Today's announcement is of incalculable encouragement to Peterborough not only in the improvement of real estate, but especially a substantial inspiration to the community's confidence in itself.

Aird Firm Omitted $50,000 Payment From Tax Returns

Millard Says Someone In Hydro Told Aird Not Necessary To Make Returns For $50,000 As Money Came From Government.

$50,000 WAS TO APPEAR ON THE HYDRO BOOKS AS 'COMMISSION' WITNESS TELLS A. G. SLAGHT

TORONTO, May 12.—(CP)—Admission that the $50,000 paid to John Aird, Jr., by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario had been omitted from the income tax returns of Aird and his partner, R. W. Millard, was made by Millard on the witness stand before the Royal Commission enquiry into Hydro affairs here today.

After A. G. Slaght, K.C., independent counsel, had charged every effort was made by the Hydro and by witness and his partner to conceal the payment of the money, Millard said "someone in the Hydro had told Mr. Aird it was not necessary to enter the $50,000 in your income tax returns as the money came from the government, and we treated it as expense."

"I suggest Aird told you Hydro had told him the $50,000 would not appear in the Hydro books but would be put down as 'commission?'" asked Mr. Slaght.

"That is correct," witness replied.

Cashing of Coupons

Further light was thrown on the cashing of interest coupons of Dominion of Canada bonds given to Aird by the Beauharnois Power Corp. when three cheques for $1,650 were introduced as evidence and identified by bank officials today. Two of these had been cashed by Aird personally, while the third was cashed by Winthrop Green, Toronto.

Millard again told of the Madawaska negotiations, and of his differences with his partner, culminating in a dissolution of partnership because he felt Aird was not being frank with him in disclosing information.

Numerous entries from Millard's diary were quoted, and eventually Mr. Slaght asked if witness had ever seen Aird's diary. Millard replied in the affirmative, and counsel asked that this diary be pro-

Head-On Collision Fatal To Motorist

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 12 (C.P.) — Peter Huffman, 35, unmarried, of Chippawa, was almost instantly killed at midnight when the car he was driving collided head-on with another car near Chippawa. Peter Huffman, Sr., who was also in the car, escaped with minor injuries. The other car was driven by J. Martin, Fort Erie, who was not held after an investigation was made.

Coroner Robertson called an inquest early this morning, which was adjourned. The deceased is survived by his mother and father, of Chippawa.

MADMAN SLUGS HAMILTON GIRLS

Finally Flees as Victims Scream on Coming to After Blows From Iron Pipe.

AT MOUNTAIN INN.

HAMILTON, May 12 (C.P.). — Brutally assaulted by a man who is believed to be a maniac, Jean Small and Betty Cochrane, employees of the Lookout Inn, Mount Hamilton, are in the General Hospital. The incident occurred shortly before noon to-day.

The two young women are in charge of a refreshment booth perched immediately on the edge of the escarpment overlooking the city at the head of James Street, part of the building actually overhanging the dizzy drop. Yesterday morning a small dark man about thirty years of age, dressed in a blue suit and grey overcoat entered the restaurant and ordered some ice-cream. About 11.30 to-day he returned and ordered lunch. Miss Small waited upon him, and he finished his meal, talking in a rational way. Suddenly he put his hand inside his coat and drew out a piece of iron pipe about eighteen inches long and without warning, dealt the girl a severe blow over the head. Stunned by the shock, Miss Small fell unconscious to the floor.

Bea's Second Victim.

The man then made his way to the cellar of the building where Miss Cochrane was working. He struck her viciously over the head and the girl collapsed. In the meantime Miss Small had partly recovered from the shock and made her way to the cellar bravely to assist her companion. A struggle ensued in which both girls were again overpowered.

The maniac once more wielded the bludgeon and both girls were stretched helpless on the floor. Then he hurried upstairs, and after about ten minutes had elapsed, Miss

Financial Tangle Cost C.N. $372,800 Since Year 1923

Thornton States Total Was Paid To G. A. Gaston — $62,000 Yearly Salary—Brought Him From New York As No Canadian Was Suitable.

McGIBBON PROTESTS INSULT TO CANADIANS; MANION SAYS HE EXPLAINED SALARY HIGH.

OTTAWA, May 12 (C.P.). — A total of $372,800 has been paid since 1923 to G. A. Gaston, engaged by the Canadian National Railways to straighten out its financial structure, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the system, told the House of Commons Railways and Shipping Committee here to-day. This was in answer to a question put by Peter McGibbon (Con., Muskoka), who demanded an explanation of the amount.

"A member of the committee suggested that Mr. Gaston's salary had been $50,000 a year, to which had been added $12,000 a year for two years as receiver for the Central Vermont Lines. This latter post he was holding in 1931, when his services were dispensed with by the C.N.R. the $62,000 figure was confirmed by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways."

Sir Henry replied that shortly after he came to Canada he noted, after consultation with the Minister of Railways, that the accounting of the lines was in a highly chactic state. There were about 150 mortgages, all with different rates of interest, covering different parts of the system, with different maturity, dates and different conditions. Some were guaranteed by the provinces, some by the dominion.

A number of these mortgages were liens on the railway properties for a few hundred miles, after which they became second liens. These conditions were an inheritance from the previous administrations of the Grand Trunk and the Mackenzie Mann roads.

Difficult Maze

The entire situation represented the most difficult maze of financial documents that ever confronted any business enterprise. Sir Henry said. With a view to straightening things out, it had been thought wise by the directors and the government to employ some

Douks Plan Songs For Chief in Jail

BLAINE LAKE, Sask., May 12.— Doukhobors from all over Saskatchewan are reported planning to parade to Prince Albert, there to mass forces and, after surrounding the walls of the jail, much like Jericho was surrounded in still more distant days, warble songs of cheer to their leader, Peter Verigin.

Arrangements are being made with the utmost secrecy but details are leaking out regarding the activities of the members of the Christian Community of Universal brotherhood, who seem confident they can get their chieftain out of prison.

AKRON MOORED AFTER TRAGEDY

Commander Blames "Odd Stratified Air" for Sudden Rise Fatal to Two.

THIRD IS RESCUED.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 12. — The navy dirigible Akron to-day swung calmly at anchor at Camp Kearny Field, where two bluejackets were killed in an attempt to moor her.

A third seaman, Charles Cowat, dangled for two hours to a mooring line yesterday before being hauled aboard the airship at 2,000 feet.

Beset by storms in Southwest Texas, forced to climb high over mountains, the airship arrived here safely yesterday to have tragedy climax its transcontinential flight.

"Peculiarly stratified air" was blamed by Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, master of the Akron, for the airship's sudden ascent after snapping its cable, as efforts were being made to moor it.

Building Will Have 35,000 Square Ft. Of Business Space

T. Eaton Company, Limited, Will Erect New Departmental Store On Corner Of George And Charlotte Streets This Summer.

EXPECT NEW STORE WILL BE OPENED FOR BUSINESS BEFORE FIRST OF YEAR.

Old Cressman Building To Be Sub-Divided Into Separate Stores—Will Use Local Labor and Canadian Materials.

Announcement was made today by the T. Eaton Co. Limited of definite plans for the erection of a new Peterborough store in its chain of Canadian Department Stores Limited.

The new building will be erected this summer on the southwest corner of George and Charlotte streets on property purchased by the T. Eaton Company in 1930 from the Taylor estate. It will have a frontage of about 90 feet on George street and 115 feet on Charlotte street.

The new store will be an imposing structure of stone and brick. Having a total approximate floor space of 35,000 square feet, it will comprise a basement, ground floor and second floor. The possibility of a third floor addition will be provided for in its construction.

Show windows will face both streets and there will be an entrance on each street. Thought has also been given to provide a parking area in the space adjacent to the store building.

Will Use Local Labor

Local labor and Canadian materials will be used in the construction of the building as far as possible, as has been the consistent policy of the T. Eaton Company, the announcement states.

This definite announcement of the proposed new Canadian Department Store here was made this morning to Mayor Denne by officials of the T. Eaton Company. Details of the plans were given, but no estimate of the cost was included.

Architects of the company are still working on details of the building, but it is understood that the plans will be completed very soon. No time was given for starting construction, but it is understood that the store will open before the new year.

Remodel Old Store

Another important building operation in connection with the plans is the remodelling of the former Cressman building.

This important store formerly housed the House Furnishing Department of the Canadian Department Stores. It is to be sub-divided into separate stores. These alterations to the building are expected to commence within the next few weeks.

The Examiner was informed that these stores have already been let. Plans have been completed for some time and tenders have been called.

"The announcement of the T. Eaton Company's plans to erect this large new store in Peterborough is but another significant indication of the favored business prospects of

FRANCE PAYS PAUL DOUMER LAST TRIBUTE

King, Four Princes, Notables March in Funeral Procession Mile Long.

MILLION JAM STREETS.

Premier Tardieu Lauds "Father" of Republic at Pantheon in Stirring Oration.

Paris, May 12.—France bowed in sorrow today and paid last tribute at the funeral of Paul Doumer, the venerable, white-bearded president she liked to call "father." M. Doumer was slain last week by an assassin's bullet.

Tens of thousands of Parisians jammed the streets this morning and stood in solemn silence as the funeral procession fyled by on its way to the great cathedral of Notre Dame.

It was such a funeral as Paris had not seen since the beloved "Papa" Joffre, hero of the Marne, was buried in January, 1931.

A king and four princes trudged behind the rumbling artillery caissons all the way from the Elysee Palace to the cathedral, a march of an hour and a half in the warm, damp morning.

At the cathedral the requiem mass was celebrated by Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, who wore a black and silver chasuble over his flaming red cassock. The nuncio of Pope Pius XI, Monsignor Maglione, presided over the ceremony from the archiepiscopal throne. Army bugles sound "To the Fields!" at the elevation.

The funeral procession left the presidential palace a few minutes before 8 a.m., and began the journey to the cathedral.

Million Watch Procession

Well over 1,000,000 people thronged the streets and squares to watch the funeral procession pass, pressing against the serried ranks of poilus, clad in their horizon blue, who stood elbow to elbow all the way from the palace. After the services at the cathedral the cortage continued to march to the pantheon.

At the pantheon, on the very mountain of Sainte Genevieve, in the shadow of the edifice in which repose the nation's illustrious dead, Premier Andre Tardieu, in a moving oration described the dead president as "the supreme type of democrat" while the army, in which M. Doumer's four sons gave up their lives during the world war, marched past with flags dipped at salute.

The premier reviewed the late president's three-quarters of a century of toil, recalling his services as a colonial governor in Indo-China, as presiding officer of the senate and as chief executive of the nation.

"He would have rejoiced," the premier said, "in his high conscience

Small Boy Narrowly Escapes Drowning

COBOURG, May 12 (Special to The Examiner). —. A two-year-old boy, Joseph Fox, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Meeson, was narrowly saved from drowning yesterday when he was discovered lying unconscious in a culvert, and was dragged to safety by his grandfather.

The lad had gone out to play on the street with his wagon. He was noticed by Mrs Meeson playing near the culvert which crosses under the road and which is protected by planks. She became alarmed when she saw the wagon standing alone and no trace of the child.

Running to the culvert, she saw him lying face downwards on the cement underneath the culvert Her husband waded in and crawling into the culvert under the road dragged out the unconscious child.

He began to work at once on the body of his grandson. The little boy was gradually reviving when the doctod arrived, having escaped death by a few seconds.

NEW IRISH TAX HITS BACHELORS

De Valera Finds He Must Raise £3,500,000 to Face Budget Deficit.

LEVY ON SWEEPSTAKES.

DUBLIN, May 12 (C.P.) —Irish bachelors awoke with a start to-day to find themselves threatened with grievously increased tax burdens. It was the result of the new Free State tax bill introduced last night in the Dail Eireann.

Under a new proposed income tax, which calls for a general increase in rates, a bachelor with an income of £300 (about $1,500 at par) a year would pay nearly £19 (about $95 at par) tax, while the good fortune of having an income of £1,000 a year would entail a tax of about $795.

A budget deficit of about £3,500,000 facing President De Valera's Government made necessary drastic action. Finance Minister Sean Macentee said in introducing the bill.

The bill also calls for a duty of 6 cents a pound on tea, extension of the entertainment tax to cover dancing, outdoor sports and horse and dog racing, a tax of 28 cents a pound on tobacco, as well as a 25 per cent. levy on the Irish Hospital's share in sweepstakes proceeds, estimated to bring in about $3,250,000 at par.

CAMPBELLFORD RATE INCREASED BY THREE MILLS

Total of $74,401.53 Will Be Required to Run Business of Town.

RATE IS 49 MILLS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A decrease in the tax rate of 3 mills over the 1931 rate for the town of Campbellford is featured this year when at a special meeting of the Council last evening the rate was struck at 49 mills. A total of $74,401.53 will be required to be raised this year to run the business of the town, the total assessment of the town being $1,526,075.00. The rate is divided as follows: County, 8.5 mills; town debentures, 19.7; High School debentures, 5.6; Public School trustees' rate, 8.2; High School trustees, 3; electric light debenture, 2.7; general town rate, 1.3—total, 49 mills. The Separate School rate will be 10 mills.

The estimated expenditures and receipts for the town for the current year are: Receipts—Balance on hand, $1,067.82; tax arrears, $3,500; dog tax, $280; R.R. tax, $92.80; W. and L. grant, $15,000; rents, $400; licenses, $700; W. and L. debentures, $4,130.73; fines, $500; Miss., $100; H.S. debentures, $435.90; ratepayers' share of local improvement, $9,789.60—total, $36,015.85.

Expenditures—Overdraft W. and L. POULTRY RACKET LOSES ITS CHIEF

Barney Cohen Mowed Down By Gang Bullets, Month After Brother.

CHOIR DROWNS SHOTS.

NEW YORK, May 12 (C.P.). — Again the guns have written a Cohen off the bullet-perforated pages of the poultry racket.

A month ago it was Joseph Cohen. He answered his doorbell and they slew him in his tracks. Late last night the guns were trained on Barney Cohen, who succeeded to his brother's place in the poultry picture.

Barney Cohen was shot down as he stood on a Jamaica corner. Four men in a car fired. The roar of their weapons was lost in the music from a choir singing in a church nearby.

The killers escaped.

Barney Cohen was 50 years old and married. Of three brothers, only one, Jack Cohen, survives.

The poultry racket, once called the "fifty million dollar poultry trust," is believed by police to be at the bottom of the murder of the brothers. Joseph Cohen was known as "the poultry king of New York."

Girls Prepare for Olympics

COMPARE ANCIENT AND MODERN TICKETS

While Canadian girl athletes are training conscientiously in the hope of making the team that will represent Canada in Olympiad at Los Angeles this summer, preparations for the big meet are being made in California. Discoveries made at the Los Angeles Museum, where Victor Merlo, historical art curator, is carrying on intensive research concerning the early Olympic games, revealed that ducats used by the ancient Greeks were carved out of bone or elephant tusks. One of these early day tesserae, as they were called, is compared by Miss Volta Boyer with the modern Olympic Stadium pass.

Fifteen Cents Bid For Foshay Tower

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 12.—Fifteen cents was bid for a 2,000,000 building here yesterday.

The occasion was the 17th attempt to auction the 32-storey Foshay Tower, one of the W. B. Foshay enterprises now in receivership.

C. C. Darnell, Assistant Receiver, read a court document announcing the tower was for sale. His audience was a group of men awaiting help at the City Poor Relief Bureau in the courthouse.

"I'll offer 15 cents," said one man.

"No sale," said Mr. Darnell, as he left to arrange for another auction date.

HYDRO INQUIRY RESUMES TODAY

Payment of $22,000,000 for Dominion Power and Transmission Ltd. Likely to Feature.

PROGRESS BEING MADE.

TORONTO, May 12 (CP)— The royal commission enquiry into certain affairs of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission resumed its sessions to-day, after rising Tuesday night when Mr. Justice J. F. Orde declared he was unable to sit Wednesday.

Possibility the probe would soon reach the $22,000,000 payment by the Hydro for the Dominion Power and Transmission Ltd., of Hamilton loomed to-day. Already the investigation has dealt exhaustively with the payment of $50,000 to John Aird Jr. for his part in the Madawaska negotiations, and the payment of $125,000 to Aird by the Beauharnois Power Corp., supposedly for the Ontario Conservative party.

During this week's sittings, the commission has heard R. O. Sweezey, former head of Beauharnois; H. B. Griffiths, secretary-treasurer, and Loring Christie, a director; A. B. Shepard, accountant who audited Aird's books, and R. W. Millard, former partner of Aird.

Millard's testimony included his personal belief that a second payment of $50,000 had been made by Hydro to Aird. He declared "there was a possibility the Hydro had paid the money," but admitted there was no actual proof."

HUSBAND STABS WIFE AT PARTY

Woman's Condition Critical—Toronto Police Lay Wounding Charge.

WINE DRINKING ALLEGED.

TORONTO, May 12 (C.P.). — Mrs. Leda Connors, 37, lies in a local hospital to-day in a critical condition with a deep butcher knife wound in her left side following an alleged stabbing affray in her home last night.

So serious is the woman's condition that early to-day it was found necessary to administer a blood transfusion. The woman's husband, Ernest, was arrested on a charge of wounding.

The affray took place last night at a party where there was considerable wine-drinking, according to the police.

Connors' statement to police after the wounding was that he was standing in a room and was making his way to a table where a card game was in progress in hopes of providing the fun.

As he waved the knife he claims to have cried out, "We'll cut the cards with this." His wife, he said, thought him serious, and, throwing herself in front of him, reached for the weapon, and said, "Don't do that." The sharp blade of the knife, Connors is alleged to have told the police penetrated his wife's stomach.

COUNTY COUNCILS MAY BE OUSTED 30 FEWER MEMBERS IN HOUSE

Sensational Economy Plan in Ontario is Expected.

EIGHT-MAN CABINET.

TORONTO, May 12.—While there are no definite signs at present of an early Provincial election, many prominent Tory camp-followers feel that things are now moving in that direction, and that any appeal which the Henry Government may make to the people—in 1933 or as late as 1934—will be one for Ontario-wide economies, with Queen's Park pledged to set the pace therein.

In any such economy platform, the following planks may be laid down:

1. Reduction of the present Legislature membership of 112 to 82, so as to tally with the Ontario House of Commons membership, and make possible the adoption of (or as nearly as possible) Dominion electoral riding boundaries.

2. An eight - man Ontario Cabinet.

3. Abolition of all County Councils.

4. Discontinuance of the Grand Jury system.

Not Talking

Absolutely no confirmation of these suggested proposals is to be had at Queen's Park, but Governments are not in the habit of "tipping their signals" in advance, and unofficial rumor is that various members of the present Administration are at least discussing such matters nowadays among themselves, if not actually bringing

JAPANESE BEGIN TO ROUT REBELS

Division From Shanghai Area Gets First Taste of Battle in Manchuria.

HEAVY CASUALTIES.

HARBIN, May 12 (C.P.). — The 14th Japanese Army Division, newly arrived in Manchuria from Shanghai, had its first taste of battle to-day.

A detachment fought with a force of 600 Chinese rebels near Wukimiho, routing them with heavy losses. Headquarters of the division, under Lieut.-General Naosuka Matsuki, have been established here.

The entire strength of General Hirose's 10th Division left here for Fangcheng to-day to campaign against the rebels in the lower Sungari River Valley.

Meantime the rebel activities west of here have been the cause of anxiety over the maintenance of communications between here and Tsitsihar. A force of rebels, estimated at 12,000, was reported moving northward from the Fuyu district and menacing the western division of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

FRUIT BUDS SAVED.

COBOURG, May 12.— The fact that the cold weather has slowed up the blossoming of fruit trees is stated by orchardists in this district as a matter of gratification. As frost may still be expected, the fruit buds, if delayed, will be in less danger of suffering from it.

NEW ALBERTA PARTY SENDS OUT ITS APPEAL

DRUMHELLER, Alta, May 12.—(CP)—With an appeal for support from all citizens opposed to the present government of Premier John E. Brownlee, a new political party for Albert has been launched. Aims of the organization which will not only seek to oust the present government but to put an end to the party system of the present were outlined here last night by F. C. Moyer, Independent member of the legislature for Drumheller.

TO TAX JUDGES IN LIEU OF CUT

Added Income Levy Hits at All Those Exempted.

10 PER CENT TAX.

OTTAWA, May 12.—The Dominion Government has decided to pass an act levying an additional income tax of 10 per cent. upon members of the judiciary, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the military, naval and air forces. The purpose of the legislation is to put the Judges, police and military on the same footing as others in the Government service who are taking a 10 per cent. reduction in their pay this year. When the 10 per cent. cut was announced, it applied to every Government servant, from the Prime Minister down, but not the Judges and military forces.

Voluntary Reductions

His Excellency the Governor-General also insisted upon sharing the sacrifice in order to assist in balancing the national Budget, but the cut could not be applied to the judiciary and the others above mentioned because their salaries were fixed by statute. Several of the Judges communicated with the Government, voluntarily offering to take a reduction, and the decision to levy an additional 10 per cent. income tax upon them has been made in order that all will be treated alike. Members of Parliament have publicly protested against the Judges and the military being exempted.

The total saving in Judges' salaries will be $21,419, as their salaries for the entire Dominion aggregate $2,141,900. The seven Supreme Court Judges at Ottawa draw $87,000 and the Exchequer Court Judges $22,000. Three Chief Justices of Ontario receive $10,000 each, and the eight Judges of the High Court Division at Osgoode Hall are paid a total of $144,000. There are also sixty-six County Court Judges in Ontario, who are paid a total of $330,000 per annum.

Police and Military

Salaries and wages of the Mounted Police Force exceed $2,000,000, and those of the military and naval forces $5,000,000.

The act will be effective for the present fiscal year only, the same as the 10 per cent. reduction for the civil servants. Of course, the Government may continue the lower rates of pay if economic conditions in the country do not improve in the meantime.

FRANCE PAYS

that his death was the occasion for showing France as she is, indivisible, strong and capable in the face of danger of every possible energetic reaction."

Posts Draped in Black

The lamp posts along the streets were draped in black. The sky was overcast and the weather was warm and damp. Muffled drums beat as the heavy Artillery caisson on which the body was borne rumbled over the pavement.

The Place de Concorde was jammed as it had not been since the funeral of Marshal Joffre in 1931 as the huge crowds waited for the funeral procession, slowly moving down from the Champs Elysees.

The bells of Notre Dame began tolling as the hearse, drawn by six black stallions, came into view.

Before it marched three hospital nurses and an either side were the pall bearers.

They were: Professor Charlety, Rector of the University of Paris; Roland Dorgeles, war-time novelist; Dr. Jullien, a personal friend of the late President; Paul Brousmich, President of the National Union of War Veterans; Former Minister Albert Sarraut, who succeeded M. Doumer as Governor of Indo-China; Admiral Durand-Viel, Chief of the Naval General Staff, and Franchet d'Esperey, Marshal of France.

The family, with the exception of Mme. Doumer, followed on foot behind the hearse. Then came the officials of the late President's military and civil households, the officers with their swords wrapped in crepe.

Albert Lebrun, President Doumer's successor in office, followed next alone and bareheaded, wearing the broad red cordon of the Legion of Honor.

Royalty Marches.

Then came tall, gaunt Albert, King of the Belgians, in kkhaki, with a mourning band on his arm. He was followed by four princes, the Prince of Wales in a long, grey Guardsman's overcoat; the Duke of Aosta of Italy, in a bright blue aviation uniform surmounted by a wide purple sash, with the collar of the Annunciata at his throat; Prince Paul of Jugoslavia, in the dark green uniform of the Royal Guard, and a fur bonnet adorned with a white aigrette; and the young Emperor of Annam, in a black overcoat and silk hat.

The cortege moved majestically to the strains of Chopin's Funeral March, through a lane formed by hushed multitudes on the sidewalkks. Eight floats were piled high with wreaths from sovereigns and chiefs of state.

One particularly remarked was bound in the Monarchist colors of o'd Spain, and bore the inscription of former King Alfonso XIII. and former Queen Victoria, now in exile at Fontainbleau.

Premier Andre Tardieu marched alone, in evening dress and a top hat. He was followed by the members of the Cabinet.

Then came Marshal Lyautey in full uniform, carrying a marshal's batou the patriarch of the Syrian Church in a trailing robe of mauve; the justices in their red robes trimmed with ermine and high toques, and General Maxine Weygand, commander-in-chief of the army with the officers of the general staff.

The hearse arrived at Notre Dame at 9:25.

Cathedral Packed

Also in the procession were the members of the diplomatic corps. 10,000 packed the cathedral. Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, in a black and silver chasuble over his red cassock, himself celebrated the Requiem Mass. Monsignor Maglione, Papal Nuncio, presided over the ceremony from the archiepiscopal throne.

The choir sang Charles Marie Vic-'s Requiem Mass, with army bugles sounding "To the Fields" at the election.

Mme. Doumer, heavily veiled, sat motionless throughout the Mass and whispered a word of thanks to the Cardinal as he imparted the blessing at its close.

PLEA FOR ECONOMY

QUEBEC—The opinion that extravagant waste, due to duplication of offices in federal, provincial and municipal management is partly responsible for present conditions and a plea to those in power to reduce expenditure under this heading were contained in the report of the diocesan council for social service, submitted to the delegates to the 39th diocesan synod meeting here.

SCHOOL CADETS ARE INSPECTED

Captain Watson Expresses Satisfaction With Performance of Campbellford Units.

MEDALS PRESENTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Complete satisfaction was expressed yesterday by Captain D. Watson of Military District No. 3 at the smart and efficient turnout of the Campbellford High and Public School Cadets at their annual inspection. Mustering in platoons under their respective captains, the senior and junior units were a pleasing spectacle as they marched past the saluting base, keeping good step to the beat of the drum.

Military exercises were extremely well executed and musketry drill proved a well ordered and uniform exhibition. Many new and interesting stunts were performed in the physical drill portion of the inspection, which were appreciated greatly by the large number of citizens who assembled to witness the spectacle.

At the conclusion of the inspection Captain Watson presented the officers of the units with medals, the annual gift from the Strathcona Trust. These went to the following:

High School.

Officer Commanding, Captain Satwart Anderson; No. 1 Platoon, Lieutenant Grant Meiklejohn. Sergeant Don. Rutherford; No. 2 Platoon, Lieutenant Merwin Malcolm. Sergeant Bernard Crossen; No. 3 Platoon, Lieutenant R. Rowe. Sergeant Vern. Abernethy. No. 4 Platoon, Lieutenant B. Collins. Sergeant Frank O'Sullivan. Sergeant-Major Harry Fowlds and Drummer Frank Roe.

Public School.

Officer Commanding, Captain Gordon Fox; No. 1 Platoon, Lieutenant N. Waddell, Sergeant C. M. Bell; No. 2 Platoon, Lieutenant Robert Linton, Sergeant M. Atkinson; No. 3 Platoon, Lieutenant Raymond Wragg, Sergeant F. McArthur, Drummer V. Cubitt.

Principal E. H. Greig of the High School and Principal C Haig of the Public School took the salute with Captain Watson, and were heartily cheered by the boys, ovations also being given the King and the inspecting officer.

RAILROADS ARE BOTH ASLEEP

Manion Thinks Highway Competition Has Been Ignored.

NEW YORK OUTLAY.

OTTAWA, May 12.— The two principal railways in Canada had been "asleep at the switch" for the past ten years in not devising means of competing with the busses and trucks, declared Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, before the Railway Committee of Commons yesterday. It brought out a lively argument on this point.

The Minister was impressing on the committee that both the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National had been losing money on passenger business, and these losses had been mounting in recent year. This was in spite of great efforts the two companies made to develop this phase of the railway business by uptown ticket offices, by hotels and steamships. They were incurring great expenes to serve the end of the business that did not pay, and neglecting the end of the business that did pay, namely, the freight.

Unfair, Suggests Euler

Hon. W. D. Euler suggested it was not a fair conclusion that, because the C.N.R. might overemphasize the passenger end, it neglected the freight side of the business.

Dr. Manion regarded the failure of the railway companies to meet the truck competition as neglecting the freight department.

Transcontinental and other long-haul passenger service is run at a loss all over this continuent, Sir Henry Thornton said, whereas metropolitan service, even at very low rates, was often remunerative. He agreed with suggestions from the Minister and others that efforts should be made, in co-operation with C.P.R. and the C.N.R. had no hotels in Canada there would be a big drop in tourist trade in this country.

New York Office

From 1925, the year in which the Canadian National Railways went into the premises at 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, to 1931, the passenger travel business of the system booked there had increased from $169,338 to $502,353, Sir Henry told the committee. In the interim, the railways had moved into more commodious premises, at 673 Fifth Avenue, in October, 1929. Notwithstanding the general depression, the passenger traffic business had been sustained, Sir Henry said. At the same time, through their information facilities, the officials of that bureau had been able to secure the establishment in Canada of seventy-nine industries.

COUNTY COUNCILS MAY BE OUSTED

them before Cabinet as a whole.

It is a pretty well accepted belief, furthermore, that a Redistribution Bill will be brought down to the Legislature at the 1933 session, and this, undoubtedly, would serve as the first step toward making the House smaller, and a less costly proposition than it is at the present time

A smaller Cabinet, with amalgamation of various departments and elimination of others to effect that goal, has been rumored for some time.

County Councils

Doing away with County Councils has been advocated from public platforms during the past year by various Ministers of the Government, and abolition of Grand Juries has a forceful sponsor in the person of Attorney-General William H. Price, whose intimation along this line at the last session of the House was generally taken to indicate that the Government was about ready to move in that connection.

Abolition of County Councils, with the subsequent adoption of the Township Council basis of rural municipal government, would, it is understood, necessitate considerable changes in Provincial grants—notably in highways construction contributions—but, on the other hand, it is said, would effect a material financial saving all around.

GIPSY PRINCE DIES AT HOME

Fatally Injured Removed From Hospital to Home to Die.

BIG CROWDS ATTRACTED.

TORONTO, May 12. — Miller Mitchel, Prince of the Gipsies, died at 8.30 o'clock last night in his home, 296 Queen Street East, among his own people. His death followed serious injuries received from the explosion of a cylindrical washing machine in a workshop on the Esplanade East last Monday.

Following thirty-six hours of fruitless efforts to save his life in the Toronto General Hospital, his relatives were permitted to take him home yesterday morning so that he could die among his own people. At 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning his relatives were told that his death could only be a matter of a short time, and at their request he was removed to his home, where he was attended by his own physician and a trained nurse.

According to his doctor, the victim of the accident died of a fractured skull.

Out-of-Town Visitors

After his removal from the hospital to the home at 296 Queen Street East, the late Miller Mitchell was attended by his doctor and a nurse. Many relatives and other Gipsies visited the home of the wounded man, several coming from out-of-town places on hearing of his accident.

When he expired, the lamentations of the mourners could be heard for some distance and attracted crowds of curious people outside the premises, so that, under Sergeant Robert Gunnell, the police were called on twice to keep the idlers moving. Some time after the death the place was filled with relatives of the "Prince," many attired in the colorful gipsy costumes participating in the funeral rites.

Wail and Clap Hands

The women and children of the band sat on benches and on the floor during the greater part of the night, while an old man and two or three women, huddled on the floor beside the bier, expressed their sorrow by loud wailing and clapping of hands. The men of the band were absent during this part of the ceremony.

FRENCH POLICE STAGE RAIDS ALONG RIVIERA

NICE, France, May 12 (C.P.). — Police authorities continued to-day their investigation into the activities of "white" Russians along the Riviera, attempting to throw a searchlight into the history of Dr. Paul Gorgulov, slayer of President Doumer.

Three Poles were arrested yesterday before complaint was made by the Polish Consul-General. The arrests gave rise to reports that general raids were to be made on all inhabitants of the foreign quarter, but police denied this.

TOWER OF BABEL BELIEVED FOUND

Discovery of Mound 50 Feet High, 250 Wide Made in City of Akshak.

DATED TO 4000 B.C.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 12. — Prof. LeRoy Waterman, Director of University of Michigan-Cleveland Museum Archaeological excavations in Mesopotamia announced to-day discovery of what is believed to be the Ziguarrat or "Tower of Babel" in the ancient city of Akshak.

The find is a mound about 50 feet high and 250 to 300 feet in diameter. The other structure is a circular wall of sun-dried bricks, 30 feet thick and 15 to 20 feet high. Above the level of the wall are alternate layers of reeds and earth. The north side of the mound is a solid structure of unburned bricks.

The mound contains a core, 40 feet square, of solid brick. The core's original height and present depth in the ground have not been determined fully.

The Sumerian migration from the mountains east of Mesopotamia into the plains dates back to about 4,000 B.C., and was followed later by the Babylonian invasion. The Zigurrats, one of which is referred to in the Bible as "the Tower of Bebel," symbolized the Sumerian love of the mountains. The first city builders constructed their artificial mountain in the flat country, erected a small temple at the top as a home for their god and built their city around the Zigurrat.

Inscriptional material was found in the mound, confirming the early origin of the structure.

NO CONFIDENCE MOVE DEFEATED

Bruening and German Cabinet Weather Split 287 to 257.

FRACAS MARS SESSION.

BERLIN, May 12 (A.P.)—A motion of no confidence against Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his Cabinet was defeated in the Reichstag this afternoon by a vote of 287 to 257.

The Reichstag roared in turmoil just as the vote was coming up. The Speaker, Paul Loebe, announced that a Social Democrat journalist had been pummeled in the Reichstag lobby. He said he had directed the criminal police to find out the name of the assailant irrespective of whether he was a member of the Reichstag or not. This raised a bedlam among the National Socialists and it was countered by a similar turmoil among the Socialists, so that President Loebe had to suspend the meeting for half an hour.

Eyewitnesses said the attacker of the newspaper man was a Nazi member of the Reichstag.

Earlier in the morning the Reichstag passed a law empowering the government to float an internal loan for creating employment. No amount for the loan was set.

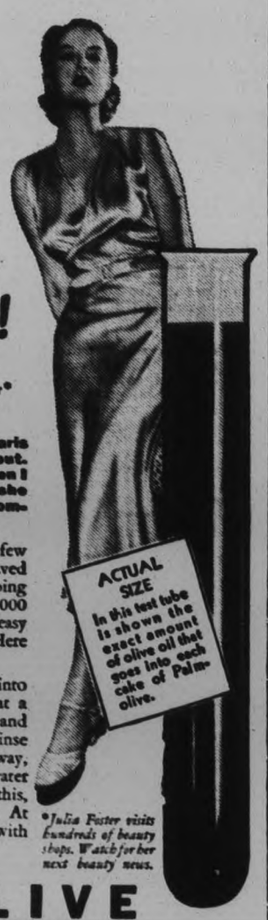
Yes... her figure was marvelous



But her skin, Tragic!

By Julia Foster*

Here was the kind of figure Paris dressmakers must dream about. Imagine my disappointment when I saw a blemished skin! Didn't she know this simplest secret of complexion care?

YOU can have that advice. The few simple instructions that have saved thousands of women from developing a "tragic" skin. More than 20,000 beauty experts have agreed on this easy home care for the complexion. Here it is. Follow it.

With your hands, work well into the pores of your face and throat a generous lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Then a thorough rinse with warm water to wash it away, followed by a cold rinse. Hot water should never touch your face. After this, in the morning, your make-up. At night, if your skin is dry, follow with oil or tissue cream.

ACTUAL SIZE In this test tube is shown the exact amount of olive oil that goes into each cake of Palmolive.

PROFIT OPPORTUNITIES?

If prices of raw commodities have fallen about 45 per cent., and prices of finished goods only about 20 per cent., as recently reported by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, where are manufacturers' profits?

There are three possible basic costs to eat up profits: materials, men and money. Materials costs are down, abnormally low. Labor costs are down, not so low, and very unevenly. Capital costs? There's the rub, in many cases. A dollar owed is still a dollar owed. Debts contracted at 1929 prices are unchanged. Bonds floated before the depression cost the same interest. Real estate rented costs the same rent (till leases expire). Real estate bought has the same interest charges, even higher taxes. Plants and machinery and equipment have the same amortization. In short, overhead is not readjusted.

Some debts are gradually being liquidated; some depreciated fixed assets are being written off. All this comes out of the income of the current year. If thousands of companies can bear these burdens and still make profits, what, to-day, are the opportunities for profit for NEW concerns?

A PLAIN WARNING.

The plain statement delivered by Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, in the British Parliament yesterday that the abolition of the oath of allegiance by the Irish Free State will result in a refusal on the part of the British Government to enter into any agreement with the Free State at the Imperial Economic Conference, will give the Irish people much food for thought.

President De Valera has professed to believe that the abolition of the oath would not interfere with the Free State's relations with the Empire, but Mr. Thomas' remark that it was not reasonable to expect the British Government to enter into negotiations with a Government which had repudiated an existing agreement may help to convince the Free State leader that agreements cannot be set aside at will without unpleasant consequences to the party which attempts to do so.

No amount of sophistry can hide the fact that in abolishing the oath of allegiance Mr. De Valera is deliberately violating the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921, and if he thought that he could adopt that high-handed attitude and still share in the advantages of belonging to the Empire family his illusions should have been thoroughly shattered by the blunt words of the Secretary for the Dominions.

RADIO PROGRAMS.

The report of the radio committee recommending nationalization of Canadian broadcasting has been adopted by Parliament, and legislation to implement the findings of the committee will follow.

The average set-owner, The Examiner imagines, is somewhat at a loss to know whether or not a public-owned broadcasting will be a good thing or not.

In the first place, the report was sufficiently hazy as to the financing of the scheme as to cause some doubt about how its recommendations can be brought into effect without too heavy a burden being placed upon the owners of receiving sets.

And the Ottawa Journal raises another point that is giving many people considerable concern—that is, as to the personnel of the commission to control radio and the nature of the programs that will be presented.

There is a real fear that the commission may not set out to give the public something of what it wants, but rather what a few people think the public should want.

If the commissioners endeavor, as the Journal puts it, "to educate us all to elevate our tastes in music and the drama and to make us think more nationally and be mor instructed in our duties and responsibilities as citizens, then it will be just too bad. Radio will become deadly dull, and we shall have Canadians tuning in on United States programs while our own are neglected or enthused over by the few. The public doesn't want to be lectured and it objects to persons who have a passion to improve its taste."

This is so undoubtedly true that it should receive serious consideration in any plans for changes in Canadian broadcasting facilities.

THE RED CROSS ANNIVERSARY.

To-day, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, is being commemorated throughout the British Empire as Empire Red Cross Day, a most fitting anniversary for such an observance, inasmuch as the seed planted by the Lady of the Lamp in the mind of Henri Dunant, as a result of her services in the Crimea, has grown into the mighty organization that does so much for stricken humanity both in peace and war.

Canada has every reason to commemorate and be thankful for the Red Cross Society, which has a magnificent record of peace-time service in this country.

To mention just a few of its activities, the Red Cross outpost hospital work, its relief operations, and its work among school children, naturally come to mind on an anniversary like this.

Last year in 49 outpost hospitals and nursing stations in proper districts the Canadian Red Cross cared for 34,028 patients and 1,317 babies first saw the light of day under its kindly ministrations.

Directly or indirectly, the society has had to do with twenty-four hostels for the unemployed, and in addition, it on its own account lodged and fed over 6,000 ex-service men in various parts of Canada last year.

No fewer than 237,974 Canadian school children are active junior members of the Red Cross in Canada, and this Junior Red Cross work has proved successful beyond the dreams of those who initiated it 11 years ago.

WANTED: LESS HEAT, MORE LIGHT.

When newspapers venture a word of criticism about Parliament, or of certain members of Parliament, they are told that they are undermining respect for our institutions. That they are anarchists. The traditionists and authoritarians who deliver these judgments might profitably consider the conduct of some parliamentary committees. For nothing that has ever been said against or about Parliament by any newspaper could create as much public disrespect for Parliament as the conduct of the committee which is presently investigating certain features of the administration of the Canadian National Railways.

During its session of Wednesday afternoon that committee was little short of a Donnybrook. With two or three members talking at the same time, or trying to talk at the same time, and with much of the attempted talk consisting of crude back-chat, it was a sort of procedure that wouldn't be tolerated in a back-concession council. In the old days, when the public accounts committee was in its glory, and gladiators like "Ned" MacDonald and Frank Carvell and Doctor Edwards put on a battle, there was often lightning in the air. But these old-timers at least respected the chair, and had reason to respect the chair, and while they played the game hard they played within the rules.

There was little of this in this railway committee on Wednesday. What spectators witnessed was a spectacle of a lot of angry members shouting questions and taunts and interruptions that had no more to do with the job in hand than a pow-wow in the Fiji Islands.

The Journal certainly has no brief for some of the things that are being brought out before this committee. But in acting as it acted on Wednesday this committee is not laying any foundation of public confidence in anything that it may determine. It is not even behaving in a way that is calculated to get at the truth. Its conduct is childish.

The Journal permits itself to doubt whether the responsible heads of the parties in Parliament desire their supporters to conduct an inquiry in such a manner. They would be doing Parliament a service, and the public, if they could see to it, that in the future there is more of orderliness and common sense.—Ottawa Journal.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

Commenting on the astounding statement that twenty-nine people were killed in automobile accidents on the highways in Ontario in the month of March, the Toronto Telegram strongly demands that the penalties for reckless driving shall be increased. It says:

"Most of these fatal accidents have been and will be due to reckless and careless driving. In no sphere of human activity is recklessness and carelessness so highly condoned or visited with such trifling punishment, despite the great danger to human life that is involved. Severe penalties and severe punishment are the only means of protection for the public against those who refuse to obey the laws and drive with caution and consideration. If every careless driver responsible for an accident were made to suffer exemplary punishment in keeping with the serious consequences of his offence there would be a rapid and substantial decline in the number of highway accidents and fatalities. Suspension of driving licenses for longer periods than are now imposed in the case of recklessness and drunkenness at the wheel of a car would go a long way toward effective prevention. Permanent cancellation would, in fact, not be too drastic or more than the public interest requires in some cases."

In addition to the 29 killed, 383 others were injured, and property damage caused aggregating $62,831. These figures show an increase of 35 per cent. over those for March, 1931. As has been pointed out before, these accidents indicate an intolerable condition of affairs, especially at the beginning of the season. When motor traffic becomes heavier with the approach of pleasant weather the danger will be many times greater. Consequently the department of highways can make no mistake in issuing orders for the strictest enforcement of the traffic laws. If the present maximum penalties are not severe enough, they ought to be increased at the earliest possible opportunity. The suspension of driving licenses for long periods, and even the confiscation of the car in cases of drunkenness, along with imprisonment, would not be too severe.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The radio report failed to state whether or not crooners will get a place in Canadian broadcasting. That's a serious omission.

Premier Bennett's bill at the Chateau Laurier amounts to $24,000 a year. It is presumed this sum includes the tips.

Hamilton Council has voted that the suppression of the Red demonstration in that city was entirely justified. No other opinion would be consistent with common sense.

Manitoba is to have a provincial election on June 16. A short campaign, but a merry one, no doubt.

If radio is nationalized in Canada, says the Globe, it is to be hoped that the Government will not monopolize the air at election times.

If Mr. Mooney, the bomb-throwing revolutionist, really feels that his continued incarceration "makes me the outstanding figure in the world's labor movement and a symbol of the struggle of labor for its rights," why should he sacrifice such an honor by trying to get out?—Detroit Saturday Night.

The tax on long distance telephone calls may or may not have the result of eliminating that phrase "Hold the phone."—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 12. — Trading was slow on the local butter market yesterday; but, as there was not a great deal of stock offered, prices were fairly firm on both No. 1 and No. 2 solids, with reports of the latter grade bringing within ½c of No. 1. The easiness at Montreal did not seem to be affecting conditions locally to any extent, and the report on holdings in the Dominion showed supplies on May 1 were about half as heavy as on the same date last year. General prices on the market were 17½c for No. 1 solids, and 16½c for No. 2, with reports of good No. 2 at 17c.

Cream

Cream prices continued steady, as far as local buyers were concerned. They quoted 16c to 17c for special, 15c to 16c for No. 1, and 12c to 13c for No. 2, f.o.b., country points.

Cheese

Prices on new cheese were easier, due to weakness at Montreal and low levels on country boards. Local brokers quoted new makes at 9c to 9½c for large, 9¼c to 9¾c for twins, and 9½c to 10c for triplets. Retailers were quoted firm prices at 11c for new large, 11¼c for new twins, 11½c for new triplets, and 13½c for new stiltons.

Eggs

Receipts of eggs were about normal for this season, but the demand was not very strong, especially for storage packed, graded eggs. Buyers were not anxious to store to a large extent, last year's losses being in mind. Brokers quoted graded eggs in used cases at the steady prices of 16c for extras, 14c for firsts, and 12c to 12½c for seconds, and storage packed at 16½c to 17c for extras and 14½c for firsts, the latter grade being difficult to move. Prices to shippers were unchanged at 14c for extras, 12c for firsts and 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were quoted steady prices at 20c for extras in cartons, 18c for extras loose, 16c for firsts loose, and 14c for seconds loose.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 12.—Produce and dairy markets held steady here yesterday. The butter market again ranged from 16¼c to 16½c per lb. Receipts were light at 131 boxes, the lightness being aided by the lack of Western butter, all of which is going to Toronto.

Egg receipts were 1,838 cases, regarded as light. The market held steady without difficulty at 17c-17¼c for extras, 14½c-15c for firsts and 13c for seconds, for graded fresh Ontarios or prairies, in carlots or less.

The cheese market was 9½c to 9¾c for current receipts. Arrivals were 352 boxes.

On the potato market new No. 2 Floridas were unchanged at $8 to $8.50 per 150-barrel. Old potatoes continued plentiful. The spread on local Whites, per 80 pounds, was reduced to 3c to 35c instead of 30c-40c recently in effect. New Brunswick, Quebec and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Sensational slashing of Government estimates of 1932 domestic winter wheat production gave grain values a lively advance yesterday, with wheat up 2c a bushel.

Wheat prices reached the highest point since April 28, but fell back somewhat at the last as a result of heavy selling to realize profits. Traders attached particular significance to the fact that practically all of the tremendous crop losses shown as compared with last year were in the big surplus hard wheat section—Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½c-1c above Tuesday's finish, corn ⅝c-¾c up, oats ⅛c-⅜c advanced, and provisions 5c-20c down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 12. — Wheat prices advanced steadily from the opening on the grain market here yesterday and, though trading was quiet and profit-taking entered the pit in the final hour, closed as much as 1 cent higher.

Bullish United States winter wheat crop estimates and strength at Liverpool accounted for the upturn. An unestimbated amount of wheat was sold for export, but this did not show in trade.

An even cent advanced, May future closed at 63½c, July was ⅝c higher at 64½c, and October ⅝c to ½c at 66¼c.

Prices Spurt Upward.

The usual opening flurry over, trading was steady, but quiet until near the close when buying for Continental interests gave a short-lived spurt to prices. In the final minutes, profit-taking pared fractions off the day's high points.

Little news of importance was seen in the day's reports. Advices after the close indicated further cargoes of wheat had been sold to Russia from Vancouver.

Cash and coarse grains, in quiet trade, closed fractionally higher.

SCHOOL GROUNDS ARE CLEANED UP

Pupils of Madoc Public School Spend Busy Arbor Day.

MADOC, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Arbor Day was celebrated in Madoc Public School on Friday, when several corps of boys under the management of the principal, Mr. James Irwin organized for the efficiency of the generals of the diferent groups, and adds much to the looks of the grounds. Indoors the girls were organized and cleaned desks and windows, brightened up the rooms with pictures and flowers. The household science room and the manual training room also received their spring cleaning, which certainly improved the general appearance of all the rooms.

A bad chimney fire at the residence of Mrs. John Mouncey on East St. Lawrence street called out the volunteer fire brigade on Monday evening. The fire was quickly extinguished.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

He had taken an instant liking to Sam and when Cyril Bathurst liked a person he made a good deal of him. The truth is Sam interested the dramatist: a Chinese boy of high attainments with all the outward attributes of an Occidental was a phenomenon which afforded opportunity for study and for speculation. It was something new. Bathurst was not slow to realize that the boy had a "white mind" and that in all but one respect he was an American; here then was an anomaly, a "situation," which could not fail to intrigue any thoughtful man. Bathurst wrote melodramas for intelligent audiences but a polite drama in real life was going on right in his own house and he wondered if there might not be a stage play in it. Race prejudice. Religion. Social barriers. Biological variations. Inherited instincts and revulsions that ran back into the core of two opposing civilizations. Bathurst, himself, gave little importance to such things, for he was a cosmopolitan and he had no racial prejudice to speak of, but he realized that he was an exception and that other people regarded them very differently. With such materials, a skillful and sympathetic writer could build a play of deeper significance than any he had put his hand to and while he regretted the fact that his friendship for Sam precluded the use of them, he nevertheless was fascinated by their dramatic possibilities. He was the more interested when he learned that women liked Sam and that Sam liked them. The Wagner girl, for instance, was having quite an affair with his protege and what the outcome would be Bathurst had not the faintest idea.

As for the young man, himself, he neither concealed nor advertised the fact that he was of Oriental parentage, this being in keeping with his dignified reserve. Having been entirely frank with his benefactor he assumed that the latter was equally frank with their mututal acquaintances, and inasmuch as the question was seldom referred to in his presence, even indirectly, he attributed his improved status to that wider tolerance, that easier grace he had expected to find among cultured Europeans. In this assumption he was not altogether warranted; Bathurst did tell some of his friends, to be sure, but others he did not tell. Any comment the truth may have excited never reached Sam's ears, he never noticed any coolness on the part of his new acquaintances and he found himself happier than he had ever been. He won for himself a considerable popularity which was gratifying, but not really surprising, for his manners were perfect, he was an asset to any dinner table and people took to him readily.

As for the Wagner girl, Cyril Bathurst had never cared for her: she was too sophisticated and too sure of herself. She was too modern and too highly Americanized to meet the approval of a conservative Britisher like him.

INSTALMENT 17.

The principal guests at the most expensive hotel in Paradis were Albert Wagner and his daughter. Wherever the Wagners went, they were the principal guest, or at least they spent more money than anybody else, for the father traveled in style and he provided for himself in an elaborate way. He was not offensively ostentatious but he enjoyed luxury, he was inordinately proud of his daughter and it gratified him to show her off to the best possible advantage. It pleased him to show off all of his possessions, as a matter of fact, and with some reason, too, for they were of the finest. Alanna, for instance, was a beauty. Mr. Wagner's business was enormously prosperous and its organization was a model of efficiency; he indulged himself in numerous hobbies, and his California estate was famous for its size and its appointments. The house, itself, he had filled with treasures, in his garage were nothing but high-priced cars and in his stables were only the finest of blooded stock. Al Wagner, in short, was prodigiously successful and he lived up to it.

There were times when Alanna overpowered him a bit, much as did his magnificent residence, for he understood her as imperfectly as he appreciated his paintings and his statuary, and he managed her no more skillfully than he managed his thoroughbreds when he undertook to ride or to drive them. At the conclusion of the famous Wagner divorce the court had given him custody of the girl but it had failed utterly to put him in control of her and he was too indulgent, too fond of her to assert himself beyond a certain point. Having proven that a business can be made to grow and to succeed by the employment of high-priced executives he had applied the same commonsense principle, as he called it, to the rearing of his daughter—a not unusual practice among modern parents who can afford the expense. In justice to both it may be said that the procedure had worked out pretty well and that neither had any serious fault to find with it. On the whole, both father and daughter were perfectly satisfied with themselves and almost as thoroughly satisfied with each other.

Alanna was well educated, well poised, well groomed and well spoiled. She was twenty years old and she had been engaged four times—first to a broad-shouldered, shell-shocked chauffeur, and lately to an East Indian prince whom she had met in London. Her two intervening heart affairs had not received so much advertising as the others, both fiances having been nice, ordinary fellows, mere mill-run products of her set who danced well. She still numbered them among her intimate friends and suffered no embarrassement at meeting them. She had just turned seventeen when that chauffeur came to work for her father and she had defiled Al Wagner with much spirit. The story had been played up in the local newspapers but she laughed now at memory of it.

Her engagement to the prince she had never taken very seriously — he was altogether too dark-skinned—but it had been an interesting escapade, it had provoked much amusing social chatter and had resulted in innumerable potogravure pictures. In terminating it of her own accord and without unpleasant consequences she had fortified her father in the comfortable conviction that she had inherited his common sense and could pretty well take care of herself in any situation. This, by the way, was one of the few beliefs they shared in common.

This afternoon, Mr. Wagner looked up from his newspapers as Alanna came through the light-ceilinged Louis XIV. drawing room of their suite on her way to their private "lift." She was wearing an effective sport outfit which he had never seen and he stopped her to admire it.

"I like that get-up," he told her. "You look like a million dollars. Where are you going?"

"Over to the Casino.

"Meeting that Lee fellow again.

The daughter nodded. Spying her reflection in one of the mirrors she approached it and appraised herself critically.

"It seems to me he's giving you quite a rush," Wagner ventured.

Still posturing before the glass, Alanna shook her head in negation. "I'm rushing him," she declared.

"So? That's out of the ordinary. What ails him?"

"I wish I knew. I'm beginning to think there's something wrong with me. I seem to look all right but—he's an iron man."

"Say! Who is he?"

The girl lifted her brows. She turned a blank, interrogatory gaze upon her father. "Who — is he?"

"Yes. What do you know about him?"

"Oh! Nothing. . . . All I know is he—affects me. I've been waiting to meet him ever since I was three years old."

"Really?" With a frown Wagner laid aside his newspaper. "Is this the dawn of another of your famous infatuations or ——?"

"Why yes! I presume it is. He's a ripping tennis player, and a pretty good golfer. He swims well and he dances—Oh, how—that—man—can dance!" The speaker lifted her eyes heavenward, a sensation of languorous delight seemed to flow through her supple body. She shivered ecstatically. "Magnetism! Charm! It! He has — everything."

"Hm-m. Foreigner, isn't he?"

"Born in San Francisco; lives in New York."

"Lee . . . ! I don't place the name. And I can't make him out, either. He talks like an Englishman or something. But—who is he and what is he? . . . Has he got any money?"

Alanna raised her brows in mock concern. "I—I never thought to ask him, darling, but I will. I'll do that right away, and let you know." Then her expression changed and she inquired, "If he interests me, what difference would that make?"

"Oh, I know ——"

"You saw him win two hundred thousand francs that night I met him ——"

"Yes, and I've seen him win half a dozen times since. He behaves himself like a professional gambler."

"He's living with Cyril Bathurst. They're writing a play together."

"That doesn't sound prosperous. And meanwhile he's making a play at you, eh?"

"No, damn it!" Alanna exploded.

"Now, see here," her father began protestingly but she interrupted him.

"Say, Reverend, are you off on another hallelujah? Why all the sudden interest in me and my boy friend?"

"Because I won't have my daughter running around with every Tom, Dick and Harry. If he's a somebody, and if he likes you, that's one thing; if he's merely after your money ——"

"I dare say those show girls in London like you. Those Tommies, and Dicky Birds and Harriets weren't after your money, were they? Don't button your collar in the back, darling."

"I'm not preaching."

"Then don't shake any chains. I hate wardens."

"Good Lord!" Wagner complained. "To think I got the custody of you and Junior went with Anna. I could have handled him."

After a moment of thought Alanna said without the slightest heat: "Let's understand each other, Albert, dear. Surely you don't think a girl should consult her father about her intimate personal affairs? That's an exploded doctrine: I'm free white and sunburned. I'm not in the least fussy about what you do, for you're still young enough to look after yourself. I hope it will be a long while, sweetheart, before you become a burden on me. As for Sam, I get a great kick out of him. So that's that."

"How, may I ask? Is he—fresh?"

Alanna widened her eyes. "What a quaint idea. No, he hasn't kissed me, yet. But he will. After that, I'll be able to tell you a lot more about him and about myself. I'll see myself in a fierce, revealing light and probably I'll begin to wonder who he is and what he is and whether he has money or merely personal appeal. There's plenty of time to be practical. I'm twenty, Governor—that's forty by the old Roman calendar—and what good are expensive negligees if nobody sees them except a maid?"

"Damned if I don't believe you're in earnest about this fellow!" Wagner exclaimed. "I'm going to look him up."

"Please don't! You might discover something that would make you unhappy. It's really my affair."

"He may be some common crook or ——"

"He may be, indeed."

"—— or a miserable fortune hunter."

"How dreadful!" Alanna mocked. "But what of it? A girl can spend only so much money on herself. Now, please mind your own business, sweetheart. I mean that in the kindest way, honestly. You know I can endure anything except interference." She kissed her father on his bald head and left the room.

SPRING SEEDING SEASON PROMISING BUT LATE

OTTAWA, May 12. — (CP) — Throughout Canada, the spring seeding season is generally late but more promising than for several years, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports yesterday. In a review of crop prospects across the Dominion, the Bureau says:

"In the Prairie Provinces, the season is two or three weeks later than average but heavy and well-distributed precipitation has resulted in the best germinating conditions since 1928." Conditions are promising in British Columbia.

BIRTH CONTROL ADVOCATE FIGHTS INFORMATION BAN

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Margaret Sanger, internationally known birth control advocate, today renewed her battle against laws prohibiting dissemination of such information.

Appearing before a U. S. Senate judiciary sub-committee, she urged approval of the bill by Senator Hatfield (R. W. Va.) to exempt physicians, hospitals, licensed clinics and others in the medical fraternity from existing bans.

"The bill," she said, "directly affects the health, happiness and future development" of 25,000,000 women and the future lives of 45,000,000 children.

"The bill does not compel anyone to obtain knowledge," she said, "but simply gives the right to physicians to obtain up-to-date information themselves and allows them to advise it when it is needed."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 12 (C.P.).—The Stock Market turned emphatically reactionary to-day, particularly in the rails, but steadied somewhat during the late afternoon trading Union Pacific, after dropping 4½ points, recovered 1, and fractional recoveries from the lowest were numerous. But the late tone was heavy. The turnover was under a million shares. Issues off a point or two included U.S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Sears, National Biscuit, Standard of N.J., and others.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 12 (C.P.).—The decline continued into the afternoon session on Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, with losses ranging from a small fraction to as much as 2 points in the less active issues.

C.P.R. went down almost a point to 12 1-8, weakness being a reflection of the poor behaviour of the rails in Wall Street. Brazilian and Nickel both dipped slightly, the latter selling under 6 in the afternoon. Bell Telephone at 89¼ showed a loss of ¾ of a point. Ford of Canada came down from its best, though holding at a small fraction above last night's close. Photo Engravers lost yesterday's gain. Steel of Canada dropped 1½ points to a price under 14 and Goodyear Preferred sold at 76½, a couple of points below the previous price.

Oils were softer with the rest of the market, fractional recessions occurring in the price of most of the leaders.

Walkers, Canada Vinegar, Distillers were unchanged and the food and chain store stocks were more or less firm. F. N. Burt sold at 21. It had recently been down to 19.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 12. (C.P.) — Price action displayed a definitely easier tendency on the Standard stock and mining exchange market to-day. Higher-priced leaders saw the bulk of selling, with recessions scattered throughout the balance of the list.

Dome Mines dropped through $11 for a 55-cent loss, Hollinger was off 18 and Pioneer of B.C. dropped 5. Among cheaper golds San Antonio and Premier recorded gains but Kirkland Lake Gold, Macassa, Ventures, Bidgood and McLeod lost a fraction to two cents apiece.

Base metals were soft, with Noranda down 30, Nickel 35, Hudson Bay 10 and Sherritt Gordon a couple. Despite a slight improvement in silver price Eldorado sold off 2. Oils were inactive.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 12. (By the Canadian Press). — In sympathy with the heavy tone in Wall Street, prices on the Montreal stock exchange closed lower to-day with issues finishing at their lows of the day.

Under the influence of the weakness in the rails in New York, Canadian Pacific Railway lost ⅝ at 12⅜. Montreal Power declined ½ at 27¾ while Brazilian Traction at 9⅞ and International Nickel at 5⅛ were both off ⅛.

Steel of Canada established a new low for the year at 14 where it was off a point from its previous close.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 12 (C.P.). — Prime commercial paper 3 to 3½ per cent. Foreign exchange idregular. Demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents)—Great Britain 3.66¾, France 3.94 11-16, Italy 5.15⅛, Germany 23.81. Canadian dollars at 11⅛ per cent. discount.

Exchange Rates

TORONTO, May 12— Exchange rates at noon today were as follows:

Pound sterling in Montreal 4.15⅛.
Pound sterling in New York 3.66⅞.
Canadian dollar in New York 88⅛.

C.P.R. DECLINES ONE-HALF POINT

Mid-day Prices Show Reductions From Last Night's Finals in Oil Section.

BEVERAGES UNCHANGED.

TORONTO, May 12 (C.P.).—Declining prices in New York were the dominant influence upon Toronto Stock Exchange Market to-day. The local list softened with Wall Street, though the small amount of stock which came out indicated an almost total absence of liquidation.

C.P.R. dipped ½ point and more when New York Rails went down to a new low ground. At the same time the oils weakened, midday prices showing reductions in price from last nights finals of 1-8 to ¼ point. This latter group has been exceptionally steady during the latest phase of the protracted decline and in some quarters it is expected that shares of oil companies will be the first to recover. It is emphasized, in this connection, that oil is the only commodity of widespread use which has shown an appreciable upswing.

The beverage and food stocks were unchanged and very quiet today. Ford of Canada firmed to 8½ and Nickel sold unchanged at 6. Brazilian did not make an appearance the first couple of hours. Bell Telephone hovered at 90 and Consumers Gas sold at 146.

MINE ISSUES REMAIN SOFT

Standard Leaders Under Pressure—Balance of Board is Dull.

HOLLINGER EASES.

TORONTO, May 12.—(C.P.) — Light volume and soft price action marked foreign trading on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day. Leaders appeared under pressure, with balance of the Board moving in a dull and aimless manner.

Hollinger and Dome were soft from the opening, former showing a decline of 18 at $4.60 and the latter a loss of 30 at $11.10 when taken at mid-day. Kirkland Lake Gold displayed an easier tendency and fractional recessions appeared in Ventures, Siscoe and McLeod River. Buffalo Canadian recovered a fraction of yesterday's slump.

Noranda drooped to $14.75 for a 30-cent loss and Hudson Bay was down 5 at $1.25. Other base metals and the silver and oil groups were inactive.

TWO SMUGGLERS ATTACK WOMAN

Landed on Island in Niagara, is Story Told When Taken by Immigration Men.

PAID $85 FOR TRIP.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 12 —Two alien smugglers who smuggled Mrs. Elsa Illonon, 36-year-old Finnish woman, and John Wordeg, a Pole, into this country in a rowboat across the Upper Niagara River, tried to attack the woman on lonely Navy Island, a short distance above the brink of the Horseshoe Falls, Herman Kull, Falls immigration chief, disclosed to-day.

The party landed on the island after leaving Chippawa, Kull said. Wordeg was threatened with death when he interposed in the Illonon woman's behalf, Kull said. The woman showed bruises on her body received in the encounter with the smugglers.

Kull said his investigation showed that the woman paid $85 and Wordeg $75 to the smugglers. The woman claims that she and her husband entered the United States legally several years ago and that she was employed as a domestic by a prominent Long Island family. She and her husband returned to Finland where the husband died, and Mrs. Illonon went to Canada. She and Wordeg were held for the Federal Grand Jury to-day on charges of illegal entry and were returned to jail when they could not furnish bail bonds of $1,000 each. Immigration inspectors scoff at the theory that the smugglers may have been lost on the upper river.

MADMAN SLUGS

Small and Miss Cochrane recovered enough to go upstairs. When they did so, they were astonished to discover their assailant still wandering about the premises. He made a rush towards them but they screamed so loudly that he lost courage and bolted through the doorway. A call for help was then turned in to the police.

Officers this afternoon were out in force, scouring the mountain face for the maniac. His hat and two bludgeons were found on the floor of the inn.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

CANADA SELLING MORE TO BRITAIN

Steady Increase in Canadian Trade is Announced.

BUYING LESS.

LONDON, May 12 (C.P. Cable).—Canada is selling more to Great Britain. Detailed figures tabled in the House of Commons this afternoon revealed a steadily-increasing trade.

British purchases of Canadian wheat in the four months ending April 30 amounted to 9,104,900 hundredweights of 112 pounds, compared with 7,074,000 hundredweights in the corresponding period of 1931. Imports of Russian wheat dropped again. For the month of April they were only 5,200 hundredweights, against 1,337,000 in April, 1931.

Imports of Canadian bacon for the four months ending April 30 amounted to 57,275 hundredweights, a heavy increase compared to the 4,695 of the corresponding period of 1931.

Sales of Canadian hams rose from 18,492 hundredweights in the first four months of 1931 to 30,856 hundredweights this year.

Imports of Canadian cheese, although showing a decrease in the month of April, had a remarkable increase in the four-month period of from 6,387 to 21,065 hundredweights.

Salmon gained from 28,984 to 52,398 hundredweights. Unmanufactured Canadian tobacco from 3,880,000 pounds to 6,863,000 pounds (weight).

The total British purchases of Canadian merchandise in the quarter ending March 31, it was also shown, were £8,360,000 against £6,160,000 in the corresponding quarter of 1931.

United Kingdom products exported to Canada in the quarter ending March 31 totalled £3,475,000 against £4,048,000 in the corresponding quarter of last year.

EQUIPMENT ADDED BY SCOTLAND YARD

Marvels of New Camera Furnish London Police With Magic Eye.

LONDON, May 12.—(By The Canadian Press).—Two scientific developments have been added to Scotland Yard's equipment—the infra-red-ray camera and the wireless direction-finder—which provide a magic eye for the police and are regarded as marvels of the camera. The new camera makes use of one of the most astonishing discoveries of modern photography.

It can take pictures in the dark, or in the thickest fog; photograph distant objects invisible to the naked eye; detect minute differences in inks and dyes; shows up secret writing; reveal alterations in printed or written documents.

The secret of this new magic eye is to be found in the infra-red-ray—the invisible "light" at the lower end of the spectrum, which is already widely used in the invisible ray buglar alarm. The direction-finder is one of Scotland Yard's challenges to the scientific bandit and international crook, and may prove of particular use in tracking down secret wireless stations or tracing the origin of "suspicious" wireless transmissions.

FARMER SUICIDES.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 12. —(C.P.)—J. A. Mowat, forty-five, a farmer of Stamford township, committed suicide last night by drinking strychnine in a fit of depression caused by business worry. He bought the poison in January to kill sparrows but had not used it. Last night he drained the bottle, then told his wife. Although she did not believe him, she summoned Dr. Logan, but the unfortunate man was beyond aid.

ARCHITECT FIRM PAID $1,000,000 C.N. HOTEL WORK

Thornton Admits There Was No Competition in Awarding Contracts.

WORK SINCE 1927.

Question of Claiming Fees on Future Work Stirs Debate.

OTTAWA, May 12 (C.P.)—The architectural firm of J. S. Archibald in Montreal received something over a million dollars for services in connection with Canadian National Railway hotel construction since 1927, the House Committee on Railways and Shipping was told to-day. It was stated by officials of the system that the commission was five per cent. of the construction cost, including special decorating, but not furnishings or the cost of heating and lighting plants. S. W. Fairweather, railway economist, told the committee the fee was standard and was fixed by statute in the Province of Quebec. The total cost of the hotels was approximately $24,860,000.

"How much of a staff would the firm need in handling those contracts?" asked Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., Waterloo).

"Upwards of one hundred," at the peak of the work," replied Mr. Fairweather.

"Was there any competition in the awarding of these contracts?" asked J. D. Chaplin (Cons., Lincoln).

No Competition

"No," replied Sir Henry Thornton, President of the system.

"Were there no inquiries made among other architects?" asked R. B. Hanson (Cons., York-Sunbury), the chairman.

Sir Henry: "No. We employed Mr. Archibald as an outside architect, just as we employ outside doctors or lawyers."

Mr. Hanson: "It is true that Mr. Archibald can claim fees on any future hotels that may be built, or on the Canadian National Montreal Terminals, if work is resumed there?"

Sir Henry: "That is a legal question. There would have to be the same consideration given his contract as with other contracts that are interrupted or broken."

"Does the contract with Mr. Archibald extend to any hotels that may be built in the future?" asked Col. G. R. Geary, (Cons. Toronto South).

This was referred by Sir Henry to Vice President S. J. Hungerford. The latter explained that the hotel contract was ended. The contract in connection with the Montreal terminals was a different matter. When the terminal project came up the railway's architectural and engineering staff was overtaxed with undertakings all over the system, and could not hope to handle the enormous engineering and architectural problems presented by the terminal scheme.

Association Decided On.

It was decided, therefore, to form an association of architects and engineers to draw up the plans for the development, on a similar basis as that on which the Toronto Union Station was built. Mr. Archibald, the bridge firm of Montserrat and Pratley, and others were asked to form the association, which they did. The fees arranged were the usual amount charged for such services.

The only continuing feature of this contract was that if in the future any person desired to lease any of the terminal property surface for erection of buildings, the railways would use their influence to have them use the architects and engineers forming the association. There was no legal claim.

Mr. Hungerford intimated that the shutting down of the project and interruption of the work of the association was a matter of mutual agreement and their services had been suspended without prejudice. Dr. Manion said he understood the architects could claim for their services just the same as if the job was completed, but Mr. Hungerford said that was not the case.

Mr. Hanson read letters which had passed between Mr. Archibald and Mr. Hungerford in connection with the engaging of the former for work on the Chateau Laurier and the hotels in Halifax and Vancouver.

Sir Henry stated that the arrangement applied only to these three hotels, and that Mr. Archibald was not engaged on any other hotel building. No other consulting architects or consulting engineers had been engaged by the system.

FORMER STIRLING GIRL PASSES IN TORONTO

TORONTO, May 12 (C.P.). — For three years assistant treasurer of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, Miss Ethel Bennet died here to-day. She was born in Stirling, Ont., and lived in Toronto for more than 40 years. She is survived by her mother and two brothers, J. E. and R. C. Bennett, both of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. R. M. Brown, Vancouver, B.C.

AIRD FIRM OMITTED $50,000 PAYMENT

duced. D. L. McCarthy, K.C. representing Aird, said the latter had not kept a diary. Millard, however, insisted he had seen Aird making entries "several times" in diaries.

Millard Again Called

Millard was again called to the stand to-day and questioned by A. G. Slaght, K.C., independent counsel, regarding the Madawaska negotiations.

In a letter from J. G. G. Kerry, consulting engineer to Millard, the former suggested "our friends" be allowed to make "their own estimates of cost since they would probably be higher than our own."

Millard declared he did not know who "our friends" were, although Mr. Slaght suggested it might be "someone inside Hydro."

His Lordship objected, declaring there was nothing to indicate there was anything in the letter to suggest the "friends" were in the Hydro Commission.

In a letter to J. A. O'Brien, Aird had stated the report of Fred Gaby Hydro engineer, would be favorable toward the Madawaska project.

"Who was giving Mr. Aird this inside information?" Mr. Slaght asked.

"I do not know," was the reply. Further correspondence indicated "a member of the Hydro Commission had givenn his word" the report was favorable but again Millard said he had no knowledge of the commissioner.

Interview With Maguire

Sir John Aird had an interview with C. Alfred Maguire on his son's behalf, but witness said he did not remember what the result of the meeting had been. He could not say definitely what Sir John had reported.

A letter from Aird, Jr., to O'Brien said: "We are now in a position to get our political and Hydro friends to act," but witness did not know who the "friends" were except Peter White, K.C.

Just an Oversight.

"While I think of it, when you and your partner obligated yourselves to Mr. White for $2,000, why did you not tell him about having received the $50,000?"

"Simply an oversight," said Millard.

A special account had been opened with the $50,000 and no entry had been made in the books of the Aird-Millard firm, because the partnership was dissolved when the cheque arrived, said witness.

"Where is the ledger the account should have been entered in?" asked Mr. Slaght.

Witness declared he could produce the book.

Tried to Conceal Payment.

Every effort had been made to conceal payment said Mr. Slaght, and Millard said he was told by his partner that "someone in the Hydro had told Mr. Aird it was not necessary to enter the $50,000 in your income tax returns," as the money came from the government, and "we treated it as expense."

"You made an income return in the Spring of 1930 and suppressed this $50,000?"

"Yes" said witness.

"I suggest there was every effort made by Hydro to keep the payment as secret as possible?"

"I don't know."

"I suggest Aird told you Hydro had told him the $50,000 would not appear in the Hydro books but would be put down as 'commission'?" asked Mr. Slaught.

"That is correct," said Millard.

Mr. Slaght returned then to the identity of the "political friends" mentioned previously, but witness said he did not know J. H. Black, paper magnate, was working on the case.

One Of The 'Friends'

However, Millard's diary showed Aird had met Black and the witness "assumed he was one 'of the friends'."

"Who were the rest of them?"

"I don't know any more political friends."

"Who were the Hydro friends?"

"I had no specific friends on the Hydro Commission," Millard said.

Mr. Slaght questioned witness at length regarding a visit paid by Fred Roberts to Mr. Gaby, but Millard said he could remember no details. He did not recall, he said, whether Roberts had spoken on behalf of the Aird-Millard firm to the Hydro engineer.

Mr. Slaght turned to the Dominion Power and Transmission purchase by the Hydro. The purchase had been made on April 2, 1930, and witness said he and Aird had been interested since early in 1929.

There was a reference in the diary to witness having 'phoned Fred Roberts, a Toronto lawyer, regarding the price of the D. P. and T. stock, and Mr. Slaght queried witness at length on this. Millard declared the conversation had no connection with the investigation, and he could not see any use in bringing it in.

Witness said he had been discussing the possibility of some "reputable people"—friends of Roberts—purchasing the Dominion Power Company. Negotiations with Roberts had not been for the purpose, at all, of selling stock, witness added.

The price quoted for the stock in Millard's diary was $82 per share, and it was to be obtained at $82.50.

"From whom were you to obtain this stock at $82.50?"

"That has nothing to do with this investigation," replied Millard.

"Did you pay Roberts anything from the Madawaska?"

"Yes, about $150."

There had been no bill, so far as he knew, from Mr. Roberts for services.

Mr. Millard declared he would obtain his files covering dealings with Roberts.

Asks for Aird's Diary.

Mr. Slaght asked that John Aird, Jr.'s, diary be produced after witness had said Mr. Aird kept one, but Aird declared there was none.

"You saw the diary" Millard was asked.

"Yes, several times," he replied.

In concluding with Millard, Mr. Slaght suggested Roberts be asked to appear, and he will be summoned.

D. L. McCarthy, K.C., representing Aird, returned to the $50,000 payment and the absence of entries in the firm books. The reason was, Millard said, the books were closed and their bank account had also been discontinued.

He had felt, witness said, Mr. Aird had not been entirely frank in reporting his efforts in the Madawaska transaction. Aird would say: "I saw my man," but would mention no names.

He had thought "matters were mysterious" between himself and Aird, and eventually their partnership was dissolved.

The name of Home Smith, Toronto real estate man, was brought in by Mr. Slaght, who asked witness when he had seen Smith in connection with the Madamaska deal. Witness could not remember.

He might have discussed Madawaska with Smith at the latter's home or office.

Mr. Millard then left the stand and will obtain the requested records.

W. E. Fidler, accountant in the Bank of Commerce, identified a cheque cashed on June 6, 1930, by Aird for $1,650. The cheque was drawn on the Aird-McLeod Company. Witness will try to get the bank's records showing Aird's current accounts in the bank on that date.

Charles Bible, Royal Bank, identified another cheque of June 2, this too calling $1650. Aird had an account with the bank and this was produced. On both cheques appeared the notation "60 coupons at $27.50 each."

Had anyone else cashed the cheques, an additional endorsement would have been required, witness told Mr. Slaght.

Copies of the bank's security ledger will be produced.

E. N. Bate, Imperial Bank, identified a third cheque of Dec. 8, 1930 payable to cash and drawn by Aird, McLeod and Company. Withrop Green of Toronto, had received the money in this case—$1650—and had endorsed it in the regular way. The cheque had been "marked." No record of coupons cashed was kept except in exceptional cases, he said.

This cheque did not bear the "coupon" notation as did the other two.

A. B. Shepard, accountant who audited Aird's books for the commission, was recalled. He had obtained deposit slips requested on Tuesday, when he first appeared on the stand. Some of the slips accounted for coupons cashed on Dominion of Canada bonds. From Dec. 6, 1929, when Aird received $120,000 in government bonds from Beauharnois, to the last interest date, more than $9,000 had been received as interest.

Import Tariff Halts Dublin Dock Trade

DUBLIN, May 12 (AP)—Imposition of 43 new import tariffs brought trade at the Dublin docks to a standstill to-day.

Piers were deserted and the sheds were empty, for the traders were having the greatest difficulty in deciding just how the new levies were to be imposed, what goods they affected and how great their scope.

Customs authorities said they would have the tangle straightened out in a few days.

Could Find No Buyer For Missing Fyles

TORONTO, May 12.—(C.P.). — Further light on the travels of the mysteriously missing "Aird fyles," was thrown by Kenneth McLeod, Toronto, before the Royal Commission investigating certain Hydro matters to-day.

McLeod admitted having the fyles in his possession and attempting to sell them on a 10 per cent. commission basis after learning of their existence while in New York. According to his evidence, a Buffalo lawyer named Hamlin had the fyles and showed them to him in a hotel in the United States' city.

His efforts to sell the fyles in Toronto had been unsuccessful, he said, because "no one had offered a dollar for the fyle."

$14,638 MARKLE HOARD WILL BE GIVEN TO NIECE

HAMILTON, May 12. (CP) — The $14,636 hoarded by the late Obadiah Markle will pass to his niece, Margaret Eliza Costello of Toronto, according to letters of administration granted in his estate by Judge Carpenter to-day.

Markle died over a month ago and was buried at the expense of the city. For years he had lived a pauper upon the charity of local citizens. But recently it was discovered that he had $14,636 in cash in the bank, for the past four years has been

RUSSIAN REFUGEES FIND HAVEN WITH MENONITES IN PARAGUAY

Hard Tale is Told of Securing Safety for Group in Manchuria.

650 STILL AT HARBIN.

GENEVA, May 12. — A new Odyssey of a large ggroup of refugees, Lutheran, Greek Catholic, and Mennonite, who recently fled from Eastern Russia into Manchuria, has just been revealed by the Nansen International Office for Refugees here. With the disturbed conditions in Manchuria, it is considered one of the most notable humanitarian feats since the war that many of this group are now safely en route to Paraguay.

More than 1,000 refugees, including 350 women and 380 children under 12, left Russia and after difficult experiences in North Manchuria arrived in Harbin, already a city of refugees. Scarcely installed through work of the Nansen Office in a temporary camp, they were isolated from the world by the Japanese occupation of Manchuria. The refugees were peaceful farmers, with close religious affiliations, and onl yasked for opportunity to work in peace and quiet.

The Nansen Office set to work to find them a home, and thankfully accepted the offer of Paraguay to install them near existing Mennonite colonies. Possibilities of finding transport money was discovered.

But hostilities redoubled in Manchuria an dat Shanghai, and the refugees had to traverse the centre of the theatre of military operations in the Far East. Thanks, however, to Refugee Office officials in China, a first convoy was actually got to Shanghai from Harbin, and embarked on the French vessel d'Artagnan for Marseilles on February 27.

Responsible officials drew deep breaths of relief as their work seemed assured, when it was discovered that, to avoid breaking up families, 373 refugees instead of the 300 whose fare had been paid had been embarked.

The steamship company announced that it must disembark the 73 extra persons at Hong Kong on March 1 if the necessary fares were not found. All the funds in the Mennonite organizations had been exhausted and their credit stretched to the maximum.

But, working day and night, the Nansen Office negotiated with the steamship company in Paris, with Mennonite groups in Germany and America, and just as the unfortunate 73 were being put off the boat, the needed mone ywas procured, and arrangements made. The refugees are now well on their way to Europe, and thence to South America.

Arrangements are already making progress to bring the 650 refugees still at Harbin along the same path.

Quietly, without publicity, the Refugee Office is daily accomplishing such tasks. It is a perpetual memorial to the great explorer, statesman, and humanitarian, Dr Fridtjof Nansen, and a credit to the eLague.

Palestine Talk Heard At Warsaw

WARSAW, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Monday evening the Baptist Church was filled for Mr. Shoot's talk on his visit to Palestine before the war.

Mrs. Curtain gave two very entertaining readings, and sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Alone." Mr. Walker, Jr., gave a guitar selection, "Nearer my God to Thee."

Mr. Shoot took his audience to Egypt first, described the lives of the Bedouins, the food, practically everything cooked in oil; described the pyramids.

Crossing to Palestine, he described the mode of life, the houses with flat roofs, and court-yards, the easily rolled thin mattresses. When he was there, Palestine was under Turkish rule. Many ate bread made of weed-seeds. There was much destitution. All Turkish men had to wear the fez and women a veil. Now under British guardianship, the destitution is vanishing. He told some legends believed by the Moslems. One is that the marks seen upon a stone are marks of Gabriel's hands when he placed them upon it to keep it from following Mohammed. The wailing wall, the most difficult problem for Britain in Palestine was clearly described. Jews and Moslems claim this piece of foundation of Solomon's Temple.

Rapidly but clearly he described the main points of many of the places mentioned in Scripture, not only towns, but such places as the cave Abraham bought in which to bury Sarah; cedars of Lebanon, Jacob's Well, the great road built by Germans before the war, modes of travel. Many little humorous incidents were given; one of them on horse-back rides, another being told the waters of Jericho were so sweet, but they drank none but boiled water there. Only too quickly did he take his audience back to Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe entertained Rev. Mr. Shoot and other visiting Baptists on Sunday.

Mr. J. S. Anderson left for Toronto on Tuesday evening to attend a business meeting of the Farmers' Co-operative Co.

WINDSOR UNEMPLOYED FIGURES ARE REDUCED

WINDSOR, May 11 (C.P.).—Improvement in local conditions is shown in a report just released by Justus Miller, secretary of the Border Chamber of Commerce, regarding welfare work in 8 Border municipalities.

In April 15,942 persons were cared for as compared with the peak of 26,148 in January. Costs in April totalled 114,787.18, as compared with $281,185.77 in December.

It is also noted that employment shows a gain of 2,941 workers as compared with October last.

HERD, 700 YEARS OLD, SAVED.

The herd of wild cattle at Chillingham Castle, England, whose existence was threatened when Lord Tankerville closed the castle some time ago because of heavy taxation, is to be retained there. The herd is believed to have been at Chillingham ever since the thirteenth century. Lord Tankerville has accepted an offer of the London Zoo to contribute $350 a year for seven years if the additional $1,400 a year required is raised by public subscription.

TOWN GOING UP AT MOOSONEE

Hotel Ready for Occupancy Middle of July—Ice Moving Out of River.

LOT SALE EARLY IN JUNE.

NORTH BAY, May 12 (C.P.). — Satisfactory progress is being made with the construction of a hotel, station, agent's home and other buildings now under way at Moosonee, James' Bay terminal, George W. Lee announced on the return here of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Commission after making an inspection trip over the line. Lieut.-Col. L. T. Martin, vice-chairman, and Col. J. I. McLaren, Hamilton, commissioner, with Mr. Lee, chairman, comprised the party.

Mr. Lee stated the hotel will be ready for occupancy about the middle of July and that J. D. Kingston and Mrs. Kingston, formerly at Iroquois Falls, have been engaged to manage it. All other help required for the hotel has also been engaged. The ice is moving out of the river and the district is otherwise taking on a summer-like appearance. Mr. Lee added that the river bridge has stood up well against the ice crush this spring.

Lot Sale In June.

The sale of lots in the townsite will be held early in June. A definite date will be set in the near future.

An agent was stationed at Moosoneee on Tuesday this week and given temporary quarters till the station and agents' residence are completed. Between 100 and 150 men were sent out this week to reinforce maintenance and construction gangs along the line. Mr. Lee stated this fills the requirements and that no more will be taken on.

Speaking of conditions with the railway, Mr. Lee stated business is only fair and that a decrease is noted compared with last year.

EXTRAORDINARY

PALESTINE TOLD OF TRADE STEPS WITH ROUMANIA

Reciprocal Tariff Plan and General Sales Agency Proposed.

OUTPUT INCREASING.

JERUSALEM, May 12.—Steps to enable Palestine to market its greatly increased output of agricultural and dairy products are outlined in the report just issued here of a government committee on agricultural economics and marketing.

The committee submitted recommendations for a trade agreement with Roumania, whereby a reduction would be made in the customs duty on plank wood imported for local citrus-box making, in exchange for the application of the minimum tariff, which is about 50 per cent lower than the general tariff, to certain imports from Palestine. The committee also recommended that exporters should unite to establish a central sales agency to increase exports from Palestine to Roumania.

The entry into Cyprus of Palestine bananas, tomatoes and watermelons has been facilitated by the committee. Proposals were submitted to the Government for a grant by Canada of preferential treatment to Palestine. They pointed out that while Palestine as a mandate territory cannot grant preferential treatment to other countries, there may be nothing to prevent others, particularly members of the British Empire, from extending preferential treatment to this country.

Detailed proposals were submitted designed to stimulate the extensive development of poultry farming and suggestions were made for the disposal of surplus grapes and milk. The assistance of the Empire Marketing Board is being sought to advertise and increase the sale of Palestine olive oil, eggs and honey.

Recommendations were submitted regarding the most equitable and practicable methods of collecting funds from the citrus industry and for a united advertising campaign, which has become essential, owing to the constantly growing production of oranges and other citrus fruits in Palestine.

RUSSIANS CALL EVERY TRACTOR HIT AT RELIGION

Soviet Atheist Union Pushes Industry in Anti-church Move.

SPREAD UNBELIEF.

MOSCOW—The Union of Militant Atheists, the chief anti-religious organized body in the Soviet Union, held an "anti-Easter month," which started on April 5 and ran until May 5.

During this month the propaganda which the 5,000,000 members of the Union of Militant Atheists are supposed to carry on against religion has intensified. Easter — which, with the Orthodox Church calendar, fell on May 1 this year—has been contrasted with the secular holiday of May 1. As it happens, the Jewish Passover and the Muhammadan festival, "kurban-bairam," fell in the course of the month, so that the anti-religious agitation could be extended to these faiths.

The Union of Militant Atheists gave out as one of its slogans the alleged antagonism between socialist construction and religion. Every new factory, tractor or acre of planted land is represented as a blow at religion. There is a drive to increase the number of entirely atheistic collective farms, of which there are more than 300 in the Soviet Union, and of atheistic departments in the factories. Brigades of atheists are going into the villages to help in the spring sowing and simultaneously to plant seeds of unbelief.

The Militant Atheists and other Soviet organized groups are always on the lookout to see that people do not remain absent from work on religious holidays, which are no longer recognized by the Government.

ONE DEAD, 10 HURT, IN LONDON EXPLOSION

A fatal blast which razed the east end of a fruit warehouse in the old M.C.R. depot, London, Ont., killing one and injurying 10 others, remained a mystery, as police sought for clues of the probable cause of the explosion. The layout ABOVE shows (1) the wreckage left by the explosion, and (2) Angelo Favalaro, truck driver for the O. Catalano and Sons occupiers of the warehouse, who had a narrow escape from death. He was sitting in his truck at the door of the warehouse when the blast brought the building down. The truck was overturned and Favalaro buried in the debris. Joe Moszulski, 16, who was killed, was sitting on the truck also.

HOLDING PISTOL AT FREE STATE

Manchester Guardian Says Why Hold Pistol at Irish Legislature.

SCORES THOMAS.

MANCHESTER, May 12 (C.P.). — What reason is there for presenting a pistol at the Free State Legislature while it is still only discussing the oath bill?" asks the Manchester Guardian editorially to-day in connection with the British Government's declaration that should the bill for abolition of the oath of allegiance be made law, Britain could not enter into any "further agreements with the Free State.

"The underlying motive," the Manchester Guardian continued, "perhaps springs from Mr. Thomas' (Dominions' Secretary) affection for poker. He has sat tight with a good hand for what has for him been a long time. He has seen Eamon De Valera getting the publicity and the limelight and he thinks now is the opportunity to call his bluff.

"It seems rather a dangerous game to play. Sometime or other, no doubt, the Government would have had to say that De Valera could not be both a casuistical Republican and a loyal citizen of the Commonwealth. The opportunity would have come fittingly at Ottawa when in the presence of the other members of the Commonwealth the absurdity of De Valera's position could have been brought out.

"The strength of the British case has lain largely in the knowledge the Dominions are on our side."

The News-Chronicle of London, Liberal organ, complains this country appears to be leaving preparations for the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference too much to Ottawa. The result, so far, it adds, has not been particularly happy, making Prime Minister R. B. Bennett's position, "which is never easy, quite unnecessarily difficult." The News-Chronicle also echoes the general query as to what will happen if the Free State passes the oath bill and then sends a delegation to Ottawa.

ROTARY, KIWANIS HEAR TRADE TALK

New Traffic Officer Will Patrol District Around Lindsay.

LINDSAY, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence).—Motor Constable Jarvis Massingham has been transferred from Aurora on No. 2 highway to the local division. His beat will be from Omemee to Whitby and north on the Orillia road to Brechin. His headquarters will be at Lindsay.

L. R. McGregor, Australian Trade Comissioner to Canada, was the guest speaker at the joint meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs yesterday. He spoke on the good will treaty between the two countries, and of the attempt that has been made to keep existing world conditions in this direction. He pointed out that the preferences were being used on each side as a means of securing the market, and that the exploitation of consumers was strictly avoided.

The Lindsay Post of the Canadian Legion is planning a big celebration for Victoria Day, in which the zone Legions will participate. A big parade and ball tournament will be features.

His Honor Judge Huycke of Peterborough, has handed down judgment in the case of Cecil Bebee, of Port Hope against William Mercer, of Haliburton. This action arose out of a motor collision which took place on the shores of Hall's Lake, County of Haliburton. In giving judgment for the plaintiff, His Honor pointed out that each party in the action charged each other with negligence and that the parties and other witnesses giving evidence were hopelessly divergent. While witnesses seemed to be endavoring to tell the truth, His Honor was quite confident witnesses on both side were mistaken either in their observation or recollection, or both. The plaintiff's claim was for $231.10, in addition to a general claim for depreciation, on which no evidence was submitted. The defendant had paid into court in the usual way the sum of $120.00, which His Honor did not think sufficient. The plaintiff's claim, he ruled, was out of all proportion. Judgment was entered for $170.00 and costs to be taxed, the counter claim being dismissed with costs.

FOUR DEAD, FOUR MISSING AS STEAMER GOES ASHORE

OPORTO, Portugal, May 12. — (AP)—Four men were dead, four missing and feared drowned and four injured to-day as a result of the capsizing of two lifeboats in a furious sea in an attempt to rescue the crew of the German steamer Gauss which ran aground last night near here in a storm.

The only two passengers in the Gauss and part of the crew and cargo were safely removed. The captain and eight members of the crew chose to remain aboard the ship. The Gauss is engaged in coastal trade.

NUDE PARADERS FACE QUANDARY

Debate Means of Running Affairs While Leader, Verigin is in Jail.

APPEAL HIS SENTENCE.

NELSON, B.C., May 12 (C.P.).—While the British Columbia Government is making plans for detention of several hundred Doukhobors convicted or likely to be convicted of parading in the nude, leaders of the Doukhobor community are debating ways and means of running their internal affairs during the imprisonment of their patriarch, Peter Verigin.

Last night more than 30 boys from here were taken to the coast, where they will be cared for in an industrial school. Wards of the Government, owing to the imprisonment of their nudist parents, the lads boarded a train in charge of police officers, but their exact destination was not made known. As the boys were taken away from the jail women prisoners, some of them their mothers and sisters, shouted farewells and chanted hymns.

Verigin To Appeal.

Meantime it was announced Peter Verigin would appeal his sentence of three years in prison for perjury. He is now confined in jail at Prince Albert, Sask. His counsel's decision to launch an appeal will forestall his removal to the penitentiary.

Detention of Verigin has directed attention to the unique organization of the Doukhobors. The Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, an incorporated company, holds property in three provinces valued at nearly $6,500,000. The entire share capital of the company is vested in Peter Verigin and 13 directors. While members of the community are entitled to common use of the property, they are entitled to nothing should they withdraw, although it has been customary to make allotments to persons bolting from the organization.

The problem of finding prison accommodation is acute. Yesterday it was estimated it will cost the British Columbia and Dominion Governments about $300,000 to convict and maintain the offenders in jail. At first it was the intention to take the male nudists to New Westminster Penitentiary and the women to Portsmouth Penitentiary, Ontario. With the prospect of 100 or more convictions yet to come, it is feared there will not be accommodation, and plans for the establishment of internment camps are being considered.

Plans for confining children of nudist parents in camps have been abandoned. Instead, they will be placed in institutions and educated as wards of the Government.

Large Trout Caught In The Trent Waters

(Examiner Staff Correspondent.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—The first real catch of the trout season was registered today when Carl Johnson of Campbellford, who was fishing with G. H. Free in the Trent River, south of town landed a sixteen inch speckled trout which tipped the scales at two pounds. The trout was beautifully marked and is one of the largest caught so far this season in local waters.

$5,000 LIMIT TO INCOME

STUTTGART, Germany — The Stuttgart municipal council, after an all-night session, decided to-day to ask the Wuerttemberg diet to cause a motion to be introduced in the Reichstag providing that no person, whatever his station or profession, may receive an income of more than 12,000 marks (about $3,000 a year.

MADRIGAL SINGERS PRESENT SACRED CONCERT AT TRINITY

Church is Filled to Capacity to Hear Splendid Program.

Charles Peaker At Organ.

(By Jeanette)

The evening of sacred music given by the Madrigal Singers last night in Trinity United Church, in aid of the Canadian Legion's Relief Fund, proved a real success from every point of view. The singers gave a beautiful program of music, appropriate to the edifice, the assisting artist, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, who sang; Charles Peaker, Mus.Bac., F.R.C.O., of Toronto, who played several organ solo numbers and the violinists, Deane Miner of Peterborough and Fred Winfield of Port Hope, all receiving the same intent and silent appreciation which marked the choral efforts. The appreciation was silent, through request, the audience being asked to refrain from applause. The church was filled to overflowing, beyond its capacity of nearly nine hundred people.

The Madrigal Singers, conducted by Dorothy Allan Park, were in sombre black choir gowns and hats, discarding their gay period costumes for the occasion. They sang beautifully, with their usual finesse and ease, displaying the fine pianissimo and delicate diminuendo work in which they excel, the shading and expressive rendition of their program gaining an additional charm by reason of the delicacy and reverence which colored their music. It was an extremely artistic program, in which many of the numbers were rendered "a capella" in the unaccompanied fashion, while others had organ accompaniments played by Mr. Peaker.

Two selections in Latin were exceptionally fine in treatment and delicate, expresing shading. They were excerpts from the works of Palestrina, arranged by Deems Taylor; "O Bone Jesu" and "Sub Tuum" both being marked by softly smooth deep undertones of delicate sound.

The unaccompanied stanzas of Healey Willan's arrangement of "Regina coeli, Laetare" (Queen of Heaven, Rejoice), sung in English, were smoothly rendered, with a dainty companion piece in another of this composer's arrangements, "Tyrle, trylow" (Old English) with a superb low-toned echoing finale of sustained beauty.

Soft Sibilants

The softly sounded sibilants of Edward Elgar's "The Snow" were picturesque sentences that brought to mind the soft hiss of the falling crystals. This is an atmospheric, descriptive thing that is extremely effective and was finely sung. Its melodic, pianissimo opening progresses by legato stages to a strong and forceful crescendo and diminishes again to a low finale. The 'cello-like organ and the singing strings of the two violins, played by Mr. Miner and Mr. Winfield, which accompanied it, added their interest to an outstanding rendition.

Displaying a volume which is lacking in many of the numbers, the majority of which rely on pianissmo effects and dainty attack and release for interest and charm, was the full-voiced Bach choral number, "We Thank Thee, God" sung in unison, with a delicate contrast in the half-voice treatment of its companion, Schubert's graceful composition, "The Lord is My Shepherd."

The choral program opened with two delightful selections, a Breton folk song, "Before the Shrine," and "The Virgin at the Manger", by Perilhou.

Solo Numbers

Mrs. Park sang, by request, a group of three songs which were marked by the dramatic interest and the vibrant, "alive" quality of her fine soprano voice. The first was the legato music of Handel's "O, Had I Jubal's Lyre" the second was the hymn poem, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach, and the third was the brilliant and beautifully sung composition, "How Shall I sing that Majesty?"

The organ accompaniments for the songs were played by Mr. Peaker, who also played for the two-violin number by Deane Miner and Fred Winfield. This was Bach's Largo from Concerto, a new number for Peterborough ears, and it was beautifully played by the two expert musicians, the delicate, fine thread of tenuous treble melody ringing out over the deep bass of the organ accompaniment.

Mr. Peaker played several organ numbers: the Cesar Franck 'Choral' in B minor, a very interesting rendition of noble music, also a trio of three merry tunes in lighter vein. They were Widor's Intermezzo, from Symphony No. 1, Hollins' "A Song of Sunshine" both in playful mood, with many dancing, lightly-touched notes, and Reger's Toccato in D minor, with plenty of forte descriptive passages. Mr. Peaker played with ease and expert precision, drawing the music from a malleable instrument.

Lt.-Colonel Charles Ackerman spoke briefly in an intermission, regretting the unavoidable necessity of breaking in on "this magnificent music" and outlining very briefly some of the work of the Canadian Legion in whose interests the program was given.

The speaker referred to the 160,000 ex-service men in good standing throughout Canada, to the $30,000 raised in Peterborough alone for needs of local members and their dependents, and to the efefforts made by the Legion to see that war-time pledges to the men should be implemented.

He also thanked Mrs. Park, Mr. Peaker and the assisting artists, and the trustees of Trinity Church.

London is to have a new permanent display of everything used in building.

CANADA SELLS RUSSIA WHEAT

Three Extra Cargoes Bring Total to 2,000,000 Bushels Loading in Vancouver.

GOING TO VLADIVOSTOK.

VANCOUVER, May 12.—Three additional cargoes of Canadian wheat have been sold to Russia and will be shipped direct to Vladivostok during May and June, it was announced here yesterday by Kerr Gifford & Company, grain exporters.

This makes seven cargoes all told which the company have sold to Russia, and aggregate 1,500,000 bushels.

With sales earlier in the week of a full cargo by Louis Dreyfus and Co. the total grain booked for Vladivostok loading out of Vancouver has reached slightly more than 2,000,000 bushels.

WITH CAPONE GONE CLEANUP IS 100 P.C.

Income Tax Violators and Bootleggers Are in Prison.

CHICAGO, May 12.—The United States District Attorney's office here maintained its 100 per cent record in the income tax prosecution of bootleggers and gangsters when "Al" Capone, Chicago gang leader, was started recently for the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. Capone is the seventh to be convicted or to plead guilty in the United States court here for failing to report income accurately for taxation purposes.

The first to go to prison was Sam Guzik, a partner in the Capone syndicate and his term will soon expire. The second was Frank Nitti, whose sentence has already been served.

They were followed by Ralph Capone, brother of "Al," who was given a three-year term. Next was Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, partners in brewery and beer running enterprises with Capone protection, and finally Jake Guzik, Capone's business manager and gambling, vice, bootlegging and business racket operations. Guzik started a five-year term at Leavenworth, Kan., three weeks ago.

ODD FELLOWS NAME DISTRICT OFFICERS

Pontypool Man is Elected District Deputy Grand Master.

The annual meeting of the District Committee of No. 44 district I.O.O.F. was held last evening at the Odd Fellows' Temple on George street. The election of officers for the 1932-3 term took place and Brother J. H. Payne of Pontypool was elected District Deputy Grand Master, which office was so creditably filled last term by Bro. E. Grand Inside Herald, Vernon Fallis, and D.D. Grand O.G., A. H. Mowry.

Brother E. Youngman of Pontypool will be the secretary of the committee.

Masons Dedicate Memorial Temple

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 12. — (C.P.)—On a hill by this ancient town, Masons gathered to-day to dedicate a towering granite temple to the memeroy of George Washington, Freemason.

For 22 years Masons have been building the pillared granite memorial, crowned by an angular seven storey tower, symbolic of the lighthouse of Egypt. It stands atop Shooters' Hill, once owned by Washington and favored by Jefferson and Madison as the site for the United States Capitol.

In the line of march were soldiers, sailors, marines and the vivid uniforms of Knights Templars, Shriners, Royal Arch Masons and Veiled Prophets

Legislation Rumor Is News To Henry

TORONTO, May 12. (CP)— "I have not heard anything about it" said Premier George S. Henry today in connection with a report that in their next appeal to the country the Henry Government will, as a platform plan, recommend that the legislature membership be reduced from 112 to 82 seats, and that the cabinet would be reduced to eight members.

He said the cabinet had never discussed these questions.

Be Prepared - Fishing Season

Opens May 16th

The fishing season opens on Monday, May 16th, that is for pickerel—May 1st being the open date for brook trout. This season is some two weeks later for pickerel fishing, as last year it opened on May 1st, the game gardens having seen fit to make a change this year. Certain limitations are necessary, however, in that no fishing is allowed from any floating object—only casting from shore is permitted, the reason being to protect the other game fish like bass and 'lunge, which for them the season comes into effect July 1st.

TIPS ON FISHING

Hook live minnows through the lips.

Don't kill live bait casting it. Allow it to swim about.

One dry fly at the end of a leader is proper.

Three flies make up the wet fly cast.

Let the dry fly drift. Draw the wet fly through the water.

Kill bass or trout, remove gills, draw them and pack in basket with damp cress or moss.

Learn to reel plugs in slowly. Try it and see.

Wet the hands when removing an undersize fish that you want to return to the water.

Be sure to have a long pair of side-cutting pliers on a trip for emergency sake in handling dangerous hooks.

Measure all small fish before placing in the creel.

Carry a landing net for bass, trout and pike.

Get a copy of the game laws and carry it with you.

INDIANS SWITCH VOTE IN ALASKAN PRIMARIES

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 12. (CP) Democratic leaders to-day pointed to the Indian vote in other years almost solidly Republican, as the reason why Democratic balloting in the Alaska primaries exceeded the Republican vote for the first time in 14 years.

Dissatisfaction among Indian tribes, they said, explained their switch to the Democratic ticket.

INCOMPLETE EVOLUTION BLAMED FOR COMMONEST DISCOMFORTS

Discomforts of Motherhood and How to Remedy Them Announced.

"GROWTH HORMONE."

NEW ORLEANS, May 12 (C.P.)—Discovery of the cause of one of the commonest discomforts of motherhood, with indications that it may arise from incomplete evolution, was shown to the American Medical Association to-day.

The discomfort comes from a slight internal pressure, and one of the theories of evolution enters because the bad effects can be relieved simply by resting on hands and knees the "all fours" position that evolutionists claim was once either natural or much nearer so than the modern completely upright posture.

Virtual modifications in the characters of 15 children obtained by giving them the new "growth hormone" of one of the endocrine glands, the pituitary, were reported by Louis A. Laurie, M.D., of Cincinnati.

These children were underformed physically and usually slightly misshapen through misplaced fat, all traced to failure of their natural supply of this growth hormone.

Along with their physical peculiarities went abnormal traits of the sort of usually attributed only to "characters."

One boy, said Dr. Laurie, was excessively fat, his voice high-pitched, his appearance effeminate. He had an inordinate craving for sweets.

His "character" defect was stealing. From family or friends alike he constantly stole money and spent it on sweets. He seemed to delight in making presents of these stolen sweets to other children.

Pituitary extract was fed to him and his physical peculiarities disappeared. So also did the stealing, increased honesty keeping pace with his progress toward looking like other boys. His presents of stolen gains proved finally to have been bribes to win the respect which his poor physique could not command.

A girl of six who for one whole year never spoke a word in school though she talked at home, finally was restored to the "feminine prerogative." In her case several years of feeding the growth hormone was required.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S WRESTLING SHOW

The Masked Marvel Initial Headliner for To-morrow Night's Main Bout.

The Brock Street Rink is to be congratulated on having made arrangement with the Queensbury Athletic Club of Toronto whereby the king of wrestling promoters, Jack Corcoran, will conduct the wrestling in Brock street rink this season. The first of the series is to-morrow (Friday) night and the finest wrestling bill ever presented here will be offered to the sporting fraternity of the city and district. There should be an excellent attendance at these bouts as the prices of admission are most reasonable for the calibre of shows to be held. The Masked Marvel is one of the best attractions in the wrestling game.

Open Sunday Bill Is Withdrawn In House

LONDON, May 12. (CP)—As was generally expected the Sunday performances bill, which would have legalized Sunday moving-picture entertainments under local option, has been withdrawn, and the government will introduce a substitute bill. The present one was a private bill left to a free vote of the house on second reading, and has since been in committee stage.

A year ago Sunday performances, which had been followed only in a few centres, notably London, were declared illegal in a court decision and the government then hastily passed a measure to maintain Sunday opening where it had existed for at least 12 months precicusly, pending general regularization.

Extreme hostility to Sunday performances has been displayed by certain religious bodies, although some prominent church leaders have deprecated the subject being approached from the extreme Sabbatarian viewpoint.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

"MEN IN HER LIFE"

He paid her to make a gentleman out of him, and then he proved to be more of a gentleman than she ever dreamed of knowing.

"Men in her Life" is the story of a girl, Julia Cavanaugh, who loses her money and finds that her admirer, Count Ivan Karloff, (Victor Varconi) has not loved her for her beauty alone. The knowledge comes a little late, however, and Charles Bickford, as "Flash" Madden, retired racketeer, comes next, with Dick Webster a close third.

Lois Moran is the girl who searches for romance, and finds a lot of other things. Bickford has the role of the rough customer who calls a chauffeur a 'mug' and calls for a "large cup of demi-tasse" at the end of a dinner.

The electric chair looms on the horizon before the tale ends, and there is a court-room scene with the usual amount of querying by a very rude District Attorney. The ending is quite satisfactory, and the story itself is quite unordinary and makes good entertainment.

"Monkey Shines" is the title of an amusing comedy in which a mischievous gorilla stars, and there is one of the "Voice of Hollywood" short reels, with many celebrities of the screen making brief appearances, including Conrad Nagel, Bela Lugosi of "Dracula" fame, Jea Harlow, Fifi Dorsay, with her infectious laugh, and Walter Huston, who sings "Why Mention It Now?" with an air.—Jeanette.

ARCHDEACON SEES HYDRO HEARTLESS

Could Ask Capitalist for Light For Poor, He Says.

HAMILTON, May 12. — By the votes of the synod Archdeacon Robertson was yesterday prevented from bringing in a notice of motion requesting the Ontario Hydro commission to investigate the action of certain municipal commissions in cutting off power from unemployed unable to pay their bills.

He stated that in some cases relief funds were being used to buy oil to provide light and fuel while a system supposed to provide the cheapest power in the world, "owned by the people, for the people, was being kept from some of the people."

"We have socialism right under our nose, and we see how it works. What is everybody's responsibility seems to be no one's, because all duck the blame. If the system was owned by a capitalist, you could at least appeal to his heart," he said.

DO NOT JUDGE OTHERS TOO HARD

Pray don't find fault with the man who limps,
Or stumble along the road.
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears
Or struggled beneath his load.

There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt.
Though hidden away from view.
Or the burdens he bears, placed on on your back,
Might cause you to stumble too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down to-day.
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame
That only the fallen know.

Don't be too harsh with the man who sins,
Or pelt him with words or stones,
Unless you are sure, yea, doubly sure
That you have not sins of your own.

You may be strong, but still the blows
That were his, if dealt to you
In the self-same way at the self-same time
Might cause you to stagger too.

Germany plans to start at once its program of constructing 16,000 houses for the jobless.

FLOATING POWER
"We Can't Put It In Words
—but we can show you by a ride," says Walter P. Chrysler

"CANADA, by now, is filled with Floating Power boosters. The thousands who have accepted our invitation to a Floating Power Ride have had the thrill of their motoring life. Don't miss that thrill."
Walter P. Chrysler
President, Chrysler Corp. of Canada, Limited

Don't Miss Your Floating Power Ride!

To be up-to-date in motoring matters, you must know about Floating Power Everybody is talking about it. You will, too, after enjoying a Floating Power Ride.

For a surprise and a thrill, call on any Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge or Chrysler dealer and tell him you want a Floating Power Ride. Or, if you prefer, ride with a friend who owns a Floating Power car. Let the car speak for itself.

If you want to know what Floating Power really is, you'll get the best answer behind the steering wheel of a Floating Power car.

I can't describe Floating Power for you. Neither can my engineers who perfected it. Nor the advertising men who write about it. And that goes for the thousands of owners who are enthusiastic about it, too.

I'm told that competition says their cars have Floating Power. That convinces me they don't know what it is. If they did, they wouldn't make such a statement.

Only four cars, you know, have Floating Power. They are Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler. For Floating Power is exclusive.

All I can tell you about Floating Power is that it will give you the smoothest performance and the easiest ride you've ever had.

If I went any stronger than that, you'd think I had no respect for the truth. I'd rather have you find out for yourself.

Again, I invite you to take a Floating Power Ride this week. It will surprise you. Thrill you as you haven't been thrilled since the day you first drove an automobile.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

COST OF PAVING TO CITY IN 1931 WAS $66,889.42

Grants From the Governments Amounted to $19.410.58—Debentures Authorized.

TOTAL COST WAS $86,300

Property Owners Along Streets Paved Will Be Charged $29,964.10.

A by-law recently passed by the City Council authorizing the issuance of debentures to pay for the paving work done last year contained the fact that the total expenditure was $86.300, the grants from the governments amounted to $19.410.58, and the su mto be raised by debentures is $66.889.42.

For the information of citizens who are interested in this phase of the council's business it may be recalled that the pavements were laid on Armour road from Douro street to Park Hill road; on Douro street from Roger street to Armour road; on Rogers street from Hunter street to Douro street; on Park street south from Lansdowne street 227 feet, and also the paving of the old street railway strips which were torn up last year on Charlotte street from Park street to Monaghan road, on George street from King street to the C.P.R., and on George street from Murray street to Park Hill road.

Of the total cost of $86.300, the corporation of Peterborough as a whole and the property owners on these streets are charged with respective sums, the corporation's portion being $56,335.90 and property $29,964.10.

Government Grants

The grant of $19,410.58 from the Ontario and Dominion Governments was credited to the Corporation's share of the cost, and deducted from $56,335.90, leaves $36.-925.32 chargeable against the ratepayers as a whole, with $29,964.10 to be levied against the property on the paved streets.

The reading of this by-law produced a brief debate by Ald Holland and Ald. Phelan. The Ashburnham member of the council contended that the grant from the government should have been applied against the cost of the special work which the council initiated as unemployment relief. The inference was that Ald Holland held the opinion that the $19,410.58 from the governments should have been used to reduce the amount charged against the property owners on the paved streets designated in the by-law. His argument was that the cost was probably higher than in ordinary construction circumstances because men were engaged who were not accustomed to road construction.

Ald Phelan said that the contribution from the governments was for relief work, and that the grant had been so used. The advantage accrued to the entire body of ratepayers, including the property owners on the specified streets, as shown by the fact that instead of having to charge $56,335.90 against the city as a whole the actual sum after the deduction of the $19,410.58 received from the governments the remainder to be charged against the city as a whole is $36,925.32.

Ald Phelan declared that J. W. Ellis of Toronto, who was secretary of the governments' relief program, had told him that the allocation by a municipality of any appropriation from the governments was entirely a domestic affair. The grant was received for relief work, and had been used for that purpose.

Debentures for Curbs

Another debenture by-law for $17,866.39 covered the cost of curbs on Prince, Princess, Mark, Bolivar, Burnham, Benson Ave., Weller and other streets. The amount charged against the corporation was $5,955.-21, and against the property owners on these streets $17,244.79. The unemployment relief grant from the governments was $5,333.61. It was applied against the corporation's share leaving only $621.60 to be charged in the general tax rate. Although the total cost of the work was $23.200, the amount to be borrowed by debentures is reduced by the government allowance to $17,-866.39.

Sidewalks on Monaghan road, Weller street, Thompson Ave., Geraldine avenue and other streets last year cost $6,700, which is also to be raised by debentures. Of this amount the property owners on the particular streets are charged with $3,272.42 and the corporation $3,-427.58.

Efficiency League Meets At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence). — One hundred and fourteen answered the roll call at the regular meeting of the Efficiency League on Monday evening last the sides being as follows: Red, 37; blue, 27; white, 27; khaki, 23. Plans were made for a debate to be held on Monday evening next, "Resolved that reading is more beneficial than travel" Three members of the League are ill in the hospital and messages were sent to them. Arrangements were made for the closing meeting of the season which will be held the end of May.

When the business and and devotional parts of the evening were over the meeting was turned over to Mrs. D. A. Allen, leader of the Red side, which had charge of the evening's programme. There were prayers by Mrs. W. A. Payne and Mrssrs. A. E. Higgins and George Harrison. Mrs. Leslie Harrison read the 19th Psalm. Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Una Archer and Miss Margaret Richardson each sang a solo while Miss Phyllis Charlton played a piano solo, all these numbers were very much appreciated and were of an especially high standard of quality.

Mrs. T. M. Wesley gave a very interesting account of her experiences in England during the Great War while her husband was overseas and when she did her bit in work among the Canadian soldiers in England.

SAFETY PROGRAM OFFSETS HAZARDS

Concrete Wall Line Turns at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

(Special to The Examiner)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 12 (SNS) —With all the hazards of the most dangerous sport—automobile racing —only three drivers and a like number of mechanics have lost their lives in nineteen runnings of the international 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

The Hoosier 2½-mile brick and concrete strip of speed, where drivers now are preparing for the 500-mile race May 30, has been designed to include every factor of safety for the contestants.

On the four quarter turns of the track, concrete walls on both the inside and outside of the track serve as "bouncing rails." On the long straightaways there are huge, high wooden rails, designed so that a car out of control will strike the wall in such a fashion as to keep it from turning over.

Hitting any of the walls a slanting blow, runaway cars are slowed to a speed which permits drivers to manhandle them. Sometimes cars riding into the wall straight on dive on through either concrete or wooden retaining obstacles, but the speed is thus diminished and it usually affords a soft landing for the occupants.

Additional walls and considerable yardage separate spectators from the cars speeding over the track, and every possible precaution is taken in handling the huge crowd which packs the track on race day.

Le Croq and Thurman in 1919, Spence in 1929, were the drivers who were lost in action.

Forty cars will swoop down the home stretch in a flying start as the 500-mile race starts this month, but skill in handling cars, complete instruction of drivers to scatter. Then the race becomes a series of little races within the big races.

Cars of equal speed—divided into several important divisions—battle it out on the bricks while the leaders have their troubles working their way through these groups.

PERFECT HIPS HARD TO FIND

Professor Claims Doukhobors Only People Not Hip Conscious.

SINGERS BEST.

TORONTO, May 12 (C.P.) — "Four out of five persons have uneven hips. If blindfolded we would walk in a circle, as one leg is lifted by the tilted hip," declared F. P. Millard, in addressing members of the Ontario Osteopathic Association here to-day.

"The Doukhobors are the only people not hip conscious. They don't know they have hips," he continued. "Gunmen have a gait of their own as they carry weapons. Convicts who have done the 'lock step' have not their natural hip movement when they are freed. Golfers certainly are hip conscious when about to drive."

"Singers have almost perfect hips, as singing calls for correct posture. A lumbago sufferer could not sing grand opera."

Hoover Inaugurates Money-Saving Plans

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(C.P.) —At a bi-partisan White House breakfast with members of the U. S. Senate Economy Committee, President Hoover to-day set under way a new money saving program in the Senate along the same lines as that riddled by the House of Representatives.

The drive specifically is aimed at a goal of saving $300,000,000 or more through reduced appropriations and governmental consolidations.

The treasury deficit approached the $2,500,000, mark to-day. On May 9, it had reached $2,497,262,-955.

DUTCH SEAMEN SET UP RECORD IN DOCK TOWING

One Taken to New Zealand 14,000 Miles Through Choppy Seas.

56TH JOB.

ROTTERDAM, May 12. — The Dutch are admittedly good sailors, but they are reputed to be unrivaled in one specialized branch of the seafaring business — towing ships and docks over long distances.

Not long ago the L. Smit & Co.'s International Tug Company of Rotterdam accomplished a record feat by towing the 17,000-ton Wellington Jubilee Dock from Wallsend-on-Tyne, Eng., over the unprecedented distance of 14,000 miles to Wellington, N.Z.

This was the fifty-sixth dock to be towed to its destination by the company. It is said that this is more than all the other towage companies of the world have accomplished together.

The Wellington dock was built for the Wellington Harbor Board to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of its foundation. The transport left the Tyne on July 15, 1931. On December 28, after a voyage of 5½ months in storms and gales, the dock, towed by two powerful ocean-going tugs, arrived at Wellington entirely undamaged. During the whole expedition not a single hawser or steel wire was broken.

Ocean-going towage is comparatively new. The first tug of this kind started on its maiden voyage 40 years ago, with three barges, from Rotterdam to the Kiel Canal, a distance of 350 miles. From this modest beginning has sprung an enterprise with a fleet of eight ocean-going tugs. A few years ago these successfully towed the enormous dock of 50,000 tons capacity for the new naval base at Singapore from England.

Jack Brown Fined $2.00 For Assault

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Jack Brown, 38, appeared in Campbellford Police Court yesterday before Mayor J. M. Bygott and R. J. Allan, P.P. on the Magistrate's bench, charged with assault. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, but was convicted and fined $2 and costs or ten days in the common gaol. The information was laid by Joseph Akey, 72 of Campbellford, N. Alex MacColl appearing for the defence, D. J. Lynch handling the prosecution.

The alleged assault on Mr. Akey took place on May 4 when it was stated Brown went to the plaintiff's house and demanded fifty cents, which was refused. He then followed him into the wood shed and grabbed him, forcing him against a glass door leading into the kitchen, which was broken in the shuffle.

Questioned by Mr. MacColl, Akey admitted that he went out the back to dispose of home brew so that his son, Clayton Akey could not get it. Mrs. Charles Seaborn, the next door neighbor, testified to having heard a row and watching the back of the house, saw the assault on Akey by Brown.

Brown admitted being at the Akey house about 5.30 p.m. on that da, but denied having stayed, stating that he was at another house during the hours of six and eight, when the alleged assault happened. Mr. MacColl asked for the adjournment of the case to procure witnesses, having been called himself on the defence at the last moment, but Mr. Lynch objected to this course. The fine was therefor imposed by Mayor Bygott.

Obituary

DOROTHY L. FRASER.

HAVELOCK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred in Havelock at Mrs. Cumming's Nursing Home on Sunday morning, May 8, of Dorothy Luella Fraser, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Fraser of Havelock-Cordova Road, at the age of six years and seven months. The little girl had been ill for two weeks.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Tuesday afternoon to Victoria Cemetery, Rev. Mr. Kemp, assisted by Rev. M. E. Wilson, officiating. The pall-bearers were four young friends of the family: Murray and Donald Fraser, Donald Dafoe and Rae Outwater.

Left to mourn her loss are her parents and two small sisters, Munrell and Lois.

Many beautiful floral tributes spoke eloquently of the love and affection of a host of friends: Sprays from the family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur King, Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dafoe, Mr. and Mrs. Will Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Gibson, Miss Dorothy Bullen, Schoolmates of Victoria School, Mr. Charles Chase and family of Niagara Falls, and a bouquet from Wilma Ashby.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved parents and sisters in the loss of their little girl.

MRS. E. E. YOUKER

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent): — The funeral of the late Mrs. Emmaline Elizabeth Youker was held yesterday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. C. Denyes, Campbellford, interment being made in Thurlow township. The Rev. R. C. Tait conducted the service. The pall bearers were: George Hammond, T. L. Diamond, J. R. Battisby, C. H. Davidson, Duncan Clarke, Neil Morrison.

The late Mrs. Youker died on Monday after an illness of some weeks. She was aged 79 years and 4 months. Born near Foxboro in Thurlow township the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cummings, she later married Gilbert Youker, who pre-deceased her over twenty years ago. Twenty years ago she came to Campbellford to live. She was a member of the United Church.

One daughter only survives, Mrs. P. C. Denyes (Nellie) of Campbellford, and one brother, Herbert Cummings of Campbellford.

The Russian steamer, Andre Martl, is carrying 13,000 barrels of herrings from England to Murmansk, North Russia.

Ford Finds Famed Clock Second Slow

WASHINGTON, May 12.—When Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford were visiting Kenmore, the colonial mansion of Washington's only sister, Betty Washington Lewis, last week, during the Garden pilgrimage in Virginia, the automobile manufacturer stopped to gaze at a grandfather's clock in the hall.

The custodian, seeing Mr. Ford's interest, began to extoll the virtues of the clock and mentioned that it was a good timekeeper.

"How good?" inquired Mr. Ford.

"Oh, it has always kept good time. It was Washington's mother's clock and George learned to tell the time by it. It is 200 years old or more and still keeps good time," assured the custodian.

"Two hundred years old and keeps good time," mused Mr. Ford. "Well, we'll see." Taking out his watch and looking at it a few moments, then turning to the custodian with the grin of a schoolboy who knew he had something on the other fellow, he said emphatically, "it's slow."

"Slow?"

"Yes," smiled Mr. Ford, one second!"

Legion Appreciation

LAKEFIELD, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The following letter was received by Mr. G. G. Connell, of the Cenotaph Committee, and which is of interest to the large number of contributors in the community:

Lakefield, Ont., April 30, 1932.
Lakefield and District Cenotaph Committee, Lakefield.

At a regular meeting of Branch 77, Canadian Legion, of the 26th inst., I was instructed by motion, to convey to you the sincere thanks of all ex-service men for the splendid work being carried out in the park around the Cenotaph. This undertaking was always very dear to all veterans, being as it is, not a memorial to the living, but a truly community memorial to those dear comrades who gave their all in the Great War.

Regarding the recent work of landscaping, the above mentioned Branch heartily appreciate the fact that a large number of returned men were engaged on this work, thus relieving both the branch and the municipalit of considerable charity, which would doubtless have been necessary in several instances.

In further appreciation of the above, thirty-five members present at the meeting volunteered to give at least one day's labor gratis in the near future, to further assist in beautifying the grounds, and I am authorized to call out these volunteers any day that may be suitable to the Cenotaph Committee or the Municipal Council.

Thanking you for your splendid co-operation.

Sincerely yours,
A. B. Burrows, President.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE REVIEWS ITS WORK DURING PAST YEAR

Mrs. Ira Lowe is Elected President of Mount Pleasant Branch for 1932.

SPLENDID REPORTS.

MOUNT PLEASANT, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — The annual meeting of the Mount Pleasant branch of East Durham Women's Institute was held at the home of the president Mrs. Garnet Shield on Wednesday afternoon, a good attendance of members.

Mrs. Rutherford reported for the roll call contest for the year. Mrs. E. McLean's group were the winners, they having received the most marks for answering the roll call. Miss M. Eggleston's group will be expected to provide a treat for the winners.

The president reported a meeting of the committee, Mrs. A. Tully, Mrs. E. Morden and Mrs. I. Lowe, (appointed to interview the school board) on the subject of music in the public school, at which a motion was carried in favor, subject to the approval of the ratepayers of the section. A letter was read by the secretary regarding the W.I. sponsoring a coaching class this summer, the members decided in favor of having a class and on motion of Mrs. T. Graham and I. Lowe, Mrs. M. Jones and the Misses Ruth Tully and M. Eggleston were appointed to secure the number of girls required to make up a class.

As this was the last meeting of the year, both the secretary and treasurer gave splendid reports of the year's work. Mrs. Jones, treasurer gave a very accurate report of the expenditures and receipts of the year and the secretary, Mrs. Tully also gave a complete report of all the activities included in the year. There were twelve regular meeting held at Cavan when the local W.I. attended. Two plays were given in the W.I. Hall under their auspices, one from Cavan, the other from Springville.

Cooking Class Success

A "Cooking Class" was held with Miss Cameron as instructor. Girls' coaching class was held with Miss E. Hopkins as Instructor for two days in the W.I. Hall. One of the class, Miss A. Graham winning the trip to the Royal Winter Fair. Quilts were made for relief. The W.I. Hall has been cleaned and redecorated during the year. Milk was given daily to a needy child for two months.

At the conclusion of these reports the president voiced the appreciation of the members for the splendid service rendered by the secretary and treasurer, when the members applauded with a hearty clapp of the hands.

The election of officers for the coming year then took place with Mrs. Thomas Graham in the chair. Mrs. Tully as secretary and Mrs. T. C. Morden and M. Jones as scrutineers.

The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Ira Lowe; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Harry Sisson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. M. Handley; secretary, Miss Mabel Eggleston; assistant secretary, Miss Kay Sisson; treasurer, Mrs. Melville Jones; district director, Mrs. T. C. Morden; branch directors, Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Mrs. Jos. Best and Mrs. E. McLean; visiting committee, Mrs. Elmer Windrem, Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Miss P. Langton; W.I. Hall committee, Mrs. Thomas Graham, Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. T. C. Morden; pianist, Mrs. Garnet Shield; auditors, Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. W. H. Lowes.

A splendid program was given including a reading by Mrs. Rutherford, "Grumbling"; paper by Miss Mabel Eggleston; reading, "A Slave" by Mrs. Morden; reading, "Youth" by Mrs. W. H. Lowes.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. H. Sisson and Miss M. Eggleston.

Those present included: Mrs. Thos. Graham, Mrs. Elmer Windrem, Mrs. Melville Jones, Mrs. Melville Handley, Mrs. Jos. Best, Mrs. Rosenburg, Miss Mabel Eggleston, Miss Ruth Tully, Mrs. Harry Sisson, Mrs. Eric McLean, Mrs. Hannah Rutherford, Mrs. W H. Lowes, Mrs. Clem Morden, Mrs. Alex Tully, Miss Margaret McCamus, Mrs. G. Shield and Mrs. Ira Lowe.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ira Lowe with Mrs. Hubert Lowes and Mrs. I. Lowe in charge of the program.

IN REALMS OF PARADISE

Around God's glorious throne above.
The happy angels stand,
They ever praise the God they love,
And fly at His command.
Their faces like the sun, are bright,
And sweetest smiles they wear,
There is no night, no need of candle there.

And when a dying infant lies,
Upon its mother's breast,
And angels watch it while it dies,
And take its soul to rest.
After all their labor's past
In the harbor, safe at last,
Storms will reach them never more.
On that calm and peaceful shore.

Safe the boat is anchored now,
Holy peace on every brow.
Sanctified each yearning heart.
Painless every burning smart.
Fears no longer blur the eye.
In th realms of Paradise

FASHION SERVICE

PATTERN MAY 12

Here's a cool little affair which is very practical with its wee bloomers to match.

In yellow and white dimity print with plain yellow was the original model carried out, but dozens of other schemes are possible. Plain white bias bands finished the yoke, hem and sleeves.

You'll find it especially easy to fashion it.

Style No. 2840 may be had in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 32 inch contrasting and 4 yards of binding.

Delicious schemes in fresh blue and white checked gingham, pink flowered batiste or French blue linen dotted in white, would be adorable.

Our New Fashion Magazine points the way to better dress and will help you economize.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern.

Hastings

Tuesday at 10.30 a.m. was set for Cadet inspection, and in spite of a cold east wind which swept the parade ground, and the rain which fell thick and fast, the Corps were out in full strength in charge of Cadet Captain Hugh Morris and his platoon commanders, and Mr. T. W. Chaplin, instructor. A number of parents were present, but the inspector did not arrive and the event was postponed till a later date.

The Lakefield Softball League had set Tuesday, May 10th, for its opening game, but the wet weather prevented the game from being played. The season will open on Thursday evening at 6.15, when the Legion and the I.O.O.F. play, weather permitting.

A dance was held in the Pavilion on Friday evening last, under the auspices of the Badminton Club. Owing to various counter attractions and inclement weather, the attendance was not as large as was hoped for, but those present had a very delightful time, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

FAIRMOUNT

The monthly meeting of the Fairmount W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Hooton on the afternoon of May 4th, with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Robt. Hooton followed by prayer offered by Mrs. James Seymour.

An interesting article written by the Rev. Stevens of Fisher River, who had received bales from Fairmount W.M.S. for a great number of years, was read from the missionary Review. (Rev.) Rev. Mayer rendered a very impressive talk on temperance. The next chapter of the study book on Korea was taken up by Mrs. R. C. Handbidge, telling how better health came into effect in that land.

The next meeting was then discussed and will be held in the Sunday School room on June 1st. Mrs. Brown of Peterborough is expected to be the guest speaker and also Mrs. A. H. Moore of Peterborough. The Springville and Cavan branch of the W.M.S. will also receive a cordial invitation to attend this meeting. The meeting was closed by prayer by Mrs. R. C. Handbidge.

Refreshments were served and Mrs. W. Shaw, Mrs. John Earle and Mrs. R. C. Handbidge were hostesses for the occasion.

District Notes

Mrs. Varley of Toronto, her daughter Margaret and son Bruce are spending a few days with Mrs. Lloyd Hooton.

Mr. Charles Johnston of Toronto spent Sunday with his brothers, William and Fred Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Poast and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Seymour.

Mr. M. P. McIndoo motored from Toronto on Sunday and spent the day with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hooton spent Sunday evening with Mrs. George Berry of Centreville.

Mrs. Mark Hooton and daughter Myrtle made a business trip to Millbrook last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanderson motored to Kingston on Wednesday and spent the day with their son Ira.

DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES FROM SLUGGISH LIVER.

Perhaps you find that your hearing is not as good as it was; that there is a ringing or singing in the ears; some times a little dizziness.

You consult an ear specialist and he cannot find anything wrong with the hearing apparatus, or the nerve that carries the sound to the brain. He likely suggests that you may be 'run down' and that the deafness and ringing will disappear when your general physical condition improves.

When you study your condition a little further, you realize that you have been having a 'tired feeling' a goodly portion of the time, with headaches, and sometime a feeling of nausea, and even vomiting.

What is likely the cause of your deafness, ringing in the ears, tiredness and other symptoms?

Your physician will call it toxaemia, which is just another name for poisoning. This, then, is the cause of the symptoms, a poisoning of the system, resulting in the general symptoms of poisoning—tiredness or fatigue—and the special symptoms about the ear, as mentioned above.

What about treatment?

It is generally agreed that when ear symptoms, headache, and nausea, are present, and not due to any ear condition itself, that the poisoning has been going on for a long time, and that it will therefore take considerable time to rid the system of the poison.

Thus any infective process—in ear, nose, sinus, gall bladder, or intestine—may be the underlying cause.

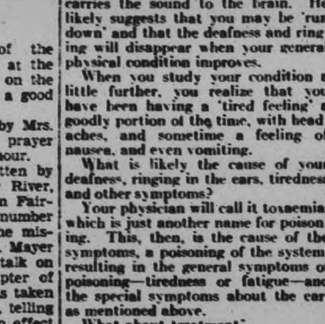
However it has been found that the 'king of the organs,' the liver, is very frequently at fault, as it has been unable to filter the poisons out of the blood and hence these poisons are carried everywhere in the body, including the ear.

The thought then if you have the symptoms described above, and have no organic trouble with the ear, that you undergo a general examination by your doctor and dentist.

While they are trying to locate the trouble you can cleanse the liver somewhat, and relieve it of some of its load, by small doses of epsom salts daily, cutting down on cream, butter, and fat meat, and doing daily bending exercises from side to side, with knees straight.

DISAPPOINTED WIFE
Seeks Advice from School Girl Friend!

Gains Valuable Help



Bitterly, Susette Hobart began to realize that marriage was not "all a bed of roses." Try as she would, things didn't seem to go and when the baby arrived there was so much additional washing to do that the house seemed to be always in a muddle and marriage to have lost some of its romance.

One day she called to see her old school friend Jean and poured out her troubles. "My dear," said Jean, "keeping a house orderly and systematic is not such a terrible task; even wash day is not a thing to dread. Don't worry so much about it. There is nothing complicated about it. I'll tell you what I do.

Explains Wash Day Secret!

"First use a good soap. I'd advise you to use the brand I always buy—Pearl White Naptha. You'll find it a good practical laundry soap and a lot more economical than most. Then soap your clothes well and put them to soak overnight in cold water. You will find that, as the water temperature rises to the heat of the room, more dirt is loosened than would be if the water were cooling. In the morning, rinse your clothes thoroughly in warm water and you'll never need have any more trouble with your wash."

Thousands of women have learned this valuable laundry secret. Get the Pearl habit yourself—Pearl means efficient work in less time and at less cost. That's something to remember these days.

Over 3000 cakes of Pearl Soap are used by Canadian housewives every hour

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION NEWS

The May meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the school on Monday evening with a large attendance of parents and friends.

The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer in unison. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. It was moved by Mrs. Lytle and seconded by Mr. Clarke that $2.50 be paid the Local Council of Women.

Mrs. Lytle gave a very interesting report of the convention of the Home and School Council held in Toronto.

The banner for the largest attendance of parents went to Miss McNaughton's class.

A chorus by the pupils of Mrs. Craig's and Miss McNaughton's class, who had been prize winners in the recent Spring Festival, was then given under the leadership of Miss McNaughton to whom they presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

Other much enjoyed musical numbers were vocal solos by Miss Eleanor Brown, cornet solos by Master David Wilson and two piano solos by Mrs. Agnes Logan Green.

Mr. Clark moved a vote of thanks to the assisting artists which was seconded by Mrs. Ballard.

The meeting then closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

She knows KOTEX is Safe

THE women who are up to the minute in all things, who follow the last word in style, are the very women who always buy Kotex. Sophisticated and smart, experience has taught them that Kotex gives self-confidence. Why? ... Because Kotex is the original, the safe, tested sanitary protection!

No question mark hovers over Kotex. No doubt as to how it was made, under what conditions.

Kotex is made and kept clean. Materials are tested and retested. Workers are uniformed. Factories are spotless. Even the air is washed.

76 Inspections

Trained eyes inspect every single Kotex pad as it is machine-cut, folded, packed. For your safety and protection, ask for Kotex. You know this pad is safe. Doctors, nurses, know it, too. Millions of Kotex pads were used in Canada's leading hospitals alone last year.

Kotex stays soft. It's highly absorbent; disposable. Made to protect when worn on either side.

IN HOSPITALS . . .
1. The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in Canada's leading hospitals.
2. Kotex is soft . . . even the gauze is specially treated to make it amazingly soft.
3. Can be worn on either side with equal comfort. No embarrassment. Inconspicuous.
4. Disposable, instantly, completely.

SOCIETY OBSERVES MOTHERS' MEETING

Paper on Temperance Read to Members of St. James' Auxiliary.

This has been "Mothers' Week" in the various organizations of St. James' United Church, when each has paid special tribute to mother's love, and influence in the home and life of her children.

Yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse, presiding, St. James' Auxiliary also carried out this theme in their May meeting. The program opened with a devotional period, when Mesdames Fell and Sargent and Miss Kidd led in prayer. The scripture reading by Mrs. Cripps was from the second chapter of Exodus, and extolled the love and wisdom of Moses' mother.

That "Mother" has really an important place in the Scriptures was brought out in the responses to the roll call, each of the members quoting a passage containing the word "Mother."

The business session was brief, but very interesting. It was decided by unanimous vote to repeat the "self-denial and talent money holiday" of last year, which proved so great a success.

Reports from departments were very interesting, and to the point. Mrs. A. H. Davis, Strangers' secretary, told of her work of calls upon new members and those who are ill.

Temperance was dealt with in a short and pithy reading by the secretary, Mrs. Beavis, and also in a bright little story. Mrs. Armstrong presented Christian Stewardship to the Auxiliary, and Mrs. Payne reported for Supply department.

The Heralds on the watch-tower brought news of their work. Mrs. Benson telling of the wonderful success being made in hospital work in West Africa.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the letter from Miss Nina McKim, the Home missionary adopted for prayer by the Auxiliary. In correspondence with Miss McKim, Mrs. Davidson learned many things about work at the home base.

Learning from each other, praying and working together and giving a life in service for others, were the chief points of interest in the letter read on Social Service work in Ottawa.

Two minutes were spent in silent prayer for the two missionaries, followed by oral prayer by members. "Mother's Dress," a story of sacrifice, by Edgar Guest, was read with fine effect by Mrs. Rowe, and a delightful and appropriate solo was contributed by Mrs. Monks.

Much of the success of the meeting is attributed to Mrs. Meredith and her capable group, who had the program in charge.

The June meeting will be arranged by the Superintendent of the Baby Band, Mrs. Copson, and the mothers, whose babies are members, are specially invited to attend.

At the conclusion of the program the meeting was dismissed with prayer by the president, and the Mizpah Benediction.

Handy Recipes

By Edith Barber

SCALLOPS A LA NEWBURG

1½ pints scallops
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
Cayenne
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup cream
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons salted sherry.

Put scallops in a hot frying pan and cook about five minutes until they begin to shrink; drain. Add salt, cayenne and lemon juice and cook one minute. Melt butter, add flour and stir until blended; stir in the cream and cook until thick. Add egg yolks and scallops. Heat and stir in sherry just before serving.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped chives or onions
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
Paprika.

Beat the ingredients together with an egg beater and serve with cucumbers or cabbage.

STRAWBERRY MARSHMALLOW MOUSSE

1 pint strawberries
15 marshmallows
½ cup moist shredded coconut
1 cup cream.

Clean and wash strawberries, crush and drain off juice. Cut marshmallows in small pieces and soak in strawberry juice. Add coconut to this mixture. The juice should be practically all absorbed by the marshmallows and coconut. Add crushed strawberries, mix well, then add cream which has been whipped, and blend well. Pile lightly in automatic refrigerator tray or pack in salt and ice for about three hours.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The importance of having an all-round diet is beginning to be stressed by dietitians.

• • • • • • •

There was a time when the importance of certain foods and the comparative unimportance of others, was responsible for making some housewives restrict diets too much.

• • • • • • •

Now, this is changed.

• • • • • • •

For example, it is found that too many cereals and grain foods unless combined with fruits, vegetables, lean meats, eggs, etc., do not build up the body in all its power.

• • • • • • •

One of the amusing things in connection with foods is that those which once were considered dangerous to constitutions, are now becoming included in advocated menus. Tomatoes, once called "love apples" were eaten at a person's own risk, not so very many years ago.

• • • • • • •

To-day tomato juice is given even to babies and fruit is recommended. So do ideas change. Bananas were on the list of indigestibles once—yet like the tomato, they are now among the recommended fruits.

• • • • • • •

The homemaker finds this idea of a well balanced menu including variety of foods is a great help in her planning. She does not have to insist that her family eat certain foods.

• • • • • • •

Her aim is to have each member of the family learn to like all sorts of foods. More latitude not only is allowed, but is desirable and actually essential.

• • • • • • •

The experienced traveler appreciates the importance of adapting one's preference about foods, to suit the menus served in different sections of a country and especially to accustom himself to foods of foreign lands.

• • • • • • •

Edibles served as distinctively part of menus in foreign lands are best suited to the needs of the constitution of persons in those particular places.

• • • • • • •

Everyone can appreciate that ices would scarcely be served in the frigid zone, nor steaming hot boiled dinner in the tropics.

• • • • • • •

To be sure these are extremes, but they show the significance of the advice to eat what is the prevailing food, of whatever country one happens to be in.

NEW COURT SOUGHT

MONTREAL—A determined effort is to be made by Ald. Biggar and Seigler to secure the formation of a Domestic Relations Court in this city. This proposition has been before the authorities for a number of years. It has been the plea of certain judges in criminal courts, and of city recorders, that the lobbies of a court are not the place for wives, and sometimes children, embroiled in domestic differences; that there is a wide margin between married people who fall out, or relatives who have difficulties, and those either accused of, or guilty of, criminal offences.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

176

FINDING THE SETTING TRICK

It is a simple matter in Contract to win the obvious tricks, but players often preen themselves on the fact that they have taken their Aces and Kings and when the Declarer chalks up a game, console each other with the statement, "We could do nothing about it, partner." If the statement is correct, it is well not to rail at fate, nor lament your ill luck, or decry your opponents' good luck. Luck, good or bad, is the common inheritance of all Bridge players; so the good player takes luck as he finds it and accepts it on that basis, but frequently we are prone to charge to bad luck matters chargeable instead to poor play. You should not lament your fate until you have used to the best advantage the opportunities presented to you. Today's hand illustrates that principle.

East and West vulnerable.
North and South not vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2◇	3♠(1)	Pass
4♠(2)	Pass	4♠(3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North's hand does not measure up to a double raise for the spade bid. He, therefore, bids his own suit as possibly indicative of greater strength than a single Raise for the spade would show.

2—South has sufficient rebid values to raise his partner's Takeout.

3—North feels that the hand will play equally well in spades or clubs and that the prospect of making game in spades is brighter than of making five clubs.

In the play, the diamonds were opened and South ruffed the third round of that suit. South now led a trump and West jumped up with the Ace. This was the only trick remaining for East and West.

"Hard luck, partner," West remarked as the score was jotted down. But it wasn't. West should have refused to play the Ace until the third round of spades. Had he waited until that trick to take his trump, he would have reaped a rich dividend, as the lead of his last diamond would have taken South's last trump and established another trump trick for him and thus defeated the contract.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: What is needed to raise one in a suit to four in a suit?

Answer: Six supporting tricks. (4+6=10.) This applies in general to majors only, as three no-trump may be easier to make than five of a minor.

MUST PROTECT BED.

Two floral embellishments in city parks were reported this morning by Ald. Stocker, chairman of the Parks Committee, whose enthusiasm manages to surmount the unusual obstacles of the present period.

"We set out 150 roses in Confederation Square this morning," Ald. Stocker said. "Twenty-one of them are climbers of eleven different varieties. This rose bed is on the west side of the park, and we included the different varieties of climbers for two reasons; one of them to make a beautiful background and the other to show the people who have been planting only the Dorothy Perkins rambler that there are many other climbers which they can grow just as successfully.

Residents of the southend have made some criticism that they have been overlooked, so we have made a bed on the east side of King Edward Park along its full length. We have 1,000 daffodils in this bed, and we are now planting a fine assortment of annual and perennials, including shrubs, hollyhocks, delphiniums, columbines, phlox, Canterbury bells, pyretheum, some Japanese, and a long row of pansies.

This ought to make a beautiful show, and now totals about 2,000 pieces or plants. It is now up the public to see that this flower bed is protected and the flowers given a real chance to grow. Unless the Parks Committee gets the co-operation of the public the money we have spent in King Edward Park will be wasted, and the council will not approve of any further expense there. So the future development depends on how we are supported by the people. If the flower bed is not protected, we will simply have to abandon work another year. But, we don't like to think of anything like that, and we feel that the people and especially the children will help us in what we are trying to do to improve the appearance of that section of the city, which is on the new provincial highway."

this city," stated Mayor Denne in expressing his satisfaction "Business in Peterborough is going to go ahead; more buyers will be attracted here.

"The commencement of this major building enterprise at this time is particularly gratifying," continued His Worship, "since it will assist the unemployment situation. Men in all lines of building trades will be put to work. Other important construction jobs here are under consideration too."

It is understood that present arrangements provide that the new store shall occupy the area bounded on the west by the premises formerly occupied by the Moore Monumental Works on Charlotte Street, up to and including McNott's Barber Shop to the south of the premises lately vacated by the Peterborough Automotive Supply Company on George Street.

The tenants of all the property in that area received written notice from the head office of the T. Eaton Company, Toronto, to vacate the premises by August 6.

Other property in the block also owned by the company includes one empty store lately vacated by T. W. Dawson Bakery, the Dean Candy Store and the Gilson Washing Machine Company store. The two latter tenants have not yet received notice, it is learned, but they will be required to vacate the premises at a later date to provide room for the contemplated driveway and parking area, included in the present plans.

The property to be dismantled to make way for the new premises includes the old Moore Monumental Works, Luncheonette Shop tenanted by John Eoons; Kingdon Barber Shop; Theo Demos, hat cleaner; Richar Cook, restaurant; two stores recently vacated by Scotland Woollen Mills, and Peterborough Automotive Supply Company respectively and McNott Barber Shop

Once An Orchard.

Old residents of Peterborough can recall when William Yates' residence and orchard were located on this corner in the days when Charlotte Street had a graceless reputation from its row of saloons. It was first owned by Outrey Morrow whose father, R. A. Morrow, disposed of it to William Yates, in 1869. It then passed into the hands of James Carnegie, and later was secured by the late George Taylor. The property was in the possession of the Taylor family for sixty years.

This corner is considered to be one of the most valuable business properties in the city. The meeting place of the main arteries of the city, its location is further improved now with the building of Highway No. 28 and Highway No. 7 carrying purchasers to the city from three directions. Both these highways pass this corner.

For years many business firms tried to purchase it. It was secured by Eaton's two years ago, making one of the biggest real estate transfers here in many years. Plans for the building of the new store were started at that time.

outside agency that could give some time to the investigation. Sir Henry again emphasized the chaos into which the railway's finances had fallen at that time.

After mature consideration Mr. Gaston had been employed, and with him it was necessary to employ a large number of clerks and accountants. Eventually, after a great deal of work, extending over several years, these matters were all catalogued, so that the railways now knew where they were.

When it was completed the railways management undertook to prepare a new financial structure for the C.N.R. which was eventually presented to the minister. But no action had yet been taken on it. In April, 1931, the C.N.R. had dispensed with Mr. Gaston's services.

To Dr. McGibbon Sir Henry said that no member of the railway staff was competent to carry out this work. The entire affair had been thoroughly canvassed and the procedure adopted was considered the best that could be done.

As to the objection against employing a United States' firm for this purpose, Sir Henry recalled that in many railways and other matters, in Canada, Americans had been called in to render services.

In addition to this work, Mr. Gaston had been appointed receiver of the Central Vermont Railway, at a fee of $12,000 a year, by the United States' Federal Court. This was on recommendation of the C.N.R.

Who Gaston Is.

In reply to the question coming from several members of the committee, "Who is this man, Gaston?" Sir Henry asked permission to make a statement. Gaston, he said, was in business in New York when the war broke out. He had gone to England where Sir Henry was a high officer in the British transport service. Gaston had secured, through Sir Henry, an introduction at the War Office, and had entered into contracts to supply trucks for the British mechanical transport section.

Owning several vessels, Gaston and his firm (Gaston, Williams and Wigmore) had been able to make their own deliveries and at the end of the war had supplied the British army with 15,000 trucks. So appreciative had been the British Government that a letter of appreciation of his services to the allied cause had been sent to him.

When Sir Henry came to Canada in 1923 to take his position as head of the Canadian National, he had looked for a man qualified to straighten out the complicated financial system. He had been unable, he said, to find a suitable man in Canada, and had selected Mr. Gaston.

McGibbon Protests.

"As a citizen of Canada, and on behalf of the officials of the Canadian National Railways, I object to this gratuitous insult to Canadians," exclaimed Dr. McGibbon.

Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, expressed a desire to make a statement at this point. "There may come a day," he said, "when I will be accused of sitting here and not opening my mouth during this discussion." When he became Minister of Railways he at once heard of the employment of Gaston and the amount he was receiving. He discussed it with Sir Henry and heard the same explanation the committee had just heard. He at once intimated to Sir Henry that Mr. Gaston's services were not required at a cost of $62,000 a year, but he agreed to keeping him at $25,000 a year. Shortly after, he had learned that Gaston's services were not required at all and he refused a suggestion from the railway officials that he man be kept at a salary of $15,000 upon which Gaston returned to the United States.

TAUGHT 57 YEARS

WINNIPEG.—Miss A. B. Stewart, former school teacher on the Winnipeg staff, has just celebrated her 89th birthday. Miss Stewart was born in Brantford, Ont., in 1843, and has been a resident of Winnipeg since 1883. For 57 years she served as a public school teacher in Ontario and Manitoba, and for 38 years of that long period was in Victoria School. She retired on pension in 1921. She has a record unique in Canada as a school teacher. Some of her former pupils are among the most eminent men and women in Canada today.

France will spend nearly $21,000,000 on port extensions, improvements and restorations.

Gentlemen—Great Britain

GENTLEMEN

Land of Britain, through the ages
Home of scholars, saints and sages,
Where the fight for freedom rages
There, thy sons are found!
Many a tyrant's pride defying
For the world her freedom buying
They have played their part, and dying
Rest in holy ground.

Young and old, the land that bore you
Sets the mighty task before you,
See, your country's needs implore you!
Bid her sorrows end!
Each his neighbor's troubles sharing
Each his brother's burden bearing
Show the helpless and despairing
They still have a friend.

Britons hold together!
Stress of stormy weather
Shall ne'er divide
True comrades tied
In faithful friendship's tether.
Love can save the world from falling
Love can break self's chains enthralling
Hear the voice of Britain calling
"Gentlemen, our land."

WANT ACTION ON PREMIER'S SUITE

Liberal Member Declares Later Questions Have Been Answered in Committee.

PREMIER TO BE PRESENT.

OTTAWA, May 12 (C.P.).—Premier R. B. Bennett will be given an opportunity to appear before the Commons Committee on Railway and Shipping when questions regarding the preparation and decoration of his suite in the Chateau Laurier are answered.

The questions were asked by A. L. Beaubien (Lib., Provencher), who filed them with the committee some days ago. He protested to-day that other questions submitted after his had been answered.

The answer was ready, Chairman R. B. Hanson informed Mr. Beaubien, but the Prime Minister wished to be present when it was given out to the committee.

Liberal members of the committee declared that the sittings were drawing to a close, and they wanted the question answered.

Mr. Hanson said that he would try to arrange for the matter to come up soon.

END PILES QUICK

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protuding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that McDermid & Jury, and Bond's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.

PUBLIC COURT OF INQUIRY FOR LONDON EXPLOSION

LONDON, Ont., May 12. (CP). Following an investigation of 24 hours' duration, Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton, announced at noon to-day a public court of inquiry had been ordered into the fatal explosion at the Catalano fruit warehouse, last week. The inquiry will open May 26, a week after the coroner's inquest into the death of a 17 year old blast victim is scheduled to take place, and will last some days.

Mr. Heaton will preside. The witnesses, who will include both fire department experts and explosive experts brought into the case by Michigan Central Railway, owners of the property, will be examined by George Mitchell, acting crown attorney. Mr. Mitcheel is acting in lieu of Crown Attorney Albert Judd who last week underwent an operation for appendiciti.

SPENCE'S APPLICATION IS BEING CONSIDERED

TORONTO, May 12. (CP)—Pension application of C. U. Spence, who served in the dental corps and artillery, was resumed by the Pension's Tribunal here to-day. Spence was granted a favorable pension tribunal hearing in July at Peterborough but turned back by the appeal board for further hearing.

Previously taking an active part in sport, Spence claimed he did did not feel well enough to play after returning from overseas, and for the past four yetars has been unable to work. Tuberculosis was diagnosed in 1926.

Wild Strawberry Preserves Injected Into Troubled House Committee

OTTAWA, May 12 (C.P.)—Wild strawberry preserves injected into the troubled atmosphere of the Commons committee on Railways and Shipping to-day, refreshed members who have for weeks been surfeited with hard statistics, cold arguments and hot interchanges.

Sam Gobeil (Cons., Compton) served the preserves in the form of a complaint against J. F. Poulliot (Lib., Temiscouata). He asserted, while members of the committee laughed, that Mr. Poulliot had charged him with using his influence to secure for his brother, J. Gobeil, a contract to supply wild strawberry preserves to the Canadian National. This charge, Mr. Gobeil denied. He wished to have R. C Vaughan, chief of the purchasing department of the Canadian National, say what the situation was.

Mr. Vaughan replied that the purchasing department had found that J. Gobeil was about the only man in Canada was was in a position to supply this kind of preserves to the railway. Consequently the purchase had been made from him.

"I think you are cleared," remarked R. B. Hanson, chairman of the committee, to Mr. Gobeil.

Mr. Vaughan stated that no influence had been used by Mr. Gobeil to secure the contract, as far as he knew.

Home Brew Cannot Be Served To Friends Or Neighbors Windsor Magistrate Rules

WINDSOR, Ont., May 12 (C.P.).—A flat ruling that home brew cannot be served to friends or neighbors came to-day from Deputy Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan in County Police Court at Sandwich as he imposed a fine of $50, and costs, or one month, upon Joseph Heyrman, of Colchester North Township.

"It is my considered opinion that the wording of the section places a definite and continuing restriction upon accused to confine the use of beer brewed by him to himself and the members of his family," the Deputy Magistrate declared.

"Admittedly, the two men found consuming beer upon the premises of the accused were not members of his family, and to hold that he was entitled to serve them this beer would be placing a wider interpretation upon the wording of the Act than I believe is warranted."

Suitable lakes in Alberta are being stocked with whitefish, perch, pickerel, and Lock Leven trout.

PARKING RULES MUST BE KEPT

City Police Stage Clean-up on Parking Law Breakers.

MANY COMPLAINTS.

City police have notified the intention of waging a strict campaign against motorists who persist in disregarding parking rules and regulations in contravention of the by-law, following this warning.

Flagrant examples of traffic violations are to be seen daily, police claim, particularly in the congested business area, and many accidents have been narrowly averted.

Numerous complains have been received regarding the practice of certain motorists of leaving the curb or driving into a parking area without signalling their intention of so doing to other traffic. The bylaw states that motorists must signal their intention of pulling into the curb, or again when pulling out into the stream of other traffic. Penalties are provided for non-compliance with the law.

Another dangerous practice which appears to be gaining in popularity, is the habit some motorists have of leaving their vehicle standing outside the line of parked automobiles, while they run into a nearby store or office to transact business, and when they just cannot find a convenient parking place. "It has got to stop," stated an official of the Police Department to-day, "and car drivers must accept this warning that in future they will be required to find a proper parking place, or take the consequences."

Attention is also called to the fact that parking is forbidden at the points (plainly marked) which are set aside as bus stops. On numerous occasions lately, it is learned, cars have been parked in the areas reserved for the buses, particularly at Simcoe street and at Charlotte street.

Truck drivers are also warned that the backing up of trucks to the sidewalk on Charlotte and George streets while the delivery of goods is being made, will not be tolerated. It is a dangerous practice, and against the provisions of the traffic bylaw.

"There is no need for trucks backing to the curb on the main thoroughfares," police claim, "as most of the stores have laneways running at the rear."

"This is not a request. The bylaw provides penalties for infringment of any of these traffic regulations, and they are to be strictly enforced from now on,' 'police stated definitely.

FEARS DISASTER.

LONDON, May 12.—(A.P.)—Lord D'Abernon, who was the head of the British trade mission to Argentina last year, told the Anglo-German Club to-day that only joint international action could prevent even graver economic disasters to the world.

"Unless some measure of agreement is reached by the great commercial nations," he said, "and unless that agreement leads stabilization of the price level of primary commodities, I see for the economic world nothing but disaster."

Obituary

JEREMIAH MAHONEY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—Son of a pioneer family of Asphodel township in Peterborough county, Jeremiah Mahoney died at his home here this morning on Grand Road. He was born on January 8, 1847, in Asphodel, and for years worked here for the Rathbun Lumber Company. When the mill closed, Mr. Mahoney took up farming in Seymour township, and moved into Campbellford about twelve years ago. His father was Jeremiah Mahoney, who came out to Canada from the north of Ireland early in the last century and settled as one of the pioneers in Asphodel.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning to St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, where requiem mass will be celebrated by Rev. C. J. Phelan, and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery. The surviving members of the family are three sons in Seymour township, Jeremiah, Eugene and Gordon, also Leo of Rochester, Fred of Dakota and A. M. Mahoney of Gleichan, Alberta, and Mrs. Fred Collins of Seymour, Mrs. M. Burkhart of Rochester, Miss Lena Mahoney at home, and Sister Arenius of the Sisterhood of St. Joseph, Fort William. Mr. Mahoney is also survived by one brother, Michael of Toronto.

MRS. MARY THERESA HURLEY

When Mrs. Mary Hurley died this morning, the city lost another of the members of its Old Guard, that grand gathering of the senior mben and women who saw Peterborough in its early days and lived to grow old with its advancing years.

Mrs. Hurley was in her ninetieth year. She was born in Trenton, Ontario, on March 20th, 1843, and was the last surviving member of a large family of children of John Ford and Catherine Foy, who were of pioneer Canadian stock with their rootsprings in Ireland. Shortly after her last birthday, Mrs. Hurley became ill and gradually sank, until her release came this morning at nine o'clock.

She was well known throughout the city and district, building for herself through long years of an intense devotion to her church a reputation for sanctity that seemed to rest over her whitening head like a halo that increased as the months and years rolled by.

She had lived in Peterborough since 1884.

In Hastings, in 1863, her marriage to Timothy Hurley took place. The late Mr. Hurley, who died some years ago, kept store in the village, where eleven children were born. Eight are dead, several having lived to adult years, the Rev. Albert Hurley of Santa Maria, California, Mrs. Edward J. McCarthy and Miss Lillian Hurley of Peterborough. Also surviving are ten grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

In the years of her life in the city, numbering nearly half a century, Mrs. Hurley was one of the pillars of St. Peter's Cathedral, where she spent much of her time in prayer. Her devotion to the church, to its sacraments and especially to the patron of family life, St. Joseph, was constant and unwavering. At all times and in any weather, Mrs. Hurley might be seen in church, and no hour was too early for her attendance at the sacrifice of the Mass. She loved the music of the choir and took part in it as long as she could sing in her sweet treble voice, being content in later years to sit quietly in a corner of the choir gallery as her daughter played the organ. There she would quietly recite the rosary, especially in the month of May, devoted to services in honor of the Blessed Virgin, Mary.

Mrs. Hurley was charitable to a degree, although her left hand knew little about the deeds of mercy executed by the energetic right. She had a particular liking for assisting those who appeared to be devoid of help from other sources, and many a needy home, whether of her own creed or of another faith, was made happier by the quiet works of this good woman who grew old in mild and gentle fashion and who never faltered for an instant through ninety long years in devotion to her religion and to her duties as a Christian woman, a wife and a mother. Over the graves of such steadfast and true Christians may the green of remembrance spring with abiding vigor.

The funeral will take place at half past two o'clock on Sunday afternoon, from the late residence at 282 Hunter street west to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery.

Home Of Poetess Damaged By Fire

BRANTFORD, May 12.—(C.P.)—"[illegible]wood," home of the late Pauline Johnson, internationally famous Canadian Indian poetess, was threatened by fire last night when an overheated stovepipe gutted the rooms of the two storey frame dwelling with smoke. Damage was light.

The home, situated on the banks of the [illegible] among the sylvan glades where Pauline Johnson played with her brothers and sisters, and where she wrote her first poem, is now occupied by J. Dixon and family.

ESCORTED BY TWO ARMY PLANES.

LE BOURGET, France, May 12.—(C.P.)—The P[illegible] of Wales who attended President Doumer's funeral this morning took off for London in an airplane this afternoon. Two French army planes escorted his ship.

CARPET BOWLERS RECEIVE AWARDS

Fourth Annual Banquet is Held in All Saints' Parish Hall.

The fourth annual banquet of the City Carpetball League was held in the dining room of All Saints' Parish Hall last evening with an attendance of nearly one hundred and fifty, including the members and their wives. Three long tables ran the entire length of the hall and the head table across the front, at which were seated the president, C. H. Wiggins and Mrs. Wiggins, Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave, Rev. J. D. Paterson, Rev. J. L. Hughes, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, and Mr. A. Hope. The tables were artistically decorated with yellow-fluted crepe runners, silver baskets and vases holding yellow daffodils, and yellow candles in silver holders.

C. H. Wiggins presided, and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many at the banquet. He referred to the splendid season and growth of the club in the past four years. From a very small organization it has grown until now there are sixteen teams affiliated, with five on each team. All Saints' Church has three teams, St. John's two, St. Luke's one, St. George's two, St. Paul's one, Sons of England two, Knights of Pythias one, Woodmen of the World two, Foresters one, and Loyal Orange Lodge one. Miss Ena Young delighted the audience with two vocal solos, "Little Grey Home in the West" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," accompanied by Harry Northrop. A. Hope presented the Hope Cup to the league champions, a St. George's Church team skipped by Mr. Sims. Presentations of silver pitchers to the members of the team were made by Dr. Blagrave—Messrs. Sims, D. Leether, A. Thomas, Styles, and J. Price. Mr. Sims expressed thanks on behalf of the team. D. Leether, vice-skip, expressed the appreciation of St. George's Club for the help and kindness of C. H. Wiggins, and presented him with a fine rug.

Musical selections which received much applause were rendered by Frank Clarke and T. Curvin.

The presentation of the second prizes, which were pyrex pie plates in silver frames, was made by Rev. J. D. Paterson to the Ancient Order of Foresters team skipped by J. S. Mason, with W. Johnson, C. J. McDermott, E. Bradshaw, and A. Price completing the rink. This was replied to by J. S. Mason. Miss Margaret Wyllie rendered two appreciated readings, "Katie" and "The Feller My Mother Thinks I Am." Rev. Mr. Hughes made the presentation of the third prizes — silver cream and sugar dishes to the members of All Saints' team No. 3, with the following personnel: S. Wosencroft (skip), R. Page, W. Stevens, and —. Bleasdell, with reply by Mr. Wosencroft. Harry Northrop rendered two pleasing piano numbers. The presentation of fourth prizes, pretty silver baskets, was made by Dr. A. T. Barr to a team from the Sons of England, with the following members: F. Parsons, (skip), R. Wright, R. Runnett, and Fred Land, and a pen and pencil set to the mascot, John Dowson, with the reply by F. Parsons. Miss Mignon Mayneord received enthusiastic applause for two whistling numbers.

A hearty vote of thanks to the artists taking part in the program and to the ladies of All Saints' Club who had served such a bountiful dinner was voiced by Mr. Cuff and replied to by Mrs. Elliotson, who was general convenor, assisted by her committee, Mrs. C. Curtis, Mrs. E. W. Fisher, and a number of efficient helpers.

TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY TIN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS DATED THE DAY YOUR GROCER RECEIVES IT

Roasted and packed in Canada.

It isn't fresh unless it's fresh from the roasting ovens

Only Swift Delivery will guarantee true coffee freshness

You can't keep coffee freshness!

It goes—just as the freshness of milk or butter goes. And when coffee freshness is gone—the fine flavor is gone, too.

This is because coffee is a perishable food. Every pound of coffee contains about half a cup of delicate oil. Fresh, this oil carries a delicious flavor and aroma. But stale, the oil becomes rancid and toxic, and the flavor is spoiled.

Rancid oil in coffee can even cause headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion.

SO, TO GUARANTEE you really fresh coffee—coffee at the peak of its flavor—Chase & Sanborn are now sending you their coffee by fast "fresh-food" delivery. Swift trucks rush it straight from the roasting ovens to the grocers... It's the same Dominion-wide service that delivers fresh Fleischmann's Yeast.

Every tin is stamped with the delivery date. You can't buy a tin of this dated coffee that has been on your grocer's shelf more than 10 days.

Get a tin of Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee today. Enjoy the matchless flavor that has made it Canada's favorite coffee for over 50 years. Packed in half-pound and one-pound tins.

So that you may get it always fresh, Chase & Sanborn's is rushed to your grocer straight from the roasting ovens by swift "fresh-food" delivery.

Coffee is perishable, just like butter. If you want coffee of rich, delicious flavor—you must make sure it is fresh from the roasting ovens.

The guarantee that assures you fresh

delicious corn flakes

FOR 25 years Kellogg's Corn Flakes have been considered the standard of quality—the highest value possible to put into corn flakes. Behind every package is the personal guarantee of W. K. Kellogg:

"You must be more than satisfied with the flavor and freshness of Kellogg's Corn Flakes. If you do not consider them the best you ever tasted, return the empty package and we will refund your money."

No other corn flakes are made like Kellogg's. No others reach you so fresh and crisp. For Kellogg's have a WAXTITE inside bag that is sealed top and bottom. It guarantees oven-freshness!

Look for the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

BIRD HOMERS FAIL TO STOP MONTREAL CLUB

Royals Register Twelfth Straight Win in Tussle With Baltimore.

GAMES POSTPONED.

Packard and Arlett Each Collect Circuits in Montreal Tangle.

(By The Associated Press)

Although there have been no audible complaints from the magnates so far, the International League clubs had been taking a rough pushing around from the weather since they moved into the northern section of the circuit te ndays ago.

Since the opening in the north on May 3, a total of 36 games were scheduled and 14 remain to be played off at future dates. There was a 15th postponement, but Newark and Toronto managed to squeeze in a doubleheader and get one game played off.

Of the home clubs, Toronto has suffered the worst blows in the region of the pocketbook from the recent siege of cold and rainy weather. The Leafs have succeeded in playing only three games at home so far,- including the twin bill with Newark, and their Saturday doubleheader, which figures to make up in part for the lack of Sunday baseball in Toronto, was song those rained out.

The other clubs, except Montreal and Jersey City, have suffered about equally. The Skeeters have managed to play eight of their nine scheduled games so far while Montreal, without a postponement at home, can report important progress in all departments.

Win Nine Home Games

Coming home with a winning streak just getting under way, the Royals have won all of their nine home games to make it ad ozen in a row without a defeat. Not only have they advanced in the standing to second place but the attendance has reflected their improvement with crowds of around 10,000 turning out regularly.

After cleaning up against the lowest ranking club of the league, Jersey City and Reading, the Royals turned in a somewhat more important victory yesterday when they defeated the Baltimore Orioles 9-5. The triumph placed Montreal only one game behind the league leading Newark Bears and shoved the Birds, rated as outstanding contenders, down into fourth place a half game behind Buffalo.

Hold Birds to 7 Hits

The Montreal pitchers gave only seven hits and Baltimore had to fall back on its favorite home run system to get any runs. Homers by Frank Packard and Buzz Arlett accounted for all the Oriole tallies. The Royals lambasted Jim Chaplin for four runs in the first inning and kept hitting all the way. Gowell Claset was credited with the victory although a streak of wildness forced him out in the sixth inning.

For the second successive day all the other clubs were kept idle by rain and wet grounds, three games being postponed.

THEY CALL IT SPORT!

Spain is the only nation in the world where bullfighting is still regarded as a sport. It is officially tagged "Tauromaquia," and about 1,500 horses and 6,500 bulls are killed annually.

M. Goulette, French airman, will attempt to lower the England-Cape Town flight record of four days, 17 hours, 19 minutes, made this year by J. A. Mollison.

FANS DISAPPROVE WHEN HAMAS WINS

Philadelphia Crowd Boos Decision Against Tommy Loughran.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Young Steve Hamas whipped Tommy Loughram again last night, this time by the unpopular ten-round decision, but the Philadelphia heavyweight fought a smart and courageous battle.

The ringside consensus was that the Penn State Collegian from Passiac, N.Y., took at least five rounds by decisive margins. Loughram was credited with the third and tenth, and the fourth, fifth and ninth were scored as even.

Fourteen thousand spectators who jammed the Municipal Convention Hall, the largest crowd ever to see an indoor boxing show here, voiced disapproval at the verdict, however, and the two judges were divided. Referee Tommy Reilly, who officiated at the first Dempsey-Tunney battle in 1926, decided it for Hamas.

UNITED STATES HAS NOT WON OLYMPIC RING TITLE IN YEARS

And only a Total of Four Championships Since 1904.

WINNERS AT ST. LOUIS

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, May 12.—Thirty-two of the youthful gladiators who competed in the U.S. national amateur championships at Madison Square Garden last week are eligible to the Olympics in Los Angeles in the late summer. That is to say, they are eligible to the boxing.

You may be somewhat surprised to learn that these United States of America haven't won a title in Olympic boxing in eight years. We used to pride ourselves on leading the world in the dear old manly art, but the foreigners have caught up with us. We have captured just two world's amateur titles since 1920, and a total of four since 1904 when we grabbed 'em all.

Fidel LaBarba, flyweight, and Jackie Fields, lightweight, were our last Olympic champions. They won in 1924, in Paris. In 1904, in St. Louis, the last time the Olympic games were held in this country, the United States scored a clean sweep in boxing, which was then comparatively new to the games. Sixteen years later, in 1920, Frankie Genaro won the flyweight title in the Olympics at Antwerp, and Sam Mossberg won the lightweight title. Eddie Eagan, 1904 winner, again won the light heavyweight crown. This was the year that Bert Schneider of Montreal won the welter championship for Canada.

Quebec has a plethora of amateur boxers of more than average ability. In Harold Stewart they have one of the best lightweights in Canada, a boy who made the Olympic team in 1928, but was prevented from competing owing to a "cauliflower" ear sustained in training. Stewart has made splendid showings in several bouts in New York, as has also Johnny Kellar, another outstanding prospect from Montreal. Kellar is also a lightweight. Then there is Bobby Martin, a promising flyweight and Larry Phillips, a featherweight, both of whom are likely champions.

Eastern Team Clever

Ontario has several potential champions who are expected to extend all-comers. In the flyweight division, Horace "Lefty" Gwynne and Tony Canzano, both of Toronto, are clever battlers who should give all and sundry a real battle for the honors. In the featherweight division is Ray Cook, a hard-hitting boxer who gives promise of developing into a real champion. Cook was unable to compete in the Ontario championship tourney owing to an infected ear, but he is all O. K. again and should land near the top of the heap.

In the lightweight division, Frankie Genovese is expected to land the prize, although Stewart and Kellar of Montreal will prove worthy foemen. Genovese has had plenty of experience this past season and in the many bouts he has competed in he has never failed to create a good impression.

Howard Williams of Kirkland Lake, was most impressive in the Ontario championship competition. He is a stiff puncher and is a fair boxer. He has had the benefit of good coaching and should make a most creditable showing.

Wrestlers There Too

And then there are wrestlers. Canada has several outstanding matmen and with the experience gained since last Olympics they should win points for the Dominion at Los Angeles. Quebec has several grapplers who are stars of the greatest magnitude. Letchford and Stockton will undoubtedly seek places on the team, while from Ontario Jimmy Allen, Danny McDonald and several others are in steady training and keen to do their bit in gaining points for the Canadian team.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Philadelphia.—Steve Hamas, Passaic,N.J., outpointed Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia (10).

Oakland, Cal.—Max Baer, Livermore, Cal., won a technical knockout over Walter Cobb, Hutchinson, Kas. (4).

San Francisco.—Wesley Ketchell, Salt Lake City, knocked out Jack Gibbs, Tulsa, Okla. (1). Joe Coffman, Buffalo, N.Y., won a technical knockout over Sailor Jordan, U. S. Navy (6).

PLAYBOY DAYS FINISHED FOR FORMER CHAMP

Frenchy Belanger, Former World's Flyweight Champion Hits Comeback Trail.

AS A BANTAMWEIGHT

TORONTO, May 12 (Special to The Examiner)—The playboy of boxing is coming back.

Frenchy Belanger, former flyweight champion of the world, after a few years of playing around the bright lights, is ready to come back, this time as a bantamweight.

The little French-Canadian, once heralded as one of the most spectacular figures in the ring, has been up in the north country for the past six months working on the Trans-Canada highway. He has returned much heavier—this time with real muscle, and in better condition than at any time in his short career as a boxer.

Frenchy's rise and fall has many parallels in ring history. Battling Siki, once a great battler, fell for the lure of wine, women and song, and eventually ended up in a back lane with a knife in his back. Jimmy Slattery, now a motorcycle cop in Buffalo, was only a few years ago an outstanding ring character, but high living ruined his fortune.

With Frenchy it was the same story. Easy money, soft living. His decline was rapid, and he became involved in a roadhouse fracas. After that he faded right out of the picture, and headed north, determined to make a comeback. Now he is back in the gym in Toronto, working out every day, and already signed for his first bout in a few weeks. It will be a long tough grind, but Frenchy deserves credit for sticking.

Davis Cup Matches Enter Second Round

TORONTO, May 12.—Play on an international tennis front yesterday had brought the European and North American zones of Davis Cup competition to the second round.

The victory of Italy over Egypt completed the first round of European play yesterday, as the United States, Mexico, Australia and Cuba finished preparations for the start of their second round ties in the North American zone. The United States will meet the Central American Republic at New Orleans, and Australia will clash with Cuba at Havana.

The only surprise in European play was the defeat of Czechoslovakia by Austria. The Czechs, with the same team, were zone finalists against Great Britain last year.

High import duelies have been placed on alcoholic toilet preparations by the Union of South Africa.

1932 SOFTBALL RULES

A few of the softball umpires' rules and rights might be outlined again for the benefit of both umpires and players. Fans also should consider the manifold decisions and rulings which fall upon the arbiter, and knowing that no man is invincible, be less harsh when some of his decision appear incorrect.

The Umpire-in-Chief is in charge of the game and takes his position back of the catcher. If there is only one umpire at a game, he may take his position any place on the field that he chooses. Besides balls and strikes, the umpire-in-chief shall render base decisions in the following instances: 1, if the ball is hit fair, with a runner on first, he must go to third to take a possible decision; 2, with more than one base occupied, he shall, on appeal, decide whether or not a runner on third leaves that base before a fly ball is caught; 3, in case of a runner being caught between third and home, when more than one base is occupied, he shall make the decision on the runner nearest home plate; 4, the umpire-in-chief alone shall have authority to declare a game forfeited.

The base umpire shall take such positions on the field as are in his judgment best suited for rendering of base decisions. He shall make all decisions at first and second bases, and at third except those to be made by the umpire-in-chief. He shall have equal authority with the umpire-in-chief in the calling of balks on the pitcher and in enforcing the rules prohibiting use of foreign substances on the ball and "freak" deliveries. He shall aid the umpire-in-chief in every way, and shall have equal authority in removing from the game players who violate the rules.

There shall be no appeal from any decision made by either umpire, based on their accuracy of judgment, and no decision shall be reversed except the umpire is convinced that it is in violation of one of the rules of the game. Only the manager or captain of a team has the right to protest against a decision. Under no circumstance, shall either umpire criticise or interfere with a decision unless asked to do so by his associate.

The umpire cannot be changed during a championship game by the consent of the contesting clubs unless the official in charge of the field be incapacitated from service by injury or illness. In all cases of violation of the rules by player, coach or manager, the penalty shall be prompt removal of the offender from the game and grounds, followed by a period of such suspension from actual service in the club as the president of such association may fix. If the offender fails to leave the grounds when so ordered, the umpire-in-chief may forfeit the game. The umpire must notify the league president within twelve hours of the removal of a player from the game for breaking a playing rule.

A manager or captain who fails to notify the umpire when one player is substituted for another may be removed from the game, and any player or coach who fails to be seated on his bench within one minute after ordered to do so. The umpire may clear the bench of players, after a warning, if they show disapproval by yelling or making insulting remarks.

The umpire shall ascertain from the home manager of any special ground rules, and he shall so advise the opposing manager and the spectators. If the opposing manager objects, it rests with the umpire whether such rule shall be enforced. In case of play being suspended for rain or darkness, the umpire may terminate the game at the end of thirty minutes after the suspension starts. "Time" shall not be called until a play being made at the time is completed.

In case of a crowd overrunning the field during a game, the home team is responsible for its clearance, and at the end of fifteen minutes, if it is not cleared, the visiting team may claim the game by forfeit, and the umpire must award it to them by a score of nine runs to nothing, no matter what number of innings has been played.

BOX LACROSSE NOW INCLUDES ALL CANADA SAVE MARITIMES

Old Twelve-Man Game Becomes Obsolete Before Curtailed "Aussie" Game.

SPEEDIER THAN HOCKEY

By LEN SMITH

TORONTO, May 12 (Special to The Examiner) — Tuesday night professional indoor lacrosse, the new game which has taken all Canada by storm, made its debut in Madison Square Garden, sports centre of New York. The game brought together the Montreal Canadiens and the Toronto Maple Leafs. Sports writers in the big town have been playing up the game as one of the season's features, calling it "the fastest game on two feet."

It is apparent that it will not be long before the game takes a hold across the border.

The rapidity with which indoor lacrosse has spread across the Dominion is marvellous. The amateurs started last the ball rolling in Toronto last fall after the professionals displayed the possibilities of the new-fangled game, and it was not long before thirty or forty hamlets throughout Ontario caught the fever and had their old-time players digging the playing togs out of the mothballs. As the season grew older newer centres got into the swim and when the cease firing signal sounded in late December it is estimated that nearly 75 teams had tried their hand at box lacrosse, with more rarn' to go with the return of spring.

What About Maritimes?

The idea rapidly spread westward with Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia catching the fever. Followed the adoption of box lacrosse by the C.A.L.A. in the settlement of Dominion honors during 1932. Recently the Ottawa valley and sections of Quebec have announced their intention of entering the box lacrosse arena, and it only remains for the Maritimes, who, in the past, have not fostered the great summer pastime, to swing into line to make the sport Canadawide.

It is claimed that box lacrosse is speedier than hockey, due to the speed and accuracy with which the ball may be passed from one player to another with the attacking divisions making more direct onslaught on the defenders' citadel. Add to this the bodily contact resulting in numerous spills through the players clashing at high speed, much to the delight of the spectators. Better combination is possible in lacrosse than in hockey, and there is no finer sight than the three-man attack with their rapid-fire combination boring in for goals. With clean play predominating, there is a great future for box lacrosse.

POISONED BY CARBON-MONOXIDE

AURORA, Ont., May 11 (C.P.) — With his hand stretched forward, evidently in a vain attempt to cut the ignition of the automobile he was trying to repair, Harry J. Root, 22, was found dead in a garage here. Victor Blockin, local businessman, had engaged Root to repair the automobile. Death was due to carbon-monoxide poisoning.

GLENNA COLLETT MAKES SIXTH TRY

United States Team Captain Has Tried Vainly Five Times —Lands on British Soil.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., May 12 (Special to The Examiner) — The contingent of United States women golfers, headed by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former Canadian champion and including Miss Maureen Orcutt, present Canadian titleholder, is on English soil this week, limbering up for the forthcoming British championship. For most of the team the trip is a delightful excursion, but to Glenna it is the sixth of a series of fruitless crusades.

A long, long time ago Glenna Collett set her heart on being the first American girl to win the British title. Five times she went over and each time she was turned back, three times by the skilful playing of her adversaries, once because she did not wear warm enough clothes and almost froze to death in the biting chill of British channel weather, and one because she was marooned in London by a great railway strike as the title play got under way in Scotland.

In 1930, only the famed ability of Joyce Wethered, rated the greatest woman golfer of all time, halted Glenna. Still undaunted, Glenna tries again.

The first talk from the British Broadcasting Corporation's new headqaurters in London was on cooking.

Cardinal Southpaw Equals Record for Wild Pitches as Dodgers Win 6-3.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Yankees no longer are getting the flamboyant batting that had opposing clubs hanging on the ropes the first fortnight of the campaign, but their pitching suddenly has become a thing of beauty.

In scoring four straight victories over Detroit and St. Louis and setting sail after the flying Washington Senators, Joe McCarthy's curvers have more than atoned for a marked falling off in the club's attack.

In four games the quartette of George Pipgras, Charley Ruffing, Vernon Gomez and Young Johnny Allen has allowed only four runs, two of which would have been averted by snappier support. Pipgras and Allen have registered shutouts. And less than a week ago rival managers were saying the Yanks would be very difficult to handle if they had a pitching staff.

Allen, the rookie from Toronto who barely was hanging on until he bobbed up with a great job of relief twirling last week, won himself a starting berth yesterday when he set the Browns down, 3-0, on five scattered hits. He did not allow a runner past second base.

Sam Gray offered allen some real competition for seven innings, yielding but five hits and one unearned run, but the Yankees hopped on Chad Kimsey for three hits and two runs in the eighth.

The victory enabled the Yankees to narrow the gap between them and the leading Senators to two games. All the other American League teams were weatherbound at Washington, Philadelphia and Boston.

Dodgers Beat Cards 6-3

The Brooklyn Dodgers traveled 12 innings to beat out St. Louis, 6-3, and break a four-game losing streak. Their three runs in the 12th were strictly a gift, the compliments of wild Bill Hallahan. In that eventful frame the Cardinal southpaw uncorked three wild pitches, tying the major record for that specialty, passed one man and allowed three hits.

Up to that time, the late world series hero had held his own against Brooklyn tossers, giving up eight hits and striking out a dozen. Jimmy Collins enabled the Cards to carry the fight into extra innings when he smacked his eighth home run in the fourth with Watkins on base.

Reds Win Second Game

Cincinnati fans enjoyed a large afternoon as their Reds made it two out of three over the Phillies, 4-1. Not only did Red Lucas hold the Phils to five hits and his battery mate, Ernie Lombardi, led an assault on two visiting moundsmen, but there were fisticuffs in the bargain.

Leo Durocher, displeased when he was tagged out stealing second, planted a right on the jaw of Dick Bartwell, Phil shortstop. Bartell went down and Durocher went out. Wind and rain caused postponements at Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Baseball Schedule

NORTHUMBELAND LEAGUE.

COBOURG, May 12.— The East Northumberland Baseball League this season will be composed of Grafton, Colborne, Warkworth and Brighton teams. It is probable that this league will affiliate with the O.B.A.A. although this has not yet been definitely decided. A double schedule will be played and the winners will play off for the Dowson cup: The games are to be played on Wednesday afternoon, and the league will open on May 24. The first half of the schedule is as follows:

May 24— Grafton at Colborne; Warkworth at Brighton.

June 1—Colborne at Warkworth; Brighton at Grafton.

June 8— Brighton at Colborne; Warkworth at Grafton.

June 15—Colborne at Brighton; Grafton at Warkworth.

June 22— Warkworth at Colborne; Grafton at Brighton.

June 29— Colborne at Grafton; Brighton at Warkworth.

The officers of the East Northumberland League are: Honorary Presidents, F. J. McArthur, M.P.P., W. A. Fraser, M.P., R. B. Downson, donor of the cup; President, Captain A. G. Willoughby, Colborne; First Vice-President, W. J. Rees, Brighton; Second Vice-President, Corey Zufelt, Warkworth; Secretary-Treasurer, R. M. Stutt, Grafton.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE

MARMORA, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — Reorganization of the Trent Valley Baseball League was completed at a representative and enthusiastic meeting held at the Royal Hotel, Marmora, on Wednesday evening. R. A. Elliott of Deloro presided at the meeting, and A. V. Yates of the same village and a former secretary of the league, acted as secretary pro tem.

Representatives were present from Madoc, Deloro, Havelock and Hastings. Attention was first given to the constitution of last year's Trent Valley League, and this was eventually adopted.

The election of officers which followed, resulted as follows: President, P. Yuill, Havelock; vice-president, P. C. Gunn, Madoc; secretary-treasurer, W. M. Regan, Deloro; executive, G. Kennedy and F. McLaughlin, Havelock; S. Stevenson and C. Gillespie, Havelock; V. Jack, Madoc, and another member to be appointed by Deloro.

It was decided to use home and home umpires for games prior to the play-offs, and also that the American League Ball, the Reach, be used.

The following schedule was then approved of:—

June 3—Deloro at Madoc.
Havelock at Hastings.
June 8—Hastings at Deloro.
Madoc at Havelock.
June 15—Hastings at Madoc.
Havelock at Deloro.
June 22—Hastings at Havelock.
Madoc at Deloro.
June 29—Madoc at Hastings.
Deloro at Havelock.
July 1—Hastings at Deloro.
Madoc at Havelock.
July 6—Deloro at Hastings.
Havelock at Madoc.
July 13—Madoc at Deloro.
Havelock at Hastings.
July 20—Deloro at Havelock.
Hastings at Madoc.
July 27—Havelock at Deloro.
Madoc at Hastings.
Aug. 3—Hastings at Havelock.
Deloro at Madoc.
Aug. 10—Deloro at Madoc.
Havelock at Madoc.

First and second teams to play off on August 13, 16 and 19. Winner to take part in the O.B.A.A. play-offs.

VERSATILE COACH

Al Piorotti, heavyweight wrestler, is an instructor at Revere, Mass., junior high school, teaching science and physical culture. He also played with the Boston Braves baseball team at one time.

At Rouen, France, dock construction, provided by law in 1913, is to be completed at once.

GIPSY HOME BURNED IN HOMAGE.

In compliance with an ancient gipsy custom the caravan and all the earthly possessions of Lavinia Bowers, head of an encampment on Botany Bay Common, Sholing, England were burned, following her death at the age of 75. The Bowers family established the colony about 100 years ago. As the flames consumed the yellow caravan on red wheels, five sons and one daughter looked on. Three feather beds, a brass stove, ornaments, and all the dead woman's clothing were included in the holocaust Frederick Bowers, the eldest son, said: "It was my mother's last wish."

BRIGHT PROSPECTS SEEN FOR CANADIAN OLYMPIC BOXING, WRESTLING TEAM

Mit and Mat Men Start Trials in Toronto This Evening.

TORONTO, May 12.—What are Canada's chances at the forthcoming Olympic games?

Whenever this question is raised sport fans throughout the Dominion immediately refer to Percy Williams, his two sensational victories of four years ago at Amsterdam and his subsequent injuries and probable comeback. Then they go into a huddle and come out wagging their heads and say that Canada has no Olympic prospects.

However, Canada's chances in Olympic competition is not now and never has been restricted absolutely to the track and field performers of the Dominion. In fact there are some people in Canada who confuse Olympic games with the idea that the games are nothing more than a track and field meet on a large scale. Such is not the case and never has been.

Canada has won points before and first places in Olympic competition in events other than track and field. For evidence witness the victories of Bert Schneider of Montreal in boxing, and George Hodgson, also of Montreal in swimming.

In boxing competitions despite the fact that the Canadian mittmen are not trained as European boxers are trained, the wearers of the Maple Leaf have always given a fine account of themselves and this year should be no exception to the rule.

Scientific Boxers

We in Canada do not produce the slugging, infighting type of boxer that is encouraged in other parts of the world, but lean more to the scientific type. Boxing, always referred to as the "manly art of self-defense" is taught in Canada and perhaps more attention has been given by instructors to the defense than to the attack. Our boxers have always won the admiration of sport fans for their cleverness, but have lost points on their inability to been . zm6 D .. .. hand out punishment, although several have been produced who could give a fine displa yin this department as well.

At the last Olympic games two Canadian boxers gave exceptional displays and went a long way in the competition. Ray Smillie and Don Carrick both appeared equally as brilliant exponents of boxing as did the winners in their respective classes, in fact it appeared for a while as if both would go through to the finals. It is questionable if Canada ever sent two better competitors or two finer sportsmen to the Olympic games.

Now for this year and our prospects for a boxing team.

Trials To-night

As is usual, Quebec and Ontario will be depended upon to supply the majority for the trials which will be held in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, to-night and to-morrow night. Eight classes in all will be contested from flyweight to heavyweight and keen competition is expected in all classes.

Already entries have been received from British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, while Quebec and Ontario will also be represented by a large contingent. From Manitoba come several contenders who will give the easterners a battle. They have Arni Johanneson, a Canadian featherweight champion, Paul Fredrickson in the lightweight division, Bill Puchniak, middleweight, Bill Bagley, light-heavy and heavyweight champion of Manitoba and Emmanuel Battaglia, who though defeated in the provincial trials is still their outstanding prospect in the bantam class.

One of the first entries to be received for the tournament was that of Howard Jones of Vancouver. Jones is at present attending Cornell University, and is expected to make a fine showing at the trials. He weighs about 152 lbs. and has not announced whether he will compete in the welterweight or middleweight class.

Westerners Strong

From Swift Current, Saskatchewan, comes Joe Draper, a welterweight with Olympic aspirations. Draper is one of the best mittmen in Saskatchewan and is counted upon to extend the welterweights seeking to represent Canada at Los Angeles. Another Westerner with similar aspirations is C. O. Katzberg, who hails from Grande Prairie of Alberta. Katzberg has seen action in Dominion championship competition before, finishing second in the light heavyweight class at the last championship meet held in Winnipeg. He has been in training for some time and at present believes he can triumph over any other amateur.

Conacher Suspended

QUEBEC, May 11.—(CP)—Lionel Conacher, Toronto, rated Canada's most versatile athlete, last night was suspended for three months by the Quebec City Athletic Commission for failing to appear for a scheduled wrestling bout here.

Conacher was to have wrestled George Link, an Australian.

MARVEL OFFERS $1,000 BONUS

For Opponent Who Can Throw Him and Remove Mask From His Face.

KASKEY MEANS BUSINESS.

Abe Kashey, Armenian heavyweight wrestling champion, has a chance to earn an additional thousand dollars in his bout against the mysterious Masked Marvel who will be his opponent in the feature of the Toronto Queensbury Club's wrestling show at the Brock Street Rink to-morow night.

So much confidence has the Marvel in his own ability to defeat all comers that he has a standing offer of five hundred dollars to be forfeited to any man who can beat him and an additional five hundred dollars to go to any wrestler who can remove his mask which is really a tight fitting cap fitting his whole head and going down as far as his neck, with openings for his eyes, mouth and nose.

Wants Return Match.

The Marvel made these offers primarily to aid him in his campaign to force Jim Londos to meet him in a match for the world's heavyweight championship. He finally achieved his purpose but the referee disqualified him for alleged use of the stranglehold, and a crowd of twenty thousand in staid old Boston booed the decision. Now the Mysterious One is trying to get a return match with the champion and he continues to offer the bonuses for any who can either beat him or unmask him.

Kashey thinks he has a chance for that thousand dollars but it will be a task of throwing his unknown opponent upon which he will concentrate. His contention is that the others have failed because they spent too much time trying to remove the mask and consequently became careless and left openings of which The Marvel was quick to take advantage.

The supporting card is a splendid one with "Babe" Caddock meeting Adolpho Marwchioni in the semi-final and Frankie Hart opposing Arthur Dick in the opening bout and naturally the show is arousing considerable interest among the sport fans of Peterborough and district.

CASUAL COMMENT

With the professional wrestling show here tomorrow night, this should be an appropriate time to say a few things about the game. Still, game is hardly the word—business is more like it. That's what rasslin' is these days, a business and a darned profitable one too. In this time of depression in everything, the beefy matmen toss each other around with merry abandon and rake in the shekels with both mitts.

• • • • • • •

That's the reason they are doing so well, and also the reason why topnotchers may be seen in towns this size. They are not like the pro pugs, demanding huge gates every three or four months. No, these grapplers are businessmen. They do their stuff once or twice a week in all-sized towns for big and little purses, and lo, no wolf ever comes yapping around their doorstep!

• • • • • • •

Being professional athletes, they have no other work. And, while they want big bouts in Toronto, New York, Detroit and such burgs, still it's better to go on in a small town for a small purse than pay out their good dough keeping in shape in gymnasiums. Those wrestlers never bother with gyms. Their conditioning is kept right up in rings with cash customers looking on.

• • • • • • •

Another point attesting to the business acumen of the grunt-and-groaners: They put on a real show wherever they are, and can always come back. While it is true wrestling is something of a racket, still those huskies earn their coin and sure hurt each other while earning it. An experienced grappler can fake a lot, but when his arm or leg is turned white from pressure on it, or he shows bruise or cut marks, or when he's thrown from over the head and the other gentle playmate jumps on him with both feet; well, we'll stick to the skinny pay-envelope and the more or less harmless typewriter!

• • • • • • •

A general meeting of the City Baseball League will be held at 7.30 to-night at Duffus', and officers, managers, prospective managers, and anyone else interested are urged to attend. A bunch of entries in this loop is needed, one more bantam team, two or three juveniles, and as many juniors. The schedule opens on May 24.

• • • • • • •

Teams in now are: Foster Juniors, Maple Leaf Juveniles, and three bantams, Ralph's, All Saints', and Rotary. What about Kiwanis, Kinsmen, and some of the schools? For some reason, the City League is always late getting organized, the entries lagging till the last minute. Last year there was a fine bantam section of four good teams, three juveniles, but only two juniors. We should have more in the last two divisions this year.

• • • • • • •

Some eight years ago Peterborough had a fine City loop. Such managers as Lou LeBarr, Charlie Curtis, Alex Kay, and others made it worth seeing for the fans, and a real training grounds for the players. Most of the best players at present in the city learned the game there. The present senior club executive has signified its intention of taking an active interest this year in the league, and that's a break for the future diamond stars. The meeting to-night ought to be well attended.

• • • • • • •

The Petes visit Cobourg on May 24 to open the C.O.B.L., the game being played on the improved diamond at Horse Show Park. The Cobourg outfit, like the Petes, has not altogether lined up yet, but Hoot Gibson and Toby Ivey are expected to do most of the hurling. Bob Chalk will catch, and some of the other regulars will be Dodge, Phillips, Walden, and Holman.

• • • • • • •

Let's see—not since '27 has the Art Johnston C.O.B.L. Trophy come to Peterborough, and before that it was 1920. That's not so good, only twice since it was donated in '19 by a Peterborough man. Belleville copped it seven times, Kingston three times, the Petes twice, and Oshawa once. Well this would be a good year to put the snatch on it.

• • • • • • •

The local Lacrosse Club has been offered a fine silver cup by Colonel E. A. Oliver of Toronto and other officers of the old 38th Battalion, C.E.F. It is to be known as the Captain Harold Hill Memorial Trophy, in memory of the young Peterborough officer who was killed at Vimy Ridge. It is a touching tribute, and will probably be put up by the Lacrosse Club for competition in the district.

PRINCE OF WALES WINS 6-4 VICTORY

Losers Get Two Doube Sackers for Ony Extra Hits of Contest.

Playing a postponed School League game last night, Prince of Wales copped a 6-4 win over Queen Mary team. It was a close, exciting fixture, and was not till the late innings that the southenders sailed it away.

There was no score in the first, nor did the victors get a run until the fifth. In the second the Queensters crossed once and they tallied two in the second. Prince of Wales broke through for a brace of markers in the fifth, and galloped across with three more in the sixth as Clark weakened. Both outfits pushed one over in the seventh.

The fielding for both sides was fair, but a little off at times. The losers connected for a pair of two-baggers for the only extra-base blows of the contest. Clark went good most of the way, but McIlmoyle, of the Wales' team, had an edge on the hurling honors.

The Teams

Prince of Wales—McIlmoyle, p; Scholey, 1b; Johnson, cf; Jay, c; Platt, 2b; Lucas, lf; Williams, ss; Chambers, rf; Webb, 3b.

ORIOLES WIN LEAGUE OPENER

Birds Defeat Lockworks Crew By 15 to 4 Count in South-end loop.

NATIONALS WIN 2-1.

The Orioles and Lockworks pried the lid off the Southend Softball League Monday night, the Orioles finally emerging victors by the score of 15 to 11. A good crowd was on hand and both teams played good ball, despite the cold weather.

The Orioles had little difficulty in clouting the offerings of Walker, the Lockworks' pitcher. He was finally yanked in favor of Westbrooke, who pitched good ball for the rest of the game. Elliot, the Orioles' hurler, pitched steady ball and was given good support.

NATIONALS WIN 2-1

The Nationals won their opening games Wednesday from the Shamrocks in a nip-and-tuck affair that had the fans on their toes until the last man was out. Abbott for the Nationals and Chrisdall of the Shamrocks pitched splendid ball, allowing but two hits each and were given airtight support by their teammates.

The Nationals countered in the first on a walk and two errors, and added another run in the third inning on a double by Copping, scoring Kitchen, who had received a walk. The Shamrocks finally scored their only tally in the fifth frame on a walk and two singles. This ended the scoring and the game ended: Nationals 2; Shamrocks 1.

C.G.I.T. Girls Hold Final Indoor Meet

George Street Canadian Girls in Training held their last indoor meeting for the season on Tuesday, May 10. At 5.30 the bowling alleys at the Y.M.C.A. were alive with the enthusiasm and interest of 25 girls. At 6 30 in the C.G.I.T. rooms of the Sunday School forty hungry folks enjoyed the pot-luck supper which was made merry by the singing of camp songs. After a half-hour of games the meeting was called to order by the leader of the department in the absence of the president. The secretary's report was read. During the course of the meeting Aeriol Wildman was Provincial Camp at Georgian Bay, chosen as the girl to be sent to Margaret Skitch announced the Girl's Council meeting for Wednesday evening. After a vote of thanks was moved to all those who had helped to make this term and especially the last meeting a success, a few words were spoken to the girls by two of the leaders.

After repeating the C.G.I.T. purpose, the meeting closed with the singing of taps. The officers of the department are: Leader, Vera Squire; president, Olive Rowe; secretary, Loretta MacDougall; treasurer, Aeriol Wildman; pianist, Helen McGee; group leaders, — Amacita, Ethel Mills, Helpers, Nellie Douglas; Les Autres, Eva Outram.

McMILLEN WINS OVER GARIBALDI

Toss From Ring Ends Main Match in Maple Leaf Garden Show.

ZAHARIAS ALSO WINNER.

ORONTO, May 12.—If there is such a thing in wrestling as spite, revenge, or getting even then Jim McMillen did all that to Gino Garibaldi in the main bout of the grappling show at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night. A year ago Garibaldi hurled McMillen out of the ring and into a hospital for several months with a broken shoulder. Last night they met again in the same ring and McMillen did the throwing, tossing Garibaldi over the ropes to the Garden floor, and the Italian was carried to his dressing room feet first on the shoulders of three attendants.

Garibaldi had taken the first fall of the three-fall match in 26 minutes and seemed on the way to victory in the second round when he was somersaulted out of the ring over the top strand. The fall apparently knocked the Italian out for he lay on the floor, long after the count of ten and was wobbly when he returned for the third round. McMillen's winning heave came in 16 minutes of the second round and it only took him 28 seconds to end the match on the rubber session.

Either the commission doctors erred in allowing Garibaldi to return to the ring or he was putting on a super act of a half-dead man. He wobbled across the carpet from one corner to another, unrobed in a most pitiful manner and attempted to carry on although half doubled up. McMillen only had to go through the motions to pick him up and then drop him. As a grand finish Garibaldi took a punch at McMillen when the match was all over.

George Zaharias Wins

The final bout added a thrill touch to a good show, that kept a crowd of about 7,000 interested all the time. The semi-final resulted in George Zaharias regaining all his old laurels as a villain when he kicked Jim Maloney in the stomach and then proceeded to slam him for a fall. The Celt was far in the front on points and had Zaharias on the defensive most of the match. In the second but Earl McCready gained a decision over Whitey Hewitt in 30 minutes, while to start proceedings Joe Cox and Bill Lewis put on a crashing clawing match that lasted 16 minutes before the former gained a fall.

OLD MAN COYOTE HAS A SURPRISE.

When plans go wrong just grin and say: "Here's better luck some other day."
—Old Man Coyote.

Old Man Coyote is smart. There is none smarter. He comes of a smart family. His father and mother were smart and his grandfather and grandmother and so on, all the way back. Were it not so, Old Man Coyote would not be alive today, for hunters and trappers have long tried to destroy Old Man Coyote and all his relatives. But Old Man Coyote just grins and manages to keep a whole skin, and on the whole, live very well. And it is because he is smart.

He knows he is smart. He wouldn't be smart if he didn't know it. But sometimes smart people come to have too good an opinion of their own smartness and unexpectedly learn that there are others quite as smart as they. It happened to Old Man Coyote. He had made a clever plan to catch Jerry Muskrat. He was sure that if he didn't catch Jerry that Buster Bear would. It was a clever plan and a very simple plan. He knew that Jerry was under a pile of rocks beside the Laughing Brook in the Green Forest. Buster Bear had driven him there for safety and then had vainly tried to get him out. Old Man Coyote happened along and right away suggested a plan he was sure would succeed.

He knew that Jerry Mukrat was on his way to his home in the Smiling Pool down on the Green Meadows and he guessed that he was anxious to get there. He was sure that Jerry would take the first opportunity to get out from under that rock pile. He knew that a short distance down the Laughing Brook was a place where the water was so swift that Jerry would be obliged to travel along the bank to get around it. One bank was steep and high while the other bank was much lower and easier to travel. This would be the one that Jerry naturally would use. So he suggested that Buster Bear wade across and go hide near the lower end of that stretch of swift water while he would do the same thing on the side where the bank was lower.

So Buster Bear and Old Man Coyote went down the Laughing Brook and hid just below that swift water. Jerry Muskrat did just what Old Man Coyote had thought he would do, came out just as soon as he was sure that the way was clear and at once plunged into the Laughing Brook. Once in the water he felt safe. But then Jerry did something that Old Man Coyote hadn't counted on at all. Instead of going on down the Laughing Brook he swam across and then started straight away from the Laughing Brook. Yes, sir, he turned his back on the Laughing Brook and began to hurry through the Green Forest.

Now Jerry remembered that swift water and how he had had to go around it on his way up to the pond of Paddy the Beaver. He remembered something more. He remembered that just below that swift water the Laughing Brook took a very sharp bend. What he was doing now was making a short cut to reach the Laughing Brook again just below that sharp bend. He didn't know that Buster Bear and Old Man Coyote were lying in wait for him but he suspected that they might be. If they were he would fool them, for they wouldn't suspect him of leaving the Laughing Brook even for a short distance.

Jerry was quite out of breath by the time he reached the Laughing Brook again below the bend. In the bend was a big, deep pool and on the edge of this pool was a rock on the other side of which the water ran swiftly. Jerry made for this rock and climbed out on it. He was absolutely safe now and he knew it.

Now that pool and that rock were in plain sight from the place where Old Man Coyote was hidden. For a long time he didn't even glance that way. He was too intent on keeping watch up stream for the appearance of Jerry Muskrat. On the other side of the Laughing Brook, Buster Bear, who never is patient for long at a time, was beginning to get uneasy. Presently he gave up and wandered off. Old Man Coyote was himself wondering what had happened that Jerry Muskrat had not appeared.

And then he happened to turn his head and look down to that pool at the bend. He blinked. He blinked again. There on a rock sat some one who, if he wasn't Jerry Muskrat, was the living image of him. It was one of the greatest surprises Old Man Coyote had had in all his life.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 12th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11:35 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4:20 p.m., and from 9 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7:35 p.m.

The world will be in a somewhat cantankerous mood during the a.m. hours of May 12th. Work will seem irksome, handicaps huge, and the human element annoying. As planetary conditions change, so will the general atmosphere, and by evening it will be easy to give yourself up to gaiety.

The child born on this May 12th will have a logical mind and a natural sense of justice and fitness. Do not try to coerce it. If you can convince its reason, you can do what you like with it, but it cannot be driven an inch. It will have a lively sense of humor, and will be ever ready with a smile.

The woman born on May 12th will have a rather forbidding nature, with plenty of Martha and little of Mary in her make-up. Because you are dependable, you are given things to do, and because you are sincere, you are sought for solid advice. No one, however, would go to you for coddling on a soft shoulder on which to weep. You create more of an atmosphere of efficiency than comfort. You are more at home making tea than serving it. You know all about work, but very little about play. Your children would be well cared for, but it is doubtful if you would ever possess their confidence, and their love for you would be more respectful than spontaneous.

The May 12th man is a typical boss, and has yet to learn that an ounce of love is worth a ton of tyranny. You have great moral and physical courage, and are never a slacker. You rather overemphasize the common belief that you must do a thing yourself if you want it done right. You have rather a heavy sense of humor and jollity, and your gambols are not graceful. Time and experience will humanize, soften and mellow your personality for the better. Children soon learn that your bark is worse than your bite, and that you have a bit of Santa Claus about you after all. There is decidedly the right and the wrong way of handling you.

PROBE SAFETY OF CATHEDRAL

Subsoil of St. Paul's is Being Examined Thoroughly by Experts.

GUARD FOR FUTURE.

LONDON, May 12.—(By The Canadian Press).—So far as the structure of St. Paul's Cathedral is concerned it is said all anxiety as to its safety was removed by the strengthening operations carried out two years ago, but there is a question as to the effect building operations in the immediate vicinity of the Cathedral may have on the subsoil in the future, and a new examination of the subsoil is now being made. This examination will last from six to eight months. It is not an emergency measure but it undertaken to ascertain the effect on the foundation caused by building operations.

The Cathedral authorities know that whatever dangers may threaten the Cathedral in the future will probably arise less from inherent weaknesses than external operations.

"As everybody knows," Canon Alexander said recently, "the Cathedral has its own bed of wet sand, and so long as this remains wet there is nothing to be anxious about. Should that condition be changed by building operations in its vicinity the effect would be very serious.

"Disturbances in the neighborhood of Cornhill a while ago were attributed by experts to the digging of foundations for new buildings to a depth of 60 to 70 feet or more, and we were anxious to protect St. Paul's from any such effects. The erection to the north or to the south of any big building whose foundational digging would convert the Cathedral's subsoil from a wet into a dry condition would be a matter of first importance.

"The best protection for St. Paul's would lie in the willingness of those who wish to sink new foundations within a recognized area around it to submit their plans to those responsible for its safety, and to modify or withdraw their proposals if they are found to contain the slightest element of risk."

Two Mudders Listed In The Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 12 (C.P.). — With all prospects pointing to at least a heavy track for the $50,000 Preakness Saturday, two at least of the probable starters have demonstrated they are at home in the mud.

Daisaburo, Leslie E. Keiffer's sole hope for the Saturday classic, ploughed his way through a mile and a sixteenth of fetlock-deep mud to win the Hilltop, yesterday's Pimloca feature, from Barcelona Pete, Pennywise, Ladino and Paramour, all eligible, in 1.49.35.

Microphone, the Sage stable's eligible, also won, beating Happy Scot, a non-eligible, and Portden, Linton Farms' hope in the rich stake, over six furlongs in 1.14.

Cubs And Senators Favored For Titles

NEW YORK, May 12—Jack Doyle, veteran Broadway betting commissioner, announced changes in the major league betting quotations yesterday, and expressed fear the "layers" who covered pre-season wagers may "take an awful beating" this year.

The new prices make the Chicago Cubs and Washington Senators favorites to cop the pennants in the National and American Leagues, respectively.

Doyle's quotations follow: National League—Chicago, 3 to 2; New York, 8 to 5; St. Louis, 2 to 1; field, 10 to 1. American League—Washington, 7 to 5; New York, 8 to 5; Philadelphia, 2 to 1; field, 10 to 1.

In his pre-season quotations he had picked the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics to repeat for the pennants. He had selected New York and Chicago second and third in the National, and New York and Washington second and third in the American circuit.

This elderly, dark chap, with the iron-gray hair, who happens to be the largest individual baseball and fight layer in the country, admitted his early selections seemed "very unfortunate, because the favorites are dying on my hands, and I am almost positive now that neither the Cards nor the A's can win."

MENACE OF RATS GROWING RAPIDLY

Rodent Army Moves Westward in Saskatchewan, 18 Miles a Year.

REGINA, Sask., May 12 (By The Canadian Press) — Veteran campaigner in the war against cutworm, grasshopper and drought, Saskatchewan is girding for an offensive against its newest enemy—the rat. Moving westward at the rate of 18 miles a year, a rodent army has infested the eastern portion of Saskatchewan and is moving westward.

Civic, municipal and agricultural department officials have united in the drive to abate the menace. The area of occupation includs all territory east of a north-and-south line running from the United States boundary through Gravelbourg, Caron, and just east of Watrous, Humboldt and Melfort ,and includes the cities of Regina, Moose Jaw and Swift Current.

First appearance of the roaming rodent was reported in 1912 at Gainsborough, just west of the Manitoba boundary, in the south-east corner of Saskatchewan. The line of march since then has been so slow that the situation was only recently noticed by alarmed public health officials.

Many municipalities in the infested area have already taken successful steps to check the scourge. Practically every community boasts of at least one "Pied Piper of Hamelin" and organized hunts have brought good results.

Discovering that a large colony of rats had invaded his outbuildings, E. Penner, Early Grey farmer, invited neighbors over for a field day. A "bag" of nearly 200 was counted when the hunt was finished.

Surveys have been taken by the Saskatchewan Department of Health every two years to determine the line of march. While no figures for the 1925 and 1927 surveys are available, the 1929 and 1931 figures show alarming increase in the advance. In 1929 a total of 205,471 rats were destroyed. Bounty paid for their destruction amounted to $12,526. Last year, due to financial conditions, no bounty was paid.

Rene Lacoste Will Return To Courts

PARIS, May 12 (A.P.)—Rene Lacoste, captain of the French Davis Cup squad and before his retirement several years ago because of ill health, one of the great tennis players of the world, will make his competitive return to the courts May 21 in the annual team matches with Great Britain.

Lacoste's play in that series may determine whether he will play on France's Davis Cup team this year. His entry has given rise to hopes that he will.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 94

By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropoli tan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

So the cannibals did not kill Esteban. As he did not escape and no more calamities befell them, they believed they had captured the real Tarzan and not the river god. But never were they quite sure and to this fact Esteban owed his life and the fairly good treatment he received. Thus was the Spaniard, possessor of the most fabulous fortune in diamonds that the world had ever known, condemned to life imprisonment in the village of Obebe, the cannibal.

Meanwhile, his traitorous confederate Owaza, from the opposite bank of the river where he and Esteban had buried the golden ingots, saw Tarzan and his Waziri give up their search for the gold and depart, baffled. Next morning Owaza came with some fifty men and digging up the gold, started with it toward the coast. Several nights after, he camped outside the village of a minor chief who was weak in warriors.

Over some powerful native brew Owaza waxed talkative. His host had already learned from Owaza's porters that they were carrying a great store of yellow gold. A crafty smile crossed the face of the old chief. "It is very heavy for your boys to carry that load to the coast," he remarked casually. "I know a white man who will give you a little piece of paper for it which you can take to the coast instead and get full value for your gold."

Owaza was pleased with the idea. Now he would have to pay his carriers but a trifle. The carriers too, were happy, for they disliked the long journey and were anxious to go home. "Who is this man who will buy it? And where is he?" demanded Owaza. "He is a friend of mine," replied the chief. "Tomorrow, if you wish, I will lead you to him and you can take with you all your gold." Owaza nodded his satisfaction and helped himself to more wine.

U. S. SENTIMENT SWINGS SLOWLY TOWARDS BEER

Predictions Made Country Will Go Wet Within Two Years.

DEFICIT PLAYS PART.

See Tourist Trade to Canada Cut in Half if Prohibition Abolished.

(By Ken Clark—C.P. Staff Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, May 12.—By all the signs and portents, the United States is going to go for beer and that right early, probably within two years.

The latest straw in the wind is the result of the primary elections in Ohio, where wet Republican candidates for the United States Senate and Governor obtained the verdict over their dry opponents. Ohio is the cradle of prohibition. It is the State in which Wayne B. Wheeler, first head of the Anti-Saloon League, was born.

Realm Of Economics.

But aside from the politics of the situation which finds the wets stronger in Congress than they were before 1930, and which will presumably find them still stronger after November, a much more powerful argument for those who hold modification or prohibition is in sight, is discovered in the realm of economics. What bogs down the Congress at the moment is the problem of increasing taxes without ruining the chances of representatives and a third of the Senators in the November elections. A coterie of socialistically inclined representatives headed by Fiorello Laguardia of New York, stampeded the House into refusing a sales tax. Both House and Senate found difficulty in agreeing upon getting the money through a variety of impositions on income, until finally driven desperate, the Senate Finance Committee waded into tariff increases as the neatest means of acquiring revenue without anybody knowing about it.

But in the meantime the Association against the prohibition amendment, Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, the Hearst press and other powerful agencies of propaganda were not slow to discover that by permitting the brewing of beer and taxing of the same, the problem of taxation according to their figuring, would be almost eliminated.

Magic Wand Required

Unless some magic wand is waved over world economic conditions between now and the assembling of the Congress in 1933 the financial position of the United States government is not going to be the reverse of the present, and with the indicated increase in wet sentiment continuing, anti-prohibitionists feel confident there will be a referendum, modification, a change.

A recent poll by the Literary Digest furnishes some assessment of feeling throughout the country at present. It finds that only two states, North Carolina and Kansas voted for continuance of prohibition and that all the other 46 voted either by majority or greater proportion for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The result of abolishment or modification of prohibition in the United States upon Canada, would, according to opinion here, be considerable. One authority offered the suggestion it would probably cut the tourist trade in half.

BARNARDO HOME IS NOW WRECKED

All That is Left of "Hazel Brae" Are Bricks and Foundation Walls.

USED FOR 39 YEARS.

"Hazel Brae" for thirty-nine years a home for Barnardo girls, is now no more but a memory.

The pick-axe and crow bar of the wrecker has completed its ruthless work, and all that remains of the grand old mansion house which was first erected when Peterborough was a growing town, is a pile of some 200,000 bricks, and the sturdy stone walls of the foundations, which are to be filled in and levelled off in completion of the contract.

How old "Hazel Brae" was no one in the city seems to know for certainty. But its history goes back into the city's babyhood. It was once the home of Alexander Smith, a prosperous banker in the town. In 1883 it was purchased by the Hon. George A. Cox and given to the Barnardo Home Society. This was the founding in Canada of this Society which is now Empire-wide.

Year after year hundreds of girls came to "Hazel Brae" stayed awhile and received training and then went out across Canada. Mothers and grandmothers now look back upon the old mansion, as their first memory of this country.

In May 1922 after serving for 39 years as a house for Barnardo girls the house was closed forever, and a new residence for girls was opened by the Society at Toronto

The house was sold last Fall to George Martin and Herbert Doig to be wrecked. Five hundred dollars, it is said, was the price paid for the building whose heating system originally cost $3,000.00.

Wrecking was started on the last day of November 1931 and has continued on and off until recently. All that now remains is for the bricks to be carted away, the debris cleaned up and the foundations filled in.

It is stated that the bricks despite their age, are in a wonderful state of preservation. Many of them have already been sold by the contractors for use in other buildings.

GOING TO REPEAT PART OF PAGEANT

Part of Y. W. Pageant to be Given in Collegiate on May 20.

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium was again yesterday afternoon and evening the scene of activity and enthusiasm. All classes gathered for a rehearsal of Pageant numbers in preparation of the entertainment to be given in the Collegiate Institute Hall Friday May 20 when a number of the drills from the Pageant and the Mother Goose Ballet will be repeated. The program will also include musical numbers and promises to be a real attraction.

Miss Littlefield, physical director, announced to the girls that because of many request the board of directors had decided to give this extra performance. The announcement was greeted by cheers and was shortly followed by a rush for tickets. The price has been set at 25c, which should prove very popular. The girls were advised to see that friends who had not been able to get tickets last time, get theirs early, as only enough tickets to fill the auditorium will be available.

Junior classes were asked to meet next Monday afternoon and senior classes Tuesday evening for another rehearsal. As the stage is smaller than at the Grand, changes and omissions will have to be made. It is important that all girls wishing to take part be present at practices.

GREAT BRITAIN IS IMPROVING

Bank of Montreal Head States Feeling of People as Whole Are Better.

BACKING NEW POLICY.

QUEBEC, May 12.—(CP)—Great Britain is showing a decided improvement according to Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal, who returned to Canada today on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia.

"There is a decided improvement in the feelings of the people," he said, "and things are a good deal better than they were."

The situation in many respects, according to Sir Charles, is similar to business conditions here. "Basic industries are not showing much increase yet, but many statements coming out, especially from smaller concerns, are not too bad."

"There seems to be no doubt," the bank president said, "that every one is determined to give the new policy a fair trial. It is by no means just a gesture but has the support of the man in the street. Of course it may take some years, but with its big majority the government need not recede from its position."

DOUMER BURIED WITH SONS.

PARIS.—President Paul Doumer, victim of an assasin's bullet, was laid to rest this afternoon beside the four sons whom he gave to France in the war.

Hoover Urges Police Into Murder Hunt

WASHINGTON, May 13 (C.P.). — President Hoover to-day directed the law enforcement agencies and secret service of the U.S. Federal Government to set out upon a hunt for the murderers of the Lindbergh baby, "never to be relaxed until those criminals are implacably brought to justice."

The President, employing strong language, directed the Federal police authorities "to make the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never to be forgotten case."

The Federal Government does not have direct police authority in the present case, he pointed out, despite its brutality and the nation-wide horror it has caused, but Federal agencies will be "unceasingly alert" to bring the murderers to punishment.

Alterations Made In Bennett Suite Cost $110,743.94

Facts Brought Out Before Railways And Shipping Committee Show Premier Pays Only $400 Monthly Rental For 15 Rooms In Chateau Laurier.

BENNETT CLAIMS TERMS ARRANGED BY HOTEL ON CONDITION HE SPEND SUBSTANTIAL SUMS.

Is Firmly Convinced Some Error In Amount Spent On Changes—Proves Surprised When Asked If He Is Prepared To Make Adjustment.

OTTAWA, May 13.—(CP)—The expenditures incurred in the alterations to the 15-room suite now occupied by the Prime Minister at the Chateau Laurier here amounted to $110,743.94, and the rental paid by Mr. Bennett is $400 a month. These facts emerged from the House of Commons Railways and Shipping committee today, at whose session the Premier was present. Mr. Bennett's payments to the hotel in 1930 were $11,943.67. He was absent from that hostlery for five months that year, although he still paid the rental of his suite. In 1931 he paid $19,838.38, and thus far this year $8,236.06.

When he learned that the alterations would cost more than $50,000— a sum which, he had been advised, would take care of all expenditures — the Prime Minister had cabled from London, where he was attending the Imperial Conference in Oct. 1930, requesting that the work be not proceeded with. On his return, however, he found the work in progress and subsequently moved into the remodelled suite on arrangements made by the hotel management. He paid the rental the management had asked.

Thornton Responsible

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R. told the committee that he accepted full responsibility for the alterations. The hotel viewed the matter purely as a business proposition, taking the stand that a guest who spent $20,000 a year in the establishment was a valuable patron. He also suggested that the alterations had resulted in providing the hotel with what might be known as a "vice-regal" suite, suitable for the accommodation of distinguished personages who might visit Canada.

The questions to which answers were given to-day were asked by Arthur L. Beaubien, (Lib., Provencher), who yesterday complained at the delay in furnishing the replies. This morning, the Prime Minister, in a statement relative to the questions, declared that his attention had been directed to the fact that "a whispering campaign" with regard to his expenditures at the Chateau had been going on for some time.

He had resided there since coming to Parliament, he said. After he became leader of the opposition he had moved into "better" quarters in that establishment; and had expressed to Sir Henry Thornton his satisfaction with them.

Suggestion Appealed

Sir Henry Thornton's suggestion that he should move to more commodious quarters for himself and his sister, had appealed to

EXPECT TREATY WILL BE READY IN A FEW DAYS

Herridge and Rogers Discuss St. Lawrence Waterways Project.

NO TREATY DRAFTED.

Washington Circles All Agog With the Return of Herridge.

WASHINGTON, May 13 (C.P.)—Hon. W. D. Herridge, the Canadian Minister, was in conference here today with James Rogers, assistant Secretary of State, in the matter of the St. Lawrence waterways treaty.

Negotiations are continuing. No treaty has yet been drafted but Washington believes discussions have reached such a stage that drawing up of an instrument would be a matter of days.

Present at the conference were Hume Wrong, counsellor of the Canadian Legation, and John Hickerson of the State Department in Charge of Canadian Affairs.

Washington circles interested in the St. Lawrence were agog this morning when it was learned the Minister had returned from Ottawa.

It was believed in well-informed quarters prospects of treaty drafting would ripen to-day.

TWO BURNED IN FIRE

EX-KING ALFONSO ATTACKED AS HE LANDS AT MARSEILLES

Spaniard Rains Blow Upon King's Head and Body Before Police Arrive.

NO WORD SPOKEN.

MARSEILLES, France, May 13 (A.P.)—Former King Alfonso of Spain stepped off a steamer from Malta to-day into a rain of blows from a roughly-dressed man on the pier.

The incident was so unexpected that the man punched the former monarch several times about the head and body before anybody could stop him. He was arrested immediately and identified as a Spaniard. His name, the police discovered, is Gonzales Macanares.

Alfonso and his son, Don Juan, were walking together through a shed under construction on the pier. They were half way from the gangplank to their car when Macanares leaped upon the king and, without saying a word, struck him in the face.

A policeman was not far off, but the man got in several other blows before they dragged him off.

Alfonso stood for a moment in astonishment, then walked quickly to his car and was driven away.

Woman Fractured Arm In Two Places

BRIDGENORTH, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — To-day, Friday the thirteenth, proved an unfortunate day for Mrs. Albert White, of Bridgenorth. She fell down the cellar stairs at her home, breaking her right arm in two places below the elbow.

Mrs. White was reaching for a jar in the cellar at 7 o'clock this morning when she overbalanced and fell full way down the steep cellar steps. Dr. J. A. Morgan was called and set the fractures. The injured woman is resting comfortably.

CLOSE CALL.

COBOURG.—Robert Russell, 72, narrowly escaped death to-day when struck by a Canadian Pacific railway passenger train.

The buffer of the engine struck him a glancing blow which threw him several feet, broke two ribs and other lesser injuries.

Text of Kidnappers' Ransom Note

NEW YORK, May 13 (C.P.). — The New York American published to-day what it said it had learned from reliable sources was the text of the ransom note left by the kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby. It read as follows:

"Dear Sir,—Have $50,000 ready, $25,000 in $20 bills, $15,000 in $10 bills, and $10,000 in $5 bills. After having them in two packes. Four days we will inform you to redeem the money.

"We warn you for making anything public or for notifying the police. The child is in gut care.

"Identification for letters are signatures. Answer three fold. (1-3-2-4.) Two rings in blue ink, with centre ring of red. A blue ink line of the blue circles on the outer edge of the red. A hole on the outer edge of each dark circle and one in the centre of the red.

TRIAL AT HALIFAX.

Vaara Asks to be Sent to Russia—Sergeant Leopold is Star Witness.

HALIFAX, May 13 (C.P.). — Convicted on a charge of "conspiring to overthrow the Government of Canada by force," Arvo Vaara, editor of the Finnish daily Vapaus, of Sudbury, Ont., to-day was ordered to be deported.

L. A. Ryan, Halifax lawyer who defended Vaara at a hearing before a Board of Immigration authorities, declared he would appeal the case.

One of 10 Arrested.

Vaara is one of about ten alleged Communists who were arrested recently in six Canadian cities and brought to Halifax by Royal Canadian Mounted Police for deportation hearings.

Along with his translator, Martin Parker, he was taken when the police raided the newspaper office at Sudbury.

When he was sentenced to-day, he claimed the right to be deported to Russia, although he was born in Finland. He left Russia when that country was under the reign of the Czar, and he still has his passport.

Vaara spoke for half an hour at the hearing to-day, it was learned after the case had been concluded.

He said two classes of people existed in Canada to-day: those trying him, the capitalists, and those he represented, the proletarian.

Admits Being Red

Asks if he was a Communist he said he had been.

Asked if he was a Communist at present he replied: "How can I be. There are supposed to be no Communists, since Justice Wright declared the party illegal."

A few years ago Vaara served six months in prison and paid a $1,000 fine upon conviction on a charge of seditious libel.

Sergeant John Leopold, Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer was the star witness at his trial to-day.

The hearings, presided over by R.N. Munroe of Ottawa, are closed to the public. Members of the board and Royal Canadian Mounted Police refuse to give out information on progress.

LINDBERGH HAS SON'S SLEEPERS

Dr. Condon Claims They Were Handed Over by Kidnappers in Ransom Deal.

DIAPER PINS GIVEN UP.

TRENTON, N.J., May 13. (CP)—The Trenton Times to-day said Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall in a conference last midnight with Dr. John F. Condon at the Lindbergh home, was informed the sleeping suit missing from the Lindbergh baby's body had been turned over to him in the negotiations which resulted in the payment of $50,000 ransom money.

The sleeping suit, Dr. Condon said, is in the possession of Col. Lindbergh.

Two other bits of evidence supposedly establishing the authenticity of the alleged kidnapping group that dealt with Dr. Condon, also are in the possession of Col. Lindbergh, the paper said Dr. Condon told the prosecutor. They are two diaper pins. The diaper which the baby wore when it was kidnapped is missing.

The Prosecutor said Dr. Condon stated that early in the negotiations with the suppose kidnappers the diaper pins were sent to him to prove the men he was dealing with had actually stolen the baby. In the final negotiations when the $50,000 ransom money was turned over, the baby's sleeping suit was given as the final bit of evidence on the kidnappers' identity.

Banker is Held For Manslaughter

BARRIE, Ont., May 13. (CP) A. L. Hooey, aged 34, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Stroud, was arrested and is awaiting a hearing on Monday on a charge of manslaughter, after it is alleged, his automobile struck down and instantly killed Mrs. Mary Cook, age 83, at Painswick, south of here to-day, as she was leaving the home of here son, John Cook.

PREMIER LANG ASKED TO QUIT

New South Wales' Governor Charges Violation of Financial Agreement Act.

STEVENS GIVEN ROLE.

SYDNEY, Australia, May 13 (CP). — The Governor of New South Wales to-day demanded the resignation of Premier J. A. Lang on the ground that the Premier violated the Financial Agreement Enforcement Act by approving a mortgage taxation bill calling for a 10 per cent. tax on mortgages.

The Governor requested B. S. B. Stevens, leader of the United Australia party in New South Wales, to form a Provisional Government. Stevens agreed.

The action of the Governor, coming only a short time before a state general election, grew out of refusal by the Premier to obey an executive order demanding recall of circular letters which urged the heads of Government departments in the state to withhold from Federal officials funds due the Commonwealth under terms of the financial agreement enforcement act.

Asked to Recall Letters.

The Governor's demand for Mr. Lang's resignation followed an exchange of correspondence yesterday in which he ordered the Premier to call in the offensive letters which Sir Philip declared were a violation of the law.

At the same time the Commonwealth Government at Canberra passed through the House of Representatives a bill nullifying provisions of a New South Wales measure which would have imposed a 10 per cent. tax on mortgages. The Commonwealth Bill specified "no mortgage shall be charged with a tax or impost greater than could be charged under the laws of the state as in force on April 30."

Mr. Lang's mortgage taxation measure was designed to raise £7,000,000 extra revenue which, he said, would enable the state to meet demands of the Commonwealth that it repay moneys expended by the Federal Treasury in meeting interest on external bonds defaulted by the state.

134 BODIES WASH ASHORE

AMOY, China.—The Resident-General was informed to-day that 134 bodies had been washed ashore in the State of Annam since a typhoon struck the territory last Wednesday.

Five hundred lives were lost altogether, 600 houses were destroyed and fleets of small fishing boats went to the bottom.

LOU REICHERS OVER ALANTIC DUBLIN BOUND

New Jersey Speed Pilot Hops From Harbor Grace at 6.50 E.D.T.

DELAYED 2 HOURS.

Stone Breaks Stabilzer in Landing After Fast Flight From Newark.

HARBOR GRACE, Nfld. May 13.—(CP)—Lou Reichers, New Jersey speed pilot, was out over the Atlantic this morning, bound for Dublin, Ireland.

Arriving here at 6.24 (Atlantic Standard time) on a projected two-stop flight from Newark, New Jersey, to Paris France, he made a perfect landing but a flying stone damaged the left stabilizer of his plane, causing about two hours' delay.

The stone was hurled by the skid as the machine taxied down the field. It tore through the fuselage, but Reichers did not think the damage was serious.

He was bitterly disappointed, however, because repairs necessitated delay. He had planned stopping here only a few minutes, for fuel.

The 31-year-old pilot took off from Newark at 1.02 Atlantic Standard time last night, and experienced poor flying weather on the trip to Newfoundland.

He had northeast winds against him as far as Halifax and fog for the remainder of the journey. He expected to find Harbor Grace enveloped in fog, but bright sunshine broke through and gave him a clear field.

Speedy Repairs

It was at first believed that repairs to a stabilizer he had broken in landing would hold him here for several hours but mechanics began work on the broken part immediately and repairs were completed within two hours. The plane was refuelled in record time.

Reichers made the hop from Newark, N.J., to Harbor Grace in six hours and 22 minutes.

The speed flyer is attempting to halve the time of Col. Lindbergh's non-stop flight from New York to Paris in 1927. Reichers expected to make the flight in about 16 hours.

The weather was considered favorable as Reichers headed his plane eastward at 6.50 E.D.T. and began the most perilous part of his journey. The 550 gallons of fuel in the tanks of his machine was believed sufficient for 21 flying hours.

The aviator hoped to make 200 miles an hour.

SHIFT OF WIND SAVES TOWNS

Fires in Saskatchewan Raze Elevator, Garage, Several Homes.

LOSS OVER $40,000.

REGINA, May 13 (C.P.).—Thanks to the vigorous efforts of volunteer fire-fighters and shift of the wind, two Saskatchewan villages are intact to-day. Fire which threatened the destruction of Archerwill and Englefield, small towns 40 miles apart and 150 miles north of here, is now in control.

At Archerwill a bush fire wiped out two elevators, 17,000 bushels of grain and 12,000 cords of wood. Flames of unknown origin razed a garage, a telephone office and a residence at Englefeld. The loss at Archerwill was estimated at more than $30,000, while that at Englefeld was placed at $10,000.

Only a change in wind saved Archerwill from destruction.

Villagers and residents of Rose Valley, Dawson and Wadena fought the flames for several hours, while the only casualty, N. B. Cullickson, wheat pool elevator agent, was overcome by smoke. The blaze in the village was extinguished but the bush fire is still burning.

Telephone and telegraph wires to the village were razed and the hamlet, which houses about 100 people, was left without communication nor a time.

For flying low over Whipsnade Zoo and frightening the animals, Edwin Freshfield, a Cambridge student was fined in court at Luton, England, recently.

Missing Child Cruelly Slain Near Its Home

Infant's Body Is Found By Negro About 12 Miles From Lindbergh Home Buried Under Slight Covering Of Dead Leaves In Underbrush.

MATTED FAIR HAIR AND SHREDS OF CLOTHING ONLY WAY OF IDENTIFYING SMALL CORPSE.

Child Was Hammered To Death — Autopsy Reveals Double Fracture Of The Skull—Greatest Man Hunt In History Starts.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 13 (C.P.). — The Lindbergh baby is dead; brutally murdered.

They found the body—it was hardly more than a skeleton—late yesterday afternoon. A negro truckman, pushing his way through thick brush of the Sourlands—not five miles from the Charles A. Lindbergh estate—made the discovery.

Police were called. Identification was confirmed. A baby hunt, cautious and painstaking, was ended; a man hunt, wide-flung and intense, swept forward in its place.

Two "intermediaries" of the baby search, men who for weeks had been moving in and out of the background, their movements carefully guarded for fear of endangering the child's life, were called to give an accounting of their hidden activities.

One of these men was Dr. John F. Condon, the 72-year-old educationist of New York City, who, negotiating through the newspapers as "Jafsie," established contact with a man to whom, later, $50,000 of Col. Lindberg's money was paid on promise—never fulfilled — that the child would be returned "alive and well."

The other was John H. Curtis, one of three Norfolk, Va., "intermediaries," whose recent information has sent him into the coastal waters near Long Island where it was hinted, contact was to be made with the kidnapper.

Clinging to the decomposed body was weathered-worn flannel that had kept the baby warm that night of March 1 when his nurse tucked him into his crib. These shreds of baby clothing were identification enough; these, and the matted, curly blonde hair.

After the Murderer.

To-day, a horror-kindled incentive drove forces of the law to unrestrained hunt for the murderer. The leases of secrecy and of fear for the baby's safety no longer held. It was no longer necessary to exercise extreme care. Murder had been done. A compound fracture of the skull caused death. The murder evidently was done very soon after the kidnapping, probably within an hour. A mad man apparently, muscled either by an intense hatred or an overpowering fear, struck the child dead. Physicians described it as a "terrific" blow.

No weapon has been found. There was added possibility the baby had been hurled violently from a motor car.

State police of New Jersey, who have been in direct charge of the search for the baby since the night, 73 days ago, when the voice of Col. Lindbergh over a telephone said, "My baby has been kidnapped," made the identification of the body. A physician added confirmation. Later Miss Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, said she was "quite certain" the body was that of the Lindbergh child.

Parents in Background

The parents themselves remained completely in the background while their greatest tragedy was being written in black headlines around the world.

Mrs. Lindbergh and her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, were at the Hopewell estate. Col. Lindbergh was absent, engaged in the baby hunt with Curtis, the Norfolk "intermediary." He returned early this morning.

Close friends said Mrs. Lindbergh, who is preparing for another baby in the late summer, had accepted the news with her "usual equanimity."

One of the strange, wierd jests of the horror that for 73 days had turned the Sourland estate of the Lindberghs into a tragic heart-break house was the discovery of the body virtually at its doorstep.

Running through the brush—and passing within 75 feet of the baby's burial place is a telephone wire. It was strung hurriedly, to carry to the world news of the baby hunt—and its excited messages of hope, of new clues, of imminent discoveries passed hardly more than whis-

BROKEN PARENTS NOT TO SEE SON BEFORE BURIAL

"Eaglet's" Nurse, Betty Gow, Only One to View Tragic Remains.

NO FUNERAL DATE.

Faulty Radio on Yacht Delays Message to Colonel Nine Hours.

TRENTON, N.J., May 13 (CP)—The broken little body of "The Eaglet" will be laid away without his parents having seen it.

Anne and Charles Lindbergh will always remember their young son as a handsome, smiling little chap, with yellow curls and blue eyes.

Frank W. Swahte, the undertaker in charge of the body, said to-day he had been informed that neither Colonel nor Mrs. Lindbergh would see it.

It will be placed in a sealed coffin before it is delivered to them, he said. He did not know when the burial would take place or what the funeral arrangements were.

Police to-day held back a throng of strangers who loitered in the street outside the funeral establishment. In the morgue at the rear the curtains were drawn.

Of those whom he had learned to know and trust in the few months that were us span of life only his nurse, Betty Gow, saw the body of little Charles Lindbergh.

He used to call her "Gow."

Word Delayed 9 Hours

NEW YORK, May 13. (CP) Nine hours passed before Col. Charles A. Lindbergh cruising on a yacht off the New Jersey coast and confident that he was about to receive his son back alive, knew his baby had been found dead, the New York Sun says to-day.

A radio code had been arranged so that Colonel Lindbergh on his trips to negotiate with the kidnappers could keep in touch with the police and his home.

When word was flashed yesterday afternoon that the baby's body had been found, something went wrong with the radio receiving set on the yacht Marcon, however.

Again and again, while Mrs. Lindbergh waited, striving to keep

Clergy Swindlers Arrested At Chicago

CHICAGO, May 13.—(CP)— The keen memory of Rev. Arthur Vigrad, a Roman Catholic priest from Sulphur, La., has resulted in the arrest of Walter Pilkington, 40 and John Pinchot, alias OBrien, 41, on the charge of swindling.

While visiting here he recognized the men as the pair who had obtained $100 from him two months ago for a worthless bond bearing what purported to be the signature of Bishop J. T. McNally, of Hamilton, Ont.

A list of 1,000 priests in the south and west was found in possession of the two men and police believe they had made other priests victims of their scheme.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

Measure With Wide and Elastic Powers Needs Only Senate's Ratification.

AMENDMENT DOWNED.

Bennett and King Give Free Hand to Followers in Division.

OTTAWA, May 13 (C.P.).—Wide and elastic powers to combat unemployment and distress were conferred on the Dominion Government yesterday when "Bill 72" passed its final test. Before coming into effect, the Senate must ratify it.

With party lines lifted, the House turned down a motion to delete one clause of a committee report which would remove from the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission, appointments of lower grade postmasters. The division was 92-55 with two members of the Government, Hon. Murray McLaren and Hon. Hugh Stewart and three other Conservatives, voting with the bulk of the Liberals and the entire Progressive group, in favor of the dpletion. Seven Liberals swelled the ranks of the Conservatives in opposition. The report itself was adopted without division.

Free Hand Given.

Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King gave free hands to their followers in the division, telling them to register their votes according to judgment, not party considerations.

E. J. Garland, United Farmer member for Bow River, made the motion to delete the offending clause. About 3,500 post offices would be affected, mostly in rural parts and all with revenues below $3,000 a year. It was recommended appointments to them be transferred from the Civil Service Commission to the Postmaster-General. This step, said Mr. Garland, would be a "retrograde step" and "the thin edge of the patronage wedge."

The main report of the committee, of which J. E. Lawson (Cons. West York) was chairman, also recommended retirement of the three Civil Service Commissioners, Hon. W. J. Roche, Dr. Newton MacTavish, and J. E. Tremblay.

Edgar Wallace Left Debt At Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 13—The late Edgar Wallace, author of mystery stories, who lived so luxuriously that his London estate was in debt after his death, left a similar deficiency in Hollywood where he died suddenly last February.

Frank Dryson, public administrator, said Wallace's Hollywood financial account consisted of no assets and $2,089 liabilities. The debt was for the author's elaborate bronze casket.

MAJOR STEWART HEAD DRAGOONS

Major Claire H. Stewart Been Promoted to Rank of Lieut.-Col.

SUCCEEDS COL. POWELL.

Major Claire H. Stewart, of this city, has been promoted to the rank lieutenant-colonel and to command the 3rd, the Prince of Wales Dragoons, with headquarters at Peterborough, it was anncunced by the Department of Defence yesterday. He replaces Colonel H. W. Powell, transferred to the reserve of officers.

Lieut.-Colonel Stewart served with distinction during the World War with the artillery branch of the C.E.F. in France. After the war, he returned to Peterborough and renewed his connection, commenced previous to the war with the militia. Following the reorganization he was identified with the Prince of Wales Dragoons and through his energy and knowledge earned the esteem of all officers and men in the dragoons and the garrison.

The Prince of Wales will have a six days' camp this summer, it has been decided definitely. However, the time of the camp has not yet been fixed, but it will be held locally, due to the lack of a Government grant.

MADOC CLUB'S GAIN

MADOC, May 13. — Belleville's loss will be Madoc's gain. George Scopis, who perfohrmed the goal tending duties of the Belleville juniors last winter, has moved to Madoc where he will open a restaurant in the near future. George is a coing goalie and Madoc will not have any worries as to the filling of that position next winter on their Trent Valley Hockey League club.

Communistic uprisings in China last year caused an estimated loss of nearly $50,000,000.

MISSING FILES NOT IN DEMAND McLEOD FOUND

Kenneth McLeod, Broker, Traces Travels of Missing Documents.

FOUND IN BUFFALO.

Three Men in Buffaio Said Files Cost Them $1,875.

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.)—With voluminous documentary and oral evidence behind it, and much more awaiting, the Royal Commission investigating certain transactions of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to-day resumed its hearings. Well into the $50,000 payment to John Aird, Jr., by the Hydro in connection with the Madawaska power purchase, and the payment to Mr. Aird of $125,000 by the Beauharnois Power Corporation, supposedly for the Conservative party of Ontario, the commission will shortly adjourn for a week or so and later take up the $22,000,000 purchase on the Dominion Power and Transmission Ltd., Hamilton, by the Hydro.

The "missing files" of John Aird, Jr., which had been discussed previously were brought up again when Kenneth McLeod, former financial broker of Toronto, yesterday took the stand. It was Mr. McLeod who allegedly left the files in the office of H. L. Richardson here, where they were ultimately found and returned to the owner.

No One Wanted File.

But, according to McLeod, the papers had evidently been sent to Richardson's office by mistake. He admitted learning of them in New York and later seeing them in Buffalo, and had there contracted to sell them on a 10 per cent. commission basis. His efforts to dispose of them to the Ontario Government, Opposition and certain newspapers had been futile, he said, because he had found no one who would "offer a dollar for the file."

Three men had talked to him in a Buffalo hotel, shown him the file, and told him the papers had cost then $1,875, he testified. He had never, in his efforts to dispose of the file, quoted any price, but had mentioned the sum of $5,000 to one man.

Heber Smith, insurance broker, whose partner, Thomas Maguire, is a brother of C. Alfred Maguire of the Hydro Commission ,testified to having asked the Hydro Commissioner "how the project was getting along" in referring to the Madawaska purchase, but stated his efforts had been confined to merely that question when pressed by A. G. Slaght, K.C., independent counsel. A large insurance policy, which Aird had consulted him about was his only interest in the project, he declared repeatedly.

Rev. Father Williams Passes In Toronto

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.).—Rev Father George A. Williams, one of Toronto's oldest members of the Catholic hierarchy, is dead here in his 63rd year. Born in New York, Father Williams completed his classical and philoeophical courses at St. Vincent's College, Kankakee, Ill., and his theological training at St. Jerome's College, Kitchener, Ont., and the Grand Seminary, Montreal.

In December, 1899, he was ordained priest by Archbishop O'Connor of St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto.

DARTMOOR RIOT ADD TO TERMS

Extra Sentences Handed to Ring Leaders Range Up to 12 Years.

BUILDING BURNED.

PRINCETOWN, Eng., May 13 (A.P.)—Extended prison sentences ranging from a few months to 12 years were imposed to-day on prisoners held responsible for the attempted outbreak at Dartmoor Prison last January.

The heaviest sentence was meted out to Thomas Davis, 33-year-old chauffeur, who was found guilty of an attack on a warder with a weapon fashioned from a razor blade.

The sentences closed court proceedings crowing out of the disorder at grim Dartmoor prison on the moors of Western England last January. The convicts were subdued only after they had burned down the principal prison buildings.

Testimony at the trial of the accused men revealed that up to the time of the outbreak each convict had been allowed six safety razor blades which they were allowed to carry in their pockets.

The men fixed the blades in sticks of wood, using them as weapons in their attempt to escape.

PLEASING PROGRAM AT SOCIAL EVENING

Women's Missionary Society of Ballyduff Presbyterian Hold Social.

BALLYDUFF, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—A most enjoyable social evening under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society in connection with Ballyduff Presbyterian Church was held on Monday evening following the special Sunday School anniversary services held on Sunday in the same church.

Rev. V. Walker of Janetville, pastor of the church, capably acted as chairman for the occasion introducing the lengthy delightful program.

A three piece orchestra with guitar, coronet and organ played by Keith Thorndyke, Ben Page and Viola Gray respectively commenced the entertainment and liberally contributed pleasing later numbers.

Percy Preston sang a much appreciated humorous solo, "Money" with Miss Viola Gray acting as accompanist for this and other musical numbers.

Miss Elsie Richardson of Bethany in her usual attractive manner delighted the audience with encored readings among which was "The Cremation of Sam McGee."

Mr. Marshal Malcolm, teacher at Janetville, held the attention of the audience during the singing of a pleasing solo. A very entertaining reading "Proposing" by Miss Viola Gray was heartily encored. Mr. Preston and Mr. Malcolm joined in a highly appreciated duet. The main item of the program an entertaining playlet "How the Story Grew" was then presented by eight ladies of the society sponsoring the evening's enjoyment. Those taking part were: Mrs. Fred Gray, Mrs. Wilbur Gainer, Mrs. Melvin Gray, Mrs. Reginald Mitchell, Miss Jean Fallis, Miss Viola Gray, Miss Hendren and Mrs. Willis Whiteside. The story of the playlet dealt with these gossiping ladies being excessively curious regarding a family recently moved into their neighborhood. One lady, bolder than the other, concoted an excuse for calling on the men comers and according on the newcomers and accordmittance in no uncertain terms. As this story was repeated in succession to the remaining seven ladies it "grew" in amazing proportions. The family of new-comers proved finally to be the new clergyman for the community, and the ladies were much abashed on the disclosure of this knowledge, and at the folly of the manner in which the story grew, ending their remarks with the united chorus "Women will talk."

The introduction of local names added greatly to the interest of the playlet.

At the conclusion of the delightful program the ladies served an abundance of sandwich cake and coffee and a jolly social times was spent.

The proceeds of the evening's activities amounted to twenty-two dollars, a very creditable amount which was practically clear profit, the program and greater part of the refreshments being donated by the church workers, and kindly visiting helpers from Bethany and Janetville.

Three children of Mrs. A. S. Sawyer, of Marlborough, England, recently celebrated their first, second and third birthdays respectively on the same day.

WHO RECEIVED $50000 RANSOM JAFSIE HANDLED

Question Leads Host Police Strive to Answer After Tragedy.

MURDER HUNT ON.

Aged Principal, Who Paid Over Money in Cemetery, Remains in Seclusion.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Who got the $50,000 ransom that "Jafsie" paid to a shadowy individual in a Bronx cemetery the night of April 22—at a time when the body of the Lindbergh baby was mouldering in a New Jersey thicket?

That was among the host of questions police strove to answer to-day as the Lindbergh kidnapping mystery turned into a murder hunt.

"Jafsie" himself—a retired Bronx school principal, who before the Lindbergh case was plain Dr. John F. Condon—was in seclusion early last evening and made no statement before being questioned by New Jersey police.

Cancels Address

The 72-year-old educationist, who had expressed hope until the last that the persons who collected the ransom would atone for their "double-cross" by returning the child, cancelled an address he was to have made in New Rochelle last night.

Al Reich, former pugilist, who acted as Dr. Condon's chauffeur during part of the negotiations, declined to admit anyone to the home.

Dr. Condon's first contact with the case became known through advertising in newspapers that he would be willing to act as intermediary. In a series of advertisements he signed himself "Jafsie," the sound his initials make if spoken rapidly.

Among hundreds of letters there appeared one that seemed to Col. Lindbergh authentic. There also came a token that convinced the Lindberghs this was the right trail. What the token was has never been disclosed.

Through more "Jafsie" advertisements the negotiations were carried on. On the night of April 2, Col. Lindbergh and his counsel, Col. Henry Breckinridge, met at the Condon home.

At the Cemetery

A telephone call, and a note found under a designated stone directed the three to the vicinity of St. Raymond's cemetery. While the flyer and his counsel sat in their car, Dr. Jafsie, directed by a woman in black who brushed past him as he walked, proceeded to the cemetery wall.

From behind the wall, a voice broke the silence:

"Have you got the money?"

Dr. Condon said he had. The man passed him a receipt, Dr. Condon returned to the car, got the money from Col. Lindbergh and paid it over. The receipt said the baby would be found in a boat off Martha's Vineland but Col. Lindbergh flew here without result.

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? said repeated advertisements inserted by "Jafsie."

MISSING LINK BEING SOUGHT

Startling New Discovery Has Been Reported by Archaeologists.

IN EAST AFRICA.

NAIROBI, Kenya, East Africa May 12 (C.P.)—Will the Missing Link be discovered at last? This is a question scientists may ask themselves in view of the startling new discovery recently made by Dr. L. S. B. Leakey, of Cambridge, leader of the East African Archaeological Expedition. He reports that he has found the lower jawbone of a "homo sapiens" type (the modern species of man() among deposits which give new evidence of his age, an obscure native village on the shores of Lake Victoria having provided archaeological evidence which is regarded as likely to startle the world of scientists.

Dr. Leakey puts the Lake Victoria Man one step further back than even the Oldaway Man, who may have lived some 2,000,000 years ago. Fragments of the skeleton of the Oldaway Man (the earliest known type of "homo sapiens," were found in Tanganyika in 1913.

Traces of anthropoid apes found in deposits of the Miocene period (in which no human beings have yet been found anywhere in the world) are being sent by Dr. Leakey to British experts. It is this last discovery, coupled with that of the Lake Victoria Man, that leads Dr. Leakey to the belief that the missing link between man and ape will be finally established.

The 1913 Oldaway skeleton was found in circumstances which gave no geological club to its age. Dr. Leakey, however, last October found evidence in the form of extinct animals proving that the African Oldaway Man dated back to an age much more remote than was suspected. Tools were found in all the Oldaway beds.

Dr. Leakey has now also found part of the skeleton of a dinotherium—a prehistoric form of elephant, formerly believed to have lived hundreds of thousands of years before man.

Leaves His Clothes, He "Mishtook" Home

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., May 13 (C.P.).—A Vancouver golfer went home last night minus his coat and pants, golf balls, $13 and a bottle of beer. These accoutrements were found by police on the verandah of a home on Columbia street to-day.

According to the police report the Vancouverite had supped not wisely but too well, mistook the house for his own, and started to divest himself of his clothing before entering. After he had taken off his coat and plus fours, he realized his mistake, left his clothing where he had placed them and went home to Vancouver with only half his usual attire.

HAVELOCK PASTOR RECEIVES WELCOME

Social Evening Held in Honor of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Beeton.

HAVELOCK, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—A delightful social evening was held under the auspices of Knox Presbyterian united societies, in the Sunday School room on Monday evening when old and young members of the congregation and their friends gathered there to meet Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Beeton for the first time in a social way.

All the different societies, the W. A., the W.M.S., the Y.W.A., the C.E. had combined their time and talents in an effort to extend a royal welcome to the newly inducted minister and his wife. And the success of their efforts was testified to by a large crowd which filled the rooms to overflowing.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a musical program which was opened by an address of welcome, read by Mrs. C. Jamieson, president of the Christian Endeavor. Rev. Mr. Beeton thanked the assembled friends for their very kind welcome and expressed the hope that they would all have many happy hours together. Rev. Hugh Brown (retired) endorsed the welcome extended by the congregation, and expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Beeton would enjoy a long and happy sojourn in Havelock.

Following are other numbers on the program: chorus by C.E., "On to Victory"; reading, "Mrs. Harris-on at the Telephone," Madeline Armstrong; vocal duet, "I belong to the King" Miss M. Sexsmith and Mrs. McQuigge; monologue, Mrs. R. The service of dainty refreshments, sandwiches and cake, with a delicious cup of tea, brought this successful get together evening to a close.

HOSPITAL WITHOUT WATER

Because of the shortage of water in that part of Australia the Manly District Hospittal at Manly frequently has been without water for long periods recently. At one time not a drop could be had in more than two hours. Patients suffered greatly and doctors were handicapped in their operations. The hospital board has ordered a storage tank installed immediately.

THE GUTTA PERCHA TIRE

In addition to Gum Cushions the Gutta Percha Tire shown above has the Resisto Tread, rubber impregnated cord fabric, reinforced side walls, extra tread width—all extra values at no extra cost.

THIS is a cut-away of a Gutta Percha Tire showing the Gum Cushions. These broad pads of pure gum rubber are built in between the plies of cord fabric to absorb the battering shocks of the road, to absorb the flexing strains in the sidewall, to reinforce the beads. Smashing impacts which break down the cord fabric of ordinary tires—friction and chafing between the cords which cause ordinary tires to fail—are neutralized by Gum Cushions, originated by Gutta Percha out of 49 years of experience in the rubber industry in Canada.

Only Gutta Percha Tires are Gum Cushioned. Yet they cost no more than ordinary tires—you get this amazing extra value at no extra cost.

An Interesting Accessory for You—FREE

Missing Lindbergh Baby Found Cruelly Slain

MISSING CHILD CRUELLY SLAIN NEAR ITS HOME

per distance from the object of the hunt.

The spot where the body was found is thick grown scrub. The dead leaves of a happier Autumn form a patch carpet over the ground.

Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon a truck hauling timbers to be used in a moving job stopped beside the road. Allen left the truck and went into the brush. Horrified at what he saw Allen ran back to the road and called Orville Wilson. When Wilson viewed the body he said:

"What are you going to do?"

Allen said:

"I am going to notify the State police."

Grave on Slight Slope.

The police found the shallow grave on a slight slope. The body had been well concealed with leaves, dirt and brush. The child's form lay face down, and the depression in which it rested was so slight as to indicate that efforts to conceal it had been very hurried.

County Physician Charles Mitchell examined the body.

"The baby was struck a fearful blow on the head," he said. "The skull was fractured clear across the top. There is a hole over the right ear. The lower left leg is missing."

State police took charge of the body and the Lindberghs were notified. The Press announcement gave only briefest details. No word was forthcoming during the night from the parents.

Efforts to get the "intermediaries" to comment were without result. There were a number of them, some endorsed by Col. Lindbergh and others acting upon their own initiative. The most active were Dr. Condon of New York and Curtis, the Norfolk ship-builder. Others were Morris Rosner—mystery man with connections dipping into the underworld—Salvy Spitale and Irving Bitz—also presumed to have the confidence of gang members—and Gaston B. Means, acting as the agent of Mrs. Edward B. McLean. Private detectives and newspapers also were active in separate searches.

Moved Very Quietly.

All these "intermediaries" have moved like secret shadows through the weeks of investigation. They explained that any other course would endanger the life of the child. It was this secrecy that made possible the $50,000 "Jafsie" hoax by which that sum was paid to a man near a Yonkers, N.Y., cemetery on the man's promise to return the child.

The Norfolk intermediaries — Curtis and two associates— were even more active than "Jafsie," employing airplanes, yachts and fast motor cars in negotiations that ran up and down the Atlantitc seaboard and out to sea. Col. Lindbergh himself participated in these negotiations as recently as yesterday, it was learned.

Authorities understood that at the moment the body was discovered, the avaitor was seeking to contact the kidnappers somewhere off Long Island.

Mrs. McLean, the Washington woman who, acting independently, put up $100,000 in an effort to return the child to his parents, and who now charges Gaston B. Means, her agent, appropriated the money to his own use, declined to be quoted. Her counsel said she was greatly shocked and grieved.

Efforts at definite identification were pursued even after the police, the nurse and the country physician had satisfied themselves that the skeleton was that of the Lindbergh baby. A physician who was present at the baby's birth was called in early today, and added substantiation to the earlier identification.

Neither parents had viewed the body up to an early hour today, so far as could be learned; however, an automobile having Col. Lindbergh as one of its passengers, arrived at the Hopewell estate at 3 a.m. The flyer was ready to lend his active support to the hunt for the murderer of his child.

The mysterious ransom note, reputedly demanding $50,000 for the baby's safe return, was withheld from publication. Col. Schwarzkopf, commanding the state police, said it still was regarded as an important clue.

Demand A Full Account

The announcement that Dr. Condon ("Jafsie") and Curtis, had been summoned to police headquarters at Trenton and that they were to be turned over to "prosecuting authorities", was the first definite indication that police finally were ready to throw aside their "hands off" police concerning private negotiations and demand from the intermediaries a full account of their actions and of the information upon which they have been acting.

Authorities were still exercising extraordinary precautions to safeguard the feeling of the parents. Questions seeking to determine how the news had affected Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh and what plans they may have made toward bringing the abductor-killer to justice were not answered.

Non announcement was made of burial plans.

The report of the autopsy, performed by Dr. Mitchell, county physician, was gruesome in detail. In addition to the lower left leg, other parts of the body were missing, presumably to decomposition, hastened by exposure. The left hand and right forearm were gone, as were some abdominal organs. The conclusion reached by the physician, however, was without equivocation. He said:

"Diagnosis of the cause of death is a fractured skull due to external violence."

Expressions of sympathy came from every corner of the world; from the Paris to which Lindbergh, then the "Lone Eagle," flew from New York in a single, uninterrupted flight; from Washington where his feat later was given the official acclaim of the American people; and from Japan and China to which his wife as navigator and radio operator, he flew on a vacation tour last year.

A dramatic coincidence was noted in the fact that in the hour when the world was hearing news of the baby's death, Lou Reichers, New Jersey airman, was lifting the nose of his aeroplane into the night skies for a two-stop flight to Paris in an endeavor to cut in half the time made by Col. L. Lindbergh.

Obituary

WILLIAM WALTER DICKSON.

William Water Dickson, former resident of Peterborough and district, died at his residence, 42 Tyndall Avenue, Toronto, yesterday afternoon. He was 76 years of age.

Mr. Dickson was born in Otonabee Township on December 3, 1856. He was married to Sarah Ellen Rutherford and lived in Otonabee till nineteen years ago, when he moved to Peterborough. He later took up residence in Toronto where he had lived for the past twelve years. Mr. Dickson had been in poor health for a period of twenty years.

Besides his widow he leaves one daughter, Mrs. A. S. Clement, Toronto, and three sons, Wallace of Windsor, Charlie of Tupper Creek, B.C., and Clarence of Toronto; two grandchildren, Eileen and Arnold Dickson, of Tupper Creek, B. C., also two brothers, John W. of Quill Lake, Sask., and Stewart F. Dickson of Los Angeles, Cal.

The funeral will be held from Comstock's Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 p.m., and will proceed to Little Lake Cemetery, where interment will be made.

MISS NELLIE JEAN DODDS

The death occurred on Thursday afternoon of Miss Nellie Jean Dodds at her residence Lot 12, concession 3 South Monaghan.

A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dodds, the deceased was a native of South Monaghan Township, in which place she had lived practically all her life, and where she was held in high regard by a wide circle of friends.

She is survived by five brothers, Robert T., David N., William H., Peter, and the Rev. Thomas Dodds.

The funeral is to be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday from the residence of her brother David, lot 12, concession 3, to Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough. The Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of Centreville Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service.

DEAD CROCODILE AIDS FAMILY

Believed to have killed and eaten four-year-old Betty Doherty, of Ingham, N.Z., a crocodile was used to raise money for the victim's family. The "croc" was 12 feet 6 inches long, and after the tot's death was captured in a snare. The beast put up such a fierce battle that the trappers shot it to prevent its escape. It was then taken by rail to Halifax, where it was exhibited, the funds raised being presented to the Doherty family.

STAGGERING SUM SPENT IN SEARCH

CFash Cost of U. S. Crime of Century Set High in Six Digits.

ALL IN VAIN.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 13. — (C.P.)—The cash cost of the United States crime of the century is almost as hard to reckon as the more grievous price paid in suffering and sorrow.

But one thing is certain: the figure mounted high into six digits, possibly higher.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh lost $50,000 in a futile ransom payment. Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington paid out $10,000 in an attempt at ransom and charged that her agent, Gaston B. Means, mulcted her of it.

Those are the two definite figures that can be set. How to total the cost of a world-wide hunt in which hundreds of thousands of policemen and countless individuals took parts of varying importance?

How Expenses Mount.

Yachts are expensive to operate, and EEuropean trips are not taken at small cost. The Norfolk intermediaries have been using a yacht in their negotiation attempts. Their expenses, and those of Salvy Spitale, Irving Bitz, Morris Rosner and others who tried to get the baby back must have been high.

The New Jersey State police sent an official to Europe to run down clues. Spending thousands of dollars in the search, the police faced depleted funds and had to ask additional appropriation.

Naval planes and coastguard boats took part in the search, the Government spent money, assigning agents to the hunt and sending broadcast a long list of the ransom bills mulcted from Col. Lindbergh. All over the world police made special efforts to help.

If to this total are added telegraph and telephone tolls incurred by police, newspapers and individuals, the sum becomes staggering, all because one small boy was stolen from his crib.

Veteran Railroader Is On Retired List

MADOC, May 13.—Harry Shonliker, a veteran of 43 years on trains running out of Oshawa and in the district, who has been working on the Madoc-Belleville mixed for the last seventeen years, has coupled his last car and unloaded his last express and baggage on that run. On Sunday he was retired on pension, having reached the age of 65. Starting out on August 1st, 1889, braking on extras out of Belleville on the old G.T.R., he has stayed with railroading ever since. He as known from one end of the road to the other as a good hard working an, was popular with every person and now when he retires for a well earned rest he can look back on a fine record in his chosen work.

MRS. LINBERGH BEARING UP WELL UNDER TRAGEDY

HOPEWELL, N.J. May 13. — Double tragedy has come to Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in the past eight months.

Last Oct. 5, while she and Col. Lindbergh were on an aerial trip to the Orient her father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, died.

Despite the second blow — the finding of the body of her kidnapped son—Mrs. Lindbergh, was described as bearing up with her "usual equanimity."

The courage of the young mother, who is expecting another child within a few months, has been an inspiration to all about her, friends said.

A Children's Corner, set apart for young people and dedicated to a boy who was drowned, has been opened in Llandaff Cathedral in Wales.

BODY IS FOUND IN LONE THICKET

Col. Lindbergh Drove Over Road Many Times Within Few Feet of Son.

FIVE MILES FROM HOME.

HOPEWELL, May 13 From Mount Rose, near where the Lindbergh child was found slain, one can gaze over the wild woods in which foxes prowl and see the white Sourland estate of the flier, about five miles away.

The thicket near the roadside, where the tiny body was tossed by murderers, never was touched by the widespread search, in which hundreds of state troopers beat the brush about Hopewell and the Lindbergh estate. Apparently the isolated spot was considered too far away to yield any clue.

Mount Rose, a hamlet of a dozen houses clustering about a general store, is about a mile and a half from Hopewell on the road to Princeton. When his mountain estate was under construction, Col. Lindbergh lived in a Mount Rose house for a time.

Coming from the Lindbergh home, the kidnappers would have fled along a dirt road leading from the house across a paved highway running through Hopewell. The road then leads to Mount Rose. There they could have branched on to an improved highway and sped to Princeton, about seven miles away.

The body was found a short distance off the Princeton Road, and between Mount Rose and Hopewell. This led authorities to believe the child was carried through Hopewell by his abductors.

Col. Lindbergh drove over the road frequently in his journeys during the hunt for the child. Each time he traveled it he passed within a few feet of his sons body without knowing it.

Indigents To Grow Summer Vegetables

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Measures are being taken by the Relief Committee of the town of Campbellford to ensure that all those who have received relief from the town and are physically able must provide for the support of themselves and families this summer by raising their own garden table supplies. Failing to do this the town will not provide relief or supplies for these indigent citizens during the coming winter. J. R. Battisby, who is chairman of this committee has had many calls for relief during the past winter and it is felt that the burden of the town could be considerably lightened if many of those seeking relief would try and help themselves during the summer months by working their gardens and growing much of their supplies.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants and instead take a teasponful of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please, and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

WOULD RESTORE PRICES BY CURRENCY EXPANSION

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Urging enactment of his bill intended to restore 1921-1929 prices by currency expansion, representative Goldsborough (D. Md.) told the United States senate banking committee that within 90 days after its passage the country would know it is on the upswing economically.

He said enactment would give "reassurance" to commercial bankers that a federal reserve policy of raising the price level will be consistently carried out. The bill already has passed the house of representatives.

A WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT.

The announcement of the T. Eaton Company, Limited, of its intention to erect a new store, modern in every detail, at the south-west corner of George and Charlotte streets, has been happily received by citizens generally, who see in this building program a bright omen for the city's future prosperity and an endorsation of Peterborough as a business centre with every possibility of advancement.

Under any conditions the intelligence of the construction of a splendid new business place on a site that has been more or less of an eye-sore to local citizens would be received with satisfaction, but coming in a period of business and industrial slackness in many lines such an announcement has a most important pyschological effect.

News that big firms have faith enough in the future and in this city to launch out ambitious construction work at this time is heartening; it encourages the man who was beginning to think that there could be no end to this period of depression, and who had grown tired of looking for a break in the clouds.

The building of this new store will add an imposing business structure to the city's already lengthy list of worth-while stores: it will build up a corner that because of its prominent location has been disappointing in its appearance, and its construction will afford an opportunity for many weeks' employment to men engaged in the building trades, many of whom have been without steady work for months.

RELIEF FOOD STORES.

A good deal has been said recently about the possibility of unemployment relief being administered through the medium of government or municipal food stores, the supplies for which will be bought by tender.

Such a plan has been operated for the past year in St. Catharines and has recently been initiated in Oshawa, the arguments in its favor being that it provides for a more economical purchase of foodstuffs and ensures a balanced belief supply to all who are assisted.

Despite these benefits, The Examiner would be sorry to see the general adoption of the food depot plan, believing it to be unfair to the retail grocers who, like everybody else, have been hit by the depression and who should not be deprived of the relatively small profit that they obtain from the purchase of relief supplies.

It should not be forgotten that the people who are being helped were in their most prosperous days customers of the grocery stores, and in many cases when their incomes declined were carried through anxious weeks by those same grocers.

It would be unfair, in view of the comparatively small saving that would be effected, for relief movements to take the whole business represented by the families in receipt of public assistance away from local retailers, who have their taxes to pay and whose profits have been reduced to trifling proportions by a combination of fierce competition and uncertain book accounts.

There has been no profiteering, it is safe to say, in relief orders in Peterborough, and no sufficiently weighty reason exists for depriving local grocers of business that under ordinary conditions would be their's.

A SENSATIONAL PROGRAM.

If the report that the Ontario Government is planning a sensational curtailment in the cost of government is founded on fact, there is no doubt that Premier Henry and his administration have stolen a march upon their opposition critics.

The latter have contented themselves with preaching economy without offering any concrete suggestions as to how it should be effected.

The Government, however, is apparently coming to bat with a drastic program that will cut deeply into the cost of administration.

It is proposed to reduce the size of the Legislature from its present membership of 112 to 88 members, the number of Ontario representatives in the Federal Parliament, and to cut down the Cabinet to eight members.

At the same time the plan is said to include the abolition of all county councils and of the grand jury system.

There does not seem any doubt of the fact that such a program would be enthusiastically received by the people of Ontario, the only controversial feature being the suggested doing away with county councils, which would likely meet with opposition, but which might easily be sold to the ratepayers by an educational campaign dwelling on the heavy expense of the county council system and the overlapping and duplication it involves.

There has long been a feeling that we Canadians are over-governed, and a move to reduce the Legislature by eliminating 24 ridings and to cut down the number of departments would be hailed as a most desirable step toward a more economical administration.

With county councils eliminated and rural municipal government assumed entirely by township councils, it is not difficult to visualize the possibility of a material financial saving.

There has been no confirmation of this program from Queen's Pak, but political strategists admit that such a program would be a master stroke on the part of the Henry Government, and one that would rob the opposition of much of the ammunition it has stored up for the next general election.

A RELIEF SURVEY.

Premier Henry suggested a short time ago the desirability of appointing a small committee to study the different methods followed by various municipalities throughout the province in dealing with relief, with the view of drafting recommendations that would lead to a standardized plan of operations.

Such a survey should serve a most useful purpose, and the Premier would be well advised to set up such a commission as soon as possible in order that the municipalities will have the advantage of all available information upon this most pressing problem.

Relief organizations are already endorsing the Premier's view in this respect, and at a meeting the other night the Oshawa Citizens' Advisory Relief Committee unanimously passed a resolution calling upon the Government to proceed with the survey.

The motion closed with this significant paragraph:

> "Also, we respectfully urge upon the Government the advisability of placing the item of shelter in a more prominent position in any such plan of relief they may adopt with a view of relieving municipalities of financial pressure by the payment of delinquent taxes which would result from such a policy."

That is a point of great interest to every municipality at this time, and the Oshawa committee has done a general service in calling it to the attention of the Government.

RECAPTURING A MARKET.

Not all current statistics work out gloom. Yesterday came figures from the Trade and Commerce Department which were about as cheerful a little earful as we've had in a long time. Here are some of the things they told:

1. For the first quarter of the calendar year Canada's sales of bacon to Great Britain amounted to 5,648,000 pounds, this against 1,582,100 pounds for the corresponding period last year, and being an increase of 257 per cent.

2. During the months of February and March Canada exported direct for the first time to the Irish Free State 1,334,200 pounds of bacon and ham; this despite the fact that the Free State has always been regarded as a competitor with Canada in the British market for these particular products.

3. Total Canadian sales of bacon and ham to all countries for the first quarter of the year amounted to 7,752,00 pounds, as compared with 2,013,200 pounds in the first three months of 1931, an increase of nearly 285 per cent.

There is no gainsaying figures like these. What they show is that one branch of our agriculture is making impressive strides. It is not long since complaint was heard that Canada had all but ceased to be a factor in the British ham and bacon market, and there was a period, if we remember rightly, when this country had actually got to the point where it was importing pork. The good change now is that in three months of 1932 we have sold Britain more bacon and ham than we sent to the same market in the whole of 1928.

Incidentally, these figures show something else. It is that Britain, by long odds, is our best market, the British Empire overwhelmingly our best market. It is a truth that should make Canadians realize very keenly the possibilities of the coming Imperial Economic Conference.—Ottawa Journal.

IRISH EQUALITY?

It is difficult to grasp the logic of de Valera in the light of constitutional developments within the British Empire in the last few years. Discussing the bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the common Sovereign in the Dail yesterday, the President is reported:

> "When we pass this bill let the British talk about it. Let them make their protest then. We are quite prepared to hear it. We are going to have whatever dealings we have with them as equals. At the moment we are inferiors because they are depriving us of equality of status."

That sounds something like the fight which Big Bill Thompson waged once to keep King George out of Chicago.

But the treaty under which the Irish Free State was created specifically stated that the constitution was to be framed along the lines of that of Canada.

Have we not been told often enough by the former Premier, as a result of an Imperial Conference he attended, that Canada is an absolute equal in the British Common wealth, with the United Kingdom? Evidently de Valera disagrees with Mr. King.

What the Irish Free State is aiming at is the same sovereignty as Poland, Czecho-Slovakia or some other such county. And that can only mean, of course, getting out, bag and baggage, from under the aegis of the British Empire.

But why should the Irish Free State head use so much sophistry about it? No one would think of war over what the Free State may do in self-determination. The British Empire might be better off without this canker spot within it, such being what it is, as long as men like de Valera are in control.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The income tax to be levied on judges and officers of the Mounted Police and Militia will put them on the same footing as the rest in the Government service and will be popularly approved.

Reports from the Canadian West indicate the best crop prospects since 1928. That is good news for the whole country.

And now Algoma produces a beaver that stops motor cars and bites at the axles. That seems to be the Sault's best nature story to date.

P. W. Field, British Trade Commissioner to this country, says Canada is in better general condition than any other country. That should make everybody feel just a little happier.

According to Hon. Dr. Raymond Morand, radio license fees in Canada will "not be much heavier" as a result of the nationalization of broadcasting. Just how much, however, Dr. Morand failed to say.

Iceland, after fifteen years' trial, has decided to abandon prohibition. Evidently a frost up there, too.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 13.—Receipts of eggs were not heavy on the local market yesterday, and offers to country shippers were quoted steady prices. On the brokers' market, however, the demand for storage packed supplies was slow, and arrivals of ordinary packed eggs were fairly heavy, which resulted in easier prices. Brokers quoted storage packed eggs at 16½c for extras and 14½ for firsts, and ordinary packed, graded eggs at 15½c to 16c for extras, 13½c to 14c for firsts, and 12c for seconds. Country shippers were quoted 14c for extras, 12c for firsts, and 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 20c, extras loose at 18c, firsts loose at 16c, and seconds loose at 14c per dozen.

Poultry.

New price lists on poultry were issued yesterday, and quotations indicated a poor demand. Broilers, hens and ducklings were quoted at lower levels than previously shown in the table on this page.

Butter.

Prices on butter were about steady. Local brokers were quoting creamery solids at 17½c for No. 1, and 16½c to 17c for No. 2. Light receipts were responsible for prices on this market not following the downward trend to levels nearer those quoted in Montreal.

Cheese.

Prices on new cheese were steady at 9c to 9½c for new large, 9½c to 9¾c for new twins, and 9¾c to 10c for triplets. Retailers were quoted new makes at the steady prices of 11c for large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets, and 13½c for stiltons.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 13.—Egg prices moved higher, while cheese quotations declined and butter and potato prices were firm on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Graded Ontario or Prairie fresh eggs, in cartons or less, were generally firmer, extras at 17½ to 18 cents, and firsts at 15 cents, both being up half a cent, with seconds at 13 cents a dozen, holding unchanged. Receipts were 3,510 cases and quotations to retailers were firm.

Butter Prices Steady

No. 1 fresh graded butter, in cartons or broken lots, held steady at 16¼ to 16½ cents a pound. The tone of the market was better, with improved demand, light stocks and increased arrivals. Receipts were 396 boxes, with all Western butter being routed to Toronto.

Current cheese lost half a cent at 9 to 9¼ cents. Arrivals were 748 boxes.

New Bermuda potatoes are expected from Halifax soon, and it is thought they will be quickly bought, as no No. 1 potatoes are available here. New No. 2 Floridas were unchanged at $8 to $8.50 per 150-pound barrel. Quebec whites held steady, as did New Brunswick, Quebec and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Collapsing more than 2 cents a bushel, wheat tumbled yesterday to below the prices obtainable before the sensationally bullish new Government crop report was issued.

News of a constructive character as to wheat was thrown into the discard and stop-loss selling took place, emphasized by continued weakness of stocks. Failure of the wheat market to make any substantial response to radically curtailed official forecasts of the 1932 domestic winter wheat yields left holders dazed and suggestions were current that the crop had been underestimated.

Wheat closed unsettled at almost the bottom figures reached, 1⅝c-1¾c under Wednesday's finish. Corn ⅝c-1c down, oats ⅜c-⅝c off, and provisions showing 7c-1c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 13. — Influenced by lower wheat quotations at Liverpool and a weakened securities market, grain prices executed an about-face in the grain pit yesterday. Lower at the opening, prices steadily declined to close 1⅜c to 1¾c lower for the day.

May closed 1⅜c lower at 61¾c, July 1½c to 1⅝c lower at 62⅝c to 62¾c, while October declined 1⅝c to 64⅝c.

Foreign interest generally was disappointing. Only a limited export trade was worked. Lacking local support, and to some extent influenced by the bearish Government crop report on Wednesday, the market slipped fractionally in the initial hour. Weakness at Chicago, due to a weakened stock market, was reflected in the pronounced lower trend here, and appeared to be the main factor in the decline.

Cash wheat prices showed little change in quiet trade. Coarse grains in a dull trade sagged perceptibly with wheat.

A THOUGHT.

SPARING THE CHILDREN

I often hear it said by weak and sentimental folk that we ought to screen our children from the testings and buffetings of life. I do not believe it. My own observations lead me to say that the two prime causes for failure in children are these: a prolonged and weak sentimental indulgence of children in early childhood and youth, and then mischievous interferences with them when they must face life alone as grown men and women. Better never to have had a home than that one's home should make us soft and flabby. Better go out and face the beatings of time and life until you are covered with wounds and bruises than to keep your skin whole within a hothouse of weak sentimentality and selfishness.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

INSTALMENT NO. 18

Ever since Sam Lee's childhood he had received, on the eve of the New Year, money for gambling. Having gambled all his life, he looked upon it more as an occupation than an amusement. He had been raised in the Chinese belief that luck is a state of being, a posture, to be attained by proper preparation and under favorable conditions, and that belief still remained in him.

In spite of his Western training Sam had not entirely shaken off that idea. He still remained something of a fatalist, too, therefore he played imperturbably and without a trace of cupidity.

He was winning again to-night and the table at which he played was crowded. As usual, other players had followed him and were betting as he did. Alanna Wagner sat on one of the high stools close at his side, so close in fact that her body touched his. Her bare elbows rested upon the table, her chin was in her cupped hands, her eyes followed Sam's movements. She had lost, as usual, and now she surrendered herself to the fascination of observing him.

Alanna Wagner was more than good-looking even in repose, when animated she was a dancing flame, and she was comfortably aware of it. She lost no opportunity to take all possible advantage of her feminine attractions. Her hair was reddish brown and of fine texture, but of rebellious quality and she wore it cropped like a boy's; her face was willful and impetuous and in it were set a pair of insolent, tempestuous eyes, hazel in the sunlight, almost black at night; her brows were rather heavily penciled for a girl, which lent her face a certain forcefulness.

Heretofore she had represented everything that was haughty, elusive and intractable, but she had finally surrendered and patrons of the Paradis Casino started curiously at the imperturbable young man beside her, giving him credit for unusual qualities of mind or mesmeric powers of uncommon degree.

"Come along, darling, I'm tired," Alanna said suddenly.

Sam nodded. "I was only playing to amuse you," he told her.

As they left their places she inquired: "How much winner are you?"

"Oh, quite a lot, I believe!"

"Don't you know?"

Sam shrugged carelessly. "What's the difference? I already have more money than I need."

"Isn't there any kick in beating the game? Haven't you any enthusiasms whatever?"

He inclined his head and smiled. I have many. Winning and losing a few dollars isn't one of them however."

"I gloat like a miser when I pick up a beat and I'm furious when I lose. I can't bear to lose at anything."

"If I felt that way I wouldn't gamble. There are things I enjoy infinitely more than playing. I love beautiful things—silks, ivories, jewels, marbles, paintings. I—"

"Why don't you like me? I'm beautiful." Alanna asked this question abruptly and she fixed her dark eyes upon her companion's face with disconcerting intensity. She did not heed what he said, it was only a meaningless pleasantry anyhow, but she noted a certain change in his voice and a slow alteration in his color which contented her.

They had passed out of the Grande Salon and were in the soft carpeted promenade, the Peacock Alley of Paradis, with its mellow paintings, its tapestries, its palms and cut flowers. Ahead of them was the ornate cafe, a famous rendezvous for amusement seekers; from it issued the music of the Casino orchestra, one of the finest in Europe. Many couples were dancing, it was a brilliant scene.

Together they entered the cafe; with an ostentatious flourish they were shown to a table adjoining the dance floor and a restrained riot occurred over the privilege of seating them. Sam placed his order, smiling queerly the while.

Alanna drew a deep breath. "I'd give something for your luck," she said.

Sam spoke almost harshly. "Why? Is it good luck to win the things you can't keep, and to never attain what you really want?"

"Meaning what? What do you want that you can't attain? Who is she?"

He shrugged. After a moment she inquired:

By the way, have you got any money? Not that I care, but father was asking me. It's the first question a modern parent puts when his daughter shows interest in a fellow. If she answers in the affirmative, anxiety lessens, the conversation lags. Dad says I'm looking hatchy and beginning to cluck like a hen."

"I have nothing I can call my own," Sam declared.

"Well, so much for that. I've got plenty. Dad has more money than a bank." Dimples popped suddenly into Alanna's olive cheeks. "Now then, why is it you hate me? I'm reasonably good-looking—"

"Unreasonably! Terribly! Devastatingly!" Sam agreed.

"I'm full of that indefinable, magnetic something—"

"You are, indeed, and I adore you."

"Then, for Heaven's sake seize me and dance me." Sam and Alanna rose, she swayed forward into his arms and they moved away. This was intoxication.

Their table was ready when they returned to it. For a while they sat in silence then Sam began, "Did you notice those people who spoke to me? The woman looks Spanish."

"The only with the big comb? Who are they?"

"Friends of Mr. Bathurst's. The man is an oil operator from Oklahoma, she's his wife and Bathurst told me how they met. I'd like to tell you."

"Why?"

"I—It's an interesting story, to me at least. She isn't Spanish at all. She's an Osage girl."

"A—what?"

"An Osage Indian girl, from his own state. She had known him as a child. The Osages are rich, she had been educated at an Eastern college. The upshot of it was—a real love match. I considered it quite extraordinary."

"In what way?" Alanna queried.

"Because—many people have such racial prejudice."

"Bosh!"

"Have you none? Would you marry an—Indian, a man of another race?"

"I was engaged to one—to an East Indian. It was just fun, of course, but he was a dandy fellow and he wasn't very dark. I couldn't stand a dark one. You have the strangest ideas, Sam. I couldn't help marrying a man I care for. I'm thoroughly spoiled, thank Heaven! There aren't any taboos among people of our class. I'd marry him or—nobody else would."

They danced again when the music resumed and each felt some change in the other. A new vitality, some electric quality entered into Sam and Alanna thrilled to it; her body relaxed, came closer to his, her breath beat hotly upon his cheek. As if by mutual consent they ceased dancing at the end of the cafe nearest the open air and passed out unto the portico that overlooked the sea. Together they descended the wide marble steps. These gardens are a feature, and the very loveliest of the famous Paradis Casino, for their French skill in horticulture has reached perfection. Beyond them and running parallel with the cliffs is the handsome Avenue of the Cypresses, equally well advertised on souvenir postcards. This avenue of stately trees was doubtless laid out as a lovers' lane in the beginning for it affords an enchanting view of the harbor, especially on a moonlight night, and time has made it ever more beautiful and more popular among those sentimentally inclined. Suicides have happened there, too.

Here she and Sam found themselves without knowing which one had led the way. As a matter of fact, neither had led, their feet had shown them the path, but when they had passed out of the light and into the gloom, they paused and faced each other as if at some unspoken signal. Each saw the other dimly and yet with a revealing distinctness.

He had her in his arms, he was crushing her to him and bruising her lips with his; a ruthless passion overpowered him and the girl responded recklessly, unreservedly; her embrace was as close as his. It was capitulation for both, and conquest, too; a sudden bursting of all constraint, an explosive shattering of inhibitions, and the ecstasy of it was keener than a knife thrust. Intoxication, madness, abandon, bliss, triumph—words are weak symbols for emotions strong enough to paralyze the very processes of thought.

Voices sounded, people passed close by but neither Sam nor Alanna noticed them. They were entranced; they sat a while on a convenient bench, they rose and moved on aimlessly through the shadows, absorbed in each other. Time passed, it grew dark in the gardens behind them and even darker here, and they realized that the lights had been turned off, but the stars remained. The orchestra in the cafe had stopped long ago.

"A thousand times I've dreamed about holding you like this," Sam murmured. "I seem to experience feelings I've always known." He was profoundly interested in this phenomenon. "I've thought about you constantly, every night I've fallen asleep haunted by your voice. It was like the music of some stringed instrument sighing in the moonlight. I've breathed the fragrance of your hair and it was like sweet-scented honeysuckle."

"That's father soap," Alanna told him. "The odor lasts."

"He asked you if I had money and I told you—"

"Don't tell me anything, darling. What does it matter? What does anything matter? Tonight I'm not his daughter, I'm not flesh and blood, there's nothing sane or sensible about me. I'm the Sleeping Princess who is still rubbing her eyes. You might be a stranger, some beggar—it wouldn't make any difference."

"Thank Heaven, I'm no beggar. I dare say I have as much as your father has, or even more. Some day at least—"

"I'm sorry you told me that. I don't want you to be anybody or to have anything but me. I wish you were—less than the dust."

"But why?"

"If you don't feel the same about me I can't explain. Don't ask me to think or to talk sensibly. I've just learned whom I am and—"

"And I must tell you who I am."

"Not tonight! Don't dare! Sam, darling."

When finally they mounted the steps to the Casino, it was dark. A watchman on his rounds halted and eyed them suspiciously, then shrugged and turned away.

"I had no idea what time it is," Sam faltered as he peered at his watch. "What will your father say?"

Alanna laughed and drew his arm closer about her waist. "He's a sensible person. He'll probably say it's better for a girl to be out late than never."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 13.—(CP)—The creeping decline continued into the afternoon session on Toronto Stock exchange, the market reaching its lowest point in the first part of the afternoon when C. P. R. made a new bottom price of 11¼. Steel of Canada remained at its record low of 13, made just before midday, and Ford of Canada, Nickel and Brazilian were within fractions of their lows for this year.

Towards the close the market was steadier, but prices did not change much. C. P. R. firmed slightly to 11½ and Bell Telephone moved up to 90 again, after having been fractionally below that price most of the day.

Oils left off just under last night. There was no change in the market; for chain store and beverage stocks and most of the utility stocks left off unchanged from last night.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 13 (C. P.). — Standard Stock and Mining Exchange listings sold almost uniformly lower in afternoon trading to-day, after having pursued an irregular course during the morning. Volume was not heavy.

Noranda and International Nickel were chief sufferers, losing about half a dollar each. Hudson Bay dropped 15 cents, and smaller losses were shown by Eldorado, Mining Corp. and B.C. Pioneer.

Dome had the heaviest loss in the gold group, selling 20 cents lower, slightly under $11. Wright Hargreaves, Teck-Hughes, Premier, Barry Hollinger, Howey and Siscoe also recorded losses. Gains were shown by Kirkland Lake, Ventures, Hollinger and McIntyre, the latter two issues rising 15 and 25 cents, respectively.

Oils were dull, and mostly unchanged. Acme was off somewhat at 10.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 13 (C.P.). — The stock market settled down to around the depression lows registered last week, in another quiet sinking spell to-day. Rails were notably soft. Among issues losing 2 to 3 points were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Norfolk and Western, American Tobacco B, Western Union, Detroit Edison, General Foods, Coca Cola, Eastman, and others. People's Gas, Commonwealth, and Southern Preferred, and Pacific Telephone Preferred lost 4 to 5, while United Aircraft Preferred dropped nearly 7. U.S. Steel sagged more than a point.

The closing tone was heavy. The day's turnover approximated 800,000 shares.

STORES WITHOUT KEEPERS.

Stores without storekeepers are to be opened in London. Every sale will be automatic. Customers will simply walk up to the store window, select what offerings they desire, put their money into a slot, press a button and receive the purchase and change simultaneously. The stores will supply all kinds of proprietary articles, from a box of pills to a pound of tea.

WAR-SCENE PAINTER DIES

Robert Gibb, the painter of famous war pictures, has died at Edinburgh, Scotland, aged 87. His paintings have been so popular that there have been many reproductions of them. These include "The Thin Red Line," "Retreat from Moscow," "Saving the Colors," and "The Guards at Inkerman."

Lawyers Barred In Far Sarawak Isle

MONTREAL, May 13 (C.P.) — Sarawak is probably the only spot on the face of the globe where lawyers are not allowed, according to F. O. Blagg, legal adviser to the Government of the Rajah, Sir Charles Viner Brook, G.C.M.G., who visited this city recently on his way to England on leave.

Sarawak lies in the northwest section of the island of Borneo which, contrary to the general belief, does not belong to Britain but is a British protectorate as far as external affairs are concerned. Roughly it is the size of England and Wales and consists mostly of virgin jungle not yet surveyed. The country, with a population of 600,000, is run for the benefit of the natives, foreign entrance not being encouraged. Oil, rubber, jelutong—a major constituent of chewing gum, pepper, sago, copper, some antimony and gold are the chief industries.

Thank You

J. J. Duffus, Ltd., wish to announce the Alley Bowling Closing on Saturday night, May 14th, until near the end of September next, and would like to take this opportunity of expressing their sincere appreciation for the patronage enjoyed through the season just ending, and convey the hope that all bowlers and friends found the past season's activities very enjoyable and beneficial.

HONEST TRADER DIFFICULT TIME SAYS W.R. COOKE

President of Cooke Clothing Company Addresses Kiwanis.

FOOLING THE PUBLIC.

$25.00 Suits Marked Up to $35.00 For "Half-Price Sale.

"Liars and cheats," was the term used by Warren K. Cooke, president of the Cooke Clothing Company of Toronto, in describing the "racket" which is now being practised in Toronto by certain clothing firms who buy up the "ragged end" of bankrupt stock and pass such merchandise off as the product of reputable firms.

Mr. Cooke addressed the Kiwanis at to-day's noon luncheon in the Empress Hotel, and left with the clubmen a suggestion that they should inaugurate within the club a "better business methods committee," to make it impossible for "liars and cheats" to operate in Peterborough.

If the club were to adopt such a policy the speaker believed that it would have done a lot to keep the honest trader in business and would also have performed a valuable service to the consumer.

"Fortunes are being made out of fooling the public," stated the speaker, mentioning as an instance the fact that recently he found a Toronto clothier marking $35 suits up to $35 in preparation for a "half price" sale. A short time later that same tradesman held a fire sale. "There was a fire in that district," the speaker observed, "but," he added significantly, "it was two blocks away."

Such methods, he contended, made it extremely difficult if not impossible for the honest business man to survive. Many years ago, he remarked, lying, cheating and misrepresentation were commonly met with in business, but such methods were ultimately swept completely overboard. Now, he claimed, the tendency is for a wholesale return of such deporable conditions if something is not done to combat such operations.

Some years ago, the speaker said, the newspapers refused to accept advertisements for patent medicines on the grounds that many of them were "quack" preparations. But, he charged, the newspapers of the present day are accepting the advertisements of the class of merchants he had previously referred to. "I say to the newspapers that unless they discontinue this undesirable form of advertising, the newspapers will lose the business of reputable merchants who will seek some other medium. It has been appalling in Toronto the class of advertising that has been carried in the newspapers."

Touching upon less serious matters, the speaker gave the clubmen several suggestions upon how to be better dressed at no additional cost. He urged them to buy only from dependable dealers in which they had complete confidence, and stressed the importance of buying shirts and neckwear that harmonized with the color of the suit.

The speaker was tendered a vote of thanks by President Harry J. Boyle, on motion of Roy S. Wemp. The program was enlivened by Herb. McCannan's "Sunshire Quartette," consisting of Kiwanians W. H. Freel, R. Haddow, Carl S. Browne, and C. M. Lawrence.

TORIES READY IN MANITOBA

Party Favors National System of Contributory Unemployment Insurance.

ELECTION JUNE 16.

BRANDON, May 13 (C.P.).—Confident of victory, Conservatives of Manitoba to-day stand ready for the Manitoba general elections of June 16. Yesterday they gathered from all parts of the Province and drew up the platform they propose to lay before the electors.

Both leaders and rank and file at the convention faced the issues confronting the Province in a spirit of realism. There was a universal demand for economy and efficiency in administration, together with a balanced Provincial budget. Col. F. G. Taylor, leader of the party, received an ovation and declared he did not expect to win the election by making rash promises.

Three decisions of the convention stand out as of more than Provincial significance. The party went on record as favoring a national system of contributory unemployment insurance. It declared the continuance of the Canadian National Railways as a separate publicly-owned utility to be desirable. It also favored a recasting of the taxation system of Canada which might involve a new division of the field of taxation as between the Dominions and the provinces.

NEW YORK, May 13. — (CP) — Prime commerical paper 3-3½ per cent; foreign exchange easy, demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain 3 65½; France 3 94 11-16; Italy 5.15; Germany 23 88. Canadian dollars at 11½ per cent discount.

Terrific Blaze Rages Beyond Control

PIER FIRE DOES $2,000,000 DAMAGE

C.P.R. DROPS TORONTO MART

Softness in Interlisted Section Reflects Weakness at Wall Street.

OILS DRIFT LOWER.

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.)—Another slow decline marked the progress of Toronto Stock Exchange this morning.

Action of the interelisted issues clearly indicated that price recessions here were a reflection of the continued weakness in New York. Rails were still under pressure in the larger centre and C.P.R. went down with the group until on the local board it rested at its former record low of 12.

Brazilian at 9¾. Nickel at 5⅝. Ford of Canada at 7⅝. Steel of Canada at 13, were all down from last night. Of these Steel was at a new low, and the others within fractions of their bottom prices. Goodyear Tire Preferred made a new low on ½ point decline to 76.

Oils drifted lower with the rest of the market, despite the fact the outlook for the industry to-day is brighter than in quite some time. Beverage issues were unchanged, while the food and chain store stocks were inactive. Bell Telephone, Consumers' Gas, B.C. Power "A", were all unchanged. Shawinigan sold just below 12.

DOMINION WILL SHARE RELIEF

In Future Province and Municipalities to Divide Only 50 Per Cent. of Cost.

FORMER SPLIT, THIRD.

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.)—Premier George S. Henry said to-day the Dominion Government intended standing 50 per cent. of the Province expenditures on direct relief. Formerly the distribution of costs of direct relief has been on a basis of one-third contributed each by the Federal and Provincial Governments and the municipality.

What proportion the Province will bear and what proportion is to be assigned to the municipality will not be determined until the Dominion Government passes its legislation.

It is considered likely that municipalities which show the government their financial status does not permit further expenditures will have their direct relief carried on by the two Governments.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.).—The United Farmers' Co-operative Co. to-day supplied the Canadian Press with the following quotations on produce delivered at Toronto:

Eggs, extras, doz. 14c.
Eggs, firsts, doz. 12c.
Cream, churning, No. 1, lb. 15-17c.
Creamery butter, No. 1 solids, lb. 17½c.
Potatoes, No. 1 (carlots), in bags, 28-30c.
Chickens, over 5 lbs. 16-17c.
Hens, over 5 lbs. 14-15c.
Young turkeys, 8-12 lbs. 19-20c.

TORONTO, May 16. —(C.P.) — Wholesale prices on fruit and vegetables as reported to the Canadian Press by White and Co. to-day are as follows:

Apples, 6 qt. basket, 25-30c.
Beets, 11 qt. basket, 15c.
Carrots, 11 qt. basket 40c.
Hothouse tomatoes, lb. 30-35c.
New cabages, per crate, $5-$5.50.
Parsnips, per bag 75c.
Turnips, per bag 50c.

BROKEN PARENTS NOT TO SEE SON

from breaking down, a radio operator repeated the message desperately. Not until midnight did the Marcon pick it up.

The yacht immediately made for a landing place, near Atlantic City. A car awaited Col. Lindbergh there. After a wild 200-mile drive, he arrived home, pale and exhausted.

CONDON NOT IMPLICATED.

TRENTON, N.J., May 13.— District Attorney Erwin Marshall announced this afternoon that nothing had been found to implicate Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the search for the Lindbergh baby.

"He has been released and has gone back to New York," Marshall said.

CHILDREN'S PRAYERS FAIL.

MOUNT ROSE, N.J.— The land where the Lindbergh body was found is owned by St. Michael's Orphanage of Hopewell.

The 500 children of the Orphanage had been praying daily that the child might be left unharmed at the door of their institution. Every morning they would look on the steps to see if the child was there.

MOTHER ON WAY.

DETROIT, May 13.—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, Sr., mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to-day was en route to New Jersey to join her son and daughter-in-law at their Sourland mountain home.

For the first time since the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby March 1, Mrs. Lindbergh did not appear at the Cass Technical High School this morning to meet her classes in chemistry.

This morning she boarded a train for the east after arranging for a substitute teacher to take over her classes. Her associates at the High School said Mrs. Lindbergh requested that no one talk to her about the baby.

TRENTON, N.J., May 13 (C.P.). —District Attorney Erwin E. Marshall said after a conference at the State House to-day that no one was under suspicion for the slaying of the Lindbergh baby "at this time," but that there might be an arrest "any time."

"But there may not be any arrests for a few days," he added. "We are not going off half-cocked on this thing. We are going to study the case and know where we are going."

Marshall, who is Prosecutor of Mercer County, and so has jurisdiction now because the body was found in that county although the kidnapping occurred in Hunterdon County, said he was unprepared to advance any theories yet.

He said that Dr. John F. Condon, who paid the futile $50,000 ransom, and John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk negotiator for the baby's return, had come voluntarily to the Lindbergh home after the body was found.

They made formal statements last night and were subjected to lengthy questioning to-day. Marshall said they were not under arrest, but would be examined minutely as to every detail of their efforts in the case.

Marshall said to-day that with completion of the autopsy county officials were through with the body of the kidnapped child and it would be returned to the Lindberghs for burial as soon as they had made funeral arrangements.

CORSICAN BANDIT CAUGHT.

Torre, one of Corsica's notorious bandits, has fallen into the hands of police. In an effort to capture him last November an expeditionary force, having machine guns, armored cars, and police cars, was sent out. Tordes was wounded in a recent encounter with gendarmes, but escaped into the bush. A search of the bush revealed a hidden grotto containing rifles, revolvers, and ammunition. The bandit was found, in a ditch nearby. He had been shot in the head, and surrendered without resistance.

CELLOPHANE TO BE MADE IN DOMINION

New Industry Brought to Quebec Town by Canadian Industries, Ltd.

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que., May 13 (C.P.)—Canadian materials and Canadian labor are employed in an industry new to Canada at the Canadian Industries cellephane plant which recently commenced production here.

Sulphite pulp from Canadian forests form the basic raw material for the manufacture of the transparent wrapping substance now being made for the first time in Canada. Hitherto all the cellophane used in the Dominion has been imported.

The new plant, built by Canadian workmen through Canadian capital and enterprise, is the newest industry in Canada and the latest addition to the industrial life of this little manufacturing town.

Germany is planning more airports.

FRESH CONTINGENT OF NUDISTS ADDED TO LONG LIST IN PRISON

Start 137 Strong, Along Highway in Protest for Jailing of Brethren.

TAKE ARREST QUIETLY.

GRAND FORKS, B.C., May 13. — (C.P.)—Another nude Doukhobor parade, another police round-up and to-day there are 137 more Doukhobors in jail. This brings the total number of adult Doukhobors confined under sentence and awaiting trial to an even 250. Besides there are a score or more of children.

The latest parade occurred near here last night and followed closely on the heels of two at Nelson. In protest against the imprisonment of their fellows at Nelson, the 137 nudists, half of them men and the others women, attempted a march along the highway from their settlement at Graham Ranch to Nelson.
